UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 31) UPI - Fearing they would fail again to expel Israel from the U.N. General Assembly, Arab countries asked and obtained a 10- day postponement of a debate on Israel's U.N. credentials, diplomats said Wednesday.

Every year since 1982, Arab countries have tried to expel the Jewish state from the 160-nation General Assembly. But the move has always been defeated because the five Nordic countries made a counter proposal and successfully persuaded the body to reject the Arabs' expel motion.

The General Assembly was to discuss credentials of all countries attending its current 45th session Thursday. The diplomats said the issue will be taken up in about 10 days.

''We agree not to challenge Israel's credentials this year provided that it will abide by U.N. resolutions,'' Kuwaiti U.N. Ambassador Mohammad Abulhassan said.

In last year's vote, 95 countries supported Israel while 35 were against. The Soviet Union traditionally went along with Arab countries, but it abstained last year at a time relations between Moscow and Jerusalem were warming up.

The diplomats said the Palestine Liberation Organization proposed that Arab representatives work out a resolution this year demanding that Israel abide by U.N. resolutions instead of following their disastrous practice in previous years of trying to unseat that country.

They said the PLO and Arabs needed more time to work out their resolution and that was the reason they asked for the postponement.

Thirty-one Arab and Moslem countries signed a motion this week seeking to unseat Israel because of its ''defiant'' attitude toward U.N. resolutions regarding the status of Jerusalem, the Israeli-occupied West bank and Gaza Strip and the occupation of part of southern Lebanon by Israeli troops.

CLEVELAND (OCT. 31) UPI - BP America Inc., the North American division of British Petroleum Co. PLC., said Wednesday it would cut 85 jobs from its headquarters in Cleveland as part of a reorganization aimed a streamlining operations. BP America said its corporate staff of nearly 900 employees will be cut to 380.

Some 190 now employed at the corporate level will be assigned to one of three BP America divisions also headquartered in Cleveland and 210 will be employed by a separate service organization to provide various services to BP employees and companies.

People working in some of the 85 jobs being cut will be transferred to fill other openings and others will lose their jobs. The details of BP America's reorganization plan came two days after the company called a news conference to deny a published report that up to 700 BP America employees could be in danger of losing their jobs.

A spokesman said during Monday's news conference that fewer than 100 employees would lose their jobs and others would be transferred to BP America divisions - BP Oil, BP Exploration and BP Chemicals - in an effort to reduce bureaucracy.

"We've made excellent progress in making BP more productive and more competitive," BP America President James Ross said in a prepared statement Wednesday. "But with this structural change, we've only just begun the larger task of changing relationships throughout the company and the way we manage and behave.

"As we go into the next phases of Project 1990," Ross said, "our employees will see greater opportunities to contribute to the company's effectiveness, as well as to their own personal and professional goals."

BP bought a 56 percent stake of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) in the early 1970s so Standard Oil could finance exploration in Alaska and in 1987, it acquired full control of the company.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 31) UPI - Profits in the nation's banking industry, now burdened by waves of massive layoffs and rounds of belt tightening, declined by 52 percent during the third quarter, a Virginia bank research company said Wednesday.

The economic slowdown in New England, the Mid-Atlantic and the Southeast combined to overcome healthier financial climates in the Midwest and West to push overall bank earnings down, according to a survey by SNL Securities, of Charlottesville, Va.

Based on a preliminary review of financial result from 149 of the nation's 400 publicly traded banks, SNL found non-performing assets on the rise and deterioration in the adequacy of bank reserves.

The survey found bank reserves to have declined to their lowest levels in four years while net interest margins have narrowed. The ratio of equity capital to assets remained flat during the quarter.

Moreover, banks posted a sharp increase in levels of nonperforming assets, which have reached their highest volume of the post-war era. Nonperforming assets increased to 2.63 percent of assets during the quarter from 2.41 percent during the second quarter.

"The increase in nonperforming assets shows no sign of abating," said Reid Nagle, SNL's president. "Look for nonperforming assets to continue to rise for at least the next year, reaching record levels in each successive quarter." Nagle said the continued increases in nonperforming assets "will essentially wipe out" bank earnings for "at least the next year and perhaps longer."

The survey found striking regional differences in banking performance. Financial positions declined mosted markedly in states where real estate recessions have already taken hold, such as Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, and New York. As a group, New England banks posted their fourth consecutive quarterly loss.

The survey showed indications that the real estate sluggishness has spread south to the Mid-Atlantic states, where bank profits and asset quality eroded in the third quarter.

Profits of banks in the Southeast declined with institutions in Florida and Virginia among those hardest hit by rising levels of nonperforming assets.

In the Southwest, the once-promising signs of recovery were stalled during the third quarter as nonperforming assets reversed their previous downward trend. Banks in the region had been battered in the mid-1980s by weakness in the energy industry.

The two bright spots in the industry's performance were found in the West and Midwest, where banks continued to flex their muscle, but for different reasons.

"Banks in the West continue to benefit from a comparatively strong and diverse economic base, whereas banks in the Midwest have been rewarded for their conservative lending practices during the go-go days of the decade just ended " Nagle said.

Bank profitability declined slightly in the West while nonperforming assets rose modestly but remained at levels well below those of the previous year. Banks in the region also boosted their reserve coverage during the quarter.

Profits rose in Midwestern banks during the third quarter despite a modest increase in nonperforming assets. The SNL survey found Midwestern regional and superregional banks to be the strongest in the nation.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - Crusading columnist Jack Newfield resigned Wednesday from the Daily News, saying he could not ''in good conscience'' work for a newspaper whose owners were bent on crushing unions.

Known as a champion of workers, the poor and politically disenfranchised, Newfield said he handed in his resignation to News editor James Willse after a sleepless night as the bitter strike entered its sixth day.

He said he would be giving up his $90,000 annual salary at the News to write a column for the weekly New York Observer, starting with the Nov. 7 issue. ''I'll have less money but more self-respect,'' he said.

The News released a statement saying Newfield, who was a management employee, ''made a very personal decision. We thank him for his contributions to the Daily News and wish him well.''

Newfield, who came to the News in June 1988 after 24 years at the Village Voice, has written or co-authored six books, including ''City for Sale,'' an account of the municipal scandals under former Mayor Edward Koch.

The noted muckraker predicted dire consequences for workers throughout the city and the newspaper business if the News's owners, the Tribune Co. of Chicago, accomplish their goal of busting the paper's unions.

''If they break the unions here, in the biggest union town in the country, newspaper unions across America will be broken,'' Newfield said amid chanting pickets outside the News building, clutching some files and a rolodex. ''This is a watershed fight for labor and business.''

He added that Willse and other editors were not the enemy. ''The enemy are accountants and bond underwriters in Chicago.''

Newfield, like other members of the Newspaper Guild, directed criticism for the strike at union leadership for not addressing ''real abuses'' by their members during contract negotiations.

In his resignation, Newfield echoed the sentiments of many walking the picket line by saying, ''Working at the Daily News was the best job I ever had. I loved it.''

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (OCT. 31) UPI - The planned Nov. 9 launch of the shuttle Atlantis on a classified military mission will be delayed, possibly as much as two weeks, because of problems with the ship's spy satellite payload, officials said Wednesday.

''The Air Force has decided to delay (Atlantis's) launch to resolve anomalies discovered during cargo testing,'' said an Air Force statement. ''Details are classified and it's too early to predict a new launch date.''

Sources who requested anonymity, however, said Atlantis could be grounded for two weeks or more to resolve the problem.

Atlantis and its five-man all-military crew, grounded in July by an elusive hydrogen fuel leak, were formally cleared Tuesday for blastoff Nov. 9 after the shuttle passed a fueling test last week without springing any leaks.

With Atlantis solidly on track for launch, the shuttle's top-secret satellite payload, possibly bound for an orbit carrying it over the Persian Gulf, was installed in the ship's 60-foot cargo bay Monday at launch pad 39A.

But NASA Administrator Richard Truly met Wednesday in Washington with Lt. Gen. Donald Cromer, head of Air Force Systems Command, and word quickly spread about a problem with the payload.

The nature of the problem was not immediately clear and NASA officials would not discuss the matter because of the military nature of the flight.

''On this kind of a question, we have to refer you to the Air Force,'' said one NASA spokesman.

As usual with such military shuttle missions, details about the flight are secret, including the exact launch time, the identity of the payload and the landing time. In addition, all radio traffic between the astronauts and mission control will be blacked out for the duration of the mission.

In a launch announcement Tuesday, NASA would only say Atlantis was scheduled for liftoff sometime between 6:30 p.m. EST and 10:30 p.m. Nov. 9.

Sources, however, said launch was scheduled for around 6:47 p.m. EST Nov. 9 and that the flight would last three days, 23 hours and 55 minutes, resulting in a touchdown at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., around 3:42 p.m. PST on Nov. 13.

Atlantis's mission represents the last fully-classified shuttle flight currently on the books.

Only two more military missions are scheduled, one in February and another next summer, but the payloads of both missions have been declassified in a Department of Defense bid to save money.

By doing away with elaborate ''control mode'' security precautions, the Air Force will save some $80 million per year, according to sources who requested anonymity.

While the Pentagon will continue to deploy secret spy satellites and other classified national security payloads, such high-priority spacecraft will be launched by unmanned shuttle-class Air Force Titan 4 rockets.

''It was very expensive,'' an Air Force official said of classified shuttle operations. ''When it got canceled, it was around $80 million a year just for secure operations. We just couldn't afford to do it anymore.''

As for Atlantis's cargo, Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine reported in its Oct. 22 issue the shuttle is carrying a giant photo- reconnaissance satellite and that the spaceplane will be launched into an orbit tilted 28.5 degrees to the equator.

The magazine said a rocket attached to the satellite, known as Air Force Project 658, will boost the spacecraft to an altitude of about 460 miles. Sources told UPI the satellite will be launched from Atlantis on the second or third day of the mission.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - The dollar lifted a bit Wednesday in thin, directionless New York trading as market players closed books at the end of the month, but some participants saw stronger Japanese interest in the U.S. unit.

"It's been pretty much featureless trading," said Morris Armstrong, a vice president with Girozentrale Vienna. With the dollar in a narrow range, dealers mostly took care of month-end paperwork and client orders.

In late New York dealings, the dollar was quoted at 1.5175 German marks, up from 1.5145 marks Tuesday, and 130.10 Japanese yen, up from 128.80.

But Susan Stearns, an assistant vice president with Harris Bank in New York, said buying of dollars for yen suggested some big Japanese investors might be getting ready to bid in November's U.S. Treasury quarterly refunding.

The Treasury was expected to sell some $34 billion of bonds and notes in the quarterly operation to finance the U.S. public debt. "There's some speculation that the Japanese might have some interest in the auction next week and that they are building their dollars in right now," she said. "That's a real possibility."

She confirmed Armstrong's description of a thin market, though, and said most foreign exchange players were awaiting the U.S. unemployment data to be issued Friday, looking for confirmation a recession is brewing.

A very weak unemployment number could oblige the Federal Reserve to bring the key Federal funds short-term interest rate another 1/4 percentage point lower, which would probably kick the dollar even lower.

The Fed eased the funds rate, set on bank-to-bank overnight loans of reserve funds, to 7 3/4 percent from eight percent Monday.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2855 Swiss francs, up from 1.2820; 5.0825 French francs, up from 5.0685; and 1,137 Italian lire, up from 1,134.25. The pound slipped to $1.9435 from $1.9570.

In Europe, the dollar closed mostly lower as the market shook off the slightly positive effect of high U.S. third quarter gross national product and increased tensions in the Persian Gulf.

"It's been quiet for the dollar today. The bubble of the GNP figures has been burst, and we're waiting for real developments on the Gulf situation," said National Westminster Bank dealer Geoff Earnshaw.

Others said most activity focused on the weak British pound, which sagged on rumors of interest rate cuts by the Bank of England.

Also hurting the pound was Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's resistance to European Monetary Union at a weekend European summit, which she elaborated on in a speech to the Parliament on Tuesday. The pound slipped to $1.9450 compared with $1.9505.

In Frankfurt the dollar closed lower at 1.5160 German marks against 1.5250 on Tuesday. In Zurich it also retreated, to 1.2835 Swiss francs vs. 1.2960.

The dollar declined in Paris, Brussels and Milan: at 5.0885 French francs vs. 5.0935, 31.2350 Belgian francs vs. 31.30, and 1,138.40 Italian lire vs. 1,139.50.

Earlier, the dollar strengthened against the yen in Tokyo on reports of U.S. concern about the dollar's recent losses. The dollar closed at 129.35 yen, up 0.35 yen from Tuesday's close of 129.00 yen.

Kaneo Ogino, a vice president at Goldman Sachs (Japan) Corp., said the dollar rallied on reports that U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicolas Brady said he did not welcome the dollar's loss in exchange value.

In Zurich, gold rose to $378 an ounce from $373.50. In London the metal also moved up, closing at $379.25 an ounce vs. $375.

Silver closed higher in Zurich at $4.25 an ounce vs. $4.15 Tuesday. It also rose in London, to $4.22 an ounce vs. $4.17.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $379.50 an ounce, off a bit from $379.75 Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $379.40 an ounce, down from $379.70.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.175 an ounce, off from $4.23. Comex silver closed at $4.18 an ounce, down from $4.245.

ATHENS, Greece (OCT. 31) UPI - Bahraini Foreign Minister Mohammed bin Mubarak al Khalifa arrived in Tehran Wednesday to seek Iranian cooperation in finding a solution to the Persian Gulf crisis, the official Iranian media said.

Al Khalifa, whose visit was the first by a Bahraini foreign minister to Tehran since the Iranian revolution in 1979, met President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani and handed him a message from the emir of Bahrain, Tehran radio said.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said the Bahraini minister would stay two days in Tehran and meet with Iranian leaders on the crisis caused by the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and its impact on the region.

He told the Iranian president Bahrain decided that recent developments in the region made it necessary for Manama to have closer relations with Iran.

Al Khalifa said Bahrain and its Arab neighbors on the southern shores of the Persian Gulf believed it would be profitable for them to cooperate more closely with the Islamic Republic.

Bahrain is a member of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council, which includes Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Oman.

The Iranian state radio quoted him a saying: ''As one family (of nations), we must have more cooperation in the region.'' Al Khalifa also met with Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, the radio said.

Earlier, he told IRNA regional countries should try their utmost to prevent a catastrophe.

IRNA quoted him as saying: ''The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait has exposed the region to serious dangers and this problem cannot be solved in the absence of collective cooperation (among) the littoral states'' of the gulf.

Tehran condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and pledged to comply with U.N. sanctions against Iraq, but has restored diplomatic relations with Baghdad and indicated it wished to avoid any conflict with Iraq.

Monday, Tehran radio expressed fears that the gulf was on the brink of an all-out war and that the presence of weapons of mass destruction in the area could draq all the regional states, including Iran, into the conflict.

During the 1980-88 gulf conflict, GCC member-states bankrolled Iraq's fight against Iran but since Baghdad's troops marched into Kuwait, the attitude of the states has changed.

Earlier this week, a high-ranking Saudi Arabian official was in Tehran with a message for Velayati from the Saudi foreign minister. Details of the message were not disclosed.

"I think the strike is suicide, and I blame it all on the union leadership," said striking City Hall reporter Andrew Kirtzman. "Management had it all planned, and we fell right into it."

In his resignation, Newfield echoed the sentiments of many walking the picket line by saying, "Working at the Daily News was the best job I ever had. I loved it."

He added, "But my conscience and self-respect just can't allow me to ratify the breaking of the unions with my labor and my name ... I would be miserable working for a paper that locked out its unions, and sitting next to scabs at desks once occupied by my friends."

Tom Robbins, a striking News reporter who came over from the Voice, where he worked closely with Newfield, said, "Jack wrestled with his conscience and made a courageous and principled decision. He always hated what they were doing upstairs." Said striking reporter Samme Chittum. "They (management) have to start worrying about defections. We're doing the right thing."

The News, however, has claimed that 250 members of the 750-member Newspaper Guild bargaining unit have crossed the picket line and gone back to work, but Guild president Barry Lipton disputed the figure, saying no more than 70 had broken ranks.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 31) UPI - Sugar Ray Leonard's estranged wife says the boxing champion abused and humiliated her, and a hearing has been scheduled Friday on her request for increased alimony and child support payments.

In court records of the couple's divorce proceeding that were recently unsealed, Juanita Leonard accused Sugar Ray Leonard of adultery and physical abuse. She said he ''persistently engaged in cruelty of treatment'' and that he assaulted her, causing her ''bodily injury.''

The boxing champion and Maryland resident also ''harassed and humiliated (his wife) in the presence of her family, friends and others, '' the records said.

Juanita Leonard's attorney, celebrity lawyer Marvin Mitchelson, would not comment Wednesday on the nature or extent of the abuse.

The court files of the divorce proceedings were unsealed by Judge William Miller Oct. 22 at the request of Mitchelson. They were initially sealed to protect the privacy of the couple's two children, he said.

Juanita Leonard is seeking increased monthly payments for alimony and child support from $12,000 to $50,000, Mitchelson said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

He said a hearing was scheduled for next March on the validity of a prenuptial agreement between the Leonards that was signed before they were married.

Mitchelson said the couple lived together for seven years before they married, and that Ray Jr., the oldest of their two children, was born out of wedlock.

''If the prenuptial is upheld it gives her virtually nothing and no division of property,'' said Mitchelson, who estimated that Leonard was worth $50 million. ''It's a critical issue.''

The Leonards were married in 1980 in Prince George's County. Sugar Ray filed for divorce last March. In an amended petition Juanita filed in April, she said the couple separated in December 1989 and that Sugar Ray committed adultery.

Juanita Leonard owns a clothing boutique in a Virginia suburb of Washington and resides in Bowie, Md., Mitchelson said. Sugar Ray lives in Potomac, Md., he said.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - Detectives Wednesday were investigating the mysterious death of an 8-month-old boy found in a Bronx hospital with his throat tube disconnected and heart monitor cut off, authorities said.

Little Nigel Bostick was found lifeless in his crib by a nurse in the pediatric ward at Montefiore Hospital in the Bronx, said Officer Scott Bloch, a police spokesman.

''His cardiac monitor was disconnected and the tracheotomy tube was removed from the child,'' Bloch said.

Doctors spent an hour unsuccessfully trying to revive the child, who was admitted to the hospital on Sept. 17, suffering from breathing problems, said the boy's mother, Theresa Bostick.

Hospital officials said Wednesday foul play was not suspected in the baby's death, explaining that he may pulled out the tube himself.

Bostick expressed shock at her young son's death. ''If you had a baby that was in the hospital and he was supposed to come home, how would you feel?

''We have three other kids from other marriages, but that was our baby,'' she said, in a telephone conversation from her Long Island home in Coram, where a man could be heard wailing in the background.

Bostick said she and her husband, George, a security guard at the Shoreham nuclear power plant, were confused about the circumstances surrounding her baby's death. ''We don't have anything. We don't have any information.''

The medical examiner's officer scheduled an autopsy Wednesday to determine whether the child's death should be ruled a homicide, Bloch said.

Police did not learn of the baby's death until 10:30 a.m. Tuesday morning - more than 18 hours after the nurse first found him lifeless - when the parents not the hosptial, contacted them.

Fred Yaeger, a spokesman for the hospital, insisted proper procedure had been followed, explaining that they are not required to inform the police of any deaths until the medical examiner has determined them suspicious.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 31) UPI - The Treasury Department announced Wednesday it will auction a record $34.25 billion in bonds and notes at next week's quarterly refunding to help pay the government's bills and the cost of the savings and loan bailout.

Jay Powell, assistant secretary for domestic finance, also said the department estimates a record net borrowing need of $97.7 billion for the October-December quarter.

Next week's quarterly auctions of three- and ten-year notes and 29 3/4-year bonds will be used to settle $23.53 billion in notes maturing Nov. 15 and raise about $10.725 billion in new cash.

Next Tuesday, the Treasury Department will auction $12.5 billion in three-year notes, followed by auctions of $11 billion in ten-year notes Wednesday and $10.75 billion in the 29 3/4-year bonds Thursday.

The three-year notes will be sold in minimum denominations of $5,000, and the ten-year notes and 29 3/4-year bonds will be sold in minimum denominations of $1,000.

Powell also announced the government will auction $12 billion in 161-day cash management bills next Thursday to meet short-term cash needs. The minimum purchase will be $10,000.

The quarter's record $97.7 billion net borrowing need "includes Treasury borrowing to finance Resolution Trust Corp. operations" and "also assumes a $30 billion cash balance at the end of December," Powell said. The RTC is charged with selling the assets of failed savings and loans seized by government regulators.

"The Treasury's October-December borrowing estimate is consistent with (the) Resolution Trust Corp. operating plan," Powell said. "That operating plan was based on the assumption that Congress would act on funding for (fiscal) 1991."

But because Congress did not act on funding before adjourning for the year, the RTC Oversight Board was expected to meet to discuss a new operating plan Thursday and the Treasury Department planned to update its borrowing estimates.

Powell also said that the net borrowing need for the first quarter of 1991 is "in the range of $47 billion to $52 billion," but he noted this estimate does not include the cost of RTC operations.

CAIRO, Egypt (OCT. 31) UPI - The Arab League, in its most serious crisis since its creation more than four decades ago, returned to its original home base of Cairo Wednesday, but some of its departments remained behind in Tunis.

The Persian Gulf crisis has so divided the League that Arab nations sympathetic to Iraq have protested its return to Cairo, a strong supporter of the U.S.-led efforts against Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

As a compromise to prevent the League from splitting in two, it has been agreed that some of the departments will remain in Tunis with the explanation that construction work on the League building in Cairo is not yet complete, diplomats said.

''The Arab League is resuming its activities from Cairo under the shadow of the most serious crisis since its cration 45 years ago,'' a Cairo-based Arab diplomat said. ''It needs tremendous efforts to enable it to perform its previous role.''

The Arab League headquarters had been moved from the Egyptian capital to Tunis in 1979 after Egypt signed a peace treaty with Israel, becoming the first Arab country to recognize the Jewish state.

Most of the Arab states broke diplomatic relations with Egypt over the treaty, but ties between Cairo and the Arab world strengthened anew during the 1980-88 war between Iraq and Iran, a non-Arab country.

The decision to return the League headquarters to Cairo was taken before the Gulf crisis. But after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, the decision became more political because Egypt took a hard-line stance toward Iraq while Tunisia did not.

Former League secretary general Chedli Klebi, a Tunisian, resigned when gulf states, particularly Saudi Arabia, criticized his response to the invasion.

When the League met in Cairo last month to formalize the decision to move the headquarters, eight of the 21 members boycotted the meeting to protest the move.

Arab League acting Secretary-General Assad Al-Assad, a Lebanese, arrived in Cairo Tuesday to take up his duties in the League's former headquarters overlooking the Nile. Dozens of other employees have arrived from Tunis capital in recent days - while others have remained in Tunis.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson committed battery but not assault against a Queens woman who hit the onetime champ with a $3.5 million lawsuit, a Manhattan jury decided Wednesday.

After deliberating for almost five hours, the federal court jury said Tyson must pay $100 in compensatory damages for touching the woman, Sandra Miller Reese, but cleared the onetime champ of Reese's assault claim.

The panel of five women and one man must return to the U.S. District Court in lower Manhattan Thursday morning to decide how much in punitive damages the millionaire boxer must pay the Rosedale mother of two.

Reese filed a $3.5 million civil lawsuit against Tyson, charging he grabbed her breasts and buttucks and threatened to punch her in Bentley's disco on Dec. 10, 1988.

U.S District Judge Michael Mukasey, in his instructions to jurors, had explained that to say Tyson assaulted the woman, ''It is not necessary that there be any contact.

''However, there must be an overt menacing act,'' the judge said. ''Words alone do not constitute an assault.''

The panel was required to reach a unanimous verdict.

Alan Clark, the attorney for the 26-year-old Reese, told the panel before deliberations began that Tyson ''happens to be a boxer whose hands are lethal weapons and who happens to be the heavyweight champion of the world.

''How would you feel under the circumstances?'' he asked the panel. ''Would you be scared... humiliated, if he grabs you, threatens you, curses you? Now you're scared?''

But Tyson's attorney, Robert Hirth, called Reese a money hungry and called her story ''concocted.''

He urged the jury to send Reese a message that if she ''wants to engage in a get-rich-quick scheme, she should buy a lottery ticket.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 31) UPI - Lower prices for milk, corn and broilers helped depress the farm price index by 0.7 percent this month, despite steer and heifer prices that were the highest ever for an October, the government said Tuesday.

The index is the government's measure of market prices for the crops and livestock produced by the nation's farmers and ranchers. The index has dropped slowly since a July reading of 152 and now stands at 147 - its lowest reading of the year.

Most grain prices fell during October, reflecting the fall harvest and the continuing wheat glut. Wheat prices slipped to $2.39 a bushel, down seven cents from September and $1.36 lower than October 1989.

"Decreases in the prices of broilers, milk, corn and apples were partially offset by higher prices for hogs, tomatoes, strawberries, and eggs," the Agriculture Department said. "The steer and heifer price was at a record high for October."

Slaughter steers and heifers averaged $79.30 per 100 pounds for the month, up 50 cents from September. The average was $6 above the mark recorded the preceding October. Hog prices averaged $56.90 for October, up $2.60 from September and $10.30 higher than the same month in 1989.

Agriculture Department economists recently said the strong cattle and hog prices were a result of fewer animals being sent to slaughter, although at heavier weights.

Milk prices were down 60 cents per 100 pounds from September to average $13.60 in October. The price was $1.20 below October 1989. Milk production collapsed unexpectedly last fall, pushing prices to record highs.

Corn prices dropped 17 cents from September to average $2.15 a bushel. Sorghum was down 48 cents to $3.47 per 100 pounds. Oats, rice and durum wheat, however were up - durum by 14 cents a bushel to average $2.53. Broiler prices fell 6.2 cents during October for an average of 29 cents a pound. Eggs sold for 73.5 cents a dozen, up five cents from September.

Fresh strawberries zoomed 40 cents a pound to reach an average of 95 cents in October. Apple prices were down slightly, to 19.4 cents a pound, compared to 24.5 cents in September.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - The Dow industrials closed slightly lower Wednesday after moving in the opposite direction of oil prices all session, ending in the minus column after a late rise in the oil market.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 17.82 Tuesday, fell 5.69 to close at 2442.33.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index edged up 0.09 to 166.17 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.06 to 304.00. The price of an average share inched up one cent.

In composite trading, advances nosed out declines 744-737 among the 1,953 issues traded. Big Board volume totaled 156,060,000 shares, up from 153,450,000 traded Tuesday.

Stocks seesawed throughout the session, moving inversely to oil prices which are an inflation indicator. When oil turned higher near the close, stocks fell but closed off their lows thanks to a late bout of program buying.

Analysts said one factor keeping oil prices down during the day was a statement by Iraq's ambassador to the United States Wednesday in which he urged a negotiated solution to the crisis. But technical factors pushed oil higher in late trading. "We followed oil pretty much," said Dale Tills, manager of institutional equity trading at Charles Schwab & Co. in San Francisco.

"The market rallied in the morning on better movement in Treasury bonds, oil was off a little bit, and there was a decent feeling about interest rates (after the Federal Reserve's move to lower short-term rates slightly on Tuesday)," Tills said. "But we didn't get any follow through and when oil started to come back there wasn't any volume to support the market's gains and it sold off," he said.

He added, though, that even in the market's decline Wednesday he did not see aggressive selling. "If we can maintain the Dow above 2400, we might get a rally, but it's still a tenuous situation."

Tills said that while the market continued to follow movements in oil prices for their inflationary and economic implications, it seemed to be tiring of the endless stream of headlines about the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

"There's just so much garbage out about the Mideast, you can't look to make any reaction to what anyone is saying," he said. "There's just a lot of rhetoric, nothing to really grasp hold of."

But he said the market may be poised for a move higher if additional evidence of economic weakness prompts the Fed to let rates fall further and if oil prices remain relatively stable.

"We're watching rates, watching oil, and if we see some conviction on rallies, if we get a decent 'up' day with 180 million shares," said Tills, "we could jump quickly."

On the trading floor, Alcan Aluminum was the most active issue, off 1/4 to 18 5/8.

Chase Manhattan followed, off 1/4 to ten. Another big bank, Citicorp, was actively traded, unchanged at 11 1/4. It expected to lay off about 2,000 middle-ranked employees by year's end. Unisys was third, off 1/4 to 2 1/4.

Among the blue chips, Philip Morris rose 3/8 to 47 1/8, AT&T gained 1/4 to 34, while IBM fell 7/8 to 105 1/2, General Electric slid 3/4 to 52, and Merck tumbled 1 7/8 to 76 7/8.

Eastman Kodak jumped 1 1/4 to 39 3/4 after reporting a third-quarter loss of $206 million that included a $909.5 million charge to cover a Polaroid patent litigation judgment handed down recently against Kodak.

And General Motors added 1/8 to 36 3/4 after posting a $2 billion loss for the third quarter because of a special charge of $2.1 billion taken to close four U.S. assembly plants that were previously classified as "indefinitely idled."

Some of the big losers included Del-Val Financial, which slumped one to 2 3/4, a third of its value. The financially troubled real estate investment trust has suspended all dividends.

Kellogg plunged 3 1/8 to 68 1/2. The company said Tuesday it would be more conservative in raising prices on its major products, citing competition.

Tyco Labs plummeted 5 5/8 to 38 3/8 after analysts were said to cut earnings estimates and First Brands sank 3 1/2 to 15 1/8. Major shareholders ended talks with prospective acquirers.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 191,313,860 shares, compared with 189,571,140 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices fell in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index slipped 0.28 to close at 287.79. Declines led advances 281-246 among the 764 issues traded. The price of an average share lost one cent. Composite volume totaled 10,968,550 shares vs. 12,368,450 traded Tuesday.

Continental Airlines Holdings led the Amex issues, down 1/4 to 3 1/4. Analysts could not cite a reason for the unusual activity in the stock Tuesday and Wednesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index inched up 0.01 to close at 329.84.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - Jim Leyland, who guided the Pittsburgh Pirates to their first division title since 1979, Wednesday was named National League Manager of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Leyland received 17 of the 24 first-place votes cast by a BBWAA committee comprised of two beat writers from each National League city. He finished with 99 points, far outdistancing Lou Piniella of the champion Cincinnati Reds.

Pittsburgh, hurt by injuries, finished fifth in the NL East in 1989. This season, with a healthy everyday lineup and key pitching from Doug Drabek and Zane Smith, Pittsburgh won the division over the heavily favored New York Mets. The Pirates lost in six games to the Reds in the playoffs.

Leyland, 45, was a catcher and career minor-leaguer in the Detroit organization. He then managed 11 years in the minors for the Tigers before being named third-base coach of the Chicago White Sox under current Oakland manager Tony La Russa.

He was named manager of the Pirates in 1985 after four years as a White Sox coach. Leyland took over a team in Pittsburgh that finished 57-104 the previous season, was wracked by a drug scandal and beset by fan apathy.

In Leyland's first season at Pittsburgh, the Pirates finished last a third straight year. They tied for fourth the next year, then challenged the Mets in 1988 and ended up second.

Piniella received three first-place votes and 49 points, while Montreal's Buck Rodgers and Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers tied for third with 32 points. Rodgers received three first-place votes and Lasorda topped the final ballot.

San Francisco's Roger Craig and Bud Harrelson of the New York Mets were the only other managers named. No manager was named on all 24 ballots, which were cast at the end of the regular season.

(OCT. 31) UPI - Heavy rain and chilly temperatures put a damper on Halloween in the Northwest Wednesday and snow at higher elevations prompted winter storm warnings in some areas.

More than 2 inches of rain soaked North Bend, Ore., Wednesday morning. More than 1 inch fell at Shelter Cover, Calif.; 0.75 inches at Tacoma, Wash.; and 0.68 inches at Mullan, Idaho. Afternoon temperatures in the Northwest were in the 40s and 50s.

The rainfall continued a day after a record 2.75 inches of rain doused Eugene Ore., shattering the previous record of 1.07 inches set in 1956. In Portland, 0.59 inches of rain fell at Portland International Airport Tuesday, breaking a 50-year-old record of 0.50 inches.

Snow was falling in the mountains of Utah, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon and northern California.

Winter storm warnings were posted for the mountain passes of northwest Montana where as much as 1 foot of snow was forecast.

Sunny skies prevailed in the Central United States. Afternoon temperatures were in the 70s from the southern and central Plains to the middle Mississippi Valley, with readings in the lower 80s in southern Texas. A reading of 79 degrees broke a record for the day in Kansas City.

Readings were mostly in the 50s and 60s from the upper Great Lakes to the northern Plains. Blustery northwest winds continued over New England and temperatures were only in the upper 40s and 50s.

Afternoon temperatures were mostly in the 70s across the Southeast with lower 80s across Florida.

Morning fog in Chicago Wednesday delayed flights at O'Hare International Airport as long as 90 minutes. City aviation spokeswoman Lisa Howard said no flights were allowed to land between 6:45 a.m. and 7:45 a.m. because of poor visibility. Five United Airlines flights were diverted to Milwaukee and another to Indianapolis.

MIAMI (OCT. 31) UPI - The chairman of American Savings and Loan Association, one of Florida's largest thrifts, resigned Wednesday, two days after regulators admonished the thrift about loan transactions with its largest shareholder.

Stephen Lazovitz, a member of the thrift's board of directors, was named chairman and acting chief executive officer to replace departing Chairman Harris C. Friedman. Vice Chairman Edward Mahoney was named president and chief operating officer.

Friedman was appointed chairman and chief executive officer of the thrift in April 1988 after the institution was acquired by Enstar Group Inc., formerly known as Kinder Care Inc., of Montgomery, Ala.

Enstar currently owns 50 percent of American Savings.

The thrift said Friedman's departure was triggered by the receipt this week of a supervisory directive from the Office of Thrift Supervision. The connection between the directive, which was dated Monday, and Friedman's resignation was unclear.

In the directive, federal regulators objected to a $210 million note issued in late December 1989 by Enstar to American Savings in exchange for the thrift's high yield stock portfolio, Mahoney said.

Enstar has made payments to American Savings on the note, but still owes the thrift $175 million. The transaction left American Savings without any ''quote 'junk bonds,''' Mahoney said.

Thrift regulators instructed American Savings and Enstar to amend some of its loan documents and security agreements. Moves, Mahone said, that ''actually strengthen American Savings' position in the loan. We are working on it day and night.''

Regulators also asked American Savings to consent to a cease and desist order blocking the institution from undertaking any unsafe or unsound transactions with Enstar. The thrift said it was working to comply with the directive and proposed order.

American Savings, which has assets of $4.87 billion, said it continued to meet all regulatory capital requirements. The thrift operates 55 banking offices in Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Pinellas, Hernando and Pasco counties.

(OCT. 31) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's call for a peaceful Arab solution to the Persian Gulf crisis was scorned Wednesday by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, but Gorbachev's troubleshooter apparently muddied the waters by declaring Gorbachev would not oppose force, provided Soviet forces did not fight.

President Bush warned that he had ''had it'' with Iraq's treatment of American hostages in the Middle East, many of them deployed as human shields to thwart allied attacks on key Iraqi installations.

Also Wednesday, Iraq's ambassador to the United States urged a negotiated solution to the crisis and accused the CIA of conspiring with Kuwait to destroy Iraq long before Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The CIA denied it.

Gorbachev told reporters in Paris Monday a military option to drive Iraq out of Kuwait was unacceptable and Arabs should solve the crisis themselves.

That put him at odds with U.S. and British policy, which follows the military option as laid out in the U.N. charter as a last resort if Iraqi President Saddam Hussein refuses to pull his troops from Kuwait.

But then Soviet signals got mixed. Soviet envoy Yevgeny Primakov was quoted Wednesday as saying Moscow would not oppose force to get Iraq out of Kuwait, but the Soviets would not be part of it.

''If all peace efforts are exhausted, the Soviet Union will not oppose a military solution, but we are definitely not going to take part in any fighting,'' Primakov told the Egyptian leftist opposition daily Al Ahali.

Gorbachev earlier quoted Primakov, after the latter's second meeting with Saddam, as saying he detected a softening of Saddam's stance.

Primakov indicated Soviet reluctance to a military option is not only related to fears a war could spread to its southern borders, especially if Iran became involved, but that the balance of power between Arabs and Israel would change.

''Any war in the gulf will bring catastrophies and would disrupt the balance of power between Arabs and non-Arabs,'' would freeze the Palestinian issue ''for many years to come'' and halt the flow of oil from the region ''for months and perhaps years,'' he said.

Mubarak, in commenting on Gorbachev's initial position, previous Arab summits called to deal with the crisis achieved nothing but bad feelings and another one without a specific agenda would become an exercise in invective.

''The Arab countries have tried a lot and we're still trying. If these (Soviet) proposals call for a peaceful solution then it should be borne in mind that there isn't a big or small country, Arab or Western, which doesn't want a peaceful solution,'' he told reporters in Cairo.

''If we call for an Arab summit and there is no clear vision for that summit, then it will be a summit of insults and we cannot accept that.''

Mubarak challenged Gorbachev to make specific proposals for an Arab solution and pointed out Gorbachev's own envoy, Primakov came away empty in two meetings with Saddam.

''If there is a (Soviet) call for an Arab summit, then we want to ask if the Soviet mediator has achieved any specific result, so the summit can be held to discuss this,'' Mubarak said.

Mubarak's Foreign Minister, Esmat Abdel Meguid, flew to Saudi Arabia to discuss Gorbachev's position with his Syrian and Saudi counterparts. Syria, like Egypt, has sent troops to the gulf to deter further Iraqi aggression.

Iraq's ambassador to the United States, Mohamed Al-Mashat, told a news conference in Washington that the United States and Kuwait conspired against Iraq before the invasion. He cited what he said was a memo recovered from Kuwaiti security forces written by Brigadier Al- Fahd, director of Kuwaiti security, and detailing a conversation with CIA Director William Webster in Washington in November 1989. Also at the meeting was a Colonel Shadad, a key aide to Al-Fahd.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - The Trump Organization may not be able to pay $47.3 interest due Nov. 15 on $675 million in bonds issued to build the Taj Mahal Casino in Atlantic City, an American Stock Exchange official said Wednesday.

The announcement was the latest blow to the highly leveraged real estate and casino empire of tottering dealmaker Donald J. Trump.

A Trump Organization spokeswoman could offer no details. ''I really don't have anything to add,'' she said. ''We can't say yes or no or maybe, yet.''

A spokesman for investors holding a third of the high-risk, ''junk'' bond issue said talks on converting some debt into an equity participation in the Casino, which opened in April, continued - but without success.

''We are continuing to talk to Trump,'' said Robert Miller, a partner with the law firm of Berlack, Israels & Liberman. He said the Amex decision indicated ''that in all likelihood Trump will default on the bonds Nov. 15.''

Trump wants to make that and future payments by issuing more bonds, lowering the interest rate to 9 percent from 14 percent, and delaying repayment by two years. But the investors want more than the 19.9 percent stake he has offered.

An economic slowdown has bit into Atlantic City gambling activity and casino revenues haven't met Trump's debt obligations. In June Trump avoided default on bonds for another casino with a $65 million bank bailout.

Exchange Assistant Vice President Robert Shabazian said trading in the bonds was halted at 2:37 p.m. Wednesday. As of Thursday the bonds were to be traded on a flat basis - taking into account the unpaid interest.

''If you're buying these bonds, you're buying them with the knowledge you may or may not get the accrued interest,'' Shabazian said. ''At least you know there is a doubt, a question'' as to whether it will be paid.

When trading was halted the Taj Mahal bonds were going at 26 1/2, meaning they were worth $265 for every $1,000 face value.

Shabazian said that as a matter of course the exchange contacts companies in advance of the interest due date, to confirm there will be no problems. In the case of the Trump bonds, there was some uncertainty.

''They said they may be able to pay the interest, but by today we hadn't heard definitely whether they could be able to pay,'' Shabazian said. So the Amex put the bonds on the flat list, where they will stay for two years.

There the Taj bonds will join two other Trump issues, related to the troubled Trump's Castle Casino, which arrived there June 15. Four consecutive interest payments must be made for a bond to exit the list, Shabazian said.

DETROIT (OCT. 31) UPI - Industry analysts applauded Wednesday the $2.1 billion writeoff taken by General Motors Corp. during the third quarter to formally close four U.S. assembly plants - but Wall Street yawned.

GM's $1 and 2/3 common stock rose only 12.5 cents, closing at $36.75 a share on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was just a tick above normal, at 1.7 million shares.

''It was a big yawn here,'' said industry analyst David Healy of New York investment firm Barclays Bank, who attended a financial briefing with GM's top financial brass in New York Wednesday to discuss the company's latest earnings. ''Wall Street was underwhelmed.''

Jay Leopold, of Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc. in Baltimore, was another who attended.

''While GM's third-quarter profits were worse than expected, the breadth of the cost cutting was better than expected,'' he said.

Without the writeoff, GM would have earned just $109 million, or 2 cents a share on its $1 and 2/3 common stock, down from $517 million, or 72 cents a share, in the year-ago third quarter. Including the writeoff, GM posted a loss of $3.54 on its $1 and 2/3 common stock.

GM told analysts the plant closings, as well as the closing or consolidation of several other manufacturing or warehousing operations during the next three years, could mean an annual pre-tax savings of at least $1 billion by 1995 because of lower fixed costs and a reduced workforce.

GM also told analysts the closings of those four idled assembly plants - its Fiero car plant in Pontiac, Mich.; Leeds plant near Kansas City, Mo.; Framingham, Mass., plant and Lakewood plant near Atlanta - will allow it to reduce its workforce by about 40,000 workers who were on indefinite layoff.

About half of those workers could officially leave GM's workforce within six months, in addition to about 20,000 workers a year leaving GM under normal attrition.

That means that despite the expensive job and income security guarantees in its recently signed contracts with the United Auto Workers union, about 100,000 workers will leave by 1993 ''without GM actually firing anybody,'' Healy said. That means the auto giant's workforce will shrink to under 200,000 workers.

''That is their goal,'' Healy said. ''It has been clear that GM for some time has had too many plants and too many people.''

CLEVELAND (OCT. 31) UPI - Proponents of a statewide ballot proposing a change in the state Constitution to allow Lorain, Ohio residents to vote whether they want a casino in their city alleged Wednesday that lies are being spread by the horse racing industry.

Yes on Issue 3, a campaign committee financed primarily by Lorain developer Alan Spitzer, unveiled a new television commercial sharply criticizing allegations being made by the horse racing industry through a group called Ohioans Against Casino Gambling.

One commercial being aired by Ohioans Against Casino Gambling shows a map of Ohio with casino signs popping up throughout the state.

''They use the oldest tricks in the book - scare tactics and half- truths,'' Lorain resident Jack LaVriha says in the latest pro-casino commercial. ''Forget their phony ads. Read Issue 3.

''It doesn't authorize even one resort casino. It just gives people the right to vote on it later. These guys are lying to us,'' LaVriha says. ''They even tried to hide who was paying for their deceptive ads. Don't believe this (a statement showing paid for by Ohioans Against Casino Gambling). Look who is really behind it. Let's vote yes on Issue 3.''

The commericial shows a picture of a newspaper story detailing how the race tracks and companies and individuals closely associated with horse racing have donated $947,899.20 to the anti-casino campaign. Documents filed with the secretary of state's office last Thursday showed those donations represented nearly the entire budget of the anti- casino group.

''They are afraid of the competition,'' said Karen Kapler, campagin manager for the pro-casino group. ''Historically race tracks have fought any measure they see as competition not just here but in all states.''

The issue, if approved statewide Nov. 6, would allow Lorain residents to vote whether to permit a casino to operate in Lorain on a trial basis. After three years, the Ohio General Assembly would have the authority to close the casino if it is not considered a success.

If the pilot project is considered a success, the state would be divided into seven casino districts, with one casino permitted to open in each district. Approval would also be required by both voters in the district as a whole and the local community where it is to be located.

''If the amendment is approved, the process is set in motion for those casino districts to be carved out of the state of Ohio,'' said Karen Wilkins, a spokeswoman for the anti-casino group.

NEW YORK (OCT. 31) UPI - Prosecutors, filing their final argument Wednesday in the presentencing hearing of Michael Milken, said their evidence refuted defense claims the former junk-bond king's crimes were ''isolated, largely motiveless and committed reluctantly and at the behest of others.''

In a 40-page memorandum filed with U.S. District Court Judge Kimba Wood, the government asked the defendant be sentenced to a ''substantial term of imprisonment.''

Prosecutors argued testimony given during the two-week hearing ''revealed that Milken committed crimes as part of a pattern of deceptive and unlawful practices undertaken by him and others at his direction for the purpose of consolidating market power and obtaining financial gain.

''The hearing demonstrated that, when faced with discovery of his unlawful practices, Milken engaged in serious and deliberate efforts to obstruct justice,'' the government said.

Milken's defense attorneys presented their memorandum Tuesday. The presentencing hearing for Milken, the former head of Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.'s junk-bond department who pleaded guilty to six counts of securities fraud in April, ended last week.

Wood may hand down her sentence on Milken, who faces a maximum jail term of 28 years, as early as next week.

The judge had ordered the hearing to determine if Milken had been involved in a broad conspiracy to manipulate the financial markets, as the government alleged, or had broken the law in a few isolated cases to help clients, as his attorneys claimed.

''Evidence establishes that Michael Milken committed serious crimes in addition to his admitted crimes,'' the government's footnote-laden document said.

At the hearing, the government focused on financial transactions involving securities of three companies: Wickes Co., acquired in leveraged buyout in 1986; Storer Communications Inc., acquired in a 1985 leveraged buyout; and Caesars World Inc.

Specifically, the goverment alleged that Milken engaged in stock manipulation and bribery and that he ordered traders to purchase Caesars World bonds after getting advance word that an exchange offer for the bonds would be announced.

The exchange offer sharply increased the value of the bonds.

Milken's attorneys, in their memorandum, conceded the price of Wickes stock was manipulated prior to the company's April 1986 buyout, but they said the government failed to prove Milken had been involved in the manipulation.

The defense also questioned the credibility of several witnesses called by the government.

(OCT. 31) UPI - The State Department says economic sanctions are beginning to have a serious impact on the civilian economy in Iraq, but they are NOT having any real impact on President Saddam Hussein and his behavior. A State Department spokeswoman says the economic blockade has cut 97 percent of Iraqi oil exports, costing the nation about two and one-half-BILLION dollars a month in lost revenue. She says the freezing of Iraqi assets has severely limited Iraq's ability to pay for imports, even if it can find a nation willing to circumvent the restrictions.

President Bush today told reporters that he has ''had it'' with the Iraqi treatment of American diplomats in the U-S Embassy in Kuwait City. The Embassy is surrounded by Iraqi troops and food, water and electricity have been cut off. Bush blasted Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein but still added that he would NOT allow the plight of the hostages to become what he termed a ''pretext'' for war.

The Commerce Department issued a couple of reports today that do NOT contain great news for the economy. Personal income of Americans climbed one-half of one percent in September... but personal spending soared one and one-half percent. The income gain was about as much as expected but the spending figure is much higher... apparently because of higher oil prices resulting from the Persian Gulf crisis. Factory orders climbed just one-tenth of one percent in September... the weakest performance since June.

Americans across the nation are celebrating Halloween tonight with parties and trick-or-treating. Festivities range from revels in historic Georgetown near Washington, D-C... a glittery parade in Greenwich Village in New York City... and a party for homeless children in Detroit. Millions of children will be scampering from door to door to collect tons of candy, though in some cities dentists will be paying them NOT to eat it.

About 35-thousand volunteers will patrol streets in Detroit to try to prevent the arson fires that have become an unwelcome addition to the Halloween season in the city. Youngsters in Motown must get their trick- or-treating in early because a 6 p-m to 6 a-m curfew is in effect for unescorted youths.

Eye experts at a meeting in Atlanta say laser surgery that blasts away microscopic bits of the cornea could someday place glasses and contact lenses. The doctors said the surgery re-shapes the cornea, the outer part of the eye that acts as a lens. They say the procedure has been tested on about 300 patients in the United States and about 18- hundred world-wide.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (OCT. 31) UPI - Redoubt Volcano, which ended its almost regular weekly eruptions six months ago, has begun steaming and emitting small amounts of ash, the Alaska Volcano Observatory reported Wednesday.

Steam plumes containing ash have begun rising from the crater vent several times daily, but the ash in the small, weak plumes was falling onto the flanks of the 10,197-foot mountain southeast of Anchorage, geologist Tina Neal said. No populated areas were hit or threatened by ash.

Redoubt exploded violently last December, after nearly a quarter- century of slumber, and then went into an almost weekly eruptive phase that stopped as suddenly as it began.

Tiny earthquakes have rumbled beneath the mountain ever since the last eruption April 21, and Neal said seismic activity was continuing with few tremors greater than magnitude 1 on the Richter scale.

Despite Redoubt's apparent reawakening, scientists believe the volcano might be entering a period of quiescence and that the steam may be coming from ice and snow tumbling from the edge of the crater into the vents.

Once inside the super-heated mountain, the melted ice boils up and steams out in a plume that picks up ash from inside the volcano, Neal said.

Volcano observers carefully referred to the activity as ''steaming events,'' not eruptions.

Steaming began with the season's first snow in August, but only in the last few days have the steam plumes contained ash, according to the volcano observatory, a joint project of the University of Alaska Geophysical Institute the U.S. Geological Survey and the state Division of Geological and Geophysical Surveys.

Since the frequency and magnitude of earthquakes have not increased, Neal said ''We don't interpret this as anything grand coming in the future.''

Gas emissions from the volcano, another telltale sign of volcanic activity, were down, but the volcano's internal plumbing system may be plugged up, Neal suggested. However, if that were the case, scientists would notice increased pressure building inside the mountain.

A team of geologists flew to the mountain Wednesday to measure the amount of ash emitted and to learn more about Redoubt's behavior. Neal said they were in no danger.

Seismic monitoring equipment on Redoubt is connected to a computerized alarm system capable of notifying geologists in Anchorage and Fairbanks of increased seismic activity.

During some of Redoubt's eruptions earlier this year, Anchorage and other areas were hit by ash, which turned skies black, grounded airlines, triggered health warnings that kept school children inside, and which coated everything with sharp volcanic grit. Even an oil terminal across Cook Inlet from Anchorage was shut down by Redoubt's eruptions.

No new warnings have been isssued and, despite the ashy steam plumes, scientists said there was no indication Redoubt was getting ready to blow its top again.

Redoubt is 110 miles southwest of Anchorage in Lake Clark National Park. It is one of about 60 active volcanoes in Alaska, the northern edge of the so-called Ring of Fire, a circle of active volcanoes rimming the Pacific.

ANAHEIM, CA (OCT. 31) UPI - Verteq Inc., one of the nation's largest suppliers of quartz products to the semiconductor industry, said Wednesday that it has sold its quartz division to Heraeus Amersil Inc. for an undisclosed price.

The sale includes six Verteq facilities employing about 130 employees in Tempe Ariz.; Dallas; Fremont, Calif.; Brea, Calif.; Fairfield, N.J. and Munich, Germany.

The quartz products include chambers, tubes and rods that are used in the fabrication of the silicon wafers that become computer ''chips'' or semiconductors, the processing units for computers.

Quartz is used in those processes because of its purity and ability to withstand high temperatures, said Keith Norby, chairman and chief executive officer of privately held Verteq, of Anaheim, Calif.

Norby said that Verteq, Heraeus Amersil and Quartz International, a unit of Japanese industrial giant Toshiba, are the leading producers of quartz products for use in the semiconductor industry.

Norby said it was selling the unit to Heraeus Amersil, of Duluth, Ga., in order to focus on its process systems division, which produces cleaning and drying equipment for the semiconductor industry.

The process systems unit has facilities in Anaheim and Rochester, N.Y., and employs about 150 people.

''This sale will enable Verteq to build on the success of its rapidly growing Process Systems Division,'' Norby said. ''We are focusing our resources on the continued development and refinement of our existing product line, as well as upgrading manufacturing facilities and expanding marketing efforts in the U.S. Asia and Europe.''

(OCT 31) UPI - Halloween revelers paraded through New York's Greenwich Village and jammed Washington's historic Georgetown under the watchful eyes of beefed-up police patrols, while costumed homeless children in Detroit bobbed for apples and pinned the tail on the donkey in a traditional party.

Tons of candy delighted trick-or-treating children. Some dentists counter attacked, promising to to pay for candy not consumed by kids.

Two days after a fully mobilized police force struggled to keep order at a Ku Klux Klan rally and counter demonstration, Washington police Wednesday geared up to handle an anticipated invasion of the city's fashionable Georgetown district.

Police and business associations urged revelers to stay away from narrow sidewalks and crowded streets. Shopkeepers were asked to close early.

''We're trying to tone down Halloween festivities here in Georgetown, '' businessman Peter Armato said.

''Everyone's welcome in Georgetown but it's gotten so crowded on Halloween that customers can't even get into bars and restaurants,'' he said. ''A lot of (proprietors) have said because of congestion in the past, Halloween has not been a very profitable day for sales.''

Thousands were expected to jam New York's annual Greenwich Village Halloween Parade spectacle Wednesday night. The tradition is to wear outrageous costumes.

Among the early arrivals at New York's Halloween parade were children dressed as spiders and monkeys, and a trio of adults who had done themselves up as the city's best-known love triangle, Donald and Ivana Trump, and Marla Maples.

The Marla look-alike deadpanned, ''I'm not here with Ivana... I'm here with Donald.'' The Ivana clone said she was ''here to show New Yorkers that I am an honorable woman.''

In Huntington, on New York's Long Island, the pre-school kids stole a march on other trick or treaters, hitting houses on their block as early as noon.

Four-year-old Mark Schneider, dressed in brown and green as one of the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, was raring to go.

''I like chocolate,'' he said. ''I know what to say - trick or treat, smell my feet and give me something good to eat.''

In Los Angeles, supposedly safer alternatives to traditional Halloween trick-or-treating abounded, with shopping malls, city officials and politicians handing out goodies to keep kids off the streets at night.

Safety also was on the minds of police who for the second year warned would-be revelers to stay away from the traditional Halloween street party in Hollywood where vandals, looters and other rowdies rampaged in 1987, prompting a massive police response ever since.

In Detroit, a special Halloween party was arranged for 250 homeless children ages 2 through 14 with transportation provided by businesses and private citizens.

''We're going to provide them with costumes, candy and toys,'' said Bob Thornton, director of economic development of New Detroit, Inc., and the coordinator of the ''Halloween Party for the Homeless.''

Besides the candy, costumes and food, the children were to receive $25 gift certificates, redeemable at area retail stores, he said.

The children, who range in age from 2 to 16, played games such as pin the tail on the donkey and bobbed for apples, Thornton said.

There was an unwanted tradition in Detroit as well - the torching of buildings.

Despite an army of volunteers patrolling streets, dozens of Devil's Night arson fires lighted the sky in scattered sections of the city Tuesday night, destroying some houses.

HOUSTON (OCT. 31) UPI - Notre Dame nose tackle Chris Zorich, for the second straight year, was named Wednesday as one of four finalists for the Lombardi Award, given to college football's top lineman.

Illinois nose tackle Moe Gardner, Miami defensive tackle Russell Maryland and Auburn defensive tackle David Rocker were also named as finalists for the 21st Lombardi Award, to be presented Dec. 6 in Houston.

Zorich was a finalist for last year's award, won by Michigan State linebacker Percy Snow. Rocker's older brother, Tracy, won the Lombardi Award in 1988. All four of the 1990 finalists are seniors.

The award has been presented to college football's top lineman since 1970 in honor of Vince Lombardi, the former coaching great who died of cancer in 1970. Ohio State's Jim Stillwagon was the first winner.

The four finalists were chosen from a list of 12 players by a nationwide committee of college coaches, sports writers and sportscasters.

Zorich, who suffered a partially dislocated kneecap last weekend and will miss this week's game against Navy, is captain of the Notre Dame defense. The 6-foot-1, 266-pounder is from Chicago and would be the third player from Notre Dame to win the award.

Should Rocker win, he would not only be the second person from his family to win, but only the second player from Auburn. The 6-4, 264- pound Rocker, from Atlanta, anchors the Tigers' defense which currently is ranked among the top 10 in the nation against the run and in total defense.

His brother Tracy now plays for the Washington Redskins.

The 6-2, 258-pound Gardner, from Indianapolis, was an all-Big Ten selection as a sophomore and junior. He has excellent quickness and has recorded at least one tackle-for-loss in 19 of his last 20 games. He was nominated for the award last year. No player from Illinois has ever won the Lombardi Award.

Maryland, also from Chicago, had a career-high 20 tackles against Notre Dame earlier this year. The 6-3, 273-pounder, who was the second- leading tackler on the nation's best defensive line last year, has made 64 tackles this year with six sacks. He also would be the first player from his school to win the Lombardi.

The award is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Houston, which donates proceeds from the Lombardi Dinner to the American Cancer Society. Proceeds from past dinners have totaled more than $1.3 million.

HOUSTON (OCT. 31) UPI - A state district judge has refused to quash an indictment accusing Washington Redskins receiver Ricky Sanders of running down a parking lot attendant earlier this year outside a topless nightclub.

State District Judge Donald K. Shipley on Tuesday rejected a request by defense attorneys to drop, on grounds of vagueness, charges of assault and failure to stop and render aid.

No trial date has been scheduled for Sanders, 27, of Ashburn, Va., who was accused fo using his father-in-law's car to assault Azzam ''Sam'' Jamus, 29.

Jamus was run down after a dispute over hubcaps stolen from the car outside The Men's club, a Galleria-area topless bar.

Jamus spent six days in the hospital being treated for head injuries. Sanders, a receiver for the Redskins since 1986, had gone to the club after attending an NBA game.

IRVINE, Calif. (NOV. 1) UPI - Mazda Motor of America said Wednesday that it has boosted prices on 1991 model cars and trucks by an average of 2.4 percent, or $312 per vehicle.

The new price for the least expensive version of the Mazda 626 DX four-door sedan will be $12,529, while the flashy Miata convertible will sell for $14,200. The Mazda RX-7 coupe will sell for $19,750.

The Mazda B2200 short-bed two-wheel-drive truck will sell for $8,299 and the B2600i four-wheel-drive short-bed truck will sell for $11,309.

Mazda said that the increase would not affect prices of vehicles already on dealer lots and that it is not raising the $17,560 price of its newest product the Navajo sports utility vehicle.

Mazda also said it would not boost the prices on two of its lowest- priced cars - the 323 Hatchback at $6,899 and the Protege four-wheel drive compact sedan at $9,699.

In its announcement, Mazda said that customers will not notice much of a price change, since it has been selling cars with a discounted package of options called ''Value Pack''.

''Despite this price increase, the typical, as-equipped price of many of our 1991 models is actually less than the same 1990 vehicle with the same equipment, thanks to our 'Value Pack' strategy,'' said Clark J. Vitulli, chief operating officer for the U.S. subsidiary of the Japanese carmaker.

MONTREAL (OCT. 31) UPI - Imasco Ltd. Wednesday reported third quarter earnings of $65.88 million, or 50 cents a share, down 25 percent from $87.98 million, or 69 cents a share, a year ago.

Revenues at the conglomerate edged up to $3.37 billion from $3.05 billion in the third quarter of 1989.

For the first nine months, Imasco posted a decline in earnings to $200.69 million, or $1.54 a share, compared with $210.7 million, or $1.64 a share, in 1989. Revenues increased to $9.54 billion up from $8.42 billion in 1989.

Imasco Chairman Purdy Crawford said a mix of results from the company's various operations added up to a decline in earnings.

Crawford said the weak economy was impacting negatively on Hardee's Food Systems and Canada Trust, a financial services company, while Imperial Tobacco and Shoppers Drug Mart continued to report strong earnings.

For the short term, Hardee's will focus on cutting costs and increasing its marketing and product innovations, Crawford said. On Oct. 25, Hardee's announced a plan to cut jobs through early retirement and voluntary separation.

Imasco is a holding company with subsidiaries involved in retail, tobacco, financial service and fast food businesses.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 31) UPI - Former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt said Wednesday he plans to visit Iraq next week at the invitation of President Saddam Hussein.

Brandt discussed the visit with Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar at U.N. headquarters in New York.

The statement said Brandt was invited by Saddam and he planned to go to Baghdad next week with the consent of the German government.

Brandt told reporters after his talks with Perez de Cuellar that he ''probably'' will go to Iraq next week, either alone or accompanied by some aides. He did not give the reason for the visit. There are about 400 Germans detained in Kuwait and Iraq.

Other current or former government leaders visited Saddam and obtained the release of some of their countrymen detained in Iraq. They included Austrian President Kurt Waldheim and former British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

HOUSTON (OCT. 31) UPI - A state district judge has refused to quash an indictment accusing Washington Redskins receiver Ricky Sanders of running down a parking lot attendant earlier this year outside a topless nightclub.

State District Judge Donald K. Shipley on Tuesday rejected a request by defense attorneys to drop, on grounds of vagueness, charges of assault and failure to stop and render aid.

No trial date has been scheduled for Sanders, 27, of Ashburn, Va., who was accused of using his father-in-law's car to assault Azzam ''Sam'' Jamus, 29.

The Washington Post reported Wednesday that Sanders had hoped to go to trial after the Redskins finished their season, but Shipley told Sanders and his attorneys that he saw no reason to wait that long.

Attorney Wendell Odom, who will be representing Sanders, said he will likely ask for a Dec. 10 trial date, the Post reported.

That date would place the trial after a home game against the Chicago Bears and before a road contest Dec. 15 against the New England Patriots.

Jamus allegedly was run down after a dispute over hubcaps stolen from the car outside The Men's club, a Galleria-area topless bar.

Jamus, who spent six days in the hospital being treated for head injuries claims Sanders struck him with the auto. Sanders, who also faces a civil suit in the incident, denies there were any serious injuries.

Sanders, a receiver for the Redskins since 1986, had gone to the club after attending an NBA game.

(OCT. 31) UPI - Iraq's ambassador to the United States spoke of conspiracy today in Washington. The diplomat... citing a Kuwaiti security memo... claims Washington and Kuwait plotted against Iraq before Baghdad moved its troops into the oil-rich emirate. The diplomat said U-S troops are in Saudi Arabia to destroy Iraq and to- as he put it- ''establish control over oil.''

President Bush will start his final campaign swing of the year tomorrow in Massachusetts, where polls show G-O-P gubernatorial nominee William Weld trailing Democrat John Silber. Bush will speak at two rallies for Weld before heading to a fundraiser in Orlando, Florida... where Republican Governor Bob Martinez is involved in a neck-and-neck race with Democrat Lawton Chiles.

The Air Force has grounded the shuttle Atlantis... one day after NASA cleared the ship for blastoff. Atlantis and its five-man all-military crew was first grounded in July by a hydrogen leak. Officials say the shuttle is now leak-free but there is a problem with the ship's spy satellite payload. Sources say next Friday's planned launch will likely be delayed two weeks or more.

(OCT. 31) UPI - A federal appeals court says Georgia's public television network can air two gubernatorial debates without including all the candidates. The ruling goes against two Libertarian candidates who sued the network to block the debates. The candidates argued that by excluding them, the state was telling voters they're NOT serious candidates and violating their First Amendment rights.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Officials of Air L.A. and Air Resorts Airlines have announced that they have entered into a ''Memorandum of Intent'' to merge their two companies.

The closing of the transaction is scheduled for Dec. 27, 1990. When completed, Air L.A. and Air Resorts will be operated as wholly owned subsidiaries of Air L.A. Inc. (OTC). Moreover it is anticipated, on a pro forma basis for the first full 12 months of operations in 1991, that the companies will have over $14 million in sales, assets of over $14 million, and stockholders' equity of over $6 million.

Combined entities are expected to produce operating costs of 15 cents/ASM (Available Seat Miles).

Wayne Schoenfeld, president of Air L.A. said, ''This merger will result in a strong economic base permitting the company to complete its major expansion into several Mexican cities, namely Tijuana, Hermosillo, Mexicali and Guaymas, with passenger and freight operations.''

He went on to say: ''The over 500 maquiladoras (assembly plants manned by Mexicans and owned by foreign companies) will now be served through the West Coast's principal international gateway, Los Angeles. Air L.A. has longstanding marketing agreements with the most important European and Pacific air carriers serving Los Angeles.''

Air L.A. presently serves the Grand Canyon, Palm Springs Resorts and Las Vegas from LAX while Air Resorts serves Arizona from San Diego. Additionally, Air Resorts specializes in government contract work, contract tours and will soon be serving New York (JFK) Airport from Toronto and Niagara Falls, New York.

Both of Air L.A. Inc.'s subsidiary companies serve ''niche'' markets and believe the consolidation will further strengthen their presence in these markets, as well as those in ''maquiladora'' country. When the merger is completed, Air L.A. Inc. will be qualified for a NASDAQ listing in Spring 1991 and is planning to prepare for an early Summer ''Secondary Offering.''

MCLEAN, VA (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Unisys Corp. has been awarded a $37.4 million contract by the U.S. Naval Sea Systems Command to design, produce and test three development models of an advanced, small submersible to be used by the elite U.S. Navy Sea Air Land (SEAL) special operations teams.

Under the terms of the contract, Unisys Defense Systems will deliver an advanced development model in 22 months, and two engineering development models of the submarine in 40 and 42 months respectively.

According to Harold Kaskel, Unisys program manager for the EX-8 Mod 1, the new submersible will provide several major advantages over the existing ones now used by the Navy SEALs.

''Previous submersibles have been cramped and difficult to control, requiring the constant attention and control by the pilot and co-pilot,'' he said. ''The EX-8 Mod 1 will be a stable vehicle, equipped with an improved control system and autopilot to reduce swimmer fatigue,'' he said.

In addition, Kaskel said the vehicle would have a new shape and new electronic systems miniaturization and packaging to maximize crew space and payload. The system will also have an improved propulsion system to give the vehicle better low-speed maneuverability and station-keeping capability.

Because water temperature can also limit mission times, the vehicle will also permit use of an active thermal protection system to improve the swimmers' endurance.

After the three development submersibles are delivered and accepted, current plans call for the Navy to hold a competition for the follow-on production of the battery-powered electric vehicles.

Work on the program will be done at Unisys Defense Systems' Shipboard and Ground Systems Group facilities in Great Neck, N.Y.

Unisys Corp. is a $10-billion information systems company with more than 80,000 employees and 60,000 customers in more than 100 countries. The company is a leading manufacturer of commercial information systems, defense systems, and related services.

DENVER (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Hamilton Oil Corp. Thursday announced financial results for the three and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Net earnings for the third quarter more than doubled to $4,087,000, or 13 cents per share, vs. net earnings of $1,770,000, or 5 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1989. Revenues for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $46,030,000, compared to $34,743,000 for the same period in 1989.

For the first nine months of 1990, net earnings were $23,194,000, or 81 cents per share, on revenues of $157,383,000. For the same nine month period in 1989, net earnings were $15,719,000, or 53 cents per share, on revenues of $151,748,000.

The increase in net earnings for the three and nine month periods in 1990 is basically attributable to a reduction in interest expense. Oil and gas sales rose significantly in the third quarter, however, the increase was primarily offset by higher production and operating expenses and also an increase in depletion, depreciation and amortization

Net production for the third quarter of 1990 averaged 5,910 barrels of liquids and 104 million cubic feet of natural gas per day. Average daily production for the third quarter of 1989 was 5,488 barrels of liquids and 85 million cubic feet of natural gas.

SUNNYVALE, CALIF (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Oki Semiconductor continues its commitment to blending Japanese and American management styles by appointing Eric B. Ovlen vice president, human resources and administration.

Reporting directly to company President Tatsuo Ishihara, Ovlen will be responsible for four major areas within the entire Sunnyvale and Tualatin, Ore., facilities of Oki Semiconductor: human resources, facilities, administration of office services and community relations.

Ovlen was most recently management consultant to corporate clients such as Chevron Corp. and visiting professor of management at Centre de Recherches et D'Etudes des Chefs D'Enterprise, Paris. Prior to this appointment, he was vice president, human resources and administration for Alps Electric (U.S.A.) Inc.

Ovlen brings extensive multicultural experience in human resource management to Oki Semiconductor. While at Alps Electric U.S.A., a U.S. subsidiary of a Japanese electronic components manufacturer, he implemented Japanese managerial techniques, such as ''productivity improvement teams,'' bottom-up work units where various employee groups are assigned the responsbility of solving specific problems, and working with management to implement the solutions.

Ovlen implemented a ''point evaluation system'' whereby compensation and performance evaluation are determined by an objective classification of each job's requirements. PORTLAND, OR (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Pope & Talbot Inc. announced Thursday that as a result of an anticipated long-term decline in timber supply for the company's Port Gamble, Wash., sawmill, the company will write-down the Port Gamble mill to what the company believes is its estimated recoverable value.

The fourth quarter charge will be approximately $10 million or 54 cents per primary share (48 cents on a fully diluted basis). This charge is expected to be less than non-recurring income generated in 1990 from sales of the company's Oregon timberlands.

Port Gamble depends entirely on timber purchased under contract and log purchases in the open market for its raw material supply. The mill's operations have been negatively impacted recently by high log costs caused primarily by strong export demand for logs. This strong export demand is expected to continue.

Furthermore, spotted owl set-asides and other environmental concerns will result in a significant reduction in timber available in the geographic area from which Port Gamble obtains its logs. Therefore, the company believes its ability to obtain adequate timber to operate the mill at its historic levels has been permanently impaired.

The company does anticipate operating the mill on a reduced basis when timber availability permits. The write-down is part of a restructuring intended to focus the company's lumber production in regions of more stable timber supplies and to reduce the company's presence in western Oregon and western Washington. This was begun last year with sale of the company's Oakridge, Ore., sawmill and is continuing with the previously announced sale of the company's remaining Oregon timberlands.

Pope & Talbot also announced renewal of a previous authorization to repurchase shares of the company's common stock. The board of directors, at a recent regularly scheduled meeting, authorized purchase of the common stock from time to time in both open market and block transactions. The company may discontinue purchases of its common stock at any time management determines additional purchases are not warranted.

SAN CARLOS, CALIF (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - ESCAgenetics Corp. (ASE:ESN), a San Carlos-based company which applies plant biotechnology to develop improved food crops, planting materials, natural ingredients and technical services for the food industry, Thursday announced its financial results for the second fiscal quarter which ended Sept. 30.

Revenues decreased to $1,504,000, compared to $1,689,000 for the comparable period ended Sept. 30, 1989. The decrease in revenue is due primarily to the sale of corn in the previous fiscal year, which the company anticipates will be sold primarily in the fourth quarter for fiscal 1991. Costs of revenues as a percentage of total revenues has remained stable.

Research and development expenses increased to $1,244,000 for the six-month period ended Sept. 30, 1990, from $918,000 in the comparable prior year period. The increase represents efforts in ongoing proprietary research and development projects.

True potato seed (TPS) research, which is financed through the company's joint venture with Pioneer Hi-Bred International, is accounted for on the equity method and, accordingly, the company has recorded its 50 percent interest in the joint venture's loss beginning with the second quarter of fiscal 1989.

In June, the company entered into a joint venture agreement with a company located in the Middle East to open a Plant Tissue Culture Laboratory. Under the terms of the agreement, the company will receive an equity position and royalties resulting from the sales of products in return for a license agreement of its technology.

PHOENIX (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Gradual increases in the cost of natural gas from its suppliers over the past year have forced Southwest Gas (NYSE:SWX) to ask for an increase in the gas cost adjustment portion of its Arizona customers' bills.

Southwest records such costs in a separate account and periodically updates the gas cost component of its rates to reflect any significant increases or decreases.

If approved by the Arizona Corporation Commission (ACC), the adjustment would result in a $12.9 million increase in revenues for the company statewide to pay for gas it has purchased from its suppliers. A typical Arizona residential customer using 40 therms of natural gas would see a $1.18, or a little more than 4 percent, increase in the monthly bill.

''Natural gas prices have been relatively stable over the last few years,'' said Marvin R. Shaw, executive vice president/rates, regulation and gas supply. ''We've been fortunate that we haven't had a gas-cost increase like this since 1987.''

He noted that supplier prices have gradually increased over the past year due to changes in the gas markets and changes in supplier price agreements.

He emphasized that the non-gas cost portion of customer bills would remain the same; only the gas cost adjustment portion would change. The company asked that the new rates take effect Dec. 1.

Under ACC rules, natural gas utilities are allowed to pass along to consumers dollar-for-dollar any significant increases or decreases in their gas supply costs. The company makes no profit from such increases.

DALLAS (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Comstock Resources Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS:CMRE) announced the status of its ongoing development of its 54,000 acre Bivins Ranch lease located in Moore, Potter, Oldham and Hartley Counties, Texas.

To date, Comstock has eight wells fully completed and producing in lower non-engineered zones. An additional 45 wells have been perforated and acidized and are currently scheduled for fracture treatments and will be brought into production during the month of November. Comstock has scheduled 83 wells to be completed in Blocks 1 and 2 by the end of 1990 with the remaining 15 wells located in Block 3 scheduled for completion in the first quarter of 1991 when a gas pipeline connection should be available. Average daily production is currently 85 barrels of oil per day and 1,300 mcf of gas per day which will increase substantially by Nov. 30, 1990, as the 45 new wells are brought on line.

The majority of the wells are being completed in lower zones which were not engineered with proved reserves. The production resulting from these lower zones should add significant additional oil reserves when combined with the engineered upper zones. Current production and test results on the non-engineered lower zones indicate an average of seven to 10 barrels of oil and 20 to 30 mcf of gas per well per day is being contributed by the lower zones. Comstock estimates that these lower zones could contribute a total of 581 to 830 barrels of oil and 1,660 to 2,490 mcf of gas per day by the end of 1990. In addition, Comstock began testing the engineered upper zones in 10 wells late last week.

Comstock Resources Inc. owns and manages income producing assets in oil, casinghead and natural gas, precious metals and real estate, with subsidiary operations since 1865.

BREA, CA (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - UnionFed Financial Corp. (NYSE:UFF) Thursday reported that its principal subsidiary, Union Federal Savings Bank (the ''Bank''), has been requested by the Office of Thrift Supervision to submit a capital plan demonstrating the manner in which the Bank intends to return to compliance with applicable regulatory capital requirements.

UnionFed previously reported that the Bank was not in compliance with its

Also as expected, the OTS has directed that the Bank not increase its assets pending approval of its capital plan or pay any dividends. These limitations include that, except with the prior written approval of the OTS assistant district director, the Bank must confine new loan originations and investments to single-family residential lending, mortgage-backed securities and certain low risk-weight assets, other than for liquidity purposes or to fulfill existing commitments.

In addition, the Bank must comply with restrictions on the sale, transfer, modification or exchange of assets and on certain real estate purchases, investments in subsidiaries and capital expenditures. The Bank is also prohibited from accepting brokered deposits or, as part of this limitation, from offering above-market rates on its deposits.

FREMONT, CA (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Everex Systems Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:EVRX) Thursday announced the Everex STEPcube, a high-performance 12-slot 486/33 EISA computer system.

The Everex STEPcube offers the maximum performance available from an EISA system and features an innovative mechanical design optimized for current and next generation microprocessors.

Capable of operating in the most demanding commercial environment, the Everex STEPcube features an advanced thermal management system. The Everex Thermal Management System (ETMS) includes two high-capacity SmartFans with infinitely variable self-regulating speed controls.

The two SmartFans route air through the chassis, cooling components and cards. While one SmartFan cools the system board and expansion cards, the other is devoted to cooling the power supply and drives. With ETMS, component life is prolonged, maintenance costs are reduced and up time is increased.

The Everex STEPcube is designed to operate as a powerful file server or multiuser system. The 12-slot EISA system board provides the maximum expandability and I/O necessary to run large networking and multiuser applications. Users running smaller networks may not require the 12-slot expandability and may purchase 8-slot 386 and 486 versions of the Everex STEPcube based on ISA or EISA system boards.

The Everex STEPcube offers full upgradeability for maximum value. Depending upon system configuration, users may purchase a direct CPU replacement card to upgrade 386-based systems to 486-based systems. Users may also switch bus architectures or increase expandability by replacing the entire system board.

The Everex STEPcube includes a high-capacity 400-watt power supply which meets the power requirements of the most demanding system configurations. With a 400-watt power supply, the Everex STEPcube runs standard configurations using only a fraction of the available power. The system runs cooler, reducing thermal stress on the subsystems and the power supply.

The Everex STEPcube's distinctive design provides easy access to boards and mass storage devices. Tool-less device installation allows users to gain access to the system without using a screwdriver.

ACT is internationally known for its work in the field of agricultural biotechnology, especially in the development of hybrid canola, a major oil seed crop.

According to Charles Johnson, Pioneer senior vice president for North American Operations, the acquisition fits into the company's strategy for oilseed development and marketing.

''ACT has a very good foundation of breeding material and a highly developed research program producing superior canola varieties and hybrids,'' said Johnson. ''The addition of these resources, both in biotechnology and traditional breeding, will give Pioneer a new world- wide position in this competitive crop.''

Through contract research with major food companies, including Frito/Lay, ACT has been developing specialized canola and other products.

''This acquisition is a superb fit for our Specialty Plant Products Division '' continued Johnson. ''S.P.P. is a new division of Pioneer engaged in developing, producing and marketing crops that have traits valuable to end-users and processors. The addition of ACT is a big plus for that group.

''Additionally, ACT has established a marketing presence, here in the Southeastern United States. That effort will continue and undoubtedly will help Pioneer establish itself in the expanding canola seed market.''

The president of ACT, Dr. Jeremy Gawen, said his company had been looking for new capital investment for some months and had attracted the attention of a number of international seed and food companies. ''We're delighted to be joining the Pioneer group which has had considerable resources here in Canada, since 1946,'' Gawen said.

Gawen and the rest of the management staff of ACT will continue in their present duties. The company will continue to operate from its Canadian locations in Mississauga and Georgetown, Ontario.

ACT was founded in 1983 as a part of Allelix Inc. and became a separate business in 1988. The company generates revenues from contract research and seed sales, but the bulk of its funding to date has come from its major shareholders, NOVA Corp. of Alberta, John Labatt Ltd. and the Ontario Development Corp. Pioneer does not expect the acquisition to have an immediate material impact on earnings.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. was established in 1926 and is headquartered in Des Moines.

Conducting business in more than 60 countries, it is the world's largest agricultural genetics research company. It develops, produces and markets hybrid seed corn, sorghum, sunflowers and varieties of soybeans, alfalfa and wheat as well as microbial products for inoculation of crops and livestock.

Pioneer also develops and markets business information products and services for farmers. Through its Specialty Plant Products division it develops, produces and markets crops with traits valuable to processors and end-users.

GLENDALE, CA (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Pollution Research and Control Corp. (NASDAQ:PRCC) reported Thursday revenue of $630,000 for the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, resulting in a net loss of $169,000, or 5 cents per share, compared with revenue of $1,252,000 and a net loss of $178,000, or 5 cents per share, for the same three months a year ago.

A. E. Gosselin Jr., president and chief executive officer, explained the revenue drop and loss for the quarter as resulting from a slow market for monitoring equipment in anticipation of the President's signing of the Clean Air Act. ''The company's operating performance in the first quarter,'' Gosselin said, ''reflects a continued extension of last year's downward adjustments in fixed expense to accomodate lower sales.''

''The balance between the company's fixed expense and our anticipation of lower sales,'' Gosselin maintains, ''appears to have been reached in late August. By taking these steps now we expect to be able to resume profitable growth consistent with normal sales activity.''

TAMPA, FLA. (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Seahawk Deep Ocean Technology (NASDAQ:SDOT) announced Thursday that it will be featured on the nationally-syndicated news program ''Inside Edition'' on Thursday, Nov. 1.

The story will cover the company's work on its second colonial Spanish shipwreck site using Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institution's Johnson Sea Link submarine. The wreck is more than a thousand feet deep 50 miles east of St. Augustine, Fla.

Seahawk is currently completing its predisturbance survey of the site which includes a photomosaic record of the entire area and selective sampling of artifacts which may help identify the wreck. Heading the expedition is noted marine archaeologist Robert Marx, author of 32 books and the person who initially targeted the wreck for Seahawk.

The site has 12 cannons, two anchors and thousands of artifacts and ballast stones showing on the surface. Recovered artifacts include two cannons, numerous cannonballs, several ''onion bottles,'' a brass telescope, a dozen copper cooking pots of different sizes, and a number of artifacts which are unidentifiable until they are cleaned up.

To mark where each artifact is retrieved, Harbor Branch designed a special device dubbed the ''Pez Dispenser.'' Each time an artifact is removed the dispenser shoots out a tiny steel weight wrapped in a florescent ribbon with a numbered float attached to it. Upon contact the ribbon unwraps and the numbered float rises about a foot above the weight for future recording.

Seahawk plans on beginning full excavation of the site when it completes work on its first colonial Spanish galleon, which is located about 65 miles southwest of Key West 1500 feet deep.

That wreck is yielding gold bars, silver coins, ancient mariner's astrolabes, jewelry, intact olive jars, and Italian ceramics bearing the seal of the Pope, indicating a Papal emissary was probably aboard when the ship went down. Evidence indicates the ship was probably part of the Spanish fleet which was decimated by a hurricane in 1622.

The most famous ship of that fleet was the Atocha, found by Mel Fisher in 1985 and valued at hundreds of millions of dollars.

Seahawk is publicly traded on the NASDAQ stock exchange.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Lotus Development Corp. Thursday announced it will acquire Samna Corp. of Atlanta, developers of Ami and Ami Professional, top-rated graphical word processors for the Microsoft Windows personal computer operating environment.

The two companies have signed a definitive merger agreement, calling for Lotus to acquire Samna for approximately $65 million, or $18.84 per share of Samna common stock. The acquisition is structured as a tender offer that will begin on or before Nov. 7, 1990. The companies hope to complete the acquisition by year's end.

''The graphical word processing market is a promising, high-growth segment and we are excited to be teaming up with Samna to pursue the opportunities that are emerging there,'' said Jim Manzi, Lotus' president and chief executive officer. ''With this initiative, we are acquiring Ami Professional and Ami, a first-class organization that is determined to be a leader in the word processing market and all of the leading-edge, Windows-based technology they've developed.

''Our objective is to have the leading products in the major application categories and in the major computing environments,'' Manzi added. ''Ami Professional fits this strategy perfectly, and we intend to provide tight integration between it and our spreadsheet and graphics products under development for the Windows 3.0 environment.''

The chairman and president of Samna, Said Mohammadioun, said he believes the partnership with Lotus gives Samna the international sales and marketing resources, and the continued development support needed for Ami and Ami Professional to gain significant market share in the emerging Windows word processing market. ''We developed the first major graphical word processor to run under Microsoft Windows,'' Mohammadioun said. ''We intend to capitalize on our early presence and the added marketing, sales and distribution strength provided by Lotus -- both in the U.S. and in international markets -- to grow our business aggressively.''

Samna shipped initial Windows versions of Ami and Ami Professional in December 1988 and October 1989, respectively. The company has shipped Windows 3.0 versions of both products this year. The products, which share the same graphical user interface and file formats, meet the needs of a broad range of users.

Ami is an executive word processing package, while Ami Professional is designed for more intensive word processing needs. Am! Professional provides a rich set of graphics and drawing tools, support for dynamic data exchange links to other applications running under Windows, macro language capabilities and other advanced word processing features.

Samna also recently began shipping an innovative information access product for Windows, called SmarText. In addition, the company continues to market character-based word processing products for DOS users and Samna Plus IV, a word processing package for multi-user systems running AT&T UNIX System V 3.2 and SCO XENIX.

''Ami and Ami Professional are easy to use, easy to learn, and early entrants in the Windows 3.0 word processing market,'' Manzi said. ''We've learned from previous experience that ease of use and early entry in the market are critical to a product's acceptance. We intend to enhance and further support the Am! product line by funding further development of the products, and by providing the marketing, sales and distribution impetus required to make them commercial successes.''

Samna will become the Word Processing Division of Lotus, operating from Atlanta. Mohammadioun, who along with three other partners founded Samna in 1982, will be vice president of the word processing division, reporting to Frank King, senior vice president of Lotus' Software Business Group.

Lotus said the transaction will be accounted for as a purchase. A substantial portion of the $65 million acquisition cost will be allocated to ''purchased'' research and development expense, resulting in a one-time charge of approximately $40 million to $50 million against earnings in the fiscal period in which the transaction is completed.

Lotus' tender offer is conditioned upon at least a majority of Samna's outstanding common stock -- on a fully diluted basis -- being tendered and not withdrawn, and other customary conditions. The tender offer will be followed by a merger in which all remaining shares of Samna's common stock will be converted into the right to receive $18.84 per share.

Samna (NASDAQ:SMNA) shipped its first word processing package, Samna Word II, in 1983. The company, which completed an initial public offering in June 1987 recorded $10.3 million in revenue in the first nine months of this year, compared to $11 million for all of 1989. Due to its transition from character- to graphical-based products and, in part, to its early investment in the Windows market, the company incurred operating losses earlier in the year and in 1989, but was profitable in its most recent quarter ended Sept. 30 (see accompanying chart).

Lotus Development Corp. (NASDAQ:LOTS), founded in 1982, develops, markets and supports business software and CD-ROM databases that help users access, analyze, communicate and share information. The company's first product, Lotus 1-2-3, is the most popular personal computer software program in the world with more than 12 million users.

Lotus markets its broad range of products in more than 65 countries and offers users comprehensive support options, including 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week support in the U.S. for PC versions of its 1-2-3 spreadsheet. In 1989, the company recorded $556 million in revenue, with net income of $68 million, or $1.61 per share.

EAST ROCHESTER, N.Y. (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - MOSCOM Corp. (NASDAQ NMS:MSCM) Thursday announced record sales and earnings for the third quarter, 1990.

Sales for the quarter ended Sept. 30, l990 were $3,558,959, an increase of 15 percent from $3,085,169 in sales for the same period last year. Net income for the quarter increased 48 percent to $612,041 or 9 cents per share from $414,791 or 6 cents per share earned in the prior third quarter.

Commenting on the report, Albert J. Montevecchio, MOSCOM president, said, ''Despite the difficult economic environment, MOSCOM achieved another record quarter. The gains were due to sales to AT&T of Cost Allocator software and CDRU/s hardware, under firm commitment contracts which run through the end of 1992 and 1991. Sales to Siemens in Germany of M4500 call accounting systems were also strong.''

Montevecchio continued, ''Nonetheless, softness in certain portions of our business, which we attribute entirely to weakness in the general economy, has tempered our short-term expectations.

''While we continue to expect record earnings for 1990, it is too early in the fourth quarter to be able to say with certainty that results for the second half will exceed those of the first half, as we previously anticipated. For the longer term we remain optimistic since the fundamentals of our industry and our important customer relationships remain strong.''

For the nine months ended September 30, 1990, sales were $32,920,000, up 17% from the $28,157,000 reported in the first nine months of 1989. Net income totalled $12,000 or $.01 per share compared to $293,000 or $.14 per share in the corresponding period of 1989.

Robert L. Borchardt, President, stated, ''We are pleased that the results for the third quarter were favorable and that the Company was able to report a profit for the nine month period. Despite the poor economic climate and softness in buying at the retail level, we see positive trends for the Company. Integration of our Calibron subsidiary and Rembrandt antenna line are progressing as scheduled. During the third quarter we completed building a 40,000 square foot manufacturing and warehouse addition which will double the size of our Calibron subsidiary in Orlando, Florida. This will allow us to expand domestic manufacturing and enable us to move some operations from the New York facility.''

Commenting on the increase in sales, Mr. Borchardt said, ''During the third quarter we began shipping Recoton's newest high tech product, the ''Room Service'' wireless video sender. This product wirelessly transmits movies or cable TV from one room to any other television in the house. We believe that the product introduction was very successful and that the wireless product category, which will be expanded in 1991, will produce strong future sales for the Company. NEW YORK (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - S&P CreditWire - S&P assigns its triple-'A' rating to Alpha Finance Corp. Ltd. (AFC)'s $500 million medium-term note program, and affirms the 'A-1'-plus short-term rating of AFC's $500 million commercial paper program.

The rating is based on the quality and diversification of the securities purchased, strict limits on leverage and portfolio management by the investment manager Cititrust (Bahamas) Ltd. and the investment advisor

Citicorp Investment Bank Ltd. (CIBL).

The company's medium-term notes are fixed and floating rate, and mature no later than Sept. 20, 1998. The notes are offered simultaneously in the U. S. and Euromarkets.

AFC is a limited liability company incorporated in the Cayman Islands. The equity of the company is owned by the holders of its ordinary shares who have contributed $100 million in capital. The company was established for the benefit of the shareholders with the purpose of investing in a diversified portfolio of high-quality rated debt securities.

AFC's investment in securities will be within strict investment parameters monitored closely by CIBL. Interest rate and currency risks will be minimized by closely matching as well as using interest rate and currency forwards and swaps. Liquidity is assured through committed bank lines and limits on liabilities coming due within specific time periods.

If, despite the high quality of investments and matching requirements, losses exceed certain predetermined amounts, CIBL will be required to bring the issuer back into compliance with leverage restrictions within five days; failure to do so will lead to AFC's ceasing activities, with noteholders having a choice of an immediate payout at market value or holding a note backed by a collateral pool held by a trustee.

In this event, S&P anticipates that the collateral pool held by the trustee will provide principal plus accrued interest to the noteholders at maturity.

BALTIMORE (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Allied Research Corp. (NASDAQ:ARAI) said its Barnes & Reinecke Inc. unit has received a contract from the U.S. Army for the purchase and evaluation of ARC's bullet trap rifle grenades.

Allied Research reported that, while the contract amount was relatively modest the potential for large volume production awards was significant.

At present, the U.S. Army relies on specialized grenade launchers to provide long-range grenade firepower. Using Allied Research rifle grenades, every rifleman can launch grenades hundreds of meters using a standard, unmodified service rifle.

Developed by Allied Research's Mecar S.A. unit, the bullet trap rifle grenades are launched by a standard live round. The bullet is actually trapped in the grenade, and its kinetic energy and propelling gases are used to propel the rifle grenade. After launching a Mecar bullet trap rifle grenade, a rifleman can return to standard round firing without any hesitation.

Some 35 countries have already acquired MECAR bullet trap rifle grenades.

ENFIELD, CT (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - LEGO Systems Inc. announces that its LEGO WEAR line of children's clothing will now be available nationwide.

In August, 1990, LEGO Systems, makers of the world's best selling construction toys, successfully introduced LEGO WEAR in select markets. The clothing, sporting the popular LEGO logo and scenes from the LEGO play environments, includes four brightly colored sweatshirts, three pairs of sweatpants, a blue stonewashed denim jacket and a matching pair of denim pants. LEGO WEAR comes in boys' sizes 5-7 and toddler sizes 2T and 4T, with suggested retail prices ranging from $13.00 to $37.00.

LEGO WEAR is now available at Burdines in Southern Florida; Dayton-Hudson in Detroit and Minneapolis; Dillards in Ft. Worth, Little Rock, Phoenix, San Antonio, and St. Louis; Foley in Houston; all G. Fox locations; in 75 J.C. Penney stores, nationally at Lord & Taylor; Macy's in Atlanta, New York and San Francisco; Marshall Fields in Illinois, Ohio and Texas; Steiger's in Springfield, Mass.; Strawbridge & Clothier in Philadelphia; and at Woodward & Lothrop in Washington D.C.

The inspiration for LEGO WEAR came from the company's ''Jack the LEGO MANIAC'' television commercials, developed by LINTAS: New York. In the commercials ''Jack'' sports a denim jacket with the LEGO logo prominently displayed on the back. Says LEGO Systems Group Product Manager Robert Ellis, ''Our Consumer Affairs department has been flooded with calls from children who want to wear a LEGO jacket just like Jack's. Before these commercials we had no idea there was such a high level of interest in LEGO clothing.''

The clothing, developed by LEGO Systems and Licensing Firm S.R. Gent USA, incorporates the ''Space'' and ''Pirate'' themes of the company's play sets. According to Ellis, ''Our children's clothing will complement the LEGO product line and will help build brand wareness. The clothes are mix and match, well made, and creatively designed. The philosophy behind LEGO WEAR is identical to that of LEGO toys: 'Only the best is good enough.''

AMSTELVEEN, THE NETHERLANDS (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - The consolidated statements of earnings for the three and six months ended Sept. 30, 1990 are as follows (in millions of Dutch guilders, except per share amounts.) (NYSE:KLM).

Second quarter 1990/91 net income amounts to nlg 42.7 million compared to nlg 162.3 million in the 1989/90 second quarter. The pre-tax results earned through normal company operations amount to nlg 77.1 million profit as compared to nlg 228.5 million the previous year.

Ton-mile traffic this quarter was 8 percent higher than the previous year. Ton-mile capacity also grew 8 percent. Load factor increased over the previous years's level by 0.2 points to 72.8 percent.

Operating revenues increased 1 percent to nlg 1801 million. Total operating expenses increased by nlg 166.4 million (+11 percent) to nlg 1707 million.

In spite of the 8 percent traffic increase, traffic revenues have not risen. This was caused by the sharp decline in the exchange rates of currencies including the dollar, yen and pound sterling. Their negative influence on average yield was more than 9 percent.

Further causes for the decline in second quarter results are the higher costs incurred for aircraft fuel, materials and consumables, insurance premiums and higher interest rates and further, the diminished return on holdings.

Fuel prices in U.S. dollars averaged 20 percent higher this quarter than the previous year. Expressed in guilders, fuel costs increased 4 percent, since overall for this quarter lower dollar prices compensated for fuel price increases. Fuel consumption was 6 percent higher.

The considerable increase in costs of materials and consumables was caused by the higher price of technical materials and higher consumption for engine maintenance and passenger care.

As has previously been announced, current prospects indicate that a significant loss will be incurred this fiscal year.

This report is unaudited.

COLUMBUS, OHIO (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Meret Inc. (NASDAQ:MRET) reported Thursday net income of $93,112, or 1 cent per share, for its fiscal year ended July 31, compared to a net income of $353,388, or 4 cents per share, for fiscal 1989.

Total revenues for fiscal 1990 were $12,204,630 vs. $10,348,782 for fiscal 1989.

For the fourth quarter ended July 31, 1990, a loss of $97,084 was incurred on total revenues of $3,255,213 compared to net income of $48,234 on total revenues of $2,726,549 for the final quarter of fiscal 1989.

Commenting on the 1990 fiscal year results, Meret Chairman and President Bruce W. Krysiak said: ''Over the past two years, we have recognized a need for geographical expansion of our marketing and selling efforts. During fiscal 1990, RPA made significant strides in this regard. Our New York sales office opened in April 1989, produced excellent sales results in fiscal 1990 and has provided an entree' into new markets for RPA.

''Additionally, we opened an office in London, England, during January 1990, in an effort to better serve the European marketplace. After an initial period of marketing and development, this office has begun to produce acceptable results. RPA also opened three regional design offices in Seattle (August 1989), Atlanta (April 1990) and Boston (July 1990), to provide design services to businesses located in each of those geographic areas. While the costs associated with these new offices served to reduce fiscal 1990 net income, we believe the marketing and sales base now established will be a key element in the future growth of RPA.''

Fiscal 1990 results were also adversely impacted by the start-up costs incurred in connection with the company's college convenient store concept. Due in part to the publicly disclosed financial difficulties of The Southland Corp. as well as the lengthy decision-making process encountered at various colleges and universities, efforts to market this concept have met with little success to date.

The trust now has completed the sales of all five of the motel properties acquired in the 1989 foreclosure proceedings for a total net gain of approximately $2 million which does not include approximately $230,000 of deferred gains.

These motels generated operating losses of $74,000 (3 cents per share) in the third quarter and $385,000 (15 cents per share) in the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

David H. Hoster II, executive vice-president of the trust, stated that the sale of the motels had taken longer to accomplish than originally anticipated due to the deteriorating market for this type of property. He added that the sales will have a positive effect on recurring earnings because the motels were experiencing operating losses.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Zemex Corp. experienced a net loss of $274,000 or 14 cents per share in the first nine months of 1990 compared with a net loss of $937,000 or 52 cents per share in the same period of 1989.

A net loss of $331,000 or 14 cents per share in the third quarter this year compares with a net loss of $347,000 or 19 cents per share in the third quarter last year.

The third quarter loss reflects weak business conditions in many of the industries served by the company's industrial minerals operation. The progress reported earlier in the year in reducing costs and increasing profitability in this business segment was eclipsed by a drop in sales volume in the third quarter, particularly in the month of September.

Cost reduction efforts are being increased and the underlying improving trend in profitability is expected to re-emerge as sales volumes recover. In spite of the economic slowdown, Crystal operations improved from year earlier levels.

Metal powders had a strong third quarter in spite of the economic slowdown. Construction of the new atomized steel powder facility progressed well with steel erection at an advanced stage and much of the new plant's equipment on site at the end of September.

Tin operations continued to be affected by depressed tin prices in the third quarter but remained profitable through excellent cost performance.

Smith Jr., said: ''Significant progress has been made during the third quarter to improve the soundness and future profitability of First American. Our directors, officers and employees have made major efforts to develop plans to resolve loan problems and to ensure that the problem loan identification and classification processes are sound, appropriate and effective.

''The increase in allowance for possible loan losses during the third quarter reflects what we believe is an appropriately conservative view concerning the Tennessee economy and our identified problem loans. Although net loan charge-offs have been declining during the course of 1990, the increase in the allowance for possible loan losses reflects the increase in non-performing loans.

''The Sept. 24, 1990, examination of the commercial loan portfolio by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency is nearing its completion, and so far we have experienced no significant surprises. Our capital levels remain strong and above those contained in our recent agreement with the Comptroller of the Currency.''

First American Corp. is based in Nashville, and operates 140 offices in 29 Tennessee counties. The corporation also owns First American Trust Co., First Amtenn Life Insurance Co. and First American Community Development Corp.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Potomac Electric Power Co. (PEPCO) Thursday asked the Maryland Public Service Commission to increase PEPCO's annual revenues by $28.3 million, or 3.7 percent.

If granted, this increase would apply to PEPCO's 427,000 residential and commercial customers in Montgomery and Prince George's counties.

The 3.7 percent rate increase request, which is below the current 5.2 percent 1990 inflation rate, is necessary to cover increased costs of providing reliable service to customers. These costs include operation and maintenance of plant facilities; increased taxes; increased conservation expenditures and plant investment to meet the area's growing electricity needs, including costs associated with the new generating units under construction at PEPCO's Chalk Point Generating Station. These units, which are expected to be in operation by June 1, 1991, will primarily use natural gas and will meet the strict emission requirements of the new Clean Air Act.

''Even including the proposed 3.7 percent rate increase, the average cost of electricity for our Maryland customers will be well below 1983 levels in both actual dollars and inflation-adjusted terms,'' said H. Lowell Davis, PEPCO's vice chairman and chief financial officer.

Davis noted that PEPCO customers have benefitted from the company's cost-control programs, declining fuel prices and lower corporate borrowing costs achieved through the refinancing of higher-cost securities.

If the Public Service Commission approves the proposed rates, the monthly bill of a typical Maryland residential customer purchasing 715 kilowatt hours of electricity would increase by $2.76. Last year, the price PEPCO's Maryland residential customers paid for electricity was 12 percent less than the national average.

PEPCO expects to receive a decision by June 1991.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) - The U.S. manufacturing sector weakened further in October in what the respected National Association of Purchasing Managment (NAPM) said Thursday indicated the U.S. economy had declined for the first time since 1982.

The NAPM survey, considered one of the best barometers of U.S. economic health differed sharply from a Commerce Department report earlier this week which indicated the U.S. economy was continuing to grow.

The association's monthly index of economic activity last month fell to 43.4, its lowest level since December 1982, when it dropped to 42.8.

The Commerce Department reported earlier this week that U.S. gross national product (GNP) had grown an annally adjusted 1.8 percent during the third quarter this year, from July to September.

At the same time, the White House predicted the economy would continue to grow albeit at a slower pace, at least until the end of the first quarter of next year

But NAPM Chairman Robert Bretz said his group's monthly index signaled a small decline in the GNP during October.

Nearly all the components which make up the index, he added, "confirmed the growing weakness in manufacturing, which was enough to pull the overall economy into slightly negative growth."

NICOSIA (NOV. 1) - Britain's firm rejection of an Iraqi offer to grant visas to relatives of some Westerners and Japanese detained in Iraq is "perfidious," the Iraqi foreign ministry said Thursday.

"The reaction of the Foreign Office to this humanitarian gesture displays a perfidious colonialist mentality and shows the colonialist goals of Britain in Iraq," a spokesman for the foreign ministry said, in a statement carried by the Iraqi news agency INA and monitored here.

But he welcomed a decision by a group of British women who announced plans to go to Iraq and take advantage of the offer to visit their husbands detained there.

The Iraqi foreign ministry earlier said it would provide visas to the families of some 400 Western and Japanese nationals held as "human shields," allowing them to visit their relatives over Christmas and New Year.

The 400 are among an estimated 4,000 foreigners held by Iraq to deter a feared attack by U.S.-led forces that deployed in the Gulf following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

The Foreign Office in London immediately reacted to the offer by discouraging relatives of hostages held in Iraq from visiting them, saying the trip would be "risky."

"We have a great deal of sympathy with the predicament of wives and families" of persons held hostage in Iraq, a spokesman for the Foreign Office said.

"But it should be noted that Iraqi undertakings cannot be trusted. Travel to Iraq in any circumstances would be risky," he said, adding that the offer was a "disgraceful example of Iraq exploiting the feelings of relatives of hostages at a time of importance in family life."

Labour Party leader Neil Kinnock said the Iraqi invitation was "completely cynical" and a "cheap shot ... to try to buy the favour of the world community, but it will not succeed."

The wives of some 11 hostages have said they would take up Iraq on the offer and travel to Jordan next week on their way to Baghdad to win their husbands' freedom.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) - Iraq has withdrawn some 300 armored vehicles from occupied Kuwait, while increasing the number of artillery pieces there, the Pentagon said Thursday.

Pentagon spokesman Bob Hall said Defense Department analysts believe the changes are of only minor significance. He added that there remain in Kuwait the same number of soldiers as one month ago, approximately 430,000.

Mr. Hall said their posture remained "primarily one of defense" with the option to convert to an offensive position.

Iraq now has 2,200 armored personnel carriers and infantry fighting vehicles in Kuwait and southern Iraq, down from an earlier figure of 2,500, according to Pentagon estimates cited by Hall. The number of Iraqi artillery pieces in the area is up from 1,700 to 2,200, while the Iraqi tank count stands at 3,500, according to the spokesman.

The United States currently has deployed at least 220,000 military personnel to the Gulf, and approximately 800 tanks.

ARICA, Chile (NOV. 1) - Mummified corpses of members of an Indian group that lived in Latin America 8,000 years ago have been found on the grounds of the Peruvian Consulate here, Chilean government sources said.

The mummies, which belong to a tribe called the Chinchorros, were preserved in a way similar to that used by the ancient Egyptians.

The mummies were found in three different areas of the consulate and were confirmed by experts from the Peruvian Cultural Corporation, who traveled to Arica, located 1,650 kilometers (1,000 miles) north of Santiago near Chile's border with Peru.

The Peruvian Consul in Arica, Nicolas Roncagliolo, said he had been instructed by his government to turn the mummies over to Chilean authorities.

Chilean officials did not say how many were found.

Another 13 mummies of Chinchorro Indians have been discovered since 1985, when the University of Tarapaca began an archeological dig in Arica. Carbon dating done by the school put the age of those mummies at 8,000 years.

The most recent discovery was in November 1989, when researchers found a mummified corpse during excavations in the Azapa Valley, outside Arica.

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND (NOV. 1) - Wilson and Horton Ltd., one of the country's largest publishers, has bought the New Zealand Listener weekly magazine, the New Zealand Herald reported here Thursday.

Wilson and Horton own the Herald, the country's biggest-selling newspaper, and the New Zealand Woman's Weekly.

The company did not reveal the price it paid for Listener, sold by its joint owners, Television New Zealand and Radio New Zealand.

The publisher said the acquisition of the magazine's good will and assets represented "excellent value in a depressed market."

The Listener is believed to have been losing money and circulation since it lost its monopoly on the right to publish television and radio programmes three years ago.

FREIBURG, GERMANY (NOV. 1) - German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble left a hospital for a convalescent home on Wednesday as doctors said he was recovering from paralysis caused by a would-be assassin's bullet.

A medical bulletin said Mr. Schaeuble, injured by a man, reportedly mentally disturbed, at a meeting on October 12, had fully recovered from his back injuries.

The bulletin said his facial injuries were healing and "paralysis in his legs is regressing."

In a separate development in Cologne, the woman who on April 25 tried to kill Oskar Lafontaine, the Social Democratic candidate for Chancellor, went on trial.

The woman, Adelheid Streidel, 43, had been in psychiatric internment since the attack when she lunged at Mr. Lafontaine with a knife, gashing his throat but missing his jugular vein.

The prosecution has abandoned proceedings for attempted assassination in view of medical evidence showing Ms. Streidel to be a schizophrenic.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) - Japanese shipbuilder and defence contractor Kawasaki Heavy Industries Ltd. said Thursday its net profit rose by 24 percent to 6.1 billion yen (44 million dollars) in the six months to September from the previous corresponding period.

The company, also the country's biggest exporter of motorcycles and one of its leading manufacturers of aircraft and submarines, said sales inched up 3.7 percent to 355 billion yen (2.6 billion dollars) in the same period.

A surge in shipbuilding orders and increased sales of machinery and consumer products offset declining sales of rolling stock, aerospace equipment, industrial machinery and steel structures, Kawasaki said.

The company said ship sales ballooned 48.5 percent to 27 billion yen (196 million dollars) while machinery sales rose 1.1 percent to 78 billion yen (565 million dollars).

But sales of rolling stock fell 14.7 percent to 31 billion yen (225 million dollars) while sales of aerospace equipment declined one percent to 94 billion yen (681 million dollars), Kawasaki said.

Sales of industrial machinery and steel structures fell by 4.9 percent to 47 billion yen (341 million dollars), it added.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) - Iraq plans to blow up several oil tankers off Kuwait's coast and set ablaze the resulting spill of millions of gallons of oil in the Gulf to delay any allied attack from the sea, The Washington Times reported Thursday.

Citing Pentagon, military and intelligence officials who spoke on condition of anonymity, the newspaper said three Iraqi oil-filled tankers were anchored near the Saudi Arabian border and others may be hidden.

The tankers are among several flammable defenses that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has developed to reinforce his threat made last August that "many will burn" in a Gulf war, the newspaper said.

Iraq has filled about 10 percent of its hundreds of miles of anti-tank trenches with flammable materials to stall any tank advance long enough to counterattack, the paper said, citing an unidentified administration official with access to intelligence reports.

The Washington Times said that when the three tankers were loaded at a northern Kuwaiti port last month, U.S. intelligence analysts at first suspected the ships would deliver oil to Iran as part of Baghdad's efforts to break the U.N. blockade.

The analysts also reportedly considered Iraq was using the ships to store oil since its other storage areas were filled to capacity.

But officials said the ships were moved close to the southern Kuwaiti port of Ra's al Qulay'ah, which is near a stretch of beach that would be suitable for a Marine amphibious landing, the paper reported.

U.S. intelligence agencies believe the Iraqi military has secretly obtained commercial satellite photographs of the U.S.-led multinational force deployment in Saudi Arabia indirectly from France's Spot satellite company, the paper said.

According to administration intelligence sources, the photos give the Iraqis the capability of launching ballistic missile strikes using chemical weapons against the allied forces, the paper said.

The U.S. intelligence community recently concluded in a classified assessment that Iraq could launch chemical-warhead missile attacks with little or no warning time, the paper said.

Included among U.S. monitors against a possible chemical attack are spy satellites and ground stations in the region.

MANAMA (NOV. 1) - A free trade agreement between the six member states of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) and the European Community (EC) could be signed within a year, it was reported here Thursday.

Dr. Dhaffar al Umran, director of evaluation and economic research at the Bahrain Ministry of Finance and National Economy, was quoted by the Gulf Daily News as saying that the first round of talks between the two sides had been successful.

"It was an excellent meeting. Very encouraging," said al Umran, who was part of the 15-member GCC delegation that held talks in Brussels recently.

"Negotiations have now opened between the two sides. This was the first formal meeting," he added.

Al Umran said a final agreement on free trade between the two economic blocs could be signed within a year. "At the moment everything looks good," he said.

SEOUL (NOV. 1) - South Korea said Thursday it may scrap a multi-billion dollar agreement to buy and co-produce 120 jet fighters from McDonnell Douglas, accusing the U.S. manufacturer of asking for too much money.

Defense Minister Lee Jong-Koo made the announcement at a hastily arranged press conference, saying the government would take a fresh look at the 4.7 billion dollar deal before signing the contract.

A McDonnell Douglas official here denied the price had gone up as much as South Korea was suggesting and said the government here had told the company that it was still committed to buying and jointly producing the FA-18 Hornets.

"I think we are going to work this out," he said. "We are committed to the contract and we are willing to work it out."

The company would make an official announcement Thurday morning from their headquarters in St. Louis, Missouri, he said.

Mr. Lee said that at the time the contract was awarded to McDonnell Douglas the government had expected the amount to go up, but not as much as the U.S.

manufacturer was now demanding.

He added that the government did not want to create an international dispute over the deal, but it might have to turn to other manufacturers.

Other South Korean officials said McDonnell Douglas was demanding 30 per cent more for each of the aircraft, which they said was irrational even if rising costs were taken into account.

Sources put the additional cost at 2.235 billion dollars.

But the McDonnell Douglas official said that even in a worst-case scenario "nothing I have seen approaches a 30 per cent rise."

He said estimates were prepared in two forms, "then-year dollars and constant dollars," which had provided for rises in the cost of the program.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) - A senior Japanese Finance Ministry official said Thursday that foreign exchange rates had become a "very important" factor in determining the future direction of monetary policy in Japan.

"Monetary policy relates deeply not only to the domestic development of the economy but also to the international arena including the (foreign) exchange market," the official told a news conference.

The official, who asked not to be named, acknowledged that this had led to ambiguities in market expectations towards Japanese interest rates. "My advice to you is to keep a close eye on the (foreign) exchange market. That will be a very important factor in judging what will be our monetary policy," he said.

Buoyed by higher interest rates at home, the yen has risen sharply against the dollar and other major currencies in recent weeks.

Japanese monetary authorities have repeatedly welcomed the development as it will help to offset the recent surge in oil prices, indicating less pressure for any further tightening of credit to combat inflationary pressures.

The official also said that the outlook for Japanese share prices was still unclear as only one of the two negative factors contributing to the market's recent slump -- expectations of higher interest rates -- had been removed.

A package of measures announced by Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto in early September had "quickly dissipated" fears of higher rates and led to a rebound in Japanese share prices. But the Gulf crisis is continuing to have an adverse impact on the market, the official said.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) - Japan's holdings of gold and foreign exchange reserves rose 867 million dollars in October to total 76.19 billion dollars at the end of the month, the finance ministry said Thursday.

The October gain, the sixth straight month-on-month increase in foreign reserves, was attributed by ministry officials to an increase in profits from fund operations.

The Bank of Japan did not step in the foreign exchange market to stabilize the yen as the Japanese currency held strong against the dollar, financial sources said.

JAKARTA (NOV. 1) - Westpac Banking Corp Thursday launched a full banking operation in Indonesia through a joint venture with a local firm, becoming the first Australian bank to open in the country, officials of the bank said.

PT Westpac Panin Bank opened with a capital of 50 billion rupiahs (26 million dollars), with Wespac Banking holding 85 per cent of the equity and the rest held by Pan Indonesia Bank, one of Indonesia's largest private banks.

The joint venture hoped to capitalise on the booming 1.3 billion dollar annual two-way trade between Indonesia and Australia and on the growing joint venture operations between firms in the two countries, the officials said.

Some 15 new joint venture banks have established in Indonesia since the government reopened the sector to foreign institutions in October, 1988.

Most of them involved Japanese interests but they also included Singaporean and French firms.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 1) - The forthcoming year will be an extremely difficult one for South Africa's economy, Finance Minister Barend du Plessis warned Thursday.

"As matters now stand, I believe that any positive real growth in 1991 should be regarded as a bonus," he told business leaders at an investment conference organised by Financial Mail magazine.

"Neither do we see much hope for more than marginal increases in aggregate real gross domestic expenditure, although some slight upward momentum may persist in both real government and private sector consumption," he added.

One of the many factors negatively affecting the economy was the current crisis in the Gulf, which had sparked a spiral in the price of crude oil.

The gold price had not responded impressively to the oil price increase, indicating that the precious metal had lost its "safe haven" status, Mr. Du Plessis said.

The probability that economic growth rates in major industrialised economies would weaken further in 1991 was likely to affect world commodity prices and see a reduced demand in South Africa's major export commodoties, he added.

ROME (NOV. 1) - Italian consumer prices rose by 0.8 percent in October compared with September, representing an increase of 6.2 percent compared with October 1989, official figures showed on Thursday.

In September prices were 6.3 percent higher than one year earlier.

Industrial output rose by 1.5 percent in August compared with August 1989, compared with an increase in July of 2.3 percent over the figure a year earlier.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - The British treasury on Thursday ruled out any imminent cut in interest rates despite rumors among market sources that rates would be cut soon, and despite pressure for a cut from industrialists.

There would be no further cut in interest rates "until it is safe to do so", a treasury spokesman said.

The treasury said that rates would remain at 14 percent, the level set on October 8 when they were cut by one point on the occasion of the entry of sterling into the exchange-rate mechanism of the European monetary system (EMS).

BANGKOK (NOV. 1) - More than 50 senior members of Burma's leading political party have been arrested by troops in the past week according to the latest figures compiled on Thursday by Rangoon-based diplomats.

The arrested members of the National League for Democracy (NLD) include at least ten MPs, five members of the party's Central Executive Committee and ten party youth organisers.

"As far as we know none of the NLD members arrested last week have been released yet," said one diplomat.

The arrests are the latest in what observers describe as a ruthless campaign by the junta to destroy all opposition.

The NLD swept the general elections in May, winning over 80 per cent of the vote, but the military government has refused to hand over power.

Diplomats also report that the Democratic Party for a New Society (DPNS), closely allied with the NLD, has been all but obliterated in the past week with all eight members of its leadership being arrested.

Apart from the arrests of the DPNS leaders, the party's offices were raided by troops last week and later sealed shut.

But despite the massive crackdown by the junta on the opposition there are reports that at least one monastery in the capital is continuing the religious boycott against the military.

Buddhist monks began refusing to minister to troops in August after soldiers reportedly killed two monks and two students during a pro-democracy demonstration in Mandalay.

In a move to break the boycott troops reportedly raided over 100 monasteries in the Mandalay area alone and arrested scores of monks.

The junta declared last week that senior monks had agreed to call off the boycott but diplomats say there are still pockets of resistance.

BEIJING (NOV. 1) - Too many products that nobody wants is the root cause of a sluggish consumer market in China, Commerce Minister Hu Ping was quoted Thursday as saying.

Mr. Hu, speaking to China Daily before he left Wednesday for a week-long visit to Japan, said China was plagued by "over-production and stockpiling of unmarketable, outmoded goods."

"Only through the continuous development of new marketable products can we push the slow market forward now and keep it going forward in the future," the minister said.

Some 174.8 billion yuan (37 billion dollars) in industrial products, nearly a third of which is consumer goods, was officially reported to have been stockpiled in May.

But Mr. Hu said their low quality was discouraging Chinese consumers, with 200 billion yuan (42.4 billion dollars) cash in hand and 500 billion yuan (105.9 billion dollars) in bank accounts at the end of 1989, from buying them.

Premier Li Peng put the brakes on China's economy two years ago, squeezing credit and halting most capital spending projects in a bid to cool double-digit inflation and breakneck industrial growth.

Up to that point, consumers had gone on a shopping spree, spending their cash on luxury goods or panic-buying household essentials as the value of their yuan dwindled.

Mr. Hu said the market today was still sluggish partly because "over-use" of the word "sluggish" in the Chinese press put many consumers in a "wait-and-see" mood, hoping that prices will drop.

Stores were also reluctant to buy new merchandise from suppliers, he added.

But he expressed optimism for 1991, saying he expected the market to recover in a "stable and prosperous" fashion as the government eases its austerity program.

He also predicted more spending by rural Chinese, who make up the majority of the nation's people, as they reap the profits of what the government says will be a bumper harvest.

Mr. Hu is the third Chinese minister to go to Japan since the Tiananmen Square crackdown in June 1989.

While earlier reports here said he would be discussing Sino-Japanese food co-operation, China Daily added that Mr. Hu was also gearing to "win the co-operation and support of Japanese business in efforts to reinvigorate China's consumer market."

TOKYO (NOV. 1) - Japan's stockmarket slump will have little impact on the ability of Japanese banks to meet international capital guidelines due to take effect next year, Vice Minister of Finance Makoto Utsumi said Thursday.

"I have no concern as far as Japanese banks are concerned," Mr. Utsumi told a news conference, dismissing calls to change the timetable laid down by the Bank for International Settlements (BIS) to meet the guidelines.

"I think it's a mistake to change the timetable," he said.

Under the plan that the Basel-based BIS formulated with various central banks, commercial banks with global activities have to boost their capital to the equivalent of eight per cent of their assets by March 1993. But they also have to meet am interim target of 7.25 per cent by March next year.

The recent slump in Japanese share prices has restricted the ability of banks to raise fresh capital while slashing the value of their unrealised gains on securities holdings, part of which are allowed to be counted as capital.

But Mr. Utsumi, the vice minister responsible for international affairs, noted that Japanese banks had recently been authorised to issue subordinated bonds in international markets, offering a new source of capital. He also brushed aside worries about the declining value of unrealised securities gains.

"Most stocks are held at acquisition prices," he said, adding that the slump in share prices had not necessarily wiped out all their unrealised gains overnight. He also said Japanese banks "still have huge hidden reserves which, for example, their U.S. counterparts can never enjoy."

While Japanese banks were heavily exposed to Japan's high-flying real-estate sector, Mr. Utsumi continued, the likelihood of a collapse in property prices "might be difficult to predict," particularly around Tokyo.

"There is still strong real demand in the Tokyo metropolitan area," he said, noting that the area was home to almsot 30 million people as well as the nation's political, economic and cultural centre.

Recent falls in property prices in other cities such as Osaka and Nagoya were largely a reaction to recent speculative buying rather than a decline in real demand, he said.

Overall, he said, "the land price problem wil not be very, very damaging to Japanese financial institutions."

Mr. Utsumi did, however, express some concern towards recent proposals in Washington to restrict the activities of foreign banks in the United States, particularly at a time when all banks are becoming more inward-looking.

"Is it right for the U.S. Congress to send a signal that Japanese banks' activities in the United States are too large?" he asked, predicting that such actions could prompt Japanese banks to reduce their operations.

"My concern is that if it happens, it could be an additional serious factor for the U.S. credit situation," he said.

The vice minister noted that "internationalisation has been very deeply rooted" among Japanese financial institutions, adding that he had "concerns" about the proposal but was not "too pessimistic."

Mr. Utsumi also indicated that Japanese institutional investors were unlikely to adopt a low profile at the upcoming quarterly refunding by the U.S. Treasury because of more attractive interest rates in Japan.

Paris (NOV. 1) - Health and welfare organisations from 76 countries met here Thursday for their second world congress on the viral disease Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (Aids).

Several sufferers of the disease or carriers of the Aids viruses are among about 800 participants taking part at the talks.

Many organisations boycotted the sixth international Aids conference in San Francisco in June, claiming sufferers of the disease were discriminated against in the United States.

The Paris seminar is much smaller than the San Francisco congress and is concerned less with scientific aspects of the syndrome.

Agenda items include ''women and Aids'', the role of welfare groups in fighting the disease, accessibility to medical care, and the spread of the virus in Third World countries.

The conference has been organised by France Sida (France Aids) and the Washington National Minority Aids council. The World Health Organisation is among the participants.

DUBAI (NOV. 1) - A man swallowed foreign currency notes worth about 50,000 U.S. dollars to escape Indian customs controls before boarding a flight from Bombay, it was reported here Thursday.

When the passenger arrived at Dubai in the United Arab Emirates he was shaking with pain and had to be taken to hospital, the Khaleej Times newspaper reported.

X-rays showed the man - whose identity was not revealed - had swallowed 116 plastic capsules each containing three bank notes which had been tightly folded into tiny bundles.

The report said the smuggler had been trying to avoid Indian restrictions on the possession of foreign currency.

No such regulations exist in the United Arab Emirates, and so the man was allowed to keep the notes after they had passed naturally through his system, the report said.

ANTIBES, France (NOV. 1) - The French organization Globi, dedicated to the protection of pilot whales, has launched a campaign against the annual ritual slaughter of hundreds of the animals in Denmark's Faroe Islands.

The group denounced the cruelty of the ceremony, in which the mammals are trapped in a small bay and killed before a large audience.

The tradition grew out of an annual hunt, first carried out in 1584, which was necessary at the time to provide meat to island residents.

Most of the females killed in the ceremony are pregnant, the organization said.

Iceland, the Hebrides and the Shetland and Orkney Iles have abandoned similar rituales, according to Globi.

The campaign was launched on the occasion of the worldwide underwater film festival, taking place until Sunday in this southern town.

Pilot whales grow up to five meters (16.5 feet) long and can weigh as much as four tons.

PARIS (NOV. 1) - French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas is to meet King Hassan in Morocco next week following Moroccan protests about a French book on political detainees in Morocco, diplomatic sources said here Thursday.

They could give no precise date, and ministry officials refused comment.

Morocco's displeasure concerns "Notre Ami le Roi" (Our Friend the King) by Gilles Perrault, a book detailing the human rights situation in Morocco.

The book is selling well here, but is unavailable in Morocco, as are French papers carrying reviews of it.

Morocco's official news agency MAP has since Tuesday been publishing protest messages sent to French President Francois Mitterrand and Prime Minister Michel Rocard by Moroccans in various walks of life who complained there was a media campaign in France being drummed up by groups hostile to Morocco.

Late Wednesday, Moroccan premier Azzeddine Laraki sent Mr. Rocard an "offical message" denouncing the "campaign of denigration of Morocco which spares neither its political system nor its economic and social choices".

He was particularly critical of Radio France International. Moroccan sources in Rabat said other targets of Moroccan ire, although not named specifically, included Amnesty International, France's human rights league, and the freedom foundation headed by President Mitterrand's wife Daniele.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - A highly poisonous 20 centimeter (eight inches) long Indian centipede caused a panic in the British capital's principal mail sorting center here when it escaped from its package, a post office official said Thursday.

After scuttling across envelopes and packages, the giant insect was finally captured by a man who trapped it in a box.

The orange and black striped centipede was part of a group of six sent in a balsa wood box to an animal dealer in the Midlands region in northern England.

Three of the group were found dead in their packages, and two others arrived safely at their destination.

The escapee ended his voyage on Wednesday at the London zoo.

The centipede, which feeds on mice and lizards, is one of the fastest-moving and most dangerous insects, according to London Zoo specialist Matthew Roberston.

With strong legs and formidable pincers, the animal pounces on its victims, paralyzes them and tears them apart.

A bite can cause nausea, cramps and sometimes death in humans, Mr. Robertson said.

BEIRUT (NOV. 1) - A Palestinian organization headed by Abu Nidal on Thursday denounced a decision by the United States to extradite one of the group's militants to Israel.

The Fatah Revolutionary Council (FRC), in a statement to AFP, said the United States was "responsible for the security of Dr. Mahmoud al-Abed," a Palestinian with U.S. nationality who is also known as Mahmoud Atta.

Mr. Atta, 37, has been accused by Israel of terrorism in connection with a 1986 attack on a bus carrying Israeli settlers on the West Bank, which killed one and left one injured.

He was arrested in the United States three years ago and the U.S. Supreme Court on August 31 rejected his final appeal against extradition to Israel.

"The United States," according to the FRC, "is demonstrating its aggression against the Palestinian people and its just struggle to recover its rights and is new proof of close U.S. cooperation with the Zionist enemy."

The statement said the extradition Tuesday comes as Israeli authorities are permitting their security forces to open fire on Palestinian demonstrators.

It stressed that Mr. Atta is a "political prisoner and should have been covered by international conventions that would have prevented his extradition."

NICOSIA (NOV. 1) - Three months into the crisis sparked by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the Arab world stood as divided and impotent as ever, although some of Baghdad's friends have since had to soften their stances to avoid retribution from the international community.

The divisions emerged on August 10, eight days after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait at an emergency Arab League summit held in Cairo to assess the situation.

The meeting ended with only 12 of the League's members voting in favour of a resolution denouncing the Iraq operation.

No common Arab initiative has been taken since then and none is likely to be endorsed unless, as Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said on Wednesday, Arabs can overcome their differences.

Mr. Mubarak was reacting to a call by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for an inter-Arab conference to be held to find a political settlement to the crisis.

Recalling the failure to reach common ground in August, Mr. Mubarak said it was pointless to convene another Arab summit because the gathering could be little more than a gathering of "insults."

Egypt and the oil-producing Gulf states, with Saudi Arabia at their helm, have spearheaded the anti-Iraqi front that emerged in August.

These countries continue to lead the movement demanding an end to Iraq's occupation and the re-establishment of the legitimate Kuwaiti government.

Syria and Morocco also belong to the anti-Iraqi camp, and have along with Egypt volunteered some 25,000 troops to the kingdom to help shore up Saudi defenses.

But in recent week Damascus and Rabat have showed a more lenient approach towards Baghdad.

Damascus, which had scored points with the United States over its approach to the Gulf, recently denounced the United States for double standards and its support for Israel, and stressed its opposition to the "destruction" of Iraq.

The Iraqi press welcomed these remarks, and has since stopped printing anti-Syrian propaganda.

Morocco, which was among the first to denounce Iraq, has taken a similar stand now saying that it has an independent policy on the Gulf.

The pro-Iraqi camp is made up of the Palestine Liberation Organisation, Jordan and Yemen.

NICOSIA (NOV. 1) - Kuwaitis trapped in their occupied emirate have appealed for foreign intervention to protect the dwindling native population from Iraq's "reign of terror."

"The situation has deteriorated to the degree that no-one is safe from either arrest, torture or death," according to a letter smuggled out recently by an Arab businessman.

And a letter from an English-educated Kuwaiti businesswoman outlines the daily harrassment faced by the local population, notably young Kuwaiti men, during the three-month-old occupation.

The woman, declining to be named but identifying herself as a critic of the exiled Al-Sabah ruling family, said that her letter was compiled from reports by Kuwaitis, Egyptians, Moroccans and Indians released from detention.

They had been blindfolded and beaten after soldiers burst into their homes between 4 and 5 a.m.

They were then driven to interrogation centres where electric shocks and whippings were common, according to the reports.

"Kuwaitis who have been released emerge with horror stories of hearing their friends tortured to death," the letter said.

Iraqi soldiers arrested three Kuwaiti boys in the Mishref district of the capital. "After ten days, they rang the bell of their house and shot the boys in front of their parents," it said.

"Under this reign of terror, the plight of the Kuwaiti nationals in Kuwait within this occupation must be highlighted and efforts made internationally to safeguard their lives or alleviate their suffering."

A group of Arab businessmen who arrived in Cyprus after evacuating their belongings from Kuwait City said many Kuwaitis had been forced to stay behind, although hundreds of thousands have fled to Saudi Arabia.

They cited cases of families who have had a son arrested or who have no funds or connections outside the country.

WIESBADEN, GERMANY (NOV. 1) - German police denied Thursday they had arranged with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency (Dea) for informants to place suitcases containing drugs on the Pan Am flight which exploded over Lockerbie in Scotland two years ago.

The Federal Criminal Police Office said there had been no such ''arrangement'' with the Dea.

The U.S. television network Nbc has reported that German authorities and the Dea had put suitcases containing heroin on Pan Am flight 103, apparently without the usual security checks, in a bid to track drug shipments to traffickers in the United States.

Unidentifed persons might have learned about the undercover action dubbed ''Operation Courier'', penetrated it and planted a bomb aboard the jetliner while it was in Frankfurt airport, Nbc said. The plane crashed on Dcember 21, 1988, killing all its 270 occupants.

The Dea has said it is investigating the report.

SEOUL (NOV. 1) - Factional fighting within South Korea's ruling party appeared headed for protracted deadlock Thursday as its chairman Kim Young-Sam said he would not meet with anyone, apparently even President Roh Tae-Woo.

Opposition leader Kim Dae-Jung predicted that the ruling Democratic Liberal Party (DLP) was almost certain to break up under the weight of irreconcilable demands by the rival factions.

The row centers on Mr. Roh's plans to transform South Korea's system of government from a presidential to a parliamentary system.

Mr. Kim Young-Sam, who in January ended his decades in opposition to merge his party with Mr. Roh's and a third smaller party, said that changing to a parliamentary cabinet system like Japan's was not the purpose of the merger.

He spoke from the southeastern city of Masan, where he has been staying since Wednesday after he publicly rejected Mr. Roh's plans to amend the constitution.

Asked whether he was in contact with Mr. Roh's faction, Mr. Kim Young-Sam was quoted by the local press as saying: "I have no intention of making contact with anyone nor do I wait for others to do so."

"I'm on my way to (the southern island of) Koje, forgetting about Seoul," he added.

Some 50 DLP lawmakers and 45 DLP local chapter chairmen belonging to Mr. Kim Young-Sam's faction expressed their support for his stand against the constitutional shift.

They also called for visible democratic reforms by the government including the amendment of the draconian National Security Law.

PHNOM PENH (NOV. 1) - A senior United Nations official arrived here Thursday for talks on the repatriation from Thailand of thousands of Cambodian refugees officials said.

Deputy U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees Douglas Stafford arrived here from Bangkok, where sources said he discussed a future repatriation with Thai government and military officials.

Mr. Stafford is expected to meet senior officials here, including Prime Minister Hun Sen on Saturday, U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) officials here said.

He would also meet representatives of international organisations here linked to moves aimed at repatriating refugees or resettling and looking after displaced persons.

These would include the World Food Programme, the United Nations International Children's Fund (UNICEF) and the International Committee for the Red Cross (ICRC).

Mr. Stafford's schedule has been rearranged, however, because of the government decision to hold massive public celebrations Friday to mark the Festival of the Waters, the UNHCR officials said.

Observers noted that a UNHCR delegation had visited Cambodia earlier in the year to prepare the groundwork for repatriation of the more than 300,000 Cambodians who fled fighting or harsh living conditions at home and are now housed in camps along the Thai border.

The camps are controlled by Cambodian resistance groups, including the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge and two non-communist groups led by former monarch Prince Norodom Sihanouk and former prime minister Son Sann.

Repatriation plans have been drawn up in expectation of a settlement to the 12-year war between the resistance and the Vietnam-backed Phnom Penh government.

International efforts to end the war have deadlocked, however, because of differences between the factions on the composition of a joint interim authority, the Supreme National Council.

Last month the Cambodia government called on the United Nations to take steps toward the immediate return of the refugees from Thailand after an accord.

The anti-Phnom Penh factions recruit guerrillas and porters in the camps, which they also use as posts for infiltrating Cambodia.

Mr. Stafford, a U.S. citizen, is due to leave here Monday.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - A spokesman for the Archbishop of Canterbury on Thursday called on the British government to resume diplomatic relations with Syria to help free British hostages in Lebanon.

The appeal came after the brother of British hostage Terry Waite, who has being held since January 1987, called for a resumption of British-Syrian ties on Wednesday following a meeting between relatives of the hostages and kin of Iranian diplomats detained in Beirut in 1982.

Mr. Waite went to Beirut in January 1987 to negotiate the release of British hostages on behalf of the Archbishop of Canterbury, but he never returned from his mission.

The two other hostages still held in Lebanon are cameraman John McCarthy who was kidnapped in April 1986 and former pilot Jack Mann who disappeared in May last year.

The government's refusal to talk to Syrian officials was "a silly way to conduct foreign policy", spokesman John Lyttle, who attended Wednesday's meeting, said in an interview to the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC).

"I think for the first time the families of the British hostages have a quite serious disagreement with the policy of the British Government, that is the policy towards Syria".

"You cannot expect one state to grovel to another any more than you can expect one individual to grovel to another", he said.

"If you want to have some successful outcome, you have to look at how Syria has behaved over recent years, whatever they may be accused of doing four years ago or five years ago," he added.

Mr. Lyttle said contacts with Damascus were more urgent now because the security situation in Beirut had improved.

London broke off diplomatic relations in 1986 after British court findings that Syrian authorities had been involved in an aborted attack on an Israeli airliner.

London resumed diplomatic ties with Iran last month.

Commenting on Mr. Lyttle's appeal, a spokesman for the Foreign Office said: "We have consistently made clear our wish to normalise relations with Syria but there are unresolved problems".

BAGHDAD (NOV. 1) - The Iraqi general command Thursday held its second meeting here in three days under President Saddam Hussein devoted to the situation in the Gulf, the Iraqi News Agency reported.

It said the meeting, the third this week, was also attended by Iraq's second-in-command, Izzat Ibrahim, and Information Minister Latif Jassem.

President Hussein on Tuesday warned his officers to be prepared for a possible U.S. attack by the end of the week and raised the possibility of fighting inside Iraqi-controlled Kuwait.

The president also met his commanders on Monday.

The meetings come just ahead of a mission to Europe and the Gulf of U.S. Secretary of State James Baker, during which -- according to the Los Angeles Times -- he will discuss a timetable for a possible assault on Iraqi forces in Kuwait.

But U.S. President George Bush on Wednesday stressed that he has no such timetable for military action.

DUBLIN (NOV. 1) - The support group for families of Irish hostages said

Thursday that three Irish parliamentarians had left for an unofficial visit to Iraq to try and obtain the release of 220 Irish hostages.

Prime Minister Charles Haughey criticised the trip. He said it was counter to an agreement reached last weekend by the 12 European Economic Community heads of state and government to end official and discourage private trips to Iraq to negotiate hostages' release.

The three parliamentarians, David Andrews (of the ruling Fianna Fail party), Paul Bradford (Fine Gael) and Michael Higgins (Labour) said their mission was purely humanitarian.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - The offer by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to allow families of several thousand Western hostages held in Baghdad to visit their relations over the Christmas and New Year holiday provoked anger here Thursday.

The British Foreign Office called the offer ''disgraceful and cynical'' and accused Baghdad of trying to exploit for its own ends the emotions of people going through a very trying phase of their family lives.

Washington has not yet officially responded to the offer which was announced by the official Iraqi News Agency (Ina) Thursday. The terse despatch said Iraqi embassies around the world had been instructed by the foreign ministry to issue visas to the families of foreign nations being held in Iraq.

CANBERRA (NOV. 1) - Sex should be permitted among elderly people living in nursing homes, the Australian government said here Thursday, prompting one religious order to threaten closure of its institutions if forced to comply.

Health Services Minister Peter Staples, who has proposed a charter of rights for people living in nursing homes, warned one Roman Catholic order it would lose government funding if it denied residents their sexual rights.

The Roman Catholic Church maintains that sexual relations can take place only in the sanctity of marriage.

Australian Catholic Bishops adviser Brian O'Donovan said the government could not use economic power to impose its own morality.

The government wants to give aged people the same rights in nursing homes as they would have in their own homes, including the right to have sex outside marriage.

Clause 8.3 of the charter says residents have the "right to have language, sexual and emotional needs and choices accepted and treated with respect" unless they offended or infringed on the rights of the proprietor, staff or other residents.

The Little Sisters of the Poor, a Roman Catholic order caring for the aged, has threatened to close six nursing homes if "sexual revolutionaries" insisted on residents' rights to sex outside marriage.

Regional head of the order Mother Mary John said the charter would go against their beliefs.

"The draft agreement aims to give the residents the 'right' to indulge in adultery, fornication or sodomy in our homes, provided they do not do so in public," Mother Mary John said.

Mr. Staples called on the sisters to show "a little Christian charity."

The Combined Pensioners' Association welcomed the charter, saying nursing home residents should be allowed basic human rights, including sexual expression.

But the National Association of Nursing Homes and Private Hospitals backed the Church, saying nursing homes should be allowed to set rules for residents, including those governing sexual behaviour.

PARIS (NOV. 1) - French President Francois Mitterrand said Thursday that international law must be respected with regard to Lebanon and the Arab-Israeli conflict just as it has been applied to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Speaking to the Egyptian daily Al-Ahram, Mr. Mitterrand said that "the rule of law, for which respect is demanded concerning the invasion of Kuwait," must "also be equally respected throughout the world in accordance with the resolutions of the United Nations," including Lebanon and the Arab-Israeli conflict.

"What is in question in this crisis," he said, "is the respect of law, without which there can be no international order. Therefore, the entire international community is concerned, and its unity and solidarity demonstrates that it understands perfectly what it at stake."

Mr. Mitterrand, on a visit during which he is to dedicate a French-speaking university in Alexandria, advocated the establishment of a "security and cooperation system" stretching from the Gulf to the Atlantic and associating both the north and south shores of the Mediterranean.

However, he said that such a system could only be constructed after the resolution of the major conflicts in the region, including the question of Lebanon, the Palestinian issue and the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Mr. Mitterrand predicted that Europe, which he said was "increasingly recognized each day as one of the essential pillars of the new international order which we are attempting to establish," will have a "beneficial role" to play towards the Arab world.

He advocated the reinforcement of dialogue between Europe and the Arab world, and renewed a call, originally made during an adress at the United Nations, for a plan to deal with security and disarmament questions in the Middle East.

Mr. Mitterrand rejected the idea that the Gulf conflict was a conflict between rich and poor nations, "since Iraq, with its considerable oil reserves and its already advanced technology, cannot be classed among the poor countries."

He also cited the French-speaking university which he is to inaugurate on Sunday in Alexandria as "a model of North-South cooperation."

MOSCOW (NOV. 1) - Nikolai Ryzhkov has pledged to stay on as Soviet Prime Minister despite strong criticism of his government over economic policy, the Moskovski Komsomolets newspaper reported here Thursday.

"I'm not holding on to my job," he said in an interview. But "I feel the country needs me" and "to start to change everything at this stage (as economic reform gets underway) would be tantamount to a death sentence," he said.

"I've been holding the government together by force. Dozens of ministers are coming to me, asking to be allowed to resign. I tell them I won't allow it, unless it's for health reasons. If you are healthy, you can and must continue to work, I say to them".

"Everyone is tired, but the government must continue in office," he added.

Forming a new government would be a lengthy process and the country, faced with the task of building a market economy, could ill afford to change horses in midstream, he said.

"I shall continue in office so long as I am needed (...) and "will only go if I see I'm not capable of doing something for the country," he said.

Speaking of the Russian Federation's decision to embark, starting Thursday, on its own more radical economic reform plan, Mr. Ryzhkov said the union's reform blueprint allowed for individual republics to adopt their own programmes.

"But general principals must correspond. If we are to live in a same country, we must play according to the same rules," he said.

MOSCOW (NOV. 1) - The introduction of a new rate for the commercial ruble on Thursday created havoc in Moscow where banks stopped selling dollars, hard-currency shops closed for the day and various state organisations refused orders for goods labelled in dollars until the air had cleared.

The new rate, set by presidential decree last Friday, devalues the commercial ruble -- used for foreign business transactions -- by 66 per cent against the U.S. dollar. The rate had not changed since 1961.

The commercial ruble is now worth 0.6 dollars, compared to 1.6 dollars previously.

But most people appeared confused by the change. One Moscow bank on Thursday refused to sell customers dollars, saying they did not yet know what the rate was.

And the beriozkas -- the hard-currency shops -- outside which long queues of Russians had formed over the past few days, closed in order to change price tags for their goods which are labeled in hard rubles.

In addition, to the commercial rate, the ruble still has an almost meaningless official rate set at 0.55 to the dollar, retained mainly so that the country will not lose out on debts owed to it by the third world.

There is also a tourist ruble rate (5.5 to the dollar), a rate set by auction for the purchase of foreign currency for business purposes (about 21 to the dollar) and a black market rate -- currently about 15 rubles to the dollar.

MOSCOW (NOV. 1) - The parliament of the Gagauz ethnic minority in the Soviet republic of Moldavia has elected a government and a prime minister, Stepan Topal, Interfax press agency reported Thursday.

The Gagauz republic's unilateral declaration of independence from Moldavia last August was not recognized by Moldavia.

The Gagauz parliament, elected last week, voted that its decisions would not become effective for 10 days pending talks with Moldavia to settle the dispute over the Gagauz secession, Tass news agency said.

Moldavia imposed a state of emergency in the Gaugaz region on October 26.

Moldavian Communist party chief Pyotr Luchinski meanwhile left for talks with President Mikhail Gorbachev in Moscow, seeking Soviet support for Moldavia's rejection of the Gagauz move and of the declaration of independence made by ethnic Russians in the eastern Moldavian Dniestr region.

The Moldavian parliament in Kishinev convened Thursday to discuss the "political and social situation in the republic and the means to overcome the crisis", Tass and Interfax said.

CAIRO (NOV. 1) - The 21-member organisation Arab League Thursday officially resumed work here at its old headquarters after an 11-year absence.

The League moved its headquarters to Tunis in 1979 in protest against Egypt's peace agreement with Israel. Last March, the Arab League unanimously agreed to move its headquarters back to Cairo.

Asaad al-Asaad, Arab League managing general secretary, said after a meeting with Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid he hoped differences among Arab nations over the Gulf crisis would end and ''Arab solidarity among brothers would be restored''.

The Egyptian news agency Mena quoted Abdel-Meguid as saying after the meeting that the League was the ''home of all Arabs''.

But he refused to say whether the planned regular Arab League summit, scheduled in Cairo on November 24, would take place in the light of the present differences in the Arab world.

Meanwhile, Egypt and Qatar were the first to appoint their ambassadors to the League headquarters.

Egypt was suspended from the Arab League after its late president, Anwar Sadat signed the 1979 peace treaty with Israel and and almost all Arab nations severed relations with Cairo.

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV. 1) - The Iraqi occupation of Kuwait enters its fourth month on Friday with the U.S. ground force in Saudi Arabia growing stronger by the day but increasingly impatient to either go to war or go home.

Many U.S. troops, dreading the prospect of months on end of the crushing tedium of the Saudi desert, say they are ready to take on Iraq's formidable army now.

"Let us fight and get it over with or let us go home," said Lieutenant Kirk Allen, a U.S. Army scout, expressing a sentiment voiced repeatedly by weary front-line American soldiers.

"It's the sitting and waiting that's getting everybody," added an officer in the 82nd Airborne Division, one of the first units to arrive in Saudi Arabia.

Along with other U.S. officers, however, he stressed that the standoff with Iraq had allowed for intensive training in desert warfare for raw U.S. troops.

U.S. soldiers, while they may naturally complain at times, are learning how to live and fight in the desert, said U.S. Army Colonel Walt Mather, commander of a 4,500-strong mechanized brigade.

Col. Mather, whose M-1 tanks and Bradley fighting vehicles have been deployed in a forward position since September 22, said his men have become "desert-tough."

Despite the grumbling in the ranks over food, boredom and lack of news, military analysts agree that each passing day is to the advantage of the potent U.S. war machine assembled in Saudi Arabia.

U.S. President George Bush's initial stated goal of defending Saudi Arabia has been long assured, they said, but more troops and tanks would be needed to roll back the 430,000 Iraqi troops in Kuwait and southern Iraq while minimizing U.S. casualties.

The several hundred top-of-the-line M-1A1 tanks currently on the way to Saudi Arabia from Europe and additional U.S. ground forces would make an offensive possible by the end of the month, they said.

Iraqi troops who have been in Kuwait since August 2, meanwhile, are said by Western officials to be slowly but surely feeling the squeeze from the U.N.-imposed economic and military embargo effectively enforced by an international flotilla of warships.

HANOI (NOV. 1) - U.S. and Vietnamese experts are to meet here next week for talks on U.S. soldiers missing in action (MIA) during the Vietnam War, a spokesman for the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said Thursday.

The November 7-9 meeting will focus on analysing 11 search operations for MIAs jointly conducted by Vietnamese and U.S. experts in the last two years, the spokesman said.

The experts would also discuss a "programme of future cooperation," he added.

The meeting was agreed upon during recent talks in Washington between Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach and General John Vessey, special adviser to U.S. President George Bush on humanitarian issues related to the Vietnam War.

Mr. Thach said Tuesday in Bangkok that Vietnam had accepted a U.S. proposal to base a permanent representative here to handle the MIA question.

Mr. Thach and Gen. Vessey also agreed in Washington to step up bilateral cooperation in the search for MIAs, the spokesman said.

Asked about recent statements by U.S. legislators that some living U.S. servicemen were still in Vietnam, he said no living American remained under Vietnamese control.

Since Gen. Vessey's first visit to Hanoi in August 1987, Vietnamese authorities have handed over human remains believed to be those of 260 U.S. soldiers. Only 100 have been identified as MIA remains.

According to U.S. statistics, 1,677 MIAs remain in Vietnam, 530 in Laos, 83 in Cambodia and six in China.

DUBLIN (NOV. 1) - Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey provisionally took over as defense minister Thursday, one day after sacking his vice premier and defense minister, Brian Lenihan, officials said.

The prime minister will announce the name of a new defense minister in a minor reshuffle at a later date, sources added.

Mr. Lenihan, 60, is accused of putting improper pressure on President Patrick Hillery in January 1982 to name Mr. Haughey prime minister of a minority government without calling elections after the previous government had collapsed.

Mr. Lenihan stepped down only 15 minutes before a no-confidence vote which could have brought down the Haughey government.

The defense minister, a close friend of Mr. Haughey's and the candidate of the ruling Fianna Fail party in the November 7 presidential elections, has repeatedly denied the allegations, but acknowledged the facts in a little publicised interview with a political science student in May last year.

He remains Fianna Fail's candidate for the presidency despite the scandal.

Mr. Haughey pledged that he would do anything he could possibly do to support Mr. Lenihan in the elections, but Labour Party candidate Mary Robinson has gained a 21 per cent edge over Mr. Lenihan in opinion polls since the "Dublingate" scandal broke two weeks ago.

Mrs. Robinson, a 46-year-old mother of three, would be a change for staunchly

Catholic, conservative Ireland. She has liberal ideas about highly controversial issues such as homosexuality, contraception and abortion.

Furthermore, Ireland has never had a woman president.

Mr. Lenihan, who in more than thirty years in politics headed the ministries of transport, justice, education, farming, defense and foreign affairs, remains extremely popular in rural areas.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - Not even 48 hours after Channel tunnel drillers ended Britain's status as an island forever, a wave of anti-French sentiment sweeping the country erupted Thursday in the pages of the conservative tabloid The Sun.

"Up yours, Delors", shouted the front-page headline of the four-million circulation daily, one of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's staunchest supporters.

Readers of the newspaper were urged to "bawl at the Gauls" at noon Friday throughout Britain.

The Sun, part of a group owned by Australian-American press magnate Rupert Murdoch that also includes the respected newspaper The Times, has made a habit of insulting their neighbours across the Channel. But it was the first time it had devoted three pages to the effort.

At last Saturday's European Economic Community summit in Rome, Britain stood out as the only one of the Twelve to oppose setting a timetable for phase two of European monetary and economic union and eventually a single currency. European Commission President Jacques Delors, a Frenchman, has become the symbol of detested France in the eyes of ultra-conservatives here.

It is he who is seen as trying to steal Britain's sovereignty, as expressed through its currency the pound sterling.

The Sun said it "calls on its patriotic family of readers" to take special aim at Mr. Delors.

"Sun readers are urged to tell the French fool where to stuff his ECU," the paper said, referring to the European Currency Unit which may become the future common currency.

Mrs. Thatcher highlighted the opposition of many people in Britain to moves to create a "United States of Europe" when she voiced spirited opposition to plans for European monetary and political union, during a defense of her stand at the summit in parliament here Tuesday.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - The British defense ministry has postponed its choice of a new battle tank to replace some 200 of its ageing Chieftan tanks until next spring, a defense ministry spokesman said Thursday.

He said the decision was postponed because of the Gulf crisis and cuts in military spending linked to the end of the Cold War.

The models competing to replace the 25-year-old Chieftans are the Vickers Challenger 2, the General Dynamics M1A2, the Krauss-Maffei Leopard 2 and the French Leclerc.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - Britain's last two diplomats in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait have enough food to hold out for another two months, the mother of one of them said Thursday.

"He said they are managing well and have food to last until the New Year", Jean Banks said after she received a letter from her son, British Consul Larry Banks, "After that, I don't suppose they'll ever want to see another frankfurter for the rest of their lives".

It was the first letter she had had from him since the crisis began.

Mr. Banks and Ambassador Michael Weston have been confined to the embassy for almost three months. They drank champagne when Iraqi soldiers took up posts around the building.

Mrs. Banks said her son wrote that he and the ambassador were "managing to keep fit, presumably by exercising and gardening in the compound" although they found themselves bored without television or electricity.

She said the consul was still able to carry out part of his duties by telephone, although Britons who remained in Kuwait lived in hiding.

He also "confirmed that the Iraqis were looting everything and that there was very little traffic about except for military vehicles", she said.

BANGKOK (NOV. 1) - A Cuban delegation is to visit Thailand by mid-November to discuss economic cooperation, foreign ministry spokesman Sakthip Krairiksh said Thursday.

Mr. Sakthip said Cuba has expressed interest in promoting bilateral direct trade with Thailand rather than going through the Soviet Union and China, as has been the case up to now.

Cuba wants to buy rice, sugar, coffee, cacao and machinery from Thailand, but has requested long-term credit lines of between 20 and 30 million dollars to do so, the spokesman said.

The Cuban delegation is expected to encourage Thai investment in Cuba.

PARIS (NOV. 1) - French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas will visit Morocco next week to resolve a bitter crisis in bilateral ties touched off by a controversial French book that refers to alleged human rights abuse in the kingdom, sources said here Thursday.

The book, Our Friend the King, by French author Gilles Perrault refers to several cases of of alleged human right abuses in Morocco in the past few years.

The book prompted Moroccan King Hassan Ii to scrap a planned Moroccan festivities in Paris, censor the French media in his country and even warn to end cooperation with France.

The Paris government sources said Dumas would discuss the issue with Moroccan King Hassan Ii during his visit.

Moroccan Premier Ezeddin Laraki has lodged an official protest with France, complaining of ''a slander campaign'' and of French interference in Morocco's internal affairs.

Ties between France and its former colony are also strained over a recent visit by Danielle Mitterrand, wife of the French president, to a camp in Algeria housing refugees from Moroccan-annexed Western Sahara.

BANGKOK (NOV. 1) - Burma's military government has granted 2,070 private trading licenses since it introduced an open-door economic system in November 1988, official Radio Rangoon said Thursday.

That included 622 export and 1,448 import licenses, the radio said in a broadcast monitored here.

It said 535 private Burmese enterprises and 503 joint-venture firms had been registered since the system was adopted, and 73 foreign firms had opened local branches.

The ruling military junta, which seized power in a September 1988 coup after crushing a student-led nationwide pro-democracy movement, has implemented the open-door economic policy to revive Burma's ailing economy.

The bloody coup was preceded by 26 years of military-backed isolationist, socialist rule blamed for gutting the economy of the resource-rich Southeast Asian country.

LUSAKA (NOV. 1) - Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda Thursday reshuffled his cabinet, appointing a new foreign minister and dropping a junior minister of state whom he described as "intolerable."

President Kaunda announced that General Benjamin Mibenge would take over from Foreign Minister Luke Mwananshiku, who was seconded to the International Monetary Fund in Washington D.C.

President Kaunda fired Michael Sata as decentralisation minister "because he has been saying very bad things against us. I think he has become intolerable and I cannot hold my patience any longer."

Mr. Sata is widely believed to be a supporter of the Movement for Multi-party Democracy (MMD) and is a popular member of parliament for Kabwata, one of the biggest constituencies in the Zambian capital.

The MMD opposes President Kaunda's one-party rule.

Also reshuffled were the ministers of health and lands and natural resources. Health minister Mavis Muyundah was moved to the ministry of lands and natural resources while her deputy, Jeremiah Chijikwa, took over from her.

The Zambian leader also said he would relieve all defence personnel currently serving in his party of all party posts and "bring them back to the barracks," but did not elaborate.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) - Private investment in plants and equipment will slow next year as a result of higher interest rates, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry reported Thursday.

A survey of 1,605 major Japanese companies showed that their capital spending in the current fiscal year ending in March would rise 18.2 percent to 19.79 trillion yen (about 150 billion dollars), despite the stockmarket debacle and rising oil prices, the ministry said.

But the growth rate will shrink to 2.5 percent in the next fiscal year, the survey showed.

"The expansionary phase of capital spending is nearing a turning point," a ministry official said. "There is the possibility of the 2.5 percent growth being revised downward."

Of the companies, 28 percent said they would cut back their investment if interest rates remain at current levels, the official said.

"It is deemed necessary to prevent high interest rates from cooling capital spending," he said.

PESHAWAR, PAKISTAN (NOV. 1) - Sibghatullah Mujaddedi, president of the Afghan Interim Government (Aig) of mujahedin guerrillas based in Pakistan, left here Thursday for a visit to Teheran.

Aig sources said Mujaddedi ''will hold talks with the leaders and senior officials of Iran on the problems of Afghanistan''.

His visit to Iran follows renewed efforts by the U.S.-backed mujahedin groups to achieve political and military unity. Several Iranian-backed Moslem Shiite Afghan guerrilla groups have fundamental differences with Aig.

Powerful guerrilla commander Ahmad Shah Massoud, who controls northeast Afghanistan, recently made up with the Hizbe Islami group of Gulbuddin Hikmetyar, an old enemy.

They agreed on joint military action but Hikmetyar's plan for going for Kabul, Afghanistan's capital, was given in favour of first attacking Najibullah regime's weak points in the countryside.

BUCHAREST (NOV. 1) - About two hundred people shouting anti-government slogans, denounced Romania's price liberalization policy in a demonstration in central University Square here Thursday.

The demonstrators carried banners saying "New prices, a step toward misery" and "Down with the communist government. Comrade Iliescu resign", and "Down with Iliescu", referring to President Ion Iliescu.

Romanian Prime Minister Petre Roman on Wednesday hailed the price liberalization as "the most radical measure since the revolution" which overthrew President Nicolae Ceausescu last December.

But members of the country's upper house earlier asked that the new measures, which came into force Thursday, be postponed until January 1.

Some members of parliament had described the liberalization as nothing more than a disguised price hike.

The government has maintained that price increases will affect only wholesale costs and will not immediately raise prices for such basic products as electricity, coal, food and children's clothing.

Minister of Economic Orientation Eugen Djimarescu has promised that the government will make up the difference until January 1, 1991, through a 14 billion lei (400 million dollar) price support program.

Workers are to receive a 750-lei (20-dollar) bonus a month to make up for higher prices. The average salary in Romania stands at 3,000 lei (90 dollars).

MANILA (NOV. 1) - Servicemen at Clark Air Base have been banned from non-essential off-base travel ahead of talks on the future of U.S. military facilities in the Philippines, officials said Thursday.

The restrictions were imposed due to a perceived increase in threats to U.S. military personnel before the third round of talks, opening here next week, on the future of the bases, Clark spokesman Colonel Ron Rand said over U.S. armed forces television.

He was apparently referring to possible attacks on U.S. personnel by communist guerrillas trying to disrupt the negotiations.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) - U.S. rice millers Thursday lashed out at South Korea, Japan and the European Economic Community (EEC) for blocking moves to lower import barriers and export subsidies for rice in the current General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) negotiations.

David Graves, president of the U.S. Rice Millers' Association, listed his complaints in letters sent Thursday to Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter and Trade Representative Carla Hills.

"The lack of willingness of these parties to negotiate meaningful reductions on import barriers and export subsidies is irresponsible (and) ... out of step with the world and what is necessary for their economic growth," said Mr. Graves.

He came out in support of the U.S. position at the Uruguay Round of the GATT talks calling for a worldwide reduction in import tariffs and export subsidies on agricultural products.

Japan and South Korea ban rice imports outright, while the EEC limits additional exports of U.S. rice by a variable tariff and by subsidising local production.

Mr. Graves warned that the positions taken by the two Asian nations and the EEC would prevent success in the Uruguay Round, which is due to conclude next month in Brussels.

"If the Round fails," he warned in his letter, "the U.S. will remember who was helpful and who was not."

U.S. rice millers, he added, were prepared to gain market access through "bilateral negotiations of any and all means" if the negotiations failed.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 1) - South Africa has established a trade mission in the Togo capital of Lome to lobby for admission to the Lome Convention, the Johannesburg Star said Thursday.

A Foreign Affairs Ministry spokeswoman could not confirm the report.

Acceptance of South Africa into the Lome agreement could pave the way for preferential trade ties with the European Community as well as possible economic aid from the EEC.

The Lome Convention is an agreement between the countries of the EEC and AfricanCaribbeanPacific countries, which gives ACP governments preferential trade access to the EEC and substantial development aid.

Earlier this week Foreign Minister Pik Botha called for South Africa to be recognised as a developing rather than a developed country, drawing attention to possible aid benefits.

In addition to the lobbying function, South Africa's Lome mission has been set up to oversee a South African-sponsored development project, the report said.

The mission does not have consular status but "representation of interest" and is staffed by foreign affairs ministry personnel.

The ACP countries are mostly former dependencies of Britain, France and Belgium.

ISLAMABAD (NOV. 1) - Pakistan on Thursday condemned the desecration of a mosque in Ayodhya, India, by Hindu fundamentalists.

In a statement issued here, Foreign Minister Sahabzada Yaqub Khan expressed "deep shock and anguish over the desecration" and called upon the Indian government to "fulfil its duty by stopping the communal violence and protect its Moslem minority."

"The government and people of Pakistan," he said, "abhor and condemn the countrywide agitation in India launched by extremist anti-Moslem elements to demolish the Babri Masjid and to replace it with the Hindu temple."

Mr. Yaqub Khan said that "for over 500 years the Babri Masjid has been revered by the Moslems of India as a place of worship and outstanding historical Islamic monument."

PRAGUE (NOV. 1) - The Czechoslovak government approved a parliamentary bill on Thursday for privatization of big government-owned firms, Finance Minister Vaclav Klaus announced here.

According to the bill, which should be passed before the end of the year, such firms will have to develop their own plans for the privatization process, including such points as the schedule and whether the sale should be made to employees, the local population, or by auction.

The plans will then be considered in turn by the appropriate government - federal, Czech or Slovak - depending on the firm's importance, the minister said.

The bill before parliament provides for several privatization methods, including a "coupon" one. Some special coupons valid for 12 to 18 months will be sold at low prices to Czechoslovaks, who will be able to exchange them for shares and thus "invest" in companies that interest them.

Mr. Klaus said the coupons could not be sold to foreigners or to Czechoslovaks residing abroad.

Capital not covered by such coupons will be available to foreign investors.

The minister said that, assuming the bill as adopted before the end of the year, the first privatizations of big companies could occur starting next March.

Parliament has already decided to privatize about 100,000 small businesses, to be sold at auction starting on December 1.

MANAMA (NOV. 1) - British Defence Secretary Tom King reiterated here Thursday that Britain and other states were determined to end Iraq's occupation of Kuwait and restore the Arab sheikhdom's legitimate government.

''What we want is the termination of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the elimination of occupation. Saddam has no other options. He must withdraw and retreat to inside the border of his country. The other option is war and fighting,'' King told the Bahraini daily Akhbar al-Khaleej.

French President Francois Mitterrand was reported by French radio Thursday as saying that decisions which could turn the Gulf crisis into full-scale war were likely to be made next week. The key period would come after United States Congressional elections scheduled for November 6, Mitterrand said late Wednesday.

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd told the Daily Telegraph newspaper Thursday that Iraq must not be left in any doubt that the United States-led multinational force in the Gulf would soon have enough troops in the region to wage a war.

Meanwhile, Britain slammed as ''disgraceful and cynical'' Iraq's offer to allow the families of some of the several thousand Western hostages held in Iraq to visit their relatives over the Christmas and New Year holiday.

The Iraqis were trying to exploit the feelings of people enduring an extremely trying period in their family lives, said officials and appealed to relatives of those being held against their will in Iraq not to take up Baghdad's offer.

Washington has not yet responded to the offer expressed in a terse despatch from the official Iraqi new agency Ina. Iraqi embassies around the world had been instructed by the foreign ministry to issue visas to the families of foreign nationals being held in Iraq, said the agency.

LULEAA, SWEDEN (NOV. 1) - Atmospheric nuclear tests at Semipalatinsk in the Soviet Union up to 1963 affected half a million people more or less seriously, a Soviet doctor told a conference Thursday.

Professor Maira Zjangelova told an anti-nuclear weapons congress of Swedish doctors that a third of the children born since tests began at the site in Kazakhstan in 1949 were deformed.

A major increase in the incidence of cancer, leukemia and immune deficiency related diseases had also been noted, added Prof. Zjangelova, who works at the Semipalatinsk hospital.

After 1963, nuclear test blasts were conducted underground, but protests from local people led to the transfer of tests to the Arctic island of Novaya Zemlya, where one was conducted last week.

Prof. Zjangelova said medical details of the effects of the tests were secret until last year. She explained that she was studying the effects of radiation on the basis of documents to be published in the next few months.

JAKARTA (NOV. 1) - The World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF) plans to use satellite technology to carry out a census of the rhinoceros population on the western tip of Java island early next year, the Antara news agency said Thursday.

"The census will be held to know the exact population of this rare and protected species," WWF official Michael Griffith told Antara, adding that it would also help determine the population of other rare species at the Ujung Kulon reserve.

Wild steers and leopards also live in Ujung Kulon.

Officials have said there were around 60 Java rhinos left in the park, the only region where they are still be found.

Mr. Griffith said Indonesian officials planned to precede the census with a month-long count through direct sightings and the study of traces in an effort to determine the accuracy of the high-tech method.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) - Tuesday's U.S. elections are expected to boost the representation of women and minorities in Congress and in high statewide offices, reflecting their growing clout as a result of more active participation in the political process, political observers said Thursday.

In the 435-member House of Representatives, there are currently 29 women, 24 blacks, 12 Hispanics and six Asian-Pacific Americans, while the 100-member Senate has two women, two Asian Americans but neither a black nor Hispanic member.

Of the nation's 50 governors, three are women, one black, one Hispanic and one of Hawaiian ancestry.

This year, eight women are running for governor, another eight for the Senate, 68 for the House of Representatives and 85 for statewide office.

"We're predicting that the percentage of women in Congress will go up from the current five per cent to seven per cent after Tuesday's elections," said Kim Gandy, treasurer of National Organization of Women (NOW) political action committee here.

"We are growing steadily at the state level and hope to go beyond the current 17 per cent (of all state legislatures around the country). More women are getting experience and exposure at the local level and they are slowly working their way up to higher state and national offices," she added.

Two and possibly three blacks may join the congressional Black Caucus, whose 24 members are all Democrats, analysts said.

Hispanics could gain an additional seat in the House, analysts said.

Except in Hawaii, Asian Americans are shunning national office, setting their sights on lower-level local offices, particularly in California.

Of crucial importance to both blacks and women will be the Senate race in North Carolina between arch-conservative Jesse Helms, the Republican incumbent and liberal Democratic candidate Harvey Gantt, the black former mayor of Charlotte.

"If Gantt wins, it will be considered a big plus in terms of the fortunes of black candidates in American politics," said David Bositis, a research director at the Joint Center for Political Studies, a black political think tank here.

NEW DELHI (NOV. 1) - Some 30 people were killed in renewed violence linked to a raging temple-mosque controversy Thursday, taking the death toll in the last three days to nearly 100.

Fourteen people died in incidents in Uttar Pradesh, the state in which a controversial holy site claimed by both Hindus and Moslems is located at the town of Ayodhya, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

In Gujarat state, seven people died, and killings were also reported in three other states.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, 62 were reported killed.

A massive deployment of security forces on Tuesday prevented Hindus from carrying out a plan to build a temple at Ayodhya at the site of an existing 16th century mosque.

The Hindus say the site is the birthplace of their Lord Rama, but the Moslems reject the claim.

WASHINGTON (NOV 1) - A coalition of enviromental and consumer groups is using a war of words to convince Americans that U.S. troops are in the Gulf to battle for cheap oil, not to fight for Kuwaiti independence.

The Coalition for Fuel Efficient Transportation wants to send the message that the United States, and specifically Detroit's automakers, could avert a war by focusing on energy conservation to reduce U.S. reliance on Mideast oil.

The group is sponsoring advertisements in major newspapers, including a 25,000-dollar half-page ad to appear Friday in The New York Times, and is asking radio and television stations to run its commercials.

"This is Detroit's war, not the public's war," said Jeremy Rifkin, president of the Center for Sustainable Transportation, a coalition member. "If we begin conserving energy at home, we won't have to risk American lives in the Middle East."

He said Wednesday the coalition wanted to refocus attention on automobile fuel efficiency and urge higher taxes on gas-guzzling automobiles.

But automotive officials disagreed.

"Casting this business in the Middle East as a failure of U.S. energy policy is a rather mean-spirited interpretation of (U.S. President George Bush's) actions," said Tom Hanna, president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

He said U.S. oil imports have risen over the past 15 years, while fuel efficiency has improved 100 per cent.

TEHERAN (NOV. 1) - Iran and Bahrain agreed Thursday to exchange ambassadors, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said at the end of a two-day visit by his Bahraini counterpart Sheikh Mohammad bin Mubarak al-Khalifa.

"Initial talks for the exchange of ambassadors took place between officials from both countries and an Iranian delegation will soon visit Manama to pursue these talks," Mr. Velayati said in a statement broadcast on Teheran Radio.

He said the upgrading of diplomatic links would be achieved within a month.

Later in Manama, the Bahraini foreign minister said his talks with Iranian officials had focused on Iraq's three-month-old occupation of Kuwait and its "dangerous" consequences, the Gulf News Agency GNA reported.

He said Iran and Bahrain shared the same views on the Gulf crisis and reaffirmed his country's commitment to U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

He also announced that Iran and Bahrain had set up maritime links to bolster their trade.

NEW DELHI (NOV. 1) - A senior leader of the ruling Janata Dal (people's party) said Thursday that Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh may be replaced in the political crisis facing his 11-month-old government.

The leader, Devi Lal, said that a meeting of Janata Dal parliamentarians on Monday may decide on "a new leader" to head the government, which lost its working majority after a key ally withdrew support on October 24.

President Ramaswamy Venkataraman has directed Mr. V.P. Singh to take a vote of confidence in parliament on Wednesday after the withdrawal of support by the Hindu Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP or Indian people's party).

Mr. Lal told reporters that if necessary the government would seek the support of former prime minister Rajiv Gandhi's opposition Congress (I) party.

Asked about the propriety of seeking Congress (I) support after accusing it of involvement in kickback scandals in a deal with the Swedish arms maker Bofors, Mr. Lal said Bofors was "never an issue."

Congress (I) has repeatedly declared that it would support the alliance government if it is headed by any other leader from the grouping than Mr. V.P. Singh. The majority of ruling National Alliance MP's have pledged to support Mr. V.P. Singh.

The comments of Mr. Lal, virtually backing a demand of dissidents in Janata Dal who seek Mr. V.P. Singh's replacement, came amid hectic consultations among party leaders and their allies to avert a collapse of the government.

The Janata Dal is the largest partner in the ruling alliance, which groups five parties.

Mr. Lal, who Mr. V.P. Singh fired as deputy prime minister due to differences in August, did not specify who a substitute could be, though the dissidents have adocated Chandra Shekhar, a critic of Mr. V.P. Singh.

Mr. Lal and Mr. Shekhar are close friends, and there has also been speculation that the former deputy premier was an aspirant for the nation's highest office.

BAGHDAD (NOV. 1) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein Thursday ordered the release of four U.S. citizens held hostage along with thousands of other foreigners in Baghdad, it was announced here Thursday night.

The Iraqi News Agency (Ina) said Saddam ordered the release of the four U.S. hostages in response to a plea from a delegation of the Arab-American Reconciliation Association currently visiting Baghdad.

The four were described as ''elderly and sick.'' Earlir, Americans were released in groups at the intervention of the Arab-American group and at the behest of civil rights leader Jesse Jackson.

Some 3,500 Americans were in Iraq and Kuwait before the Gulf crisis, Ina said. Among them, 600 were said to remain in hiding or are being held in Kuwait, and around 330 are in Iraq, including 104 men held in strategic sites to prevent possible attacks by the U.S.-led multinational forces in the Gulf, Ina said.

BEIJING (NOV. 1) - The ashes of 53 people in Tianjin were scattered at sea instead of taking up valuable land with burial, the official China Daily said Thursday.

The mass burial at sea was part of an official effort to encourage cremation to conserve arable land, a campaign that has met stiff resistance in the countryside where internment is traditional.

The ashes of the 53 people -- most of them former officials, teachers and workers -- were scattered over the Bohai Sea by their families from aboard a passenger ship anchored in the harbor of the northeastern Chinese port.

Their families were the first to register for sea burial in Tianjin, the newspaper said.

According to the latest census figures, some 19,000 Chinese people die each day out of the country's population of 1.13 billion.

LONDON (NOV. 1) - The wives of 10 British hostages plan to go to Iraq next week to try to get their husbands out, despite being "petrified" and in spite of Foreign Office opposition to visits to hostages during Christmas holidays.

One wife acting as spokeswoman for the 10, Dorothy Goodwin, 55, said on Thursday that "I am petrified of going back. We know exactly what we are going back to. We have been through it once.

"We know our husbands are suffering, and we just want to go back and rescue them. We now face fear of the unknown . . . I am terrified of going because I know what the atmosphere was like. It was tense and very stressful".

Her husband is a pilot for Kuwaiti Airlines.

Earlier in the day, the Foreign office discouraged relatives of hostages held in Iraq from visiting them during the Christmas holidays, as Iraq has offered to let them do.

A Foreign Office spokesman said that "We have a great deal of sympathy with the predicament of wives and families" of persons held hostage in Iraq. "But it should be noted that Iraqi undertakings cannot be trusted. Travel to Iraq in any circumstances would be risky".

NUUK (NOV. 1) EFE - The government of Greenland is to invest in a dlrs 1.8 million program aimed at convincing the world that Father Christmas is alive and well and living in Greenland, Radio Greenland reported Thursday.

The scheme, which will be run by an independent organization and part funded by the government, is designed to boost industry and income for Greenland's 54,000 inhabitants by promoting its most famous resident, Prime Minister Jonathan Motzfeldt said.

The plan includes transforming Nuuk's old shipyards into Santa's workshop selling toys and games. Reindeers and sleighs will wait outside to take tourists hoping to catch a glimpse of Father Christmas for rides around the capital.

In five years, the Santa industry could produce up to dlrs 16 million, the radio quoted Motzfeldt as saying.

Most of Greenland, the world's largest island, is permanently covered in ice and the main occupation for islanders is currently seal-hunting.

Helsinki's plans may not be welcomed by Finland which claims that Santa Claus has always made his home in the northern Finnish region of Lapland.

The Finnish tourism office in Helsinki spends an annual dlrs 400,000 answering the 500,000 letters children send to Santa every year listing their Christmas gift requirements.

BEIRUT (NOV. 1) EFE - Lebanese Prime Minister Salim Al Hoss said Thursday that France should not be pressured to release renegade Christian Gen. Michel Aoun, who has been holed up in the French embassy since his defeat by Syrian and pro-government troops last month.

"Lebanese-French relations are too strong for a problem like this to disturb them. The issue should be treated without pressure," said Hoss in an interview with EFE.

Aoun is being sought to stand trial for the embezzlement of government funds, but French President Francois Mitterrand has called Aoun's asylum a question of national honor.

The defeat of Aoun, who for 11 months battled the rival Christian government from his east Beirut stronghold, gives the country its best hope yet for peace after 15 years of civil war.

"I don't think there will be big obstacles to the return to normality, except for the Israeli occupation of southern Lebanon," said Hoss.

"Of course we have many problems related to the peace process. But now that the war has ended we have reconstruction ahead of us, including the reestablishment of public services, electricity and water supplies and the reactivation of government institutions," he added.

"The government has to have more adherence to the process of reconciliation started after the signing of the Taif peace accord, and think of ways to overcome the consquences of war on the people, especially the young generation which has been severly damaged by the crisis," the prime minister said.

The Taif agreement, negotiated last year under the auspices of Saudi Arabia and the Arab League, calls for political power to be shared by the formerly dominant Christians with Lebanon's Moslem majority.

It also allows some 40,000 Syrian forces to remain in Lebanon. Aoun had fought to expel the Syrian troops.

Relations with Syria are "positive and friendly" Hoss said.

"Syria is a great country, the most important and closest of our Arab brothers. We have common interests that unite our two countries and a total understanding of the future," he added.

MADRID (NOV 1) EFE - A Spanish electronics engineer has invented a plastic tree which imitates certain key functions of real trees, and which he believes could turn the world's deserts green.

Antonio Ibanez Alba explained that the tree has roots, branches, leaves, and a trunk, and is made of polyurethane.

The tree takes the form of a palm, which, with its wide, umbrella-like folliage is best for retaining moisture and creating condensation.

Through the evaporation of water it has retained on the surface of its "leaves", the tree brings down the temperature around it, thus causing climatic changes.

"If rain is caused by the meeting of cold and warm air currents, then one only has to create in the desert a source of cold air currents and one has rain, that is the idea of my tree," the 34-year-old scientist explained.

Once a change in climate has been brought about, he continued, real trees can be planted.

Ibanez, who first presented his plastic tree to the scientific community at a National Aeronautical and Space Administration (NASA) conference, declined to put a time limit on the process of changing the climate, but said tests results had showed a change within weeks.

He has already spoken to Libya, Morocco, Algeria, and Mauritania, and says the response has been positive, although progress has been halted due to the Gulf crisis.

Ibanez said he has also been approached by the Australian government which is interested in replanting the Victoria desert.

Although the Italian multinational company Montedison has expressed interest in manufacturing the tree, Ibanez says he is not prepared to sell the patent, nor to give sole manufacturing rights.

Regarding the cost, the scientist charges that only large-scale manufacture would be profitable, with a single tree costing between dlrs 280 and dlrs 750.

Ibanez, who works for a small private research center in the northeastern Spanish city of Barcelona without state funding, says he hopes his invention will be a boon for mankind.

"However, the fact of having to invent a plastic tree means we are going wrong somewhere," he added.

BUDAPEST (NOV. 1) EFE - The Hungarian government is to implement an economic shock program which would drive inflation up to 35 percent, a top economic adviser was quoted as saying Thursday.

The program would cut government subsidies and free salaries, fuel, transportation and communication prices and prices on up to 90 percent of imports, Gyorgy Matolcsy, Prime Minister Jozsef Antall's chief economist, told the leading daily Nepszabadsag.

Economists believe more than 30 percent of Hungarian companies will be forced into bankruptcy when the program to move from central planning to a free market economy takes effect, leaving an estimated 200,000 people without work.

Matolcsy said corporate taxes would be reduced along with obligatory contributions to health care insurance plans.

He said all state concerns would be changed into joint stock ventures in which the state owns 60 percent of shares while the remaining shares will be split among workers, regional governments and a special indemnization fund.

He added that inflation would probably go up to around 35 percent from its current level of 27 percent.

The announcement came four days after the government agreed to reduce the price of petrol after thousands of truck and taxi drivers paralyzed traffic across the country to protest price hikes.

OTTAWA (NOV. 1) XINHUA - THE FOUR-YEAR URUGUAY ROUND OF GATT TRADE TALKS IS ON THE BRINK OF COLLAPSE BECAUSE THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY FAILS TO AGREE ON A FARM SUBSIDY CUT OFFER, CANADIAN TRADE MINISTER JOHN CROSBIE WARNED.

HE CALLED THE EC BEHAVIOR "REPREHENSIBLE." "THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SCUTTLING OF THE WHOLE URUGUAY ROUND IF THEY DON'T ACT AND GET AN AGRICULTURE OFFER ON THE TABLE SO THAT THIS PROCESS CAN CONTINUE," CROSBIE TOLD REPORTERS WEDNESDAY.

DESPITE THE MOVES BY CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES TO LOWER THEIR FARM EXPORT SUBSIDIES, CROSBIE SAID, THE ENTIRE URUGUAY ROUND AND FOUR YEARS OF WORK COULD BE DERAILED BY THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY.

THE URUGUAY ROUND IS SET TO END THIS DECEMBER IN BRUSSELS WHERE TRADE MINISTERS FROM 105 GATT MEMBERS WILL TRY TO THRASH OUT THE TOUGH ISSUES THEIR NEGOTIATORS HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO SOLVE. AN AGREEMENT ON AGRICULTURE IS CONSIDERED PIVOTAL TO THE ENTIRE URUGUAY ROUND.

NEGOTIATIONS ON REDUCING AGRICULTURAL SUBSIDIES HAVE BEEN DIFFICULT FROM THE START, AND ARE THREATENING TO DISSOLVE COMPLETELY BECAUSE THE EC FAILED TO MEET AN OCTOBER 15 DEADLINE TO TABLE A NEGOTIATING OFFER. EC MEMBERS DISAGREE AMONG THEMSELVES ON THE EXTENT OF FARM SUBSIDY CUTS.

CANADA IS SO UPSET AT THE EC INACTION BECAUSE AGRICULTURE IS PARTICULARLY SIGNIFICANT TO ITS ECONOMY. ITS GRAIN FARMERS HAVE BEEN SAVAGED BY A TRANSATLANTIC SUBSIDY WAR BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE CAIRNS GROUP OF AGRICULTURAL EXPORTING COUNTRIES HAVE MADE IT CLEAR THAT UNLESS THERE IS A SUBSTANTIAL PACKAGE ON AGRICULTURE, THERE WILL BE NO AGREEMENTS ON TRADE IN OTHER AREAS.

THE 14-MEMBER CAIRNS GROUP INCLUDES CANADA, AUSTRALIA, BRAZIL, ARGENTINA AND OTHER AGRICULTURAL EXPORTERS.

LAST YEAR, AGRICULTURAL SUBSIDIES WORLDWIDE TOTALLED 245 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS, NEARLY ALL OF IT SPENT BY THE UNITED STATES AND THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY. CANADA HAS OFFERED TO CUT ITS DOMESTIC FARM SUPPORT PROGRAMS BY 50 PERCENT AND VIRTUALLY ELIMINATE ALL THE EXPORT SUBSIDIES.

IN SEPTEMBER, IDEMA SALES MADE THROUGH THE NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL GOODS STOCKMARKET INCREASED BY 7,000 TONS IN COMPARISON WITH THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR, HE ADDED.

OTTAWA (NOV. 1) XINHUA - CANADA'S INFLATION RATE COULD JUMP 2.5 PERCENT IF THE OIL PRICE HIKING TRIGGERED BY IRAQ'S INVASION OF KUWAIT IS MAINTAINED, A STUDY BY THE FINANCE DEPARTMENT INDICATES.

BUT THE STUDY PLAYS DOWN THE EFFECT ON THE ECONOMY, SAYING THE COUNTRY'S OVERALL ECONOMIC GROWTH WILL NOT BE SUBSTANTIALLY AFFECTED BY THE OIL PRICE SHOCK.

THE STUDY PREDICTS INFLATION FOR 1991 COULD HIT 7.6 PERCENT. CANADA'S INFLATION RATE NOW IS RUNNING AT 4.2 PERCENT ON A YEAR-OVER-YEAR BASIS.

CANADA'S INFLATION RATE IS RELATIVELY LOW AMONG MAJOR INDUSTRIAL COUNTRIES BECAUSE THE GOVERNMENT DELIBERATELY MAINTAINS A HIGH INTEREST RATE MONETARY POLICY TO DAMPEN SPENDING DEMAND. HOWEVER THIS POLICY ALSO HELPED SLOW ECONOMIC GROWTH WHICH HAS PUT THE COUNTRY IN A RECESSION.

CANADA IS PRACTICALLY SELF-SUFFICIENT IN OIL SUPPLY. BUT IT STILL HAS TO IMPORT SOME LIGHT CRUDE OIL FOR THE MARITIME PROVINCES IN THE EAST BECAUSE THE OIL PIPELINES FROM THE PRODUCING REGIONS IN THE WEST CANNOT REACH THERE.

RETAIL GASOLINE PRICES IN CANADA HAVE SOARED BY NEARLY 15 PERCENT SINCE IRAQ'S AUGUST 2 INVASION OF KUWAIT.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) KYODO - JAPAN'S DOMESTIC SALES OF CARS, TRUCKS AND BUSES, EXCLUDING MINICARS, MOVED SLIGHTLY UP BY 0.9 PERCENT IN OCTOBER FROM A YEAR AGO TO 504,641 UNITS, INDUSTRY OFFICIALS SAID THURSDAY.

THE JAPAN AUTOMOBILE DEALERS ASSOCIATION OFFICIALS SAID THE FIGURE WAS THE HIGHEST FOR THE MONTH OF OCTOBER BUT THE GROWTH RATE IS APPARENTLY SLOWING DOWN FOLLOWING THE 0.3 PERCENT RISE IN SEPTEMBER.

AUTOMAKERS SAY SALES MAY BE FACING A TURNING POINT AFTER A PERIOD OF LONG AND STEADY GROWTH. BUT ALTHOUGH THE OCTOBER RISE WAS ONLY 0.9 PERCENT, IT WAS STILL THE 20TH SUCCESSIVE MONTH OF INCREASE ON A YEAR-ON-YEAR BASIS.

COMMENTING ON THE SLOW GROWTH OF SALES, AN OFFICIAL AT A MAJOR AUTOMAKER SAID HIGH INTEREST RATES, RISING PRICES OF OIL PRODUCTS TRIGGERED BY THE GULF CRISES, AND WEAK STOCK PRICES HAVE DISCOURAGED CONSUMERS. HE ADDED THAT SERIOUS SHORTAGES IN PARKING LOTS HAVE ALSO CONTRIBUTED TO EASING THE GROWTH.

SALES OF PASSENGER CARS DROPPED FOR THE SECOND CONSECUTIVE MONTH, DOWN 1.2 PERCENT TO 357,005 UNITS.

SALES OF LARGER MODELS MAINLY WITH AN ENGINE CAPACITY OF OVER 2001 CC ROSE BY 69.7 PERCENT TO 52,347 UNITS, WHILE THOSE OF SMALLER CARS SLIPPED BY 7.8 PERCENT TO 304,658 UNITS.

McDONALD'S is reportedly phasing out its plastic hamburger box that has become a symbol of the garbage crisis.

FROM THE BULLS:

ROBERT STOVALL, president of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS, finds good news in the steady upturn in utility stocks. "Most major rallies begin with leadership from interest-sensitive stocks and utilities are the strong." Moreover, he says, "the scattering of utility stocks on the new-high list is a bullish sign and could soon lead the Dow over 2550." (NYT, 11/1)

ANTHONY LUDOVICI, senior investment analyst at TUCKER ANTHONY, says his firm is buying stock on the belief that share prices are within 10% of a bear market bottom. He says that despite the gloom about the economy's prospects, investors have built up enough cash to fuel a rally in stock prices back to their highs. (WSJ, 11/1)

"We have to watch out for the next three weeks when the question is will 2350 hold," says self-described bull HEIKO THIEME of the DEUTSCHE BANK. "If not, we will certainly go below the 2200-2300 level that most people see as the bottom. But it will be a very, very brief spike, a "V" formation, and if you forget to buy then, you miss a good opportunity." Thieme says we are now going through the trough in corporate earnings and he expects 1991 to be "so-so" year for stocks. "Thereafter, we will resume a new bull market," says Thieme, "What am I doing now? With the cash I've got, I start buying high quality issues." (FNN "A.M. Outlook", 11/1)

FROM THE BEARS:

"We're in a nervous market in a negative environment," says ALAN ACKERMAN of GRUNTAL & CO. "The direction of the market, in my opinion, is down. I think we'll test the lows of 2344 again, but the Middle East is really the unwritten story. As the sands shift in the Middle East, so do the fortunes of the United States government and world governments everywhere. I think what we're looking at is a situation, very candidly, that is slowly but surely getting out of our control. ... The ultimate settlement of the Middle East, I believe, will either be war or an Arab solution that will not last very long. So one way or another, we are looking at a tinderbox for some time to come." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/31)

"Oil isn't this market's problem," declares STEVEN EINHORN, chairman of the investment policy committee at GOLDMAN SACHS. "The problems are earnings, interest rates and dividend growth." Mr. Einhorn says many corporate profit projections by Wall Street are still too high. Stock prices are likely to falter as companies miss those marks, or as analysts lower their expectations. He also says the dividend growth is slowing and that interest rates will probably remain at current levels for some time. (WSJ, 11/1)

"We now see the first early rays of sunshine," says the still bearish STAN WEINSTEIN of the "Professional Tape Reader." "It is likely that this bear market will end by the first quarter of 1991." But he cautions: "Damage can still occur in the final destructive stages of capitulation." (CNBC "World Business", 11/31)

STOCK MARKET:

THOMAS GALLAGHER, managing director of capital commitment at OPPENHEIMER & CO. says the market seems to be on the verge of making a major move one way or another. "There's a lot of interest on the buy side, but at every moment investors are watching oil, waiting for some bad news out of the Gulf." (WSJ, 11/1)

"It's a relief to have an October where we didn't get our brains beaten out, but that doesn't mean we are free and clear," says HUGH JOHNSON, chief strategist at FIRST ALBANY CORP. "The risks are still very much out there." He blames yesterdays decline on the day's economic reports which he says "hurt the market. When you see bonds up and stocks down, it usually signals there's growing concern over the state of the economy. It was intensified somewhat by the Chicago P.M.I. [Purchasing Managers' Index] and the beige book." ("USA Today" and NYT, 11/1)

"This morning we seemed to be doing rather well," says HILDEGARD ZAGORSKI of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES INC. She believes the market is getting ready to turn around. "We're in the process of trying to carve out some kind of a bottom around this 2400 level, and that could take a while." ("Investor's Daily", 11/1)

"I see a lot of uncertainty out there, both from the retail side and from institutions," says JEREMIAH MULLINS, head of OTC trading at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS in New York. "I think they're afraid of war." (WSJ, 11/1)

Stocks have been buffeted by rumors for the last several months, rising and falling dramatically on mere hearsay, and while it may not be possible to tell anything from a stock's action on a rumor, "What can tell you something is when stocks act contrary to a rumor," according to A.C. MOORE of ARGUS RESEARCH. When a bearish rumor circulates and stocks climb, "the market has good underlying strength and the rumor is probably false." ("Investor's Daily", 11/1)

"Everybody is looking at earnings," says RALPH COSTANZA, head of OTC trading at SMITH BARNEY, HARRIS UPHAM & CO. "If there are any disappointments, then stocks are overreacting." (WSJ, 11/1)

"I do believe October 11 -- the 2365 Dow close -- that was the low," says WILLIAM LEFEVRE of ADVEST. "Since then we've been in what I call a bottoming process. This [recent] volatility is typical of a bottoming process." Lefevre suggests investors begin to take a longer view. He says multi-national companies with significant sales overseas will benefit from the weaker dollar as they repatriate their sales. (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/31)

STOCK TIPS:

HARVEY HEINBACH at MERRILL LYNCH says Wall Street sees the $2 billion third-quarter loss taken by GENERAL MOTORS as a good move because it reflects a decision to trim excess factory capacity. "It's clear to everyone that GM has been operating with too much capacity relative to its volume," he says. DAVID COLE, an auto industry expert at the UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN, says, "This is a financial move that's been long overdue." JOHN CASESA of WERTHEIM SCHRODER says the GM action is "just the beginning of the process." JOSEPH PHILLIPPI of SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS says, "They've got some really basic, underlying problems that aren't going to go away." ("The Washington Post" and "USA Today", 11/1)

Yesterday GM announced that, partially as a result of a costly restructuring program, it had lost $2.1 billion in the third quarter, contrasted with a $517 million profit last year. "The initial reaction is that this is a very positive restructuring for the long- term," says SCOTT MERLIS of MORGAN STANLEY & CO. "But we are all still concerned about the short-term." ("Investor's Daily", 11/1)

Any good news could fuel a sharp rally in stock prices, say the editors at "United and Babson." "This is a good time to invest some spare cash in strong companies." On their buying list is BRISTOL MYERS where they like the cost savings from the merger with Squibb. On any further weakness, buy DEERE. They also like COMMUNITY PSYCHIATRIC where long term debt is only 7% of capital. (CNBC "World Business", 11/1)

BOEING remains a favorite stock of a very bearish ALAN ACKERMAN of GRUNTAL & CO. for those who are determined to be in the stock market. He thinks two or three-year Treasury bills are the best investment now, but that if one "takes a very long-term view of things, Boeing looks very attractive." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/31)

A delay in the introduction of a new automated trading system by REUTERS HOLDINGS PLC cost the company 3 points as it closed at a 22 week low of 32 5/8. "Reuters tends to be square shooters," says GRUNTAL & CO.'s STU CRANE, who explains that the company is merely working out the bugs, and therefore the delay is positive rather than negative. He believes "the stock is on the bottom of its cycle." ("Investor's Daily", 11/1)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (NOV. 1) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

Interest-rate differentials are "going against the U.S.," says MICHAEL ROSENBERG, manager of the international fixed-income research group at MERRILL LYNCH CAPITAL MARKETS GROUP. For that reason, he sees the dollar going "lower ... a lot lower." (WSJ, 11/1)

"If the October data show that unemployment went way up, the Fed can ease policy again," says DAVID DUERSON, manager of government bond trading at the SECURITY PACIFIC NATIONAL BANK in Los Angeles. (NYT, 11/1)

Private demand for credit is dropping like a rock, says ERICH HEINEMANN, chief economist at LADENBURG, THALMANN & CO. who looks for reduced demand to lead to lower rates. "We're expecting the federal funds rate to be down well below 7% by next spring," says Heinemann. "We think the underlying inflation rate in the economy is way below what we see right now." While he can't forecast what will happen in the Gulf, Heinemann believes oil price pressures are temporary and will not lead to a chain reaction inflation in the U.S. economy. (CNBC "Money Wheel", 10/31)

The Treasury Department's announcement that it will need to borrow $97 billion this quarter will keep interest rates high, "particularly if foreign interest for these issues ... is absent," according to BRIAN FABBRI of MIDLAND MONTAGU. He says Treasury borrowing will take the place of private bond issues, since the slower economy will mean companies' demand for capital will be lower, "leaving rates, at the longer end, unchanged." (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/31)

"I think the [bond] market right now is very comfortable," says CHARLES LIEBERMAN of MANUFACTURERS HANOVER SECURITIES in predicting that the Treasury will not have any trouble selling $34 billion worth of securities, mostly to domestic buyers. "The economy is weak and whenever the economy gets weak, domestic investors are happy to step up to the [T-bill] plate. It gives them more confidence." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/31)

"What we have is private sector credit demands weakening and lenders cutting off riskier borrowers," says AUBREY G. LANSTON & CO. chief economist DAVID JONES. "The availability of credit to private sources is limited in this weaker economic environment." He says institutional investors will be attracted to the safety of government issues. ("Nightly Business Report", 10/31)

THE ECONOMY:

"Even those that don't think we're heading into a recession think that the best we can expect is some kind of stagnation," says JIM KLUMPNER, an economist with the JOINT ECONOMIC COMMITTEE of Congress. The TAX FOUNDATION forecasts a 1% drop in real earnings this year. "The next tax increases [in the deficit reduction deal] will only make things worse next year," says PAUL MERSKI of the private foundation. ("USA Today", 11/2)

"Manufacturing has had a nice run on exports," says JERRY JASINOWSKI, president of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS. "But even exports have petered out a bit," says Jasinowski, who looks for negative growth for the next several quarters. He concludes, "You're going to have a recession." (CNN "Moneyline", 10/31)

"There are parts of this economy that are slowing and there are other parts that are doing pretty well," says WILLIAM LEFEVRE of ADVEST. With the investment industry and financial media concentrated in the depressed Northeast, there has been an exaggeration of the nation's economic woes, according to Lefevre. He warns, "You can talk this nation into a recession. If enough people tell you we are in a recession ... you might put off buying that big ticket item. ... It becomes a self fulfilling prophecy." (FNN

"Marketwrap", 10/31)

When asked whether the nation was in a recession, HUGH JOHNSON, chief strategist at FIRST ALBANY CORP., replied, "Technically, you have to have two quarters of negative growth in the economy, and at this point we haven't had one, although it's beginning to look as though the fourth quarter might be negative." (NYT, 11/1)

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT reported that consumer spending jumped 1.1% in September outpacing the 0.5% growth in personal income. The report "shows consumer purchasing power obviously is under pressure in the aftermath of the oil shock" from the Persian Gulf situation, says STEPHEN ROACH, senior economist with MORGAN STANLEY & COMPANY. Nevertheless, Mr. Roach adds, "consumers are really sort of clinging tenaciously to their life styles. Their spending is holding up just fine." (NYT, 11/1)

"I'm surprised" at the consumer spending report, says IRA SILVER, chief economist for J.C. PENNEY CO. "The GNP, and now the [consumer] spending report, is somewhat inconsistent with an economy that's going into a recession." (WSJ, 11/1)

STAN SHIPLEY, senior economist at SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS, says consumer spending is bound to drop in the weeks ahead. "He just does not have the income to keep spending this high," he says. "Also, I think consumer expectations have really taken a hit and is down by roughly 40% over the last four months. I think for the next four months consumer spending will be quite soft." (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 10/31)

ROSALIND WELLS, chief economist for the NATIONAL RETAIL FEDERATION, says the consumer spending report suggests that the economy isn't slowing as much as some other economists have been predicting. "My impression of what's happening to real income after inflation is that increases are becoming smaller and smaller. Consumers will cut back spending for an extended period of time." She adds, "A lot of economists are going overboard in their pessimistic forecasts." (WSJ, 11/1)

A survey of small business owners by "D&B Reports," a DUN & BRADSTREET publication, finds 23% saying they are pessimistic about future prospects compared to 13% a year ago. On the other side, 59% saw they are optimistic, compared to 67% last year. Meanwhile, the AMERICAN EXPRESS "Small Business Climate Index" being issued today finds demand for small businesses' products and services fell 9% in the second quarter, the largest drop since the 1981-82 recession. "Few companies large or small can remain unaffected if the Mideast situation intensifies," says DEBRA ISENBERG of American Express' small-business services. ("USA Today", 11/1)

IN WASHINGTON:

"The Democrats think they've died and gone to heaven," says GREGORY VALLIERE of the CL WASHINGTON RESEARCH GROUP. "They can't believe how lucky they've become to have this good fortune fall in their laps." Valliere is looking for the Democrats to pick up a net of one seat in the Senate, increasing their margin there to 56-44, and a gain of 12 seats in the House for a 269-164 majority. PORTLAND, ORE. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Fabricland, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FBRC), today reported a 5.4 percent increase in first quarter net sales to $19,977,000 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $18,954,000 in the first quarter in fiscal 1990. Earnings decreased 9.9 percent to $582,000, or $.18 per share, compared to $646,000, or $.20 per share, for the same period in the prior year. Average shares outstanding were 3,192,000 in fiscal 1991 compared with 3,217,000 in fiscal 1990, reflecting the company's repurchase of its shares.

Tony J. Bosboom, president, said that he was encouraged by the customer response to the recently implemented modified sales promotion program. Sales remained relatively level in comparison to the prior year when the company had a more aggressive sales promotion program. The present sales program, along with other reductions in cost of sales, has enabled the company to improve gross margins from 42 percent to 45 percent of net sales. The improved gross margins offset the increase in operating expenses associated with minimum wage increases and store expansion in the last 12 months. However, an increase in interest expense, related to increased inventory levels and capital expenditures, contributed to the reduction in earnings.

Bosboom further stated that recent sales to date have shown an exceptionally strong improvement over the prior year. He indicated that he believed that this was due to improved customer acceptance of the current sales promotion program and an indication of an increased interest on the part of customers in home sewing and decorating, and crafts projects this season. The second quarter is generally the busiest sales season for the company.

The company currently has 77 stores compared with 73 stores in the first quarter last year. During the first quarter one store was opened and one store was closed at the end of its lease. The company also relocated and expanded one store and remodeled two stores. Four additional stores are expected to be opened this fiscal year plus one relocation and several remodels.

SAN BRUNO, CALIF. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The following was released today by North Lily Mining Co.:

The arbitration on the Perry property has been resolved. The claim filed against the company for a 21 percent non-participating interest in the Perry property has been denied and full ownership of the property has been retained by the joint venture. Management is in the process of resuming an aggressive exploration/development program with a view to placing the property into production.

The 1,200 acre property, situated 26 miles northwest of St. George, Utah, is being joint ventured on a 50:50 basis by North Lily Mining Co. (NASDAQ: NLMC) and Goldsil Resources Ltd., a subsidiary. North Lily is the operator of the joint venture. Adjoining the property to the east is Tenneco Inc.'s open-pit, heap leach project which commenced production in 1989.

Exploration conducted by North Lily to date includes surface sampling, trenching and drilling. Results indicate a mineral resource of approximately two million tons with an average grade of approximately 0.045 ounces of gold per ton. Several highly mineralized zones have been identified on the property, one of which has been extended over a strike length of 1800 feet. The zone is open on strike and at depth. Current plans call for this zone to be extended within the next six months in order to facilitate a production decision. In addition, four new target areas have been identified which should significantly increase the current resource and an additional 165 acres have been acquired in the area to serve as the location of the mill site once a production decision has been made.

In terms of the company's exploration in the United States, the trenching and drilling program being undertaken on North Lily's Nine Mile project in Montana has encountered significant gold mineralization. Results are being evaluated, and will be announced next week.

North Lily Mining Co. is a gold mining company with offices in the United States, Canada and Chile. Two of the company's properties currently produce approximately 70,000 ounces of gold annually. North Lily is debt free and has sufficient working capital to aggressively explore and develop the company's additional resource properties.

COEUR D'ALENE, ID (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Hecla Mining Co. (NYSE, PSE: HL) today announced earnings of $519,000, or 2 cents a share, in the third quarter of 1990, compared to a net loss of $3.5 million, or 13 cents a share, in the third quarter of 1989. Improved results are a reflection of increased gold production, lower costs at the silver operations, and a higher average gold price compared to the same period last year. An increase in other income is a result of a $1.1 million gain on the sale of Canadian properties to Acadia Mineral Ventures Limited and an $853,000 gain on a Coeur d'Alene land sale. For the first nine months of 1990, Hecla earned $7.1 million, or 26 cents a share, on sales of $103.4 million. This compares to a loss in the first nine months of 1989 of $9.2 million, or 34 cents a share, on sales of $74.8 million.

Gold production rose to 109,494 ounces during the first nine months of this year compared to 61,650 in the same period last year, a result of increased production at the Republic and Yellow Pine Units. The Yellow Pine mine, located in Central Idaho, produced 37,836 ounces of gold in the first nine months of 1990, most of it in the third quarter. The Republic Unit in northeast Washington has produced 62,535 ounces of gold so far this year, compared to about 55,000 ounces in the first nine months of 1989.

Silver production also increased for the first nine months of 1990 compared to the same period last year, up from 4,325,074 ounces to 4,514,621 ounces. The Greens Creek mine, now in its first full calendar year of production, has become a solid producer with an average cash cost of about $2.00 per ounce of silver. The Lucky Friday silver-lead mine in North Idaho is continuing normal operations, producing silver at an average cash cost per ounce of about $4.50. At this time, there are no plans to suspend operations at the Lucky Friday.

The average price of gold increased from $367 an ounce in the third quarter of 1989 to $382 in the third quarter of this year. Silver took the opposite course, dropping from an average of $5.18 an ounce in the third quarter of 1989 to $4.88 in the third quarter of 1990.

ANAHEIM, CA (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Odetics (AMEX: OA, OB) announced today that three of the company's space tape recorders on board the Hubble Space telescope (HST) have been providing critical storage and playback of engineering and science data.

The on-board recorders store 1.2 gigabits (Gb) of data and are used when real-time data transmission via the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite System (TDRSS) is not available. Data rates of four, 32 and 1,024Kbps can be recorded on any one of the three identical recorders, allowing either engineering or science data to be stored and played back later.

A servicing and reboost mission in 1993 is planned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Goddard Space Flight Center. One or two of the most frequently utilized tape recorders will likely be replaced during this servicing mission.

The HST recorders produced by Odetics were supplied to the prime contractor for the Support Systems Module and integrator, Lockheed Missiles and Space Co. Inc. under a contract started in 1978.

The HST project was managed by the Marshall Space Flight Center for NASA Headquarters office of Space Science and Applications.

Odetics has provided similar recorders for NASA's Galileo mission to Jupiter and Magellan's mapping mission around Venus. Other Odetics recorders have been provided for the recently launched German ROSAT mission and the soon to be launched NASA/Fairchild Gamma Ray Observatory.

Odetics, headquartered in Anaheim, is the leading supplier of the world's space tape recorders for earth resources, weather and scientific satellites.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Unocal Exploration Corp. (NYSE: UXC) today reported third quarter 1990 earnings of $47.9 million before income taxes, compared with earnings of $43.9 million for the same period a year ago (when, because of partnership status, there were no income tax liabilities). Largely because of a one-time special tax adjustment relating to UXC's shift from a partnership to a corporation, net earnings were $12.9 million for 1990's third quarter.

For the first nine months, UXC's earnings were $145.9 million before income taxes and $110.9 million after taxes. This compared with 1989 earnings of $201.5 million -- a period that included $70.5 million in one-time natural gas contract settlements, as well as no income tax liabilities.

On Aug. 2, 1990, Union Exploration Partners, Ltd. (UXP), completed its restructuring from a master limited partnership to a corporation.

Since the company is now a taxable entity, UXC's third quarter and nine-month earnings included an income tax provision of $35.0 million.

The income tax provision reflects estimated taxes of $7.2 million on UXC earnings since its incorporation and a one-time charge of $27.8 million for deferred income taxes resulting from the change to a taxable entity and from the adoption of the new accounting standards for income taxes. The $7.2 million provision includes a deferred tax benefit of $5.6 million associated with the recently paid contingent cash distribution of $3 per UXP depositary unit.

Compared with the prior year, the third quarter and nine-month 1990 results benefited from the sharp increase in crude oil prices, higher natural gas production and lower dry hole costs. These positive factors were partially offset by lower natural gas prices and higher interest expense, as well as higher production expense and amortization of exploratory land costs. The third quarter and the year-to-date 1989 results included $9.1 million and $70.5 million in gains from various natural gas contract settlements with pipeline companies.

Cash flows from operations, before working capital changes, were $106.6 million for the quarter, compared with $95.5 million for the same period last year. For the nine months, cash flow totaled $324.5 million, compared with $386.1 million a year ago.

Third quarter revenues were $227.7 million compared with $171.9 million in 1989. Nine-month revenues were $605.4 million compared with $582.9 million a year ago.

Capital expenditures for the quarter totaled $54.9 million up from $51.3 million in the same quarter last year. Year-to-date capital expenditures were $180.7 million, compared with $143.1 million in 1989. In addition, UXC acquired the stock of Prairie Holding Company, an oil and gas exploration and production company, in July 1990. The acquisition of Prairie is valued at approximately $340 million, consisting of the cash purchase price of $272 million and the assumption of certain net liabilities of Prairie.

The Prairie acquisition adds more than 20,000 net acres of promising exploratory lands to UXC holdings. UXC's net daily production from Prairie's productive acreage in the third quarter averaged 43 million cubic feet of natural gas, 3,100 barrels of crude oil and condensate, and 97 long tons of sulphur. In addition, Prairie has varying interests in three gas processing plants in Texas and Louisiana.

Exploration expense for the third quarter was $10.5 million compared with $8.5 million last year. For the nine months, exploration expense totaled $26.8 million, versus $23.5 million in 1989.

UXC's total debt at Sept. 30, 1990, was $888.9 million, an increase of $415.0 million from the year-end 1989 level. This increase was primarily the result of the Prairie acquisition.

In the third quarter, UXC's net crude oil and condensate production averaged 38,800 barrels per day, compared with 37,400 barrels per day in the same period a year ago. For the first nine months, net daily production averaged 37,500 barrels, versus 39,000 barrels per day in 1989.

Third quarter net natural gas production averaged 581 million cubic feet per day, up from 419 million cubic feet per day a year ago. Nine-month net natural gas production averaged 514 million cubic feet per day, compared to 439 million cubic feet per day in 1989.

HOUSTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Pride Petroleum Services, Inc. (NASDAQ: PRDE), today announced increases in net earnings of 60 percent for the three months and 196 percent for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to the respective periods in 1989. Revenues were up 50 percent in the third quarter and 46 percent for the nine months this year. The company attributes the improvement to increased demand for well servicing and to an expanded rig fleet.

Net earnings for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $670,000 or $.04 per share on revenues of $25,178,000 compared to the same three months in 1989 when net earnings were $418,000 or $.04 per share on revenues of $16,781,000. Net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $2,521,000 or $.15 per share on revenues of $70,444,000 compared to net earnings of $851,000 or $.07 per share on revenues of $48,090,000 for the same period in 1989. Earnings per share in both periods this year reflect a 40 percent increase in average shares outstanding primarily as the result of a private placement of Pride common stock in December 1989.

As of Sept. 30, 1990, well servicing rig hours worked were up for the seventh consecutive quarter with rig hours in the third quarter this year up 34 percent over the same quarter last year. For the nine-month period, rig hours worked this year are 35 percent ahead of the same nine months in 1989. After steady improvements in activity during the first five months this year, demand leveled off, but began increasing again in September. The level of business activity has continued to improve and Pride's rig utilization rate is climbing.

On a consecutive quarter basis this year, revenues in the third quarter were higher than the second quarter, but the gains were offset by a rise in operating costs. Therefore, earnings did not reach second quarter levels. The company incurred higher repair and maintenance costs in support of the increased business activity during the third quarter. Substantial fuel cost increases were also experienced, most of which the company was unable to pass through immediately to customers. Additionally, higher labor and workers' compensation costs were incurred. Pride effected an increase in rig rates on Oct. 1 which is expected to result in improved margins in the fourth quarter.

Pride Petroleum Services, Inc., headquartered in Houston, is one of the largest well servicing contractors in the United States. The company currently operates 409 rigs from locations in East and West Texas, along the Texas/Louisiana Gulf Coast, in California and New Mexico.

HOUSTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Exxon Company, U.S.A. today announced new, cleaner burning winter formulations of Exxon Supreme and Exxon Plus gasolines to help improve air quality. The products will be available in Virginia, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Boston areas.

Exxon Supreme and Plus both provide smooth engine performance and less pollution during winter months when cold engines create more carbon monoxide. Carbon monoxide emissions are reduced by the addition of MTBE, an oxygen containing additive. The gasolines are also lower in volatility to reduce smog producing hydrocarbon emissions.

Earlier this year Exxon introduced oxygenated formulations in the New York and Greater Hartford areas where carbon monoxide emissions are a year round problem.

Exxon marketing vice president, Gord Thomson, said, "We estimate that these winter blends will reduce carbon monoxide emissions by four to seven percent. The product is currently being manufactured at our refineries and will be available in the coming weeks." Although the new gasolines will cost more to produce, Exxon's wholesale prices will remain competitive with other gasolines in the marketplace.

"Customers can expect excellent performance from the new gasolines. Both products have Exxon's advanced formula engine cleaning detergent additive. Further, the octane rating will remain unchanged at 93 for Supreme and 89 for Plus," assures Thomson.

Thomson emphasized Exxon's continued commitment to provide products to help meet the nation's air quality needs. Exxon first introduced reformulated gasolines last summer. "With products currently available in more than 50 markets, Exxon is the leading producer of gasolines reformulated to reduce pollution."

This represents a 14.8 percent increase over the $1.15 per common share reported for the same period last year.

For the nine months, the company had operating results of $177.6 million, or $3.68 per common share, an increase of 16.8 percent over the $3.15 per common share reported for the first nine months of 1989.

Realized investment losses, net of tax and related deferred acquisition cost amortization, were $.27 per common share for the third quarter of 1990, and $1.54 per common share for the nine months, versus gains of $.53 per common share and $1.00 per common share, respectively, during the same periods one year ago.

Realized investment gains and losses are a direct result of the company's active management of its investment portfolios, which produces realized gains and losses, depending on the movement of interest rates. There were no securities or mortgage loan losses in the third quarter reported results.

Net income, including realized investment losses and related deferred acquisition cost amortization, was $51.0 million, or $1.05 per common share for the third quarter of 1990. This compares to $78.5 million, or $1.68 per common share for the same period one year ago.

"We're continuing to produce excellent operating results," said Irving W. Bailey II, Capital Holding chairman, president and chief executive officer. "Fears of asset problems have driven stock prices of many insurance and financial services companies ever lower during recent months," Bailey said.

"Capital Holding repositioned its asset portfolios several years ago, upgrading quality in anticipation of a deteriorating economy. As a result, we're in an excellent position to weather this uncertain economic environment " he said.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Napier International Technologies Inc. (Vancouver: NIR.V) said today in a preliminary review of its first operating quarter that the company will report sales revenues of $794,281 for the three month period that ended Oct. 31.

Napier president Andrew Murray said that the demand from B.C. lumber producers for Timbercote, the company's new anti-sapstain product, has exceeded Napier's earlier projections.

Murray said that 10 sawmills were on-line at the end of October and that an additional four already are scheduled for start-up in November. The company earlier had projected one sawmill start-up in its first operating quarter, and 30 by the end of its first fiscal year, he noted.

Napier received its Agriculture Canada permit to market Timbercote commercially in late July and recorded July-August sales revenue of $84,000. Sales grew to $272,000 in September and $438,000 in October.

Murray said the company expects to report a profit for its first operating quarter when its formal statements for the period are completed.

Timbercote is a proprietary, environmentally-friendly chemical treatment that protects fresh cut lumber from attack by various fungi. It replaces polychlorophenols or PCP's and other treatments that have been found to be toxic.

The company is focusing its initial marketing efforts in B.C. and expects to expand into Washington and Oregon early in 1991.

Murray said the company also is responding to requests for technical data on Timbercote from government agencies and private companies in several offshore markets including Brazil, Chile, Finland and Poland.

The company recently has doubled the production capacity of its plant near Langley and is considering further expansion to meet the increasing demand, he said.

EAST AURORA, NY (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Fisher-Price today announced that it is conducting a safety campaign involving approximately 975,000 Fisher-Price car seats. These seats were manufactured from April 1985 through August 1985 and from May 1987 through January 1989 and require modification by consumers.

Car seats (Model No. 9100) manufactured from April 1985 through August 1985 contain shields which could break during use.

Some car seats (Model Nos. 9100 and 9101) manufactured from May 1987 through January 1989 could have shields which are difficult to latch due to a cracked plastic part on the inside of the buckle. This condition can make it difficult to buckle the shield.

Fisher-Price is providing new shields to consumers who own car seats manufactured during these time periods. The company is urging consumers with affected car seats to call Fisher-Price toll-free at 800-527-1034 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. or write: Consumer Affairs Department A, Fisher-Price, 636 Girard Ave., East Aurora, NY 14052. Consumers should check the small label on the back of the car seat to determine the date of manufacture and should have the car seat nearby when calling Fisher-Price.

Seats should not be returned to the stores where they were purchased. Fisher-Price strongly recommends that consumers continue using the seat until the replacement shield arrives and that they make certain the buckle is securely latched by listening for a click and pulling up on the shield.

In addition, Fisher-Price is announcing that the button located on the shoulder belt of car seats (Model Nos. 9100 and 9101) can be removed. Consumers have reported that in some instances children have placed the button in their mouths.

Fisher-Price has received a small number of complaints regarding this button coming off. The company is, therefore, urging consumers to periodically inspect the button by trying to pull it apart and if the button separates they should discard it. Consumers who remove the button or whose car seat has no button are urged to call the company toll-free at 800-527-1034 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. or write: Consumer Affairs Department A, Fisher-Price, 636 Girard Ave., East Aurora, NY 14052, to obtain a new button.

The company emphasized that a loose or missing button in no way affects the crashworthiness of the car seat. Again, as with the shield problem, Fisher-Price urges consumers to continue using the car seat until they receive a new button or shield.

MANCHESTER, N.H. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - BankEast Corporation (NASDAQ: BENHQ) today reported a loss for the third quarter of $8,329,000, equal to a loss of 70 cents per share. This compares to net income of $134,000 or 1 cent per share for the third quarter of 1989. The 1990 third quarter loss resulted primarily from a provision for potential loan losses totaling $8,285,000.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, BankEast reported a loss of $16,943,000, equal to a loss of $1.42 per share. The loss for the first nine months of 1989 was $11,231,000 or 94 cents per share.

At Sept. 30, 1990, non-performing loans (excluding restructured loans) totaled $64.8 million, up from $52.6 million at the end of the second quarter. Non-performing assets (including non-performing loans, other real estate owned or in process of foreclosure, and restructured loans) totaled $93.3 million or 13.41 percent of total loans and other real estate owned, up from $81.5 million or 11.38 percent at the end of the second quarter. The company's current allowance for loan losses is $24,469,000, representing 3.63 percent of net loans and 34.28 percent of non-performing loans, including restructured loans. Net charge-offs for the quarter totaled $3.9 million and $14.4 million for the first nine months.

"The third quarter increase in non-performing assets is indicative of continued weakness in local real estate markets," said W.N. DeWitt, chairman and chief executive officer of the company. "We remain focused on expense control programs, continuing to achieve consolidations where appropriate, and paying close attention to working with customers to resolve their problem loans."

Equity capital totaled 3.84 percent of total assets on Sept. 30, compared to 4.54 percent at the end of the second quarter and 5.05 percent at the end of the first quarter. Primary capital at the end of the third quarter totaled 6.40 percent of total assets, compared to 6.53 percent on June 30, 1990 and 7.08 percent on March 31, 1990.

As previously reported, the holding company has filed voluntary Chapter 11 reorganization proceedings to protect the company from the demands of two out-of-state noteholders. This action was prompted when the noteholders filed suit against the holding company on Oct. 5, seeking to secure $13 million in subordinated debentures issued by BankEast Corporation in 1988.

"As far as BankEast depositors and other customers are concerned, it continues to be business as usual. The holding company intends to file a plan of reorganization promptly, come out of Chapter 11, and pay all our creditors,' said DeWitt.

BankEast Corporation is a New Hampshire-based holding company with $954 million in assets.

DAYTON, OH (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Iams Company, a manufacturer of high-nutrition pet foods, has received an award from the American Institute of Baking (AIB) for its "superior" manufacturing operations, the company recently announced.

Iams' plants in Aurora, Neb. and Lewisburg, Ohio were judged superior by the AIB for plant sanitation, quality control, pest control, personnel practices and for the company's plans and programs to maintain its high standards in the future.

Iams became part of the AIB's voluntary inspection program in 1989. "It's an honor to win this prestigious award," said Iams Vice President for Manufacturing John Polson. "It's unusual for a company to receive the superior rating after just one year in the AIB program. We're quite proud that both plants were so highly rated."

A third Iams plant is under construction in Henderson, N.C. and will participate in the AIB program when it begins operations in 1991. On a rating scale of 1-1,000, only 19 percent of the processing plants evaluated by the AIB receive the 900 or more points required for the superior rating.

The 44-year-old Iams Company manufactures premium dog and cat foods under the Iams and Eukanuba brand names. Annual sales for the 500-employee company have grown from $10 million to more than $200 million since 1982.

Iams and Eukanuba products are sold exclusively in specialty outlets such as pet stores, pet supply stores, feed stores, kennels and veterinary clinics in all 50 states, Canada, and many countries abroad.

FLAT ROCK, MI (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Mazda Motor Corporation was honored today as a corporation contributing to improved international trade by the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI). A ceremony was held at the official Prime Minister's Residence in Tokyo, attended by Prime Minister Kaifu, MITI Minister Muto and other high-ranking officials. Osamu Nobuto, senior managing director, Mazda Motor Corporation, attended the function and accepted the commendation.

This marks the eighth year of the award, which was initiated in 1983 to recognize outstanding corporate contributions to improving the international trade balance by increasing imports to Japan. Fourteen other companies (including Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd., and JUSCO CO., LTD.) also received the commendation this year.

Mazda announced in October 1989 an Import Expansion Program and the company has been actively pursuing increased import levels.

In line with this program, Mazda has been importing Ford vehicles, including Ford cars produced by Mazda's U.S. plant, and Citroen and Lancia models, as well as parts materials from overseas sources. In fiscal 1990 (from April 1989 through March 1990), Mazda achieved a total import value level of $466 million, a 30-percent increase over the previous term's total of $358 million; fiscal 1989's level was up 96 percent over 1988's $183 million, which represented a 62-percent gain over 1987's $113.1 million. Such efforts and achievements have earned Mazda the commendation from MITI.

In July of last year, Mazda introduced streamlined parts and vehicles distribution and logistics systems in North America to improve the efficiency of exporting to Japan. For example, suppliers can transfer their parts to one of two regional Consolidation Centers, in Detroit and Los Angeles. Mazda (North America), Inc.(a) deals with all procedures for exporting and shipping to Japan, freeing the suppliers from this responsibility.

Significant efforts are also being made to expand and promote joint development from the early stages with overseas parts suppliers. In line with this, Mazda Research and Development of North America, Inc. (MRA), has recently expanded its Flat Rock facilities to include testing and development operations for locally sourced parts. The $1.5 million facility, which uses sophisticated testing equipment procured from U.S. manufacturers, will help increase the use of local parts at Mazda's U.S. production plant in Flat Rock. It will also help increase the export of parts to be used for production in Japan.

Mazda sent a joint R&D/Purchasing representative delegation to a one-on-one meeting between U.S. suppliers and Japanese manufacturers, held in April this year, in Las Vegas, Nev.

Following this meeting, Mazda's representatives had an opportunity to visit the facilities of some 20 North American suppliers. Mazda plans to intensify its overseas survey activities in order to develop increased import opportunities around the world.

WILMINGTON, DEL. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - GWC Corp. (NASDAQ-NMS: GWCC) today reported consolidated net income of $4,609,000, or 46 cents per share, on revenues of $26,643,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, as compared to net income of $4,753,000, or 48 cents per share, on revenues of $26,161,000 for the comparable period in 1989.

Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $11,428,000, or $1.14 per share, on revenues of $72,715,000, compared to net income of $12,172,000, or $1.22 per share, on revenues of $72,228,000 during the comparable period of 1989.

Operating income during the third quarter of 1990 increased $1,055,000 as compared to the third quarter of 1989, in part due to an increase in the volume of water sold by the utility operations. However, this was offset by lower income from asset sales in 1990 (the third quarter of 1989 included income from the sale of a parcel of land), increased interest expense and higher income tax expense in 1990. Operating income during the first nine months of 1990 increased $980,000 compared to the comparable period in 1989, as higher volumes of water sold and rate increases offset higher operating expenses. However, higher interest expense and income taxes more than offset the operating income increase, causing net income to be lower than last year.

GWC Corp., headquartered in Wilmington, is a water utility holding company that is also engaged in non-regulated activities. Its major subsidiary, General Waterworks Corp., owns 34 regulated utility subsidiaries operating in 14 states. The company's common stock is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol "GWCC." There are 10 million shares of common stock currently outstanding.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Charles Gelman, chairman and CEO of Ann Arbor-based Gelman Sciences Inc. (AMEX: GSC) is claiming that Dow Chemical Company's recent motion to cancel subpoenas requiring the depositions of key Dow executives later this year is an attempt by Dow to avoid responsibility for the 1,4-dioxane contamination in Scio Township, Mich.

In January 1988, Gelman Sciences sued Dow Chemical and others who manufactured and sold Gelman Sciences the 1,4-dioxane that Gelman Sciences used in its manufacturing process. In February 1988, the Michigan DNR sued Gelman Sciences for 1,4-dioxane contamination of groundwater surrounding its Scio Township manufacturing facilities. Gelman Sciences had disposed of its waste water, including 1,4-dioxane, through a biodegradation process in compliance with permits issued by the DNR. Gelman Sciences claims that Dow Chemical and the other defendants never disclosed that 1,4-dioxane does not biodegrade.

Dow Chemical has represented to the public and the business community that it has a policy of stewarding its products from "cradle to grave," including disposal.

"Apparently Dow Chemical and other manufacturers are willing to claim they are responsible for disposal if it helps sales, but deny responsibility if a problem actually develops," said Charles Gelman. "Dow Chemical has been promoting its chemical stewardship program since the early 1970s. We intend to make Dow Chemical and the other companies who concealed vital information about 1,4-dioxane answer for their irresponsible actions."

Charles Gelman said that he believes Dow Chemical is deceiving the public and its customers. "Dow Chemical basically admitted culpability when they and other suppliers recently paid $100,000 to settle claims made against them by Scio Township residents for 1,4-dioxane contamination. Dow Chemical contends that Gelman Sciences should have known that its treatment method would not work on 1,4-dioxane. But, at the Dow Chemical plant where 1,4-dioxane was manufactured, Dow used a similar method to treat its own waste waters containing 1,4-dioxane."

Charles Gelman said he will not stand by and allow Dow Chemical to use its size and corporate weight to sidestep its responsibilities in this matter. "I believe that Gelman Sciences is being offered up as a sacrificial lamb and, on behalf of our 750 worldwide employees, I will not stand by idly."

On Wednesday, Washtenaw Circuit Court Judge Patrick J. Conlin will rule on a motion from Dow Chemical that will determine whether Dow Chemical executives should testify later this year.

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Allied-Signal Inc. (NYSE: ALD) said today it has begun work to double the capacity at its Florange, France automotive catalyst manufacturing plant to 4.5 million units per year. The project is expected to be completed by late 1991.

The highly-automated Florange facility began operation last year and produces catalysts primarily for the European automotive industry. Beginning with model year 1993 all vehicles manufactured in Europe must meet pollution control standards similar to those in the U.S.

CLUTE, TX (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Benchmark Electronics, Inc. (AMEX: BHE) has leased a facility in the Portland, Ore., suburb of Beaverton, it was announced today.

The addition of the facility is the first step in the company's strategy to provide prompt, turnkey printed circuit board assembly services to current and future customers with operations in the western United States. The company also announced a record $15 million backlog of orders as of Oct. 31, 1990.

Benchmark will renovate the Beaverton facility, equipping it with state-of-the-art assembly machinery capable of using both surface-mount and pin-through-hole interconnection technologies.

The facility increases the company's manufacturing capacity in the near term and provides additional space for future capacity expansion as warranted. The company anticipates that the facility will be fully operational in the first quarter of 1991.

"The Beaverton plant addition is part of our long-range plan to provide better service to existing customers and to attract new customers with operations in the western United States," reported President Donald E. Nigbor. "We already have had an outstanding response to the new facility, measured in terms of new orders received from customers in the region."

Due to an increase in bookings from customers in the western United States, as well as orders from new and existing customers, Benchmark had a record $15 million backlog of orders as of Oct. 31, 1990.

"We believe the strong backlog reflects our emphasis on technology and service in particular, our ability to produce high-quality, technologically advanced printed circuit boards and to deliver them to customers on a just-in-time basis," Nigbor stated. "The additional facility will help us maintain the high level of service that is our trademark."

Nigbor will supervise the renovation, equipping and initial operation of the Beaverton facility. Benchmark will use a portion of the net proceeds from its recent initial public offering to pay the costs of leasing, renovating and equipping the facility.

Benchmark Electronics, Inc., provides manufacturing services, specializing in the assembly of printed circuit boards, for original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) in the electronics industry, including manufacturers of communications equipment, business computers, testing equipment, medical devices and industrial instruments. CHARLESTON, W.VA. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Key Centurion Bancshares Inc. (NASDAQ: KEYC) has announced net income of $19.3 million for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1990, an increase of 3 percent compared with net income of $18.7 million for the comparable nine months of 1989.

For the third quarter 1990, net income of $6.2 million compared with net income of $6.4 million in the third quarter 1989, a 3 percent difference.

On a per share basis, net income of 93 cents for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 compared with net income of 92 cents for the comparable nine months of 1989. Net income of 30 cents for third quarter 1990 compared with net income of 31 cents in the third quarter of 1989.

Expenses associated with a bank subsidiary's branch closing in a consolidation of offices reduced third quarter 1990 income compared with third quarter 1989 net income, resulting in a one-time pre-tax charge of $440,000. Consequently, future occupancy expenses should decline by approximately $300,000 annually, compared with prospective occupancy expenses prior to the branch office consolidation. A pre- tax provision expense increase of $648,000 accounted for the other expense item which reduced the quarter's net income, compared with third quarter 1989 net income.

During the third quarter, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency conducted and completed an examination of Key Centurion's principal bank subsidiaries, which included a special review of the subsidiaries' commercial real estate loans. The examination did not result in any material change in the company's operating results.

Total past due loans and non-performing assets declined $700,000, or 3 percent compared with figures on Sept. 30, 1989. Moreover, compared with the previous quarter and year-end 1989, total past due loans and non-performing assets at Sept. 30, 1990 fell by $960,000 and $6.4 million or 4.6 percent and 24.2 percent respectively.

Consequently, total past due and non-performing assets have declined to 1.59 percent of loans at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with 1.70 percent at the same time a year ago. The comparable figure was 1.73 percent of loans at June 30, 1990, and 2.17 percent at Dec. 31, 1989. These percentage levels are well below those of comparable national average ratios.

The allowance for loan losses increased 18 percent to $17.8 million, or 1.39 percent of net loans, compared with $14.8, or 1.21 percent of net loans at the end of Sept. 30, 1989, primarily as a result of accounting for a merger completed during the quarter.

A. Michael Perry, president and chief executive officer, said, "The public concern about the banking industry has justifiably centered on the composition and quality of the industry's loan portfolios. Our banks have originated loans primarily in their local markets within West Virginia and Kentucky. Consequently," Perry continued, "Key Centurion has no foreign loans, nor highly leveraged loans (HLT loans), and real estate construction loans of all types represent less than 1.5 percent of all loans. Moreover, our loan quality ratios have continued to reflect steady improvement throughout this year."

Marshall T. Reynolds, chairman of Key Centurion, said, "Key Centurion recently gained some additional national recognition for its strong balance sheet, the comparatively low relative risk of its loan portfolio, and the earnings power of the company. Meanwhile," he said, "the state of West Virginia continues to make economic progress as highlighted by the most recent quarterly "Economic Update" of Bell Atlantic Business Research. The report noted that the state economy has not been so sound in over 10 years." Reynolds concluded that the combination of Key Centurion's strengths and the state's economic improvement provides reason for optimism for Key Centurion's financial future.

Key Centurion in April 1990 announced merger agreements with Southern Bankshares Inc. and Spectrum Financial Corp. Southern is a $300 million asset, two-bank holding company located in Beckley, Raleigh County and Oak Hill, in adjacent Fayette County, W.V. Spectrum is also a two-bank holding company located in Wheeling, Ohio County and New Martinsville, Wetzel County, W.Va. with $264 million in assets. Southern and Spectrum are West Virginia's 12th and 14th largest bank holding companies based on year end 1989 results. On a combined pro forma basis, Key Centurion would approach $3 billion in commercial bank assets, $1.3 billion in discretionary trust assets and almost $2 billion in total trust assets with the completion of these two proposed mergers.

Key Centurion has banking subsidiaries with 45 offices in West Virginia and Kentucky, operating as: Cardinal State Bank, NA, Beckley; The Central National Bank of Buckhannon, Buckhannon; Charleston National Bank, Charleston; Union National Bank of West Virginia, Clarksburg; The First Huntington National Bank, Huntington; The Lincoln National Bank of Hamlin, Hamlin; The National Bank of Logan, Logan; Boone National Bank, Madison; First National Bank in Philippi, Philippi; Citizens National of Point Pleasant, Point Pleasant; Citizens National Bank of St. Albans, St. Albans; Nicholas County Bank, Summersville; Wayne County Bank, Wayne; The National Bank of Commerce of Williamson, Williamson, all in West Virginia and First National Bank of Pikeville, Pikeville, Ky.; and Reliable Mortgage Co. with six offices in West Virginia and Maryland.

BEREA, KY (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - PPG Industries' (NYSE: PPG) board chairman and chief executive officer, Vincent A. Sarni, today joined Kentucky and local officials in dedicating the glassmaker's new Berea automotive replacement glass plant.

The Berea plant is PPG's second facility dedicated to production of automotive replacement glass windshields, and will enable PPG to meet future demand.

"About 8 million auto windshields are replaced in the United States each year " Sarni said during the dedication ceremonies. "The number keeps growing every year, because people are keeping and driving their cars longer than ever before.

"The demand for replacement windshields in the United States should grow to at least 10 million units by 1995...and we are determined to have our share of it. We are confident we will, because our windshields are the benchmark of quality in the industry, and we have developed the best distribution system in the business."

Sarni explained PPG's reasons for selecting Berea as the site for its newest automotive replacement glass plant. "The new plant had to be convenient to our North American automotive replacement glass distribution center in Chillicothe Ohio. Every piece of auto replacement glass we manufacture is shipped to Chillicothe, where it is inventoried, and then shipped by truck to distributors and installers in North America.

"Even more important," Sarni noted, "we knew we needed a dedicated and highly motivated work force, and a community where we would be welcome. The Berea area has earned high scores on both those counts."

The PPG executive estimated that about half of the company's annual replacement windshield production will be made at Berea and at another auto replacement glass plant in Greensburg, Pa. The balance will be produced at PPG's six original equipment manufacturing plants, which mainly make windshields and tempered windows for new cars.

The new PPG plant is equipped with the latest state-of-the-art equipment for producing high-quality windshields.

Pittsburgh-based PPG is North America's largest supplier of automotive replacement glass.

WORCESTER, MASS. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Hanover Insurance Company (NASDAQ: HINS) today reported net income of $37,087,000, or $1.80 per share for the first nine months of 1990, compared to net income of $73,310,000, or $3.55 per share, in 1989. Year-to-Date Results The company's combined ratio, including policyholders' dividends, was 106.3 percent for 1990 compared to 105.0 percent in 1989. The ratio of underwriting expenses to net premiums written was 29.6 percent compared to 30.2 percent in 1989. Dividends to policyholders were .8 percent of net premiums earned compared to .6 percent in 1989.

In 1990 net weather-related catastrophes approximated $13.2 million, adding 1.1 points to the combined ratio, compared to $18.9 million in 1989, adding 1.8 points to the combined ratio, $7.5 million of which was Hurricane Hugo.

Beginnning in late 1989, Hanover increased its voluntary writings in the Massachusetts private passenger automobile market in response to recent changes in regulations. This action by the company is intended to reduce its share of the involuntary assessment of the Commonwealth Automobile Reinsurer deficit. Net premiums written through September 1990, increased 10.8 percent (7.6 percent adjusted for the increase in Massachusetts voluntary writings) to $1,225,663,000 from $1,105,914,000 in 1989 compared to a 0.6 percent decrease for the same period last year. Pre-tax net investment income increased 14.7 percent to $128,654,000 from $112,193,000 in 1989. This increase is primarily due to the reallocation of assets from equities to bonds, which produced more interest income in 1990 than dividend income in 1989. This disparity is not expected to continue into the fourth quarter and beyond.

adjusted for the increase in Massachusetts voluntary writings) from $373,506,000 in 1989 to $398,609,000 in 1990 compared to a 1.6 percent increase in 1989. Net premiums earned for the quarter increased 8.9 percent from $363,914,000 to $396,353,000 in 1990 compared to a 3.3 percent decrease in the third quarter of 1989.

RICHMOND, VA. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Ethyl Corporation (NYSE: EY) announced today that it has temporarily withdrawn its waiver application to gain approval from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for use of the company's HiTEC(R) 3000 performance additive in unleaded gasoline in the U.S.

Following a meeting late yesterday with EPA officials in Washington, Floyd D. Gottwald, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Ethyl, wrote the Environmental Protection Agency saying that certain issues raised during the review of Ethyl's application could not be addressed before the November 5 deadline established by law.

"Ethyl fully intends to file a new waiver application," Mr. Gottwald wrote. Ethyl has conducted over three million miles of tests on a 48-car fleet during its program, and all testing and analysis has been done by EPA-recognized consultants. These tests demonstrated that HiTEC 3000 is a fuel additive with significant environmental and energy-saving benefits.

While many of the EPA findings vary little, if any, from Ethyl's, there were discrepancies that will require additional review that could not be completed within the statutorily mandated 180-day period.

Ethyl officials did not comment on any other issues raised in the EPA review, pending further discussions between the company's technical staff and the agency.

Ethyl indicated that additional meetings with the EPA would begin as soon as possible. Ethyl hopes to define areas where additional information is needed by the EPA in order to expedite the resubmission of its application to sell HiTEC 3000 performance additive for use in unleaded gasoline.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Officials of Air L.A. and Air Resorts Airlines announced that they have entered into a ''Memorandum of Intent'' to merge their two companies. The closing of the transaction is scheduled for Dec. 27, 1990. When completed, Air L.A. and Air Resorts will be operated as wholly owned subsidiaries of Air L.A. Inc. (OTC). Moreover, it is anticipated on a pro forma basis for the first full twelve months of operations in 1991, that the companies will have over $14 million in sales, assets of over $14 million, and stockholders' equity of over $6 million. Combined entities are expected to produce operating costs of $.15/ASM (available seat miles).

Wayne Schoenfeld, president of Air L.A., said, ''This merger will result in a strong economic base permitting the company to complete its major expansion into several Mexican cities, namely Tijuana, Hermosillo, Mexicali and Guaymas, with passenger and freight operations.'' He went on to say, ''The over 500 'maquiladoras' (assembly plants manned by Mexicans and owned by foreign companies) will now be served through the West Coast's principal international gateway, Los Angeles. Air L.A. has longstanding marketing agreements with the most important European and Pacific air carriers serving Los Angeles.''

Additionally, Air Resorts specializes in government contract work, contract tours, and will soon be serving New York (JFK) Airport from Toronto, Canada and Niagara Falls.

Both of Air L.A. Inc.'s subsidiary companies serve ''niche'' markets and believe the consolidation will further strengthen their presence in these markets, as well as those in ''maquiladora'' country. When the merger is completed, Air L.A. Inc. will be qualified for a NASDAQ listing in Spring 1991 and is planning to prepare for an early Summer ''Secondary Offering.''

SAN DIEGO (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Stolichnaya Russian vodka today announced that it will be a lead sponsor of the first-ever Soviet challenge for sailing's most prestigious trophy, the America's Cup. The challenge for the 1992 event, to be held in the waters off San Diego, has been filed by the Red Star Syndicate, a group of world-class Soviet sailors under the flag of the Leningrad Yacht Club.

"We can think of no more appropriate supporter of our America's Cup effort than Stolichnaya Russian vodka, and we welcome it to our team," said Vsevolod Kukushkin, sports editor-in-chief with the Tass News Agency in Moscow and chairman of the Red Star Syndicate. "Not only is Stolichnaya the best-known and most highly respected consumer product from our country in the United States, but the brand's reputation and quality image can also help us attract additional support from American firms."

The announcement marks a major milestone for the Red Star Syndicate, whose challenge for the America's Cup has been officially accepted by the America's Cup Organizing Committee. The event is scheduled to begin in January 1992, with the final races set for May. Three American syndicates, including three-time America's Cup winner Dennis Conner, are set to compete for the right to defend the Cup on behalf of the San Diego Yacht Club, against 12 foreign challengers.

Stolichnaya Russian vodka, first introduced to the U.S. market in 1972, is now

Gross revenues for the quarter were $141,918,000, an increase of 14 percent over third quarter 1989 revenues of $124,796,000. CHICAGO (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Amoco Oil Company announced today that it is introducing a package of environmental initiatives in Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Md., and Richmond, Va.

As part of the package, Amoco is currently supplying Amoco service stations with three grades of reduced-emission gasoline which, when fully introduced, will meet the 1992 requirements of the Clean Air Act. "We have been delivering our reduced-emission products to Washington, D.C.-area Amoco stations for the last 30 days," said Robert J. Rauscher, Amoco marketing vice president.

Rauscher said the reduced-emission gasolines are part of "The most comprehensive set of environmental alternatives presented by one company in a single market."

Rauscher said the other elements of Amoco's package of environmental initiatives are now in operation on a demonstration basis at the company's full-service station at 9th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. They include:

-- New and more effective Amoco-designed gasoline pump vapor recovery nozzles;
-- A used motor oil recycling collection facility for any motorists who change their own oil; and
-- A compressed natural gas (CNG) fueling facility for select fleet vehicle use.

Rauscher said President Bush; William K. Reilly, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency; and Admiral James D. Watkins, Secretary of Energy, have provided strong leadership that has stimulated the development of lower-emission gasolines and alternative motor fuels.

"Throughout much of our system, Amoco already sells what others are calling reformulated gasoline," Rauscher said. "Amoco's Texas City, Texas, refinery, one of the most modern in the country, produces some of the nation's cleanest burning fuels."

But Rauscher warned that even stricter 1995 Clean Air Act requirements pose a formidable challenge because of the very short time frame and the technological advances needed to meet the tough new targets for further emissions reductions.

"While no single action we can take will immediately resolve all air and other environmental problems," Rauscher said, "this multi-faceted approach we are undertaking can begin to make an impact now."

Some of the Amoco initiatives are in place in other markets, Rauscher said. "Expansion of those elements and the introduction of others will be determined by many different factors, but we will continue to move in an environmentally proactive manner."

Other Amoco stations in the Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Md., and Richmond and Roanoke, Va., markets will offer three grades of reduced- emission gasolines and a used oil recycling program, Rauscher said.

HOUSTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Houston-based Biodynamics and Texas Medical Products, a subsidiary of Surgimedics, Inc., today announced a joint venture to complete development of Biodynamics' proprietary autotransfusion system.

Biodynamics received a U.S. patent on its autotransfusion system in June 1990. The patent covers a blood separation filter which is the major component of its PlateletPlus(TM) autotransfusion system. The device reduces the need for donor blood transfusions, thereby lowering the risk of AIDS and hepatitis in various types of surgeries. Some industry sources predict that by the end of the 1990's over 90 percent of blood used in surgery may come from the patient.

Industry estimates put the existing worldwide market for autotransfusion hardware and disposables at over $130 million.

"We evaluated a variety of strategic alliances with several companies but Surgimedics proved to be uniquely qualified because of its managerial, financial and production resources," stated John V. Hargiss, Biodynamics' president and chief executive officer. "Surgimedics' aggressive growth plans, their surgical product focus and a commitment to the autotransfusion potential were significant considerations in the decision to create this partnership," he stated further.

Thomas R. Early, chief executive officer of Surgimedics commented, "This joint venture agreement represents another step by Surgimedics to introduce new technologies into markets in which it is well established. TMP has a leadership position in disposable cardiovascular surgery specialty products."

Under the terms of the agreement, the joint venture known as Advanced Haemotechnologies will be located at the Surgimedics facility in The Woodlands. Sam Danna has been named president and Lucas S. Gordon serving as its executive vice president. Funding for completing commercialization of this technology will be provided by Surgimedics while all other technology related assets will be contributed by Biodynamics.

DEERFIELD BEACH, FLA. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Devcon International Corp. (NASDAQ: DEVC) announced today that it has acquired the assets of Tortola Concrete Products, Ltd., the largest ready-mix concrete and aggregates business in Tortola, British Virgin Islands.

Donald L. Smith Jr., Devcon chairman and president, said the transaction involved approximately $2.5 million in a combination of cash, a note and assumed liabilities. He added that, pursuant to consulting and employment agreements, management compensation will be based, in part, upon future profits of the acquired business.

Smith said, "This acquisition reflects our continuing strategy for growth of our concrete and related products operations in the Caribbean." Earlier this year, Devcon expanded into St. Maarten, Netherlands Antilles, where the company acquired the largest producer of ready-mix concrete, concrete block and aggregates. Also in 1990, the company established a ready-mix concrete and cement operation in the independent island nation of Dominica.

He pointed out that revenues of the Tortola operation are currently running at an annual rate of approximately $3 million. Smith said that present management, which has guided Tortola Concrete Products for the past six years, will continue to be involved in the operation of the business. "Together, we are in a strong position to participate in what appears to be a period of increasing development for Tortola," he said.

Devcon operates ready-mix concrete, aggregate, concrete block and bulk cement facilities and performs harbor dredging and other heavy construction work in the Caribbean. Principal operations are on St. Thomas and St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands, on the independent island nations of Antigua and Dominica and on St. Maarten, Netherlands Antilles. NEW YORK (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Noise Cancellation Technologies Medical Systems, Inc. (NCTM), today received the approval of Siemens Medical Systems, Inc. (Iselin, N.J.), to sell its active noise quieting system for use with the Siemens MAGNETOM(TM) Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) systems. MRI is a non-invasive imaging technique that utilizes a powerful magnet and radio waves to provide physicians with cross sectional images of the body. NCTM/MRI is the first and only active (electronic) noise canceling system available for use with MRI scanners.

"The approval from Siemens represents a significant expansion of the marketplace for our product and is already facilitating the nationwide installation of the NCTM/MRI system into clinics with Siemens MRI scanners," said Irene Lebovics, NCTM president.

The NCTM/MRI system reduces noise inside the MRI scanner by as much as 20 dB. Patients experience an average 70 percent reduction in perceived noise, a noise level comparable to that of a relatively quiet living room.

Christopher Ruebeck, MR product manager for Siemens said, "The NCTM system was approved by Siemens as an accessory product sold directly to MRI installations."

Within the scan room itself, the NCTM/MRI system uses no metal parts that would interfere with the MRI magnet; a plastic headset is worn by the patient. Outside the scan room, the computer controller analyzes the MRI noise and generates "anti-noise" -- a noise wave opposite to the offending MRI noise. The "anti-noise" is projected back through the headset to combine with the unwanted noise causing the cancellation of both noises.

The NCTM/MRI noise canceling system is configured for both fixed and mobile sites. The system is available directly from NCT at a price of $24,990.

NCTM, Inc., is a subsidiary of Noise Cancellation Technologies, Inc. (NASDAQ: NCTI), a world leader in active noise and vibration abatement. The company owns worldwide patents for the process and application of active noise and vibration cancellation to a variety of industries. NCT is headquartered in Stamford, Conn., with research and development facilities in Linthicum, Md., and a European base in Cambridge, U.K.

Siemens Medical Systems, Inc., headquartered in Iselin, N.J., is a leading U.S. supplier of advanced medical electronic, therapy and diagnostic imaging systems.

#90305p2341 11/01/1990 ~PR Newswire

MALVERN, PA. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Aloette Cosmetics Inc. (NASDAQ: ALET) today announced a 5 percent increase in net income for the nine months ending

Sept. 30, 1990, to $2.7 million or 91 cents per share, as compared to $2.5 million or 87 cents per share, for the same period in 1989.

Year-to-date revenues increased 26 percent to $18 million vs. $14.3 million in 1989.

Net income for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, decreased 12 percent to $710,000 or 24 cents per share, vs. $806,000 or 27 cents per share for the comparable 1989 period. Third quarter revenues advanced 35 percent, to $5.9 million from $4.4 million.

Increases in shipments to domestic franchises of 15 percent were offset by a decline in international shipments. Revenues from the Canadian operations were adversely impacted by a weakening of the Canadian economy as a publicly acknowledged recession resulted in decreased consumer spending. Canadian net product sales fell slightly short to 1989's third quarter results, totalling $1.8 million for the three months ending Sept. 30 as compared to $1.9 million for the same period last year. This, in conjunction with Aloette Canada's contribution of only 87 percent of quarterly projections and Spectrum Cosmetics contribution of only 77 percent of quarterly projections, resulted in a 10 percent reduction in projected quarterly earnings per share. Based on the sales trend experienced in Canada over the past few months, the company said it expects fourth quarter international sales to be flat or slightly under last year's levels.

In addition, income for the quarter was impacted significantly by the dilutive effect of the newly acquired manufacturing companies as the actual costs of goods sold at both facilities exceeded management's projections. Although the company implemented strong cost containment programs at both facilities late in the third quarter, management said it does not expect to realize any significant improvements before the end of the year.

President and chief operating officer, John E. Defibaugh, commented, "Although we are disappointed with our third quarter results, the integration of Aloette's product line at the manufacturing facilities is nearing completion. As a result, we are in a position to aggressively solicit new business at these levels. This new business in conjunction with the cost containment measures instituted at our manufacturing facilities and continued focus on increasing the productivity levels of our core business will enable us to regain the operating margins previously experienced by Aloette."

Aloette Cosmetics, a franchisor, direct marketer and manufacturer of skin care products and cosmetics, is headquartered in Malvern. As of Sept. 30, the company's products were being sold by more than 100 franchises worldwide.

PITTSBURGH (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Alcoa (NYSE: AA), USAir (NYSE: U) and Connie Portis, a Pittsburgh publisher, will be honored by the Pittsburgh Regional Minority Purchasing Council (PRMPC), it was announced today.

Alcoa and USAir are being cited for innovative support for local minority owned businesses. Portis, the president and publisher of Renaissance Too Publications, is to receive the PRMPC's Minority Business Enrepreneur Award.

The awards will be presented at PRMPC's Annual Appreciation Luncheon which is co-sponsored with the Pittsburgh Business Resource Center (PBRC), an affiliate of the PRMPC. The luncheon will be Wednesday, Nov. 14, at the Pittsburgh Hilton and Towers Hotel, Downtown.

Pittsburgh Mayor Sophie Masloff will give opening remarks at the luncheon. The keynote speaker will be John V. Milantoni, president of Equitable Gas Co.

Announcing the awards, John H. Adams, executive director of the PRMPC, said:

"Alcoa and USAir earned this honor through consistent, diligent and innovative support of minority owned businesses in the Pittsburgh area. They contribute significant corporate resources to establishing and implementing close, hard-working relationships with minority-owned businesses. From the work of companies such as Alcoa and USAir, minority owned enterprises have grown, in size, diversity and expertise, to levels unimagined 15 years ago."

Adams said the number of local companies on the PRMPC's qualified vendor list has grown from 133 in 1973 to 500 in 1990. Annual sales of the listed companies have increased from $41 million in 1985 to $92 million in 1989.

Adams added: "This is clear evidence that local minority owned businesses significantly benefit from their membership in PRMPC and their listing on its qualified vendor list. Our annual awards program is intended to honor outstanding involvement and accomplishment among institutions and individuals who help to make those benefits possible."

Citing Alcoa's accomplishments in minority supplier development, Adams said that in the 12 months ended June 30, 1990, Alcoa's purchases from some 625 minority owned businesses across the United States were a record $52.3 million nearly double those of 1985. He also cited Alcoa's sponsorship in 1989 of a quality awareness symposium for 43 minority businesses as an example of the innovation the company has shown in developing its minority owned vendors.

For USAir, Adams said beyond its active role in seeking minority owned vendors for its needs, the airline has provided free travel to support events sponsored by the PRMPC, and has offered special fares to participants in the council's regional trade shows and to council members traveling to other parts of the country.

Portis is being honored, Adams said, for her tireless efforts to bring to the attention of the City of Pittsburgh, and the total business community, an awareness of the existence of local minority owned businesses and the importance of doing business with them.

UPPER DARBY, PA (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Bell Savings Holdings Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: BSBX), the holding company parent of Bell Savings Bank PaSA, announced today a loss of $1.4 million or 56 cents per share for the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

This compares to net income of $646,000 or 26 cents per share for the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

According to Nathaniel D. Gross, president of Bell Savings Holdings Inc., net interest income before provision for loan losses declined to $5.1 million for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, from $7.7 million for the same period in fiscal 1990, a $2.6 million or 34 percent decrease in the company's core operations.

"The deterioration in our interest earning portfolio has had a dramatic impact on net interest income. Collecting on non-performing loans and improving the overall quality and composition of our loan portfolio continues to be a top priority and the key to returning our company to profitability," Gross said.

Consistent with its business plan, the company has slightly reduced its asset size. Total assets decreased $50 million, or 5.4 percent, to $867 million at Sept. 30, 1990, from $917.2 million at June 30, 1990. The decrease is primarily attributable to a sale of loans held for resale and reduced loan originations, supported by a decrease in deposits pursuant to a more conservative pricing strategy.

Despite the quarterly loss of $1.4 million, Bell exceeds the tangible capital requirement by $1.6 million, but falls short of the risk-based and core capital requirements by $26.7 and $7.8 million, respectively. Bell's amended capital plan, which provides for a return to capital compliance within the next several years, was submitted to the Office of Thrift Supervision on Oct. 15, 1990.

MONTREAL (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE Domtar Inc. (NYSE: DTC) today reported a net loss for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, of $31 million (Cdn) or $0.47 (Cdn) per common share compared to net earnings of $60 million or $0.59 per common share in the corresponding period of 1989. The continuing operations incurred a net loss of $60 million or $0.81 per common share compared to net earnings of $51 million or $0.49 per common share in the first nine months of 1989 due to more unfavorable market conditions for all business lines. Sales from continuing operations for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, declined by 7 percent to $1.79 billion. An operating loss of $7 million was incurred compared to an operating profit of $128 million for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Earnings from discontinued operations for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $29 million or $0.34 per common share compared to $9 million or $0.10 per common share in the same period of 1989, including a net gain of $21 million from the sale of the majority of assets of the salt business on March 30, 1990, and the sale of a specialty chemicals subsidiary, Clough Chemical Inc., on June 22, 1990.

In the third quarter of 1990, a net loss of $22 million or $0.29 per common share was incurred compared to net earnings of $9 million or $0.07 per common share in the same period of 1989 due to lower operating results for all business lines. Sales from continuing operations in the third quarter of 1990 declined by 10 percent to $574 million and an operating loss of $4 million was incurred compared to an operating profit of $32 million in the third quarter of 1989. In light of the continuing weakness of the overall economic environment, including the high Canadian dollar, as well as the specific industry environments for the corporation's business lines, results in the fourth quarter of 1990 are expected to continue to be unfavorable and may decline further from the level in the third quarter.

Sales of fine papers in the third quarter of 1990 at $201 million were essentially unchanged from the same period in 1989 as the impact of increased shipments from Windsor was offset by the effect of lower selling prices and a higher proportion of export sales. Operating profit for the fine papers business declined to $8 million from $13 million in the third quarter of 1989. The decline in profitability was due to the lower selling prices, the higher proportion of export sales and higher depreciation expense for Windsor, partially offset by the impact of the higher shipments and improving productivity efficiencies at Windsor.

Sales of market pulp, newsprint and groundwood specialty papers in the third quarter of 1990 decreased by 14 percent to $110 million. Operating profit was reduced to $3 million from $13 million due to lower selling prices for market pulp, newsprint and groundwood specialty papers as well as lower shipments of market pulp as a result of the more unfavorable market conditions as the industry enters a cyclical downturn.

Sales for the packaging business in the third quarter of 1990 declined by 11 percent to $103 million. Operating profit was reduced to $2 million from $11 million due to the weaker market conditions for corrugated containers in Canada which reflected a general downturn in the economic environment combined with a continuing escalation of market share competition, including competitive pricing pressure from U.S. imports.

In the third quarter of 1990, sales of construction materials products declined by 19 percent to $160 million. An operating loss of $12 million was incurred compared to a break-even position in the same period of 1989, primarily due to the unfavorable market environment for gypsum board resulting from continuing industry overcapacity and a downturn in market demand caused by reduced construction activity.

TULSA, OKLA (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Parker Drilling Co., (NYSE:PKD) today announced it has been awarded four helicopter-rig drilling contracts in Myanmar, a country formerly known as Burma. These contracts, one of which calls for the construction of a new drilling rig, will be operating by the third or fourth quarter of fiscal 1991.

Robert L. Parker Jr., president and chief operating officer, said that the contracts are significant in that outside drilling contractors have not operated in Myanmar for several decades. "Largely because of Parker's helicopter transportable rig technology, we received the first four contracts awarded to outside drilling contractors," said Parker.

All of the contracts call for Parker to provide drilling services in remote areas of the country. "Myanmar is thought to contain large reserves of undiscovered oil," explained Parker, "and for the most part, the country's infrastructure is undeveloped. It is the ideal market for our patented helicopter transportable rigs," he added.

One of the contracts, with Amoco Myanmar Petroleum Co., calls for Parker to build a new drilling rig for a two-year drilling program in the northernmost concession granted by the government. "The AT-2000E (trademark) SCR electric rig represents the newest generation of Parker heli-rig technology," said the company's president. It will be built at Parker Technology Inc., or Partech, the company's research and development and manufacturing facility in Odessa, Texas, he added.

The other contracts call for similar exploratory drilling programs. Those customers include Broken Hill Petroleum, an Australian firm, and Idemitsu Myanmar Oil Exploration Co., a Japanese oil company. The first contract for Parker was awarded by Korean-owned Yukong Limited. Parker's TBA (trademark) Rig 225, which had completed a successful drilling program for Texaco in Brazil, has been transported to Myanmar and is set to begin drilling Yukong's concession, also located in the northern part of the country.

Parker is a worldwide oil and gas drilling contractor with operations in 15 countries. The company is headquartered in Tulsa.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Speaking on behalf of the glass container industry, Lewis D. Andrews Jr., president of the Glass Packaging Institute, today applauded McDonald's decision to drop its plastic burger box.

"McDonald's has recognized that its plastic foam boxes are not recyclable. That is consistent with the closed-loop definition for recycling: to be truly recyclable a material can be made into the same product again and again, never entering the waste stream.

"Plastic foam containers can never be part of a closed-loop recycling process like glass," said Andrews.

According to Andrews, approximately 30 percent of every glass container now made in the United States comes from recycled glass and the industry is working hard to improve that percentage.

The Glass Packaging Institute is a Washington-based trade association representing the nation's glass container manufacturers.

TOMS RIVER, NJ (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Statewide Bancorp (NASDAQ-NMS: STWB) announced today the retirement of Richard D. Sutton 65, chairman of the board of Statewide and its main subsidiary, The First National Bank of Toms River, effective Dec. 31, 1990.

Sutton, who was appointed to the respective boards in 1970 and has served as chairman of Statewide and First National since 1978, stated, "I believe that now is the appropriate time for my retirement since the current management team led by President and CEO Douglas E. Johnson has made remarkable achievements in addressing the problems that have beset this bank for the past year. The earnings reported for this quarter, the multimillion-dollar reductions in expenses, the reorganization of the bank along more efficient lines, the upgrade in staffing and the administration of the loan portfolio, among others, have demonstrated to me that the bank is in very capable hands."

He continued, "However, I plan to remain involved with the bank after Jan. 1, 1991, in that I will become emeritus chairman and will offer advice to management in the areas of business development, government, community and shareholder relations, legal matters and regarding the present loan portfolio. I look forward to the challenges that lie ahead."

In conjunction with this announcement, the board of directors appointed William Barlow to the board. Barlow also was selected to succeed Sutton as chairman effective Jan. 1, 1991.

Commenting on this appointment, Sutton explained, "It was with a deep sense of personal pride that I proposed Bill Barlow be appointed to the board and to succeed me as chairman. I was very fortunate in being able to hire Bill in January of this year as special projects officer, reporting directly to me. I assigned him to address many of the problems the bank was encountering, but especially related to the loan portfolio. Bill has made numerous contributions to the achievements attained by the bank since his employment. Additionally, his invaluable experiences gained from over 35 years of being involved in the banking industry fully warrant today's appointments."

Barlow, who retired after 30 years with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, last as supervisor of the New York Field Office, and five years of bank consulting work, will report to Johnson.

Johnson reflected, "With Bill's vast background and the many accomplishments he has realized, Bill brings a very valuable dimension to this organization which I am confident poises Statewide for a recovery from its present problems and enables it to return to previous levels of growth and earnings in the future. Though Bill's appointments are subject to review by the bank regulatory agencies, they have expressed their support for these appointments and I do not anticipate any reason for declining them."

Johnson and Barlow added, "We acknowledge that the near term may continue to be marked by unsatisfactory performance levels because of the present economic trends and an underachieving loan portfolio. However, Statewide still considers its mission to deliver a full range of financial products in the retail, commercial and wholesale markets prices and delivered at a reasonable cost and with extraordinary personal service. Our commitment to the communities we serve does not diminish. Loans will continue to be available to meet the needs of Statewide's customers which include the commercial and residential construction industry."

Statewide Bancorp also announced today earnings for the third quarter of $6.6 million, or 66 cents per fully diluted share, compared with $1.6 million, or 16 cents per fully diluted share, for the same period in 1989. Despite the negative impact on earnings due to the high level of non-performing loans, Statewide posted core pre-tax earnings of $300,000. The balance of the reported earnings are attributable to gains recognized on the sales of loans offset by onetime charges against earnings for severance packages.

During the third quarter, Statewide finalized the sales of both credit card and home equity loans. In July, $26.8 million of credit card receivables were sold to Mellon Bank. A net gain of $4.3 million was recognized at that time. Under the agreement, Statewide's subsidiary banks will continue to offer Mastercard and Visa cards as a "B" bank. On Sept. 27, 1990, $84 million of home equity loans were sold to Pittsburgh National Corporation. A net gain of $3.3 million was recognized at that time. The loans will continue to be serviced by The First National Bank of Toms River, the principal subsidiary of Statewide, under a separate servicing agreement entered into at the time of the sale.

As previously announced, Statewide eliminated 22 positions during the third quarter as part of an expense reduction program. Severance packages offered to those employees totaling $1.3 million were currently expensed, thereby reducing third-quarter results. It is anticipated, however, that the annual savings will exceed $1.6 million.

In his remarks concerning the earnings, Johnson stated, " The impact of all the expense reductions and revenue enhancements have not yet been fully realized, and I am therefore confident that earnings will continue to improve in the future."

Non-performing assets totaled $173.7 million at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $84.2 million at Sept. 30, 1989, an increase of 106.2 percent. During the three-month period from June 30, 1990, to Sept. 30, 1990, non-performing assets increased $32.9 million or 23.3 percent. The increase in the third quarter is primarily attributable to two credits which had been identified at June 30 and factored into the level of reserves established at that time. Subsequently, management determined that placing the loans on a non-accrual status was appropriate although they had been performing according to terms up to that point.

The allowance for loan losses stood at $72.3 million at Sept. 30, 1990, vs. $13.3 million one year earlier. The allowance currently covers 50 percent of non-performing loans and management considers this to be a satisfactory level based on current conditions in the loan portfolio and in the local economy.

The provision for possible loan losses was $1.2 million for the third quarter of 1990, down from $5.2 million for the same period in 1989. Net charge-offs were $4.4 million in the current quarter vs. $1.1 million one year ago. In commenting on the level of reserves, Johnson stated, "By taking the action to increase the levels of the allowance during the second quarter, Statewide was able to return the quarterly provision to a normal amount in spite of the higher charge-offs and higher levels of non-performing assets. These situations had been identified and were reflected in the second quarter provisions."

The corporation's primary capital-to-asset ratio, as defined by the Federal Reserve's current capital adequacy guidelines, was 7.13 percent. This exceeds the minimum ratio of 5.5 percent currently required. As of Dec. 31, 1990, new regulatory guidelines covering risk-based and leverage ratios will become effective. If the risk based ratios were in effect at Sept. 30, 1990, Statewide would not satisfy the minimum requirements. The corporation is currently pursuing a number of alternatives including a previously announced downsizing of the organization in an effort to meet the new minimum requirements.

BOUND BROOK, NJ (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Hosposable Products, Inc. (NASDAQ: HOSP), today reported net income of $313.2 thousand, or $.19 per share, on revenues of $4,352.5 thousand for its third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990. This compares with net income of $148.6 thousand, or $.13 per share, on revenues of $4,198.3 thousand in last year's comparable quarter.

The results of the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, are a net income of $726.2 thousand, or $.54 per share, on revenues of $14,240.7 thousand. In the comparable period last year, net income was $309.8 thousand, or $.27 per share on revenues of $12,925.0 thousand.

The weighted average number of common and equivalent shares used in the third quarter per share figures were 1,612.8 thousand in 1990 and 1,151.4 in 1989. The increase in shares reflects the exercise of certain employee stock options and the purchase of 229,288 shares by Wyant and Company Ltd. (a Canadian corporation) in July of this year.

"A more profitable product mix coupled with stable raw material prices contributed to the 110 percent increase in net earnings in the third quarter. While the weighted average number of common and equivalent shares increased 40 percent from the prior period, earnings per share increased 46 percent," commented Leonard Schramm, president and chief executive officer.

Schramm stated that he is optimistic that the continuing improvement in product mix will enhance operating results.

Hosposable Products, Inc., manufactures and distributes disposable incontinent products to the medical/surgical market. They also produce a wide range of non-woven fabrics utilizing the latest "air-laid" technology.

BALTIMORE (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Stainless Corp. today announced net income for the third quarter of 1990 of $.4 million on sales of $44.5 million compared with net income of $3.0 million on sales of $48.4 million for the same period in 1989.

For the first nine months of 1990 Eastern earned $3.2 million on revenues of $139.6 million compared to net income of $12.7 million on revenues of $167.7 million for the same period a year ago.

According to its president, Robert C. Rubino, "Eastern's results for the third quarter have been impacted by lower selling prices for stainless plate products resulting from a slowdown in the economy." He added that the company expects the current reduced margins on stainless plate products to be offset somewhat by shipments from its newly refurbished stainless sheet facilities which are expected to increase over the next few months.

SAN FRANCISCO (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Shell Oil Co. unveiled the oil industry's first retail methanol fuel dispenser in San Francisco today at a service station on Geary Boulevard and Cook Street. Shell will market the fuel , a mixture of methanol and gasoline, as part of a 10-year program to study "M85". The program is being conducted in partnership with the California Energy Commission (CEC).

The blend of 85 percent methanol and 15 percent unleaded gasoline can be used by fuel-flexible vehicles throughout the Bay Area. "We join the Energy Commission in learning more about M85," said Q.P. Graves, vice president, Shell Refining & Marketing Co. "We believe that by working together, we can help find out more about methanol's cost-effectiveness, potential consumer acceptance and toxicity risks.

"Through this program, we want to work with the Commission to see if methanol is part of the answer to the air pollution issue," Graves said.

To obtain the M85 fuel, drivers of fuel-flexible vehicles will use a cardlock, similar to a credit card, to activate the electronic dispenser and charge the transaction. Approximately 1,000 methanol- fueled cars, trucks and buses are on California's highways, and more than 5,000 are forecast to be in use by 1992. Many of these vehicles are in governmental and company car fleets.

Fuel flexible vehicles (FFVs) can function on fuel alcohol -- both methanol and ethanol -- unleaded gasoline, or any combination of these fuels. The vehicle's on-board computer automatically adjusts to the fuel mixture being delivered to the engine, and a driver needs only to choose the available fuel to put into the car's fuel tank.

Shell is purchasing the M85 fuel directly from the Energy Commission for dispensing at designated service stations. Under the current demonstration program, Shell is slated to have four such service stations in California. Another one began operations in Valencia this summer.

To gain firsthand knowledge of the fuel's performance, selected Shell employees are driving FFVs. Two vehicles are being used in the car fleet at Shell's Wilmington Manfacturing Complex near Los Angeles, and the remaining vehicles are being used by sales teams who drive some 30,000 miles a year. A total of ten FFVs are involved in the test.

Shell joins four other oil companies participating in California's alternative transportation fuels demonstration program. In cooperation with the Energy Commission, the five oil companies are prepared to install and operate up to 69 methanol pumps in California by 1992. Currently 21 methanol pumps are operating in the state.

DALLAS (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Comstock Resources Inc. (NASDAQ: CMRE) announced the status of its ongoing development of its 54,000 acre Bivins Ranch lease located in Moore, Potter, Oldham and Hartley Counties, Texas. To date, Comstock has eight wells fully completed and producing in lower non-engineered zones. An additional 45 wells have been perforated and acidized and are currently scheduled for fracture treatments and will be brought into production during the month of November. Comstock has scheduled 83 wells to be completed in Blocks 1 and 2 by the end of 1990 with the remaining 15 wells located in Block 3 scheduled for completion in the first quarter of 1991 when a gas pipeline connection should be available. Average daily production is currently 85 barrels of oil per day and 1,300 mcf of gas per day which will increase substantially by Nov. 30, 1990 as the 45 new wells are brought on line.

The majority of the wells are being completed in lower zones which were not engineered with proved reserves. Current production and test results on the non-engineered lower zones indicate an average of seven to 10 barrels of oil and 20 to 30 mcf of gas per well per day is being contributed by the lower zones. Comstock estimates that these lower zones could contribute a total of 581 to 830 barrels of oil and 1,660 to 2,490 mcf of gas per day by the end of 1990. In addition, Comstock began testing the engineered upper zones in 10 wells late last week.

Earnings per share for the quarter reflect 4 cents related to a California regulatory decision permitting a subsidiary to recover revenues lost due to mandatory water rationing.

Revenues for July through September increased by 8 percent over those of a year ago despite the fact that water sales volume remained at the weather-depressed level of last year, according to company president James V. LaFrankie. "Summer rainfall over most of the areas served by the company's subsidiaries was about 15 percent above normal this year," LaFrankie said, "just as it has been in 1989." Operating expenses were 5 percent above those for the quarter last year. Income deductions, primarily interest on funds borrowed, increased by 15 percent over those for the quarter a year ago.

Net income to common stock for the nine months through September was $40.4 million, or $1.33 a share, compared with $40.1 million, or $1.32 a share, for the period last year.

On Oct. 26, a Massachusetts jury awarded the company compensation for assets taken by the town of Grafton in 1988. The decision, which is subject to appeal, if upheld, will provide net income of about $3 million.

American Water is the nation's largest investor-owned water supplier. Its subsidiaries serve about 5 million people in 20 states.

HOUSTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Bolstered by higher than normal electric sales from hot summer weather, increased deferrals and non- recurring income, Houston Industries Incorporated (HI) today reported improved earnings for the third quarter and 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990. Consolidated earnings were $209.2 million or $1.64 per share for the third quarter of 1990, up from $141.2 million or $1.12 per share for the third quarter of 1989. Consolidated earnings for the first nine months of this year were $277.9 million or $2.19 per share, compared to $283.1 million or $2.28 per share for the same period in 1989. For the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990, HI reported consolidated net income of $408.2 million or $3.22 per share, compared to earnings of $330.3 million or $2.69 per share for the same period last year.

The improvement in HI's earnings for the third quarter and the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990, resulted primarily from increased earnings at Houston Lighting & Power Company (HL&P), HI's electric utility subsidiary. HI's year-to-date earnings declined primarily because last year's earnings for the same period reflected a gain from the sale of HI's oil and gas assets.

HL&P reported income after preferred dividends of $219.7 million for the third quarter of 1990, up from $157.7 million for the third quarter of 1989. HL&P's earnings for the first nine months of 1990 were $316.2 million, compared to $306.5 million for the same period in 1989. For the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990, HL&P's earnings were $447.0 million, including $70.3 million related to the settlement of a 1982 rate order, compared to $345.5 million a year earlier.

The increase in HL&P's third quarter earnings resulted primarily from a 7.3 percent increase in kilowatt-hour (KWH) sales, reflecting the impact of this summer's unseasonably warm weather, and the recording of additional deferrals related to the South Texas Project (STP) authorized as part of HL&P's recent rate decision. Residential sales climbed 11 percent, while commercial sales and industrial sales increased by 5.2 percent and 5.6 percent, respectively. In June of this year, the Public Utility Commission of Texas granted HL&P increased electric rates and authorized the use of deferred accounting for STP Unit 2 retroactive to its commercial operation date of June 1989. In addition concurrent with the implementation of new rates, HL&P began recording a deferred return associated with its investment in STP Unit 1 not reflected in rates. Additional revenues resulting from the higher electric rates were substantially offset by increased operating expenses.

HL&P's earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were favorably impacted by the factors discussed above. KWH sales for the first nine months of this year were 3.1 percent higher than sales for the same period in 1989. However, year-to-date earnings for 1990 were negatively impacted by approximately $29 million due to the write-off of certain costs of STP and other effects of regulatory decisions in HL&P's general rate case in the second quarter.

KBLCOM Incorporated (KBLCOM), HI's cable television subsidiary, reported a loss of $18.0 million for the third quarter of 1990, an improvement of $2.1 million over the same quarter in 1989. For the nine and 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990, KBLCOM experienced losses of $56.7 million and $73.1 million, respectively, compared to $56.2 million and $57.8 million for the same periods last year.

Improvements in KBLCOM's third quarter results are primarily related to higher revenues and improved profit margins. The increased loss for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990, related to the cable systems acquired in March of last year. Results for the nine and 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1989, include only seven months of operations of the acquired systems.

Utility Fuels, Inc. (UFI), HI's coal supply subsidiary, reported earnings of $7.8 million for the third quarter of 1990, compared to $9.4 million for the same period a year earlier. UFI's net income for the nine and 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $27.3 million and $39.0 million, respectively, compared to $28.7 million and $37.5 million for the same periods last year.

BOSTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - IBM (NYSE: IBM) Chairman John F. Akers today told an audience of high school and college educators that business has committed to a 10-year effort to thoroughly reform the U.S. educational system and help reach the educational goals set by President Bush and the nation's governors.

Speaking at the College Board National Forum here on the role of business in American education, Akers said, "Weakened education means a weakened work force, weakened international economic competitiveness, a weakened U.S. standard of living, and a weakened democracy. Business is prepared to do whatever it can to help."

Akers described the 10-year commitment of The Business Roundtable -- 200 chief executive officers of major U.S.-based corporations -- to stimulate education reform. Akers serves as chairman of The Business Roundtable's Education Task Force.

Nine Essential Components

Akers outlined for the audience nine essential characteristics of a successful education system identified by The Roundtable's Education Task Force.

Those nine components are:

-- The system reflects four underlying assumptions: all students in a culturally diverse society can learn both basics and high-order skills; we know how to teach all students successfully; curricula must reflect high expectations; every child needs an advocate.
-- The system should be judged by the results it achieves.
-- Standards against which the system is assessed should be strong, and there should be effective ways to measure against those standards.
-- Schools should receive rewards for success, assistance to improve and penalties for failure.
-- Each school's staff should have a strong voice in running that school, including selecting its personnel, setting its curriculum and writing its budget.
-- A major emphasis should be placed on staff development.
-- A high-quality pre-kindergarten program should be established, at least for all disadvantaged students. This would include full funding for Head Start.
-- Health and other social services must be sufficient to reduce significant barriers to learning.
-- The system should make constructive use of technology to raise the educational productivity of both teachers and students.

DEERFIELD, ILL (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Gaylord Container Corporation (AMEX: GCR) had a net loss of $23.2 million, or $1.47 per share, for fiscal 1990 ended Sept. 30, 1990 compared with net income of $39.4 million, or $2.48 per share, for fiscal 1989. Net sales for fiscal 1990 totaled $718 million, down from $746 million a year earlier. Operating earnings declined to $41.4 million in fiscal 1990 from $113.5 million in fiscal 1989.

Commenting on fiscal 1990, chairman and chief executive officer Marvin A. Pomerantz said, "While fiscal 1990 was a difficult year, we did complete the final major components of our three-year, $300 million capital investment program. A new recovery boiler and a new state-of- the-art linerboard machine were installed at our Bogalusa, La. mill, and we rebuilt the largest linerboard machine at our Antioch, Calif. mill. Down time, production disruption and higher depreciation expense associated with these projects contributed to the loss for the year. We believe, however, that the increase in productive capacity and improved product quality resulting from the program will enhance our competitive position over the long term."

Pomerantz added that results were also adversely affected by lower product prices, higher fiber costs and an increase in net interest expense compared with the prior fiscal year.

The company had a net loss of $5.8 million, or $0.38 per share, for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 compared with net income of $10.1 million, or $0.63 per share, a year earlier. Net sales increased to $202 million in the fiscal 1990 fourth quarter, up from $192 million in the year-ago quarter. Operating earnings, however, declined to $13.1 million compared with $30.7 million. The fiscal 1990 fourth quarter was a 14-week period compared with 13 weeks for the fiscal 1989 fourth quarter.

Pomerantz noted that mill production will be adversely affected in the first quarter of fiscal 1991 compared with the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 because the fiscal 1991 first quarter has one less week in the period and because of down time taken at both the Bogalusa and Pine Bluff, Ark. mills for routine maintenance.

BALTIMORE, (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Baltimore Gas and Electric Co. customers with electric hot water heaters will be offered the opportunity to receive a $16 annual credit on their electric bills thanks to an energy-saving initiative unveiled today.

The new program involves the placement of a control switch on residential electric hot water heaters. This switch will allow BG&E to automatically switch off the electricity to the heaters for no more than six hours at a time. These service interruptions, limited to a maximum of 12 times a year, will enable BG&E to better manage electrical use during periods of peak demand.

In return, BG&E customers will receive a $16 credit, divided into $4 increments reflected in June, July, August and September bills, respectively.

This latest initiative is part of BG&E's highly successful Energy Manager Program. The other key part of this program is the installation of control switches on heat pumps and central air conditioners. To date, more than 80,000 BGE&E customers have these radio-controlled devices installed. In return, they have received a $40 annual credit on their bills.

"It's important for our customers to remember that they will still be able to use the hot water that's left in the tank when power is initially shut off," said Ed Skoglin, manager of Marketing & Energy Services for BG&E. "In many instances, the effect will go unnoticed."

Installation of the switch is free and normally made weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. For more information, call BG&E Marketing & Energy Services Department at 800-666-5183.

Energy Manager is just one part of BG&E's Conserve 2000 program. Conserve 2000 is a comprehensive 10-year conservation and load management program intended to increase the energy efficiency of homes, offices and factories in Maryland. Its goal is to provide BG&E's customers with environmentally clean and affordable power now and in the 21st Century.

Elements of Conserve 2000 include various rate options, such as curtailable service, stand-by generation, and time of use metering. Other elements include cool storage options, efficient lighting promotion, low-interest financing for energy saving improvements and extensive educational information.

WASHINGTON, (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - International and intercontinental ownerships and development of media operations are the surest way to foster freedom of the press worldwide, Allen H. Neuharth told a group of 125 European and American news executives here today.

"We all should be less afraid of being fleeced by foreign investors and more receptive to being fed and nourished by them," Neuharth told a conference of the Center for Strategic and International Studies at the Gannett Foundation Freedom Center here.

"Freedom ought to mean free choice. Those choices should be made by the public, not by governments. In this age of instant global satellite communications it is essential that the air waves belong to the people, not to the politicians," Neuharth said. He cited two barriers that should be broken:

-- Government prohibition in the U.S.A. of ownership of television or radio stations by anyone not a citizen of this country.

-- Government-owned and controlled television and radio in Western and Eastern European countries.

"While international barriers to print media are less restrictive than in the electronic area, there is a mindset among some media people themselves against 'foreign' investors. That's wrong.

"There are no longer any 'foreigners.' We are all neighbors in a huge global village. The developing free market economy worldwide and a totally free press are absolutely dependent on each other," he said.

Neuharth, who is chairman of the Gannett Foundation, founder of USA TODAY and former chairman of the Gannett Company, likened the psychological international barriers to those which existed between states and regions in the U.S.A. a decade or two ago.

"Tunnel thinking then decried The New York Times Company buying newspapers in California; Times-Mirror of Los Angeles acquiring East Coast newspapers; the Tribune Company of Chicago moving into Florida and Gannett expanding nationwide.

"The truth is that the resources and vision of those companies and others brought better information products to readers and viewers across the U.S.A. The same will happen as we break down barriers country to country and continent to continent and welcome the expertise and resources of others," Neuharth said.

"I am delighted at the foresight of Robert Maxwell, Rupert Murdoch and others in making media investments in Eastern Europe as soon as the walls came tumbling down," he added.

Neuharth saluted the Eastern European journalists especially the underground press, for helping end government control of the flow of information, but warned against any temptation to substitute "journalistic arrogance."

"All of us are naturally eager, sometimes overeager, to exercise new freedoms. The emerging free press in Eastern Europe must remember the mission is to search for the truth, with fair and balanced reporting. Of course, we should offer the public a wide range of opinions, but we must not substitute our own opinions for those of the government in our news columns or broadcast news reports."

The Gannett Foundation recently released a report on the state of press freedom in Eastern Europe. The report, "Emerging Voices: East European Media in Transition," details findings of a Gannett Foundation fact-finding task force mission in Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia, and offers recommendations for assistance.

Neuharth announced that the Gannett Foundation has appropriated $10 million for 1991 to foster First Amendment freedom programs in the United States and around the world.

"Foundations can help and so can forms of government assistance. But in the end, the most important ally for a free press is the free-enterprise system. That's why we must break down barriers to globally oriented media companies," he said.

The Gannett Foundation is dedicated primarily to supporting national and community programs that foster the First Amendment freedoms of press, speech, assembly, petition and religion and the free exercise thereof by and for all peoples; secondarily to encouraging innovative programs and meeting needs that contribute to a better life in a free society.

The foundation, of Arlington, Va., is the nation's largest information-oriented foundation, with 1989 year-end assets of nearly $650 million. It spent about $30 million on grants, programs and operations in 1989.

HOUSTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - In a speech today before the Greater Houston Partnership, Continental Airlines (AMEX: CTA) Chairman, President and CEO Hollis Harris said that Continental is now paying $70 million more per month for jet fuel than it did before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

"Continental, along with the rest of the industry, is being burned by astronomical fuel costs and the recessionary movement of the economy. This is a devastating combination for all airlines which are watching their options narrowed by these incendiary economic forces," said Harris.

Harris noted that the price of domestic jet fuel has climbed from an average of 57.5 cents a gallon to as high as $1.28, an increase of 125 percent.

"The airline industry is now faced with an annualized $10 billion increase in fuel bills and a projected loss of more than $1 billion for the fourth quarter - a loss greater than the industry has experienced in an entire year."

Harris expressed confidence in Continental's ability to adjust to "the unprecedented circumstances facing the industry. I believe very strongly in the long-term strength and potential of Continental, and in our ability to survive this short-term crisis in a way that does not mortgage our future. Nevertheless, I have no allusions about the prospect of making some tough decisions as Continental charts a course through these troubled times so that we may resume our progress of becoming a world-class, global airline," said Harris.

Harris said his optimism for Continental's future was based on several factors including Continental's recent service enhancements, its new image campaign, its valuable assets, and its ability to manage the current crises by adopting fuel efficiency measures and streamlining operations.

"Once this crisis abates and the fuel market returns to normalcy, our newly developed image and service campaign will be fully deployed and the public will be hit with a broadside of new image and service enhancements that will make Continental tough to beat."

On the subject of possible asset sales, Harris said, "Should it become necessary to sell certain routes, slots, subsidiaries or other operations to raise cash we will do so in the context of our long-term objectives for the airline. We are prioritizing away from asset sales or any move that will hurt our people."

On the subject of streamlining operations Harris added, "We will streamline operations by identifying under-utilized flights and trimming service in a way that will not effect the level of our customer service.

"These will not be easy decisions to make, but they are the right ones, and Continental will emerge from these troubled times. Of course we will need the city's help. Just as Continental stood by Houston during the Texas downturn, we will need you to stand by us as we face the challenges ahead. On behalf of the 37,000 members of the Continental team, and especially the 14,000 here in Houston, I want to thank Houston and the partnership for your support, and I ask that the travelling public fly with us," concluded Harris.

EVERETT, WASH. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Nearly two years of pressure tests on a pair of 747s have enabled the Boeing Commercial Airplane Group to set structural inspection requirements for 747 operation beyond original economic design goals according to engineers who conducted the test.

Everett Division engineers told 747 operators gathered in Seattle recently that the exhaustive tests produced two clear benefits for operators of the world's largest commercial jet: New inspection guidelines and verification of a redesign used in the 747D400.

"First, we feel that the tests verified areas that need detailed inspections and enabled us to define how often the inspections are needed to detect and deal with the effects of operating the plane beyond its original economic design goal which is 20,000 long range flights," said Ed Pottenger, Chief Design Engineer, Structures.

The findings stemmed from pressure tests conducted on a 747-100SR (Short Range) model purchased from Japan Airlines after it had accumulated the equivalent of 20,000 long range flights. A flight is a takeoff, pressurization, depressurization and landing. Pottenger said that variation of pressure inside the fuselage as the plane changes altitude keeps the passengers comfortable. "The stresses produced by the changes in pressure causes structural fatigue," Pottenger said.

Boeing subjected the 747-100SR to an additional 20,000 full pressure cycles (as would be experienced in a long range flight), stopping every 1,500 cycles to conduct detailed inspections of pressure-critical structure for signs of damage.

"Basically, there were no surprises," said Kyatsandra Gopinath, Boeing Everett Division structures engineer who supervised the tests. "The cracks occurred where we expected them and grew pretty much as we thought they would."

He said selected cracks were not repaired once detected so that test engineers could monitor their growth patterns.

"With the results of our tests on the 747-100SR, we can define directed structural inspections at specific times past the 20,000 cycle design goal," Gopinath said. Pottenger added that the inspection team is working on a way to incorporate the new inspections into existing fleet maintenance and inspection schedules.

The second benefit of the tests was the confirmation of redesign work of the nose section and some unique features of the newest version of the 747, the 747-400. Pottenger d? Gopinath explained that on early model 747s, the structure of the nose section experienced pressure-related cracking.

Boeing feels the fatigue test complements the primary airworthiness assurance task force programs designed to ensure the continuing safe operation of aircraft beyond the economic design goal.

The first of these are the Federal Aviation Administration Airworthiness Directives requiring mandatory structural modifications produced earlier this year. This will be followed later this year by an additional Airworthiness Directive addressing corrosion prevention and control maintenance programs. Also important are the routine scheduled fleet maintenance and other inspection programs performed on a periodic basis.

PHILADELPHIA (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Philadelphia Electric Co. (NYSE: PE) announced today that it has entered into an agreement with the Paksi Atomeromu Vallalat (PAKS), an agency for the government of Hungary, for a two-year exchange of information and visits between PE's nuclear group and personnel from the PAKS nuclear plant.

The agreement was formalized today in a signing ceremony in Atlanta between PE Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Joseph F. Paquette Jr. and PAKS General Manager Jozsef Ponya.

The agreement follows an exchange of visits earlier this year between Paks personnel and PE's Limerick Generating Station staff.

International sharing of nuclear power operating experience is fostered by the World Association of Nuclear Operators (WANO) which has its U.S. headquarters in Atlanta. WANO was formed following the Chernobyl Plant accident, to enhance the safe operation of commercial nuclear power on a worldwide basis.

Paquette said, "PE was a charter member of WANO and we feel very strongly that face to face sharing of experience and knowledge will enhance the record of safety in nuclear power throughout the world."

"Our earlier exchange visits with the staff of the well managed Paks plant were so productive for both parties that we are looking forward to continuing cooperation. Nuclear power will increase in importance as concerns for air quality and oil supply continue to be major international issues," Paquette said.

Under the agreement, periodic visits will be made by managers, technicians, and engineers to share information about a wide range of topics. The exchange, to include technical and scientific information along with observation of activities at each other's facilities is expected to lead to improved methods and performance for both companies in operating and maintaining their nuclear plants.

SALT LAKE CITY (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Recomp Inc., a subsidiary of Bonneville Pacific Corp. (NASDAQ: BPCO) and Battelle, Pacific Northwest Laboratory (PNL) have entered into an agreement granting Recomp exclusive rights, in the U.S. and Canada, to develop Battelle's process for converting incinerated waste ash into glass. This agreement will result in the construction and operation of the nation's first commercial ash glassification plant.

According to John T. Dunlop, president and CEO of Recomp, "Our companies have joined forces to develop a new technology that will convert ash residue, left after incinerating municipal solid waste, into glass for use as an aggregate in construction. Converting ash to glass prevents leaching into the water system and polluting of the air. We will be turning waste into a useable resource and benefit the environment," L. Don Williams, associate laboratory director of PNL commented, "This agreement permits the transfer of this important technology, developed by PNL, to the application of one of the nation's leading environmental problems -- waste processing."

This new technology will be demonstrated at Recomp's - Bellingham, Wash. facility, consisting of a 250 ton per day tranfer station and municipal waste incinerator. A state-of-the-art, acid-gas scrubber was recently installed, and incineration of 100 tons per day of municipal solid waste is accomplished in a clean and efficient manner. Construction of a 100 ton per day composting facility will be completed in the Spring of 1991. These improvements will make Recomp of Washington the first privately-owned, fully-integrated recycling, composting and incineration facility in the United States.

Recomp, the nation's leading municipal solid waste composting company, handles approximately 600 tons per day of municipal solid waste at its four facilities.

The Pacific Northwest Laboratory, located in Richland, Wash. is a U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) National Laboratory operated by Battelle, one of the nation's leading research institutions. The DOE and Battelle have pioneered the use of glass for the treatment of high level wastes and the in-situ treatment of contaminated soils.

Recomp and PNL have teamed together to make this environmentally sound, energy efficient facility a model for waste processing facilities of the future.

DENVER (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T announced an 18 percent decrease in rates for 800 READYLINE calls made during the day-time in Colorado. Also, for the first time these rates will be reduced even more for calls made in the evening and on nights and weekends.

READYLINE makes it cost-effective for small businesses to have an 800 number on their regular business telephone line without adding new lines or equipment.

The company said READYLINE rates for evening calls will decrease by about 27 percent and night and weekend rates will decrease by about 30 percent.

"The cost of an in-state five-minute READYLINE call made during the day decreases from $1.43 to $1.18 with this rate cut," said Neil Hinchman, AT&T state government affairs vice president.

The company said rates for its 800 MASTERLINE service will also decrease. Rates will go down by 21 percent on day-time calls, decrease by almost 31 percent on evening calls and by about 35 percent on calls placed at night and on weekends. The cost of an in-state five-minute MASTERLINE call made during the day decreases from $1.30 to $1.02. The 800 MASTERLINE service is for businesses large enough to require a dedicated access line for 800 service.

"We are decreasing these rates in order to have a more attractive offering in this very competitive service area," Hinchman said. "We want to encourage 800 users to take advantage of AT&T quality at rates that keep them competitive too."

PHILADELPHIA (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - CIGNA Corp. (NYSE: CI) today reported third quarter 1990 consolidated net income of $11 million ($.15 per share), including several after-tax charges aggregating $98 million ($1.30 per share), compared with $146 million ($1.81 per share) a year ago.

For the nine months of 1990, consolidated net income was $211 million ($2.74 per share), compared with $378 million ($4.64 per share) for the same period last year.

The after-tax charges of $98 million included in the third quarter and nine month 1990 results relate to the previously announced domestic property and casualty field office consolidation ($59 million, $.78 per share), withdrawal from the personal automobile insurance market in Massachusetts ($22 million, $.29 per share) and costs related to the integration of EQUICOR ($17 million, $.23 per share). In the third quarter and nine months of 1989, results included after-tax losses associated with Hurricane Hugo of $90 million ($1.15 per share) and an $81 million ($1.03 per share) gain from the sale of Horace Mann.

Third quarter 1990 net income includes after-tax realized investment gains from continuing operations of $1 million ($.01 per share), compared with $35 million ($.44 per share) in the third quarter of 1989. For nine months, the after-tax realized investment gains were $10 million ($.13 per share) in 1990 and $53 million ($.67 per share) in 1989. Net income for the third quarter and nine months of 1989 included $82 million ($1.04 per share) and $104 million ($1.32 per share) from discontinued operations (principally the Horace Mann companies) which were sold in August 1989.

"Overall results were unsatisfactory for the third quarter, in part reflecting charges aggregating $98 million for property and casualty initiatives and the EQUICOR integration," noted Wilson H. Taylor, CIGNA chairman and chief executive officer. "Our employee benefits, pension and individual life businesses all were strong contributors to earnings. Property and casualty results, however, continue to reflect inadequate industry price levels," he added.

Referring to the recent publicity surrounding the quality of insurance company mortgage loan and real estate investments, Taylor noted that, "At CIGNA, problem loan experience has not had a significant impact on profitability. CIGNA's financial position remains strong and, assuming no protracted difficulties in the economy, I believe we can continue to manage our mortgage loan and real estate investments to avoid major financial problems in our portfolio," Taylor concluded.

Income from continuing operations for the third quarter, excluding after-tax realized investment results, totalled $10 million ($.14 per share), compared with $29 million ($.33 per share) in 1989. For the nine months of 1990, the totals were $201 million ($2.61 per share), compared with $221 million ($2.65 per share) in 1989.

Assets at the end of the third quarter were $61.9 billion, up from $57.8 billion at Dec. 31, 1989. Shareholders' equity was $5.1 billion ($69.77 per share) at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $5.5 billion ($70.59 per share) at Dec. 31, 1989.

KANSAS CITY, MO. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Cerner Corp. (NASDAQ: CERN) today announced that for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, revenues increased 5 percent to $12.9 million from $12.3 million. Net earnings decreased 22 percent to $761,000 from $980,000 for the same period in 1989. Earnings per share decreased 8 percent to $.24 per share from $.26 per share.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, revenues decreased 3 percent to $37.1 million from $38.2 million in the comparable 1989 period. Net earnings decreased 26 percent to $1.7 million from $2.3 million in the year-ago period. Earnings per share decreased 23 percent to $.48 per share from $.62 per share.

Clifford W. Illig, president and chief operating officer, stated, "Even though our quarterly and year-to-date results have fallen short of expectations, we are pleased with the progress Cerner has made this year. While we suggest our shareholders continue to use conservative expectations for Cerner's earnings for the remainder of 1990, we see encouraging trends ahead."

Illig continued, "First, we are seeing somewhat higher activity levels in the market for laboratory systems than we had seen earlier in the year. Second, customer and market interest in our RadNet radiology and PharmNet pharmacy information systems products has recently intensified and we now expect both products to make significant contributions to company revenues in 1991. Third the recurring revenue stream associated with servicing our installed base of clients continues to grow each quarter. Fourth, our ProNet patient/order management and CareNet nursing information systems are making excellent progress, with ProNet expected to contribute to revenues in mid-1991 and CareNet in late 1991. Finally, most importantly, we are seeing increasing evidence that hospitals are interested in purchasing total clinical information systems packages."

Illig added, "We believe Cerner is in a strong competitive position to take advantage of this trend as all of our products are designed around the proprietary Healthcare Network Architecture (HNA) which allows each clinical information system to be used in conjunction with other Cerner clinical information systems. We expect the pace of purchases to pick up as hospitals increasingly come to terms with the economics of bringing computer applications to clinical care. In today's environment where the critical challenge is to reduce costs while managing the quality of care, the automated medical record is essential. Looking forward, we believe the large investments that Cerner has made over the last few years, in the development of new systems for clinical care, should soon begin to be reflected in the company's results."

Cerner Corp. is a leading supplier of clinical information systems to the health care industry. All Cerner systems are designed around a central structure called Healthcare Network Architecture (HNA). Through HNA, Cerner is able to delivery application software products that first and foremost serve the unique needs of each clinical discipline, while allowing unprecedented management and cross disciplinary medical applications. Cerner offers products to a broad marketplace including hospitals, HMOs, clinics and reference laboratories.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - At 4 p.m. EST today, Susan F. Krause, senior deputy comptroller for bank supervision policy, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), declared Trinity National Bank, Benbrook, Texas ("Bank"), insolvent and appointed the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) as receiver.

The bank has been a matter of concern to the OCC since 1988. Problems developed as the result of liberal underwriting practices, poor loan administration, and lax supervision by management and the board. Deterioration in the local economy added to the problems and worked against recovery. Eventually, losses mounted and the bank's equity capital funds were exhausted, resulting in insolvency.

The bank received a national bank charter on May 30, 1984. As of Sept. 30, 1990, the bank had total assets of approximately $21 million.

The FDIC is expected to release additional information later today.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - R.H. Macy & Co., Inc. announced today that, as part of its previously stated intention to move aggressively to reduce debt and interest expense, the company plans to sell up to $150 million of additional equity to its existing outside investors and that its four largest shareholders have committed to purchase a minimum of $100 million of the offer.

Those who have committed to purchase additional equity include GE Capital, Loews Corporation, Mutual Series Fund and Taubman Investment Co. or their affiliates.

Macy's intends to use the proceeds of the new equity investment to purchase its subordinated debt, from time to time, in the open market, in privately negotiated transactions or otherwise.

"This is another important step in our on-going debt reduction program," said Edward S. Finkelstein, chairman and chief executive officer. "The proceeds should enable us to take advantage of attractive market opportunities to buy back additional subordinated debt. Moreover, this solid support from our largest shareholders speaks eloquently to their commitment to Macy's future.

"In the coming months, we expect to report further actions we are taking to reduce our debt. It is important to note that, despite mistaken reports to the contrary, Macy's has ample liquidity to meet all of its obligations. Although the retailing environment is sluggish, we have successfully implemented our plans to reduce inventory, maintain planned gross margins and prudently lower expenses without damaging Macy's ability to serve its customers. The opportunity to improve our balance sheet provided by this offering is part of our commitment to the company's long-term vitality."

Macy's has been pursuing a debt reduction program that has, thus far, included: the sale, in August, of a 1 percent equity interest, the proceeds of which were used to purchase $50 million of Macy's high yield bonds; the proposed sale of a former Bullock's office building, the proceeds of which will be used to pay down senior debt; and in mid-October, an agreement in principle for the sale to GE Capital of Macy's credit card finance subsidiaries for approximately $100 million. The proceeds of that sale, when completed, will be used to further reduce the company's debt and interest costs. The sale will also remove approximately $1.5 billion of debt from Macy's balance sheet.

This press release does not constitute an offer to sell, nor a solicitation of offers to buy, any securities of Macy.

MINNEAPOLIS (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Nash Finch Company (NASDAQ: NAFC) today reported increased revenues and net earnings for the fiscal third quarter and 40 weeks ended Oct. 6.

Total revenues for the 16-week second quarter were a record $755.4 million, a 7.6 percent increase over revenues of $702.0 million in the same quarter of 1989.

Net earnings for the quarter rose 15.9 percent to a record $6.9 million, or $.63 per share, compared with $5.9 million, or $.55 per share, in the third quarter last year.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - COMSAT Aeronautical Services announced today that flight crews on international flights can now, for the first time, access a commercially available satellite data communications service for such time-sensitive communications as flight-plan updates, weather reports, air traffic control information, and aircraft engine and airframe system monitoring.

The new service, never before commercially available to aircraft, is provided by COMSAT over a low-speed data link through the company's two newly equipped ground earth stations in Connecticut and California and is transmitted via Inmarsat satellites.

In late September the service was put to the test on a United Airlines flight between San Francisco and Hong Kong, which was the first operational use of the satellite-based data communications (satcom) system. Cockpit data services are being provided to United by Aeronautical Radio, Inc. (ARINC), which integrates its existing aeronautical radio services with its new satellite service called GlobaLink. ARINC obtained the satellite capacity and ground station services from COMSAT for the test.

"This low speed data service is only the beginning of the aeronautical services COMSAT will deliver to aircraft in the near future," said Dr. Elizabeth Young, vice president, COMSAT Aeronautical Services.

"By early next year, COMSAT will offer two-way voice services, and high-speed data services will be available for the cockpit and passengers by mid-1991," she said.

When fully operational, COMSAT's aeronautical services will allow private aircraft and commercial airlines to utilize voice telephony, electronic messaging, facsimile and personal computer file transmission. The company recently announced an agreement with Sony Trans Comm to provide airlines with a news and information service, called FlightNews. COMSAT also recently entered into an agreement with GTE Airfone to provide a satellite link for that system to allow passengers to make telephone calls while in international flight.

"Aircraft will still utilize VHF and HF communications, especially in domestic flights," said Dr. Young, "but our new aeronautical satellite services will provide aircraft on iernational flights superior communications that were previously unavailable and provide them with additional security and higher quality and reliability," Dr. Young said.

COMSAT Mobile Communications, based in Washington, is a division of the publicly traded COMSAT Corporation (NYSE: CQ) and provides aeronautical, maritime and international land mobile communications to customers around the world through its Inmarsat ground earth stations, located in Southbury, Conn., and Santa Paula, Calif.

Approximately 20 domestic and international paper mills are in various stages of testing and production trials with our products in quantities ranging from 12 to 15 ton truckloads to a 55 ton railroad tank car. Typically a 5 gallon quantity is used in laboratory analysis while the larger quantities are for actual commercial paper machine runs which can last as long as a week. It is important to note that although small in quantity, Norplex(TM) 604 is being used in the actual manufacturing of commercial coated paper and board. In fact, this letter is printed on paper currently being used for an actual production run of an internationally distributed weekly magazine and demonstrates the successful replacement of conventional pigment with our Norplex(TM) 604.

Commercial, bulk shipments have now been made to several LWC- (lightweight coated) paper mills and paper produced with Norplex(TM) 604 has been sold for the printing of national publications such as "Time," "Newsweek" and "Sports Illustrated."

Particularly exciting is the expanded potential for the high value Norplex(TM) 604 in not only LWC paper but also in the recycled coated board industry. Extended mill trials of coated board requiring commercial quantities of Norplex(TM) 604 are ongoing and achieving the same success as with LWC paper. These mills manufacture coated board for packaging of food and beverage products such as cereal boxes, etc.

The paper industry has subjected our high-bulking composite pigment products to more rigorous evaluation than was originally anticipated and their laboratory tests and production trials have taken longer than expected. This is not surprising, upon reflection, in that we have created a unique technology. It should be noted that the paper producers which comprise the market for Norplex(TM) operate high speed paper machines which, at approximately 3,000 feet per minute, manufacture paper products of very high market values. Accordingly, the paper industry is extremely cautious when making any alterations to their process formulations. Thus far, however, we have received extremely favorable response to their integration of Norplex(TM).

We believe that more substantial commercial orders will soon follow these initial orders and, based on this product acceptance, we can look forward to reaching our original production goals. More specific timing is difficult to predict as there are many variables in the approval process by the paper industry.

There is no question that the costs of developing, testing and marketing Norplex(TM) continue to significantly impact Nord's earnings, but this sacrifice of short-term results for the substantial longer term benefits is essential. Nord Kaolin is in a transitional state from being just a commodity producer to becoming a state-of-the art specialty pigment company.

I know that you have been concerned about our progress with Norplex(TM) and the current political and economic events that have negatively affected worldwide financial markets and our share valuation. We have been no less concerned, but we have never doubted the potential for commercial success of Norplex(TM). Thank you for your continued loyalty and patience."

Very truly yours,
/Edgar F. Cruft/

DES MOINES, IA (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. (NASDAQ: PHYB) has acquired, for cash, substantially all of the assets of Allelix Crop Technologies (ACT) of Mississauga, Ontario, Canada.

ACT is internationally known for its work in the field of agricultural biotechnology, especially in the development of hybrid canola, a major oil seed crop.

According to Charles Johnson, Pioneer senior vice president for North American Operations, the acquisition fits into the company's strategy for oilseed development and marketing.

''ACT has a very good foundation of breeding material and a highly developed research program producing superior canola varieties and hybrids,'' said Johnson. ''The addition of these resources, both in biotechnology and traditional breeding, will give Pioneer a new world-wide position in this competitive crop.''

Through contract research with major food companies, including Frito/Lay, ACT has been developing specialized canola and other products.

''This acquisition is a superb fit for our Specialty Plant Products Division '' continued Johnson. ''S.P.P. is a new division of Pioneer engaged in developing, producing and marketing crops that have traits valuable to end-users and processors. The addition of ACT is a big plus for that group. Additionally, ACT has established a marketing presence, here in the Southeastern United States. That effort will continue and undoubtedly will help Pioneer establish itself in the expanding canola seed market.''

The president of ACT, Dr. Jeremy Gawen, said his company had been looking for new capital investment for some months and had attracted the attention of a number of international seed and food companies. ''We're delighted to be joining the Pioneer group which has had considerable resources here in Canada, since 1946,'' Dr. Gawen said.

Gawen and the rest of the management staff of ACT will continue in their present duties. The company will continue to operate from its Canadian locations in Mississauga and Georgetown, Ontario.

ACT was founded in 1983 as a part of Allelix Inc. and became a separate business in 1988. The company generates revenues from contract research and seed sales, but the bulk of its funding to date has come from its major shareholders, NOVA Corporation of Alberta, John Labatt Limited and the Ontario Development Corp. Pioneer does not expect the acquisition to have an immediate material impact on earnings.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. was established in 1926 and is headquartered in Des Moines, Iowa. Conducting business in more than 60 countries, it is the world's largest agricultural genetics research company. It develops, produces and markets hybrid seed corn, sorghum, sunflowers and varieties of soybeans, alfalfa and wheat as well as microbial products for inoculation of crops and livestock. Pioneer also develops and markets business information products and services for farmers. Through its Specialty Plant Products division it develops, produces and markets crops with traits valuable to processors and end-users.

NEW ORLEANS (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Avondale Industries Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: AVDL) today reported third quarter and nine months results in line with the projections released by the company last month.

For the third quarter, Avondale reported a net loss of $19.9 million, or $1.33 per share, compared with income of $217,000, or $0.01 per share, a year ago. The company's third quarter performance resulted in a net loss through the nine months of $19.5 million, or $1.27 per share, vs. net income of $3.5 million, or $0.23 per share, in the year-earlier period.

As the company previously announced, the third quarter results included a pre-tax charge of $31.5 million relating to increases in the estimated costs to complete two shipbuilding contracts with the U.S. Navy. Albert L. Bossier Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said that the charge more than offset operating profit of $7.5 million from Avondale's other activities during the quarter. After deducting $1.9 million of net interest expense, the company reported a loss before ESOP contribution and income taxes of $25.9 million for the third quarter. A net ESOP contribution of $6.2 million and income tax credits totaling $12.2 million brought the net loss of $19.9 million for the third period. For the nine months, the company reported a loss before ESOP contribution and income taxes of $12.5 million. After an ESOP contribution of $18.8 million and income tax credits of $11.8 million, the net loss for the nine months was reported to be $19.5 million.

Bossier said, "We will now be completing both these contracts on essentially a break-even basis. Although our work on other projects is generally progressing well, the third quarter results have led us to conduct a close review of Avondale's overall operating costs. We have consistently emphasized being a low-cost operator but believe that additional savings can be realized that will further strengthen our fundamental competitive position."

Avondale Industries Inc., headquartered in metro New Orleans, is one of the nation's leading marine fabricators. In addition to its shipbuilding operations, the company specializes in boat and LCAC construction and is a major repair contractor for commercial and Navy ships. It is also involved in the modular construction of plants and components for a variety of land-based industries.

SUNRISE, FL (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Jan Bell Marketing, Inc. (AMEX: JBM) today reported slightly increased sales and reduced earnings for the third quarter, in line with expectations.

Net sales were $36 million as compared to $35 million in the 1989 third period. Net income amounted to $1.1 million, or $.05 per share, versus $2.9 million, or $.15 per share, in the year-before quarter.

For the nine months of 1990, net sales totaled $90.6 million, up from $86 million a year ago. Net income was $4.1 million, or $.18 per share, versus $7.2 million, or $.38 a share, at the 1989 three- quarters mark.

The 1990 earnings per share reflect increases in weighted average shares outstanding of 14 percent for the third quarter and 18 percent for the nine months as a result of a public stock offering in October 1989. The 1989 per-share profits have been adjusted for a 50 percent stock dividend issued July 1989.

Rosemary B. Trudeau, vice president-finance, said the reduced third-quarter earnings reflect an increase in SG&A expenses as a percentage of sales to about 8.7 percent from 3.8 percent in the year-ago period, although down from 9.9 percent in the past second quarter. This year's increased SG&A is due to higher costs associated with a number of new customer programs being launched, and greater depreciation and amortization charges connected with the company's new headquarters and operations center.

Test programs of Jan Bell's "store-within-a-store," power formats, launched in the second quarter with new generation of supermarket and drug superstores, were expanded in the third quarter, and some further expansions are slated for the fourth period.

This month, seven more Smith's Food & Drug centers will be added, bringing to 14 the number of units in the Jan Bell-Smith's test program in the inter-mountain region. In November, too, three more Cubs stores in Minnesota will be added, in addition to two Cubs launched in the third quarter. Jan Bell is also starting in 10 Drug Emporium centers in Ohio, Georgia and Pennsylvania, and three Stop & Shop units in New England in this closing quarter.

Jan Bell also announced that it is entering into a long-term agreement to develop and operate a fine jewelry and watch department in 92 Charming Shoppes mostly in the Northeast, which will finish being rolled out this month. In addition, Jan Bell is developing under a joint venture agreement with Charming Shoppes, a women's specialty retailer, a special fine and watch catalog, with the first issue to be mailed early this month.

Jan Bell is a leading provider of fine jewelry to the value-conscious consumer through power-format marketing programs to distribution channels that emphasize quality, credibility and consistent value.

DALLAS (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Halliburton Co. (NYSE: HAL) today reported that its earnings for the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990 were 31 percent higher than its earnings in the 1989 third quarter. Net income increased to $55.4 million, or 52 cents a share, as compared to $42.4 million, or 40 cents a share, in last year's third quarter.

Net income in the 1990 third quarter reflects three items of special note which, on a combined basis, reduced net income by $2.0 million, or 2 cents a share, in the quarter. The three items were: (1) a provision for expected losses by the company's oil field services and engineering and construction services business groups as a result of recent events in Iraq and Kuwait; (2) higher than expected assessments by the Texas Workers' Compensation Assigned Risk Pool to the company's insurance services group; and (3) profit recognized on the sale of marine construction assets, which substantially offset the losses of the other two items.

For the nine month period ending September 30, 1990 the company's net income was $138.7 million, or $1.30 a share, a 59 percent increase compared to the first nine months of 1989 when net income was $87.5 million, or 82 cents a share.

The oil field services group's revenues increased to $756.0 million in the third quarter of 1990, 22 percent above revenues in the 1989 third quarter. The quarterly average worldwide rotary rig count increased by seven percent compared to last year's third quarter. The group's revenues grew faster than the rig count due to a combination of factors including stronger demand for workover services in the United States. The group's third quarter 1990 operating income increased to $78.8 million, 32 percent higher than last year's third quarter. Third quarter 1990 operating income was reduced $11 million by provisions for expected losses with respect to operations in Iraq and Kuwait. Last year's third quarter operating income benefitted from an $8 million gain from the sale of excess assets.

The engineering and construction services group's revenues increased 25 percent to $959.0 million as compared to the third quarter of 1989. This growth was largely attributable to increased activity in the group's petrochemical, forest products, marine and maintenance services business units. Operating income for the quarter was $11.8 million, a decline of about 31 percent as compared to the third quarter of 1989. However, third quarter 1990 operating income reflects an $18 million provision for expected losses in Iraq related to receivables from construction projects completed before hostilities commenced.

The company's insurance services group had an operating loss of $10.1 million in the third quarter of 1990 reflecting a much larger than expected assessment from the Texas Workers' Compensation Assigned Risk Pool and generally poorer underwriting results of the company's Highlands Insurance Co. subsidiary. The assessment, which covered the assigned risk pool's loss experience in years prior to 1990, was $7.9 million greater than expected. Underwriting results in other lines of business were hampered by inadequate industry pricing and high levels of losses. An unusually high number of natural catastrophes over the past year has been a major cause of such losses. Highlands continues to closely manage its underwriting activities and a return to profitability is expected in the fourth quarter of 1990. The asset structure of the group is strong. Its investment portfolio does not include real estate related investments or junk bonds. The portfolio consists almost entirely of investment grade fixed income securities.

Halliburton Co. is one of the world's largest diversified oil field services, engineering and construction companies. Founded in 1919, Halliburton provides oil field services and products, industrial and marine engineering and construction services, and property and casualty insurance services.

ST. PAUL. MN. (NOV. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Zeos International, Ltd. (NASDAQ-NMS: ZEOS) today reported record sales for the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990.

Net sales for the quarter totaled $34,061,977, representing a 235.4 percent increase over the third quarter of 1989.

Net earnings for the company's third quarter of 1990, totaled $883,054 or $.28 per share on a fully diluted basis. Net earnings were impacted by one-time payments for patent-related issues and promotional expenses for the Zeos 386SX portable, the projected ship date for which has been delayed until December. On-going royalty charges in the current quarter impacted the company's gross margin percentage but were partially offset by reduced costs attributable to the early effects of ongoing improvements in operating efficiencies and reduced component costs.

Demand for the company's new line of transportable products is expected to increase substantially during the fourth quarter. The company's newly introduced 286 Notebook has been well-received by the marketplace and is expected to contribute significantly to the company's anticipated fourth quarter sales growth. Demand for the Zeos 386SX and 386DX based desktop systems also remained strong in the third quarter.

CALGARY, Alberta (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Interhome Energy's (Toronto: IHE) earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $104.4 million, or $2.63 per share, up 23 percent from the $85.0 million, or $2.15 per share, before an extraordinary gain in 1989. Pipeline earnings increased 11 percent from the same period last year, primarily due to an improved contribution from the Canadian Main System. Earnings from oil and gas operations rose 48 percent as a result of higher crude oil prices. Increased non- pipeline financing costs, largely due to higher interest rates under the oil indexed debenture, were partially offset by a favorable tax adjustment.

Cash from operations increased 8 percent to $281.2 million for the first nine months. The improved contribution from pipeline operations resulted from higher Canadian main system earnings. Higher commodity prices and increased natural gas sales enhanced the contribution from oil and gas operations.

System deliveries of crude oil and other liquid hydrocarbons averaged 1,432,000 barrels per day, a marginal decline from the same period in 1989.

Shipments were limited by a reduction in western Canadian light crude oil production and extended refinery turnarounds in eastern Canada.

Production of crude oil averaged 25,020 barrels per day, down from 26,427 barrels per day one year ago, reflecting the sale of Home Oil's international properties early in 1990. Natural gas liquids production averaged 6,553 barrels per day, a 13 percent increase from the nine month period one year ago. Natural gas sales averaged 153 million cubic feet per day, compared with 147 million cubic feet per day last year.

Additional deliveries under three new sales contracts account for the increase. In the third quarter of 1990, earnings increased 54 percent to $41.2 million, or $1.03 per share, principally as a result of higher crude oil prices. The company received an average oil price of $27.89 per barrel during the quarter.

The special committees of the boards of directors of Interhome Energy Inc. and Gulf Canada Resources Ltd. continue to evaluate the restructuring proposal advanced by Olympia & York Developments Limited in June, 1990.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Scientists have discovered a genetic defect that seems to predispose people to one type of aneurysm, a step that may help identify those prone to deadly artery ruptures, it was reported Thursday.

Researchers at Philadelphia's Thomas Jefferson University found a genetic defect that appears to cause aneurysms on a major artery in at least one family, and devised a simple saliva test for the defect in that family.

''I think it's a very important discovery,'' said Dr. M. David Tilson, a professor of surgery at Columbia University in New York. ''It's a milestone in the understanding of this problem.''

Aneurysms are a weakening and ballooning of the side of an artery wall that can eventually burst. There are many kinds of aneurysms that occur in various parts of the body, including the brain, the chest and the abdomen.

Doctors had long suspected aneurysms ran in families, but the new research is the first direct evidence of a genetic link.

''It's the first definitive identification of a gene that's probably involved in aneurysm disease in a family,'' Tilson said.

The new research dealt with one family that appeared prone to aneurysms in the aorta, the largest artery in the body. More than 15,000 Americans die each year from aortic aneurysms and an estimated 2 million are at risk for developing them.

''Our study proves for the first time that there is a genetic cause for aortic aneurysms in people who do not have any other sign of a genetic disease,'' said Dr. Darwin Prockop, who led the research. ''Our discovery means that we can identify people with aneurysms before they burst.''

A genetic disposition to the aneurysms in other families probably involves different defects in the same gene, he said. Members of other families could undergo similar study to develop tests for them, he said.

In addition, the discovery could lead to a greater understanding of the underlying cause of aneurysms overall and better ways to diagnose and treat them, said Dr. Philip Dobrin of the Hines Veterans Administration Hospital in suburban Chicago.

''Before we can start fixing things we have to know mechanisms,'' he said.

The researchers studied the genes of Michele Hegler of Houston who had five relatives who died from ruptured aortic aneurysms.

By studying genetic material from Hegler's skin cells, the researchers found one of 30,000 chemical codes was wrong in the gene that carries instructions for the production of a protein called collagen III, the researchers reported in the Journal of Clinical Investigation.

Colagen III is one protein that provides the structural foundation for many body tissues, including blood vessels and skin. The minor defect discovered in the gene is apparently enough to weaken the protein's strength in the aorta. Tests on the collagen from Hegler showed the protein was defective, Prockop said.

The researchers also studied genetic material from Hegler's mother, who died of an aneurysms in 1960, and aunt, who had several aneurysms before she died in 1986. Their genes contained the same defect, the researchers said.

Based on their findings, the researchers developed a test using cells from a teaspoonful of saliva to identify other members of Hegler's family who have the same defect and therefore are apparently at risk for developing aneurysms.

Identifying people at risk for the aneurysms alerts doctors who should be monitored carefully for development of the aneurysms so they can undergo corrective surgery before it is too late, Prockop said.

''Some of these people can be saved by surgery in which the defective part of the aorta is replaced by a synthetic aorta,'' he said.

Nine of Hegler's relatives underwent the test and four - Hegler's 15- year-old son, 17-year-old daughter, brother and half-aunt - were found to carry the defect.

''I was always concerned about my family's history of aneurysms because so many died. I often wondered whether the same thing could happen to me,'' Hegler said in a press release. ''Now that I know, my family and I take precautions.''

Her son no longer plays football and they plan to undergo tests every year to check for aneurysms.

''It's a great relief to know that these annual tests can catch the aneurysm before it progresses too far,'' she said.

Santa Monica, Calif. (NOV. 1) UPI - A girl out trick-or-treating collapsed and died of cardiac arrest, and police were treating it as a poisoning, while a boy was killed and his brother critically injured when they were hit by cars.

Police said 7-year-old Arial Katz collapsed and died of cardiac arrest about 8 p.m. Wednesday after trick-or-treating. Police said she had no previous medical problems and authorities were treating the death as a poisoning.

Tests were being conducted on her body and on the candy she had gathered. The street where the girl collapsed was sealed off by police.

In Stanton, 5-year-old Hoang Minh Le was killed and his 7-year-old brother, Thanh, was critically injured when they were hit by separate cars while trick-or-treating near Knott's Berry Farm.

The brothers were out with six other children about 6 p.m. when the group decided to cross a busy street without a crosswalk, sheriff's Lt. Larry Richey said.

They got to the middle of the street, then apparently changed their minds and tried to make it back. Hoang Le was struck by a car and killed. Thanh Le was hit by a second car and was in critical condition at UCI Medical Center.

Neither driver was charged.

Halloween brought more than one holiday tragedy to California. Police in Santa Monica are investigating as a poisoning the cardiac arrest death of a seven-year-old girl who collapsed after trick-or-treating. Tests are being conducted on the child's body as well as on the candy she had gathered.

In Stanton, California, a five-year-old boy was killed and his seven- year-old brother was critically hurt when they were hit by separate cars while trick-or-treating. Police say the boys were in a group crossing a busy street without a crosswalk. They apparently changed their minds after reaching the middle of the street and tried to run back.

In Detroit, an army of 35-thousand volunteers took to the streets for a third and final night to fight arsonists whose fires have become an unwanted tradition. Mayor Coleman Young says figures on the numbers of fires will NOT be available until a news conference tomorrow.

A political science professor at the University of Virginia does NOT think much of President Bush's political strategy. As Larry Sabato puts it- ''He gave up his NO new taxes pledge and got NOthing in return.'' Sabato says Bush damaged his own party's chances in both houses and his own in 1992.

The Republican National Committee dismisses such talk as unfounded doom and gloom. Political director Norman Cummings say congressional and gubernatorial races will be determined by state issues. Regardless, President Bush hits the road again today to campaign for G-O-P contenders in advance of Tuesday's election.

(NOV. 1) UPI - New York Rangers goalkeeper Mike Richter made the difference Wednesday night.

In a battle between the two best teams in the NHL this season, the Rangers rolled to a 9-4 victory over Los Angeles after scoring five third-period goals against two Kings goaltenders.

''It was exciting, but not quite a playoff atmosphere,'' said John Ogrodnick, who scored two goals. ''Mike Richter was the difference in the game. Of course if you get nine goals, you're going win. They could have gotten nine goals too if it weren't for Richter.''

Richter stopped 38 of 42 Kings shots to register his fifth victory of the season. The victory extended the Rangers' club record season-opening home victory streak to eight games. The Rangers have now won six in a row and 11 out of 12, giving them the best record in the young NHL season.

Rangers Coach Roger Neilson disapproves of these kind of shootout games, but praised Richter's performance.

''Our goalkeeper was outstanding and they still got four goals,'' Neilson said. ''That tells you what kind of game it was.''

Los Angeles suffered its third loss against nine victories and a tie.

''We had a bad period in the third,'' said Kings center Wayne Gretzky, who scored his 2,000th NHL point last weekend. ''They scored five goals. But those kind of things happen to every team. We'll just have to regroup.''

Elsewhere in the NHL, Boston and Buffalo skated to a 3-3 tie, Montreal defeated Hartford 4-2 and Winnipeg edged Edmonton 1-0 in overtime.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Bruins 3, Sabres 3, tie

At Buffalo, N.Y., Bobby Carpenter scored a power-play goal with 9:45 left in the third period, lifting Boston. Carpenter took a pass from Garry Galley and sent a 20-foot wrist shot under goaltender Clint Malarchuk's glove and off the far post. Rick Vaive had put Buffalo ahead 3-2 at 8:08 of the third.

Canadiens 4, Whalers 2

At Hartford, Conn., Russ Courtnall scored two goals and Patrick Roy stopped 26 shots, helping Montreal hand the Whalers their fifth consecutive loss. Denis Savard and Brian Skrudland also scored for the Canadiens, who snapped a two-game losing streak. Sylvain Cote and Randy Cunneyworth scored for the Whalers, who have not won since a 3-1 triumph at Toronto Oct. 17.

Jets 1, Oilers 0, OT

At Edmonton, Alberta, Pat Elynuik scored 23 seconds into overtime, helping Winnipeg hand the Oilers their fifth straight loss. Elynuik drilled a low wrist shot from 25 feet out that got by defenseman Greg Hawgood and went between goaltender Bill Ranford's pads. Goaltender Bob Essensa made 34 saves to earn his third career shutout.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (NOV. 1) UPI - The government Thursday clamped emergency regulations and a nightly curfew on three strife-torn black townships of Cape Town, one day after lifting special security measures in 11 others around Johannesburg.

Minister of Law and Order Adriaan Vlok said late Wednesday the shanty townships of Lingulethu, Khayelitsha, and Old Crossroads would officially be designated ''unrest areas,'' giving police wide powers of search, confiscation and arrest.

Police also would enforce a 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. curfew. ''The growing turmoil in these areas has made these steps inevitable,'' a spokesman for Vlok said.

The sprawling townships of more than 500,000 people have been rocked by internecine and anti-government violence for more than a week. In the first two days - the most serious - clashes involving police and rival residents' groups in Khayelitsha killed eight people and injured at least 36.

Police estimate scores more have been hurt. Witnesses said followers of the African National Congress, which has demanded the dismantling of apartheid-created local black town councils, sparked the fighting with attacks on the homes of councillors and council supporters.

Vlok Wednesday lifted emergency regulations in 11 townships straddling Johannesburg, citing a sharp drop in the black factional fighting which prompted the measures in late August.

But he said the special rules, imposed in 27 townships in the region on Aug. 24, would be maintained in the remaining 16 areas as they were still experiencing sporadic violence.

Pretoria imposed the emergency measures after more than two weeks of factional fighting in the Transvaal province townships killed some 500 people. But the battles continued and the major violence was only quelled after another month and 300 deaths by the introduction of the military-style Operation Iron Fist.

Most Iron Fist measures, including roadblocks, army and police patrols, and cordoning off flashpoint areas, are still in effect. One other township under nightly curfew is Toekomsrus, west of Johannesburg.

But in troubled Natal province, President Frederik de Klerk on Oct. 18 lifted a 52-month-old state of emergency. He said internecine conflict had largely tailed off but was also making a concession to the ANC.

ANC Deputy President Nelson Mandela called the whole range of emergency regulations and Iron Fist rules ''totally useless'' and said they did not address the root causes of the problem.

Government officials characterized the violence chiefly as tribal- based, between the exclusively Zulu Inkatha and the multi-tribal ANC. But Mandela said a shadowy ''third force,'' possibly backed by right wing security force elements, was fomenting the fighting.

The ANC also accused Inkatha leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi of exporting the violence from the Zulu power-base of Natal, where fighting between Inkatha and the ANC has killed up to 4,000 people since 1987.

JERUSALEM (NOV. 1) UPI - An Arab stabbed and wounded a 47-year-old Israeli Thursday in what police said apppeared to be a politically motivated attack, Army Radio reported.

Since Oct. 21, three Israelis have been killed and 10 wounded, and four Palestinians killed and three wounded in a wave of intercommunal violence. The violence has revived a debate whether Palestinians from the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip should be allowed to work within Israel.

In the latest incident, the Israeli garage owner was attacked about 6:45 a.m. in the coastal town of Rishon Le Zion. He was stabbed about 10 times. Police said they believed the assault was politically motivated, Army Radio reported.

The attacker escaped and police mounted a large search in the area, detaining about 200 Palestinians for questioning. A suspect was arrested later in the morning at a roadblock in the Gaza Strip.

Large numbers of police were moved into the area to prevent reprisals against Arab workers.

The victim, Shalom Stezi, was fair condition in Wolfson Hospital in Holon.

The stabbing came two days after a rash of attacks by Arabs on Israelis. One Palestinian was killed and two wounded when a bomb they allegedly were trying to plant in a grocery store exploded Tuesday. A second Palestinian was killed during a knife attack on the Israeli guard of an oil truck.

BANGKOK, Thailand (NOV. 1) UPI - Forces of the Vietnamese-backed Cambodian government launched counterattacks against the resistance and killed 152 guerrillas in three days this week, official Radio Phnom Penh reported.

The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok late Wednesday, said the three- part resistance coalition has escalated military actions against government troops in several areas despite what it called Phnom Penh' s efforts to settle the 12-year-old Cambodian conflict.

The resistance has said it has stepped up its battlefield activities to bring the government back to the negotiating table.

The radio said government troops on Monday launched a five-hour counterattack against the resistance in Chikreng District of Siem Reap- Oddar Meanchey Province, 138 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. It said 79 guerrillas were ''put out of action,'' including 70 killed.

On Tuesday the Khmer Rouge resistance group said it captured the district seat of Chikreng district, killing 21 government troops. There was no independent confirmation of either account of the fighting.

The government radio said resistance forces also lost 48 men killed elsewhere in Siam Reap on Sunday.

Phnom Penh troops carried out counterattacks that killed 34 resistance troops in two northern provinces on Oct. 27, it said.

''This is evidence that our armed forces always have the upper hand in the military field and have crushed all attempts of the three reactionary factions on a timely basis,'' the radio said.

The government, installed by Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia in late 1978, is fighting a three-part resistance coalition led by the Khmer Rouge who were ousted by the Vietnamese.

The resistance controls large areas in the countryside but has so far been unable to capture major populated areas from the Soviet-supplied and Vietnamese-backed government army.

NAIROBI, Kenya (NOV. 1) UPI - Rwandan troops have routed rebels who invaded the east African nation four weeks ago, pushing them back over the Ugandan border and clearing the way for peace negotiations, state-run Radio Rwanda said Thursday.

A complete rebel pull-out was the main condition Rwandan President Juvenal Habyarimana had set for peace talks with the insurgent Rwandese Patriotic Front.

Ugandan residents close to the RPF said, however, the rebels may have tactically withdrawn from the Rwandan border towns they had occupied in order to plan a new offensive.

''The majority of the rebels are hiding in the bushes not far from the towns '' said a local resident.

Earlier this week government troops had recaptured the garrison towns of Kagitumba, Muvumba, Nyakatare and Gabiro in northern Rwanda near the Ugandan border, some 45 miles from the capital, Kigali.

''Our highly-spirited troops pounded the invaders with firepower and obliterated them in fierce fighting lasting 39 hours,'' said the radio, monitored in Nairobi.

''Not a single rebel remains on Rwandan territory,'' it said.

The radio said Rwandans sang victory songs along the route taken by government troops as they returned to Kigali on Wednesday.

''People are happy that the power-hungry rebels are no longer occupying even an inch of Rwanda,'' the radio said.

The rebels, mainly armed fighters from the minority Tutsi tribe exiled in Uganda who invaded Rwanda a month ago vowing to oust the majority Hutu Government, have not commented on the government statement.

Hundreds of thousands of Tutsis fled into Rwanda's neighboring nations in the late 1950s and early 1960s to escape tribal killings and food shortages in their homes and 80,000 refugees were living in Uganda alone.

BEIJING (NOV. 1) UPI - The government said Thursday China has sustained substantial economic losses in implementing sanctions against Iraq, including $2 billion in business and undisclosed debts, but it declined to say how much was in lost arms sales.

The disclosure by the Chinese Foreign Ministry was apparently aimed at enhancing the country's image as a serious player in the effort to isolate Baghdad over its invasion and occupation of Kuwait.

China, as one of the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council, has joined with U.N. resolutions against Iraq and has steadfastly called on Baghdad to withdraw from Kuwait.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Li Jinhua, at a news briefing, said Beijing has ''earnestly implemented'' economic sanctions against Iraq and has as a consequence ''suffered considerable economic losses.''

Li said China had lost $2 billion in trade, transport, civil aviation and other business dealings. She said the figure was preliminary, and did not elaborate on whether it included agreements signed but not yet initiated.

Li declined comment when asked how much of the losses were in arms sales. China had been one of Iraq's major weapons suppliers, but suspended arms sales in the days following the invasion of Kuwait.

She said, however, the $2 billion figure ''does not include financial debt that Iraq owed to China in trade business, economic affairs and labor service.''

The amount of Iraq's debts was not disclosed.

About 5,000 Chinese laborers were believed to have been in Iraq and several thousand others in Kuwait. Most of those in Kuwait have left, but many remain in Iraq. Some of those were believed to be assisting with Chinese weapons systems delivered to Baghdad.

''China is very much concerned with the tension in the Gulf,'' Li said, repeating government calls for a peaceful settlement.

In line with China's effort to portray itself as a force for peace in the Gulf crisis, Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen is expected to travel to the Middle East within the next month, foreign diplomats in Beijing said.

One diplomat said Qian was expected to visit Saudi Arabia, Egypt and possibly Syria, although the Damascus stop was not yet final.

Although steadfastly calling for peace in the Gulf, China has dropped shrill criticism of the U.S. and other foreign military deployments in the region, which it had initially assailed by saying Beijing ''opposed big-power military involvement.''

The shift came under quiet diplomatic nudging from the United States, according to U.S. officials.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Stormy weather battered the Northwest again Thursday with snow in Idaho and Wyoming, travel advisories throughout the region and more on the way, while much of the nation enjoyed clear skies and comfortable temperatures.

A strong storm dumped up to 7 inches of snow in the Rocky Mountains as it moved down from the northwest, causing temperatures to plummet in several states.

Snow advisories were posted for the mountains of northern and western Wyoming and the mountains above 5,000 feet in northwestern Idaho and snow showers were possible in Boise, the National Weather Service said.

A moist low pressure system moving across the Rockies brought snow to the south entrance of Yellowstone park, but few travel problems were reported in the region.

Scattered showers and fog covered Seattle, where temperatures were in the 30s. To the east, snow and ice on roads in the mountains prompted warnings to drivers to use snow tires.

The storm was expected to move southeast into Colorado on Thursday, causing temperatures to plummet and bringing gusty winds to the area surrounding Denver.

To the east, dense fog covered southwest Lower Michigan, cutting visibility to several hunder feet.

Fog also blanketed Houston, Texas, and the surrounding areas and visibility was down to a quarter mile at Intercontinental Airport.

Clear skies and seasonable temperatures covered most of New England while New York City enjoyed highs in the 60s and mostly clear skies.

A strong high pressure system brought clear skies and cool temperatures to the South with lows in the 30s in some areas, but the day was expected to warm up quickly to highs in near 80 degrees.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - In a grisly tale of Halloween horror, a gang of teens - some wearing masks - stole over a foot bridge onto a small island and attacked eight homeless people in shanties, fatally wounding one man, police said Thursday.

The incident began about 9:50 p.m. Wednesday when between 10 and 12 teens headed into a wooded area on Ward's Island, a small piece of land in the East River near Manhattan, and killed one unidentified homeless man and wounded seven others.

''Some of the teens had masks on,'' said Sgt. Ed Burns. ''They went to a wooded area where several homeless people were living in a shantie- type situation and they stabbed one guy to death and several others were stabbed and beaten and removed to local hospitals.''

No arrests had been made and the case was under investigation.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) UPI - The dispatch of Japanese troops to the Persian Gulf has been stalled and may never materialize because strong public opposition has forced Japanese leaders to back away from the plan, political observers said Thursday.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu convened an emergency session of the Japanese Diet, or parliament, last month and asked lawmakers to give him the power to send non-combat troops overseas.

But strong public sentiment against deploying Japanese soldiers abroad for the first time since World War II appears to have doomed the bill.

A poll of Diet members released Thursday shows a solid majority oppose the measure. This follows several general opinion polls which show up to 70 percent of the public opposed to the plan.

Although Kaifu has not publicly said he is giving up on the proposal, several senior members of his Liberal Democratic Party admit the bill as written is dead.

Chief among them is Shin Kanemaru, a powerful behind-the-scenes leader and mentor to Kaifu, who said Tuesday the bill needs significant revision and should only be adopted as a temporary measure.

''The chance for the bill to pass is very close to zero,'' said Seizaburo Sato a political scientist at the University of Tokyo.

Masaya Ito, a political analyst and aide to former Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda said the bill would certainly not pass during the emergency session, which ends Nov. 10.

''There appears to be many disagreements and much discord within the Liberal Democratic Party,'' Ito said, adding public opposition was the cause of the trouble.

Japan has agreed to give $4 billion in financial support to the U.S.- led multinational forces deployed in the gulf after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, as well as to frontline states, but has not committed its human resources to the effort.

The United States has asked Japan to send personnel to the gulf to share in the risk the Americans have assumed. Washington has not publicly pressured Japan to send troops, saying it is up to Japan to figure out how to share the risk.

In August, the Japanese government called for 100 volunteers to join a medical team to be sent to the gulf, but only a handful of people volunteered. Eventually 17 people, including some government employees, went to Saudi Arabia in September, but most have since returned.

A poll by the Asahi Shimbun, a leading national newspaper, said of the 511 members of the lower house of the Diet, 56.2 percent oppose Kaifu's bill to allow sending the Japanese Self Defense Forces overseas.

Of the 181 lower house members who belong to the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, 49.2 percent said they support the bill without conditions. Another 14.3 percent said they support it with conditions, while those opposed to the bill said it was hastily drawn up and was not based on a national consensus.

EAST CHICAGO, IN (NOV. 1) UPI - A nun chased the ''devil'' out of a city- run haunted house where he was trying to convince children to sell their souls.

The haunted house featured a room where the devil asked children to sign over their souls while a ''lost soul'' implored them to resist.

A Roman Catholic nun, Sister Jeanne McGue of the Gary Diocese, mobilized priests to complain about the setup after she read about it in a newspaper.

''Granted, Halloween is supposed to be fun, but we have to draw the line,'' she said. ''This is not child's play.''

Parks Superintendent Richard Gomez said he closed the devil's room to avoid controversy, agreeing the idea might have been wrong for the most impressionable youngsters.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange plummeted Thursday in widespread profit-taking, sparked by uncertainties over the Persian Gulf situation and the domestic political front.

The key Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which slipped 48.30 points Wednesday, tumbled 898.94 points - or 3.57 percent - to 24, 295.16.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all listed major shares fell 61.33 points to 1,794.79.

Declines hammered advances 1,003 to only 29, while 41 issues escaped the selloff.

Trading was light as an estimated 350 million shares changed hands, down from 426 million shares Wednesday.

Brokers said the U.S. dollar's rise to the 130-yen level bolstered the market but few investors wanted to buy at higher levels.

On the Tokyo Foreign Exchange, the U.S. dollar climbed above the 130- yen level for the first time in more than three weeks amid reports U.S. officials expressed concern over its recent sharp drop.

The dollar closed at 130.70 yen, up 1.35 yen from Wednesday's close of 129.35 yen, the Bank of Japan reported.

It was the fourth consecutive gaining session for the dollar, and the closing rate was the highest since Oct. 8 when the dollar closed at 130.05 yen.

Analysts said morning and afternoon waves of index-linked selling sent all sectors lower because sharp declines in stock-index futures made it profitable to sell on the cash market.

Profit-taking was widespread, but the low volume indicated investors were not dumping, analysts said.

The dim outlook for the domestic political situation stems from poor prospects for parliamentary approval of the government's proposal to dispatch troops to the Middle East to support the U.S.-led multinational forces deployed in Saudi Arabia.

On the trading floor, constructions were sold along with large- capital steels. Shipbuildings, real estates and consumer electricals, nonferrous metals, airlines and financial issues also softened.

Foods and some textiles were among scattered gainers.

Elsewhere in Asia, stocks tumbled on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange in light trading, dragged down by escalating tension in the Persian Gulf and a sharp fall in a key banking issue.

The benchmark Hang Seng Index, which fell 20.69 points Wednesday, shed 22.22 points to 2,968.74.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 29.14 points, industrials dropped 32.08, utilities gained 17.87 and properties fell 43.42 points.

Volume continued to be thin and dominated by local traders with turnover at 716.5 million shares, down from 720 million Wednesday.

Analysts said heavy third-quarter losses by Hongkong Bank's U.S. subsidary, Marine Midland, added to pessimism already pervasive in the market over the threat of war in the Gulf. Hongkong Bank shares closed down 17 1/2 cents at $4.70. Marine Midland reported its losses had soared to $111.5 million in the third quarter.

In Singapore, stock prices fell across a broad front on the Singapore Stock Exchange for the third consecutive session, with local investors retaining their cautious stance over the tense situation in the Gulf.

The closely watched Straits Times Industrial Index, which fell 10.88 points Wednesday, lost another 20.27 points or 1.5 percent to 1,133.68.

The broader-based All Singapore Index, which lost 4.61 points Wednesday, fell 4.31 points to 315.29.

Volume amounted to around an estimated 25.9 million shares, compared with 36 million shares changing hands Wednesday.

Analysts said the fall in Tokyo following the lower closing on Wall Street also dampened spirits.

On the trading floor, Fraser and Neave ordinary shares paced the declining issues, easing 25 cents to $6.75, Singapore Land followed, falling 25 cents to $5.25 and Singapore Airlines easing 20 cents to $10.20.

Elsewhere, Jurong Shipyard added 10 cents to $4.94, Spore Fodder gained 5 cents to $1.96 and Metro Holdings added 2 cents to $3.90.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Trick-or-treating ended in death for two California children last night. Police in Santa Monica say a seven-year-old girl collapsed and died of cardiac arrest. Police say they are treating the girl's death as a poisoning. In Stanton, California, a five-year-old boy was killed and his brother critically injured when they were hit by cars while attempting to cross a street.

Devil's Night arson fires continued in Detroit last night, despite an army of police and volunteers on the streets. Mischief also took its toll in New Jersey, where Camden police made 80 arrests, including 50 youths, for setting about 25 fires in vacant lots and breaking windows. In Trenton, New Jersey, about 300 people showered police with bricks and eggs when they tried to break up a street fight.

Four teen-agers were stabbed, two of them fatally, in three incidents in the New York City subway system yesterday. Police say the latest stabbings brings the number of deaths in the subway system this year to 22. A police spokesman says this is the third time in the last 10 years that the city has gone over the average of 20 deaths a year in its subway system.

The South African government today clamped emergency regulations and a nightly curfew on three strife-torn black townships of Cape Town. The restrictions come just one day after the government lifted special security measures in 11 other black townships around Johannesburg. The legal battle over the gun used by Jack Ruby to kill Lee Harvey Oswald continues in a Dallas courtroom today. The executor for Ruby's estate testified yesterday that Ruby's possessions were worth less than 200 dollars at the time of his 1967 death. The gun that was once valued at 35 dollars is now said to be worth as much as 130-thousand dollars. Executor Jules Mayer and Ruby's brother, Earl, are fighting over the rights to sell the weapon.

South Korean President Roh Tae-woo said today that he hopes expanding trade and exchanges between South Korea and China will lead to formal diplomatic ties between the two nations in the near future. TOKYO (NOV. 1) UPI - Japan's wholesale prices in the second 10 days of October declined 0.1 percent from the previous 10 days as the yen's appreciation eased upward pressure on prices of imported goods, the Bank of Japan reported Thursday.

Prices of imported goods declined 0.9 percent from the preceding period but domestic wholesale prices gained 0.2 percent because of higher oil prices, the bank said.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) UPI - Honda Motor Co. said Thursday it has raised prices of its 1991 model autos sold in the United States as much as 2 percent due to the U.S. dollar's recent weakness against the yen.

America Honda Motor Co., Honda's U.S. subsidiary, boosted the price of its Accord four-door 2200LX model 1.1 percent to $16,025 and the Accord four-door 2200EX to $17,745, also up 1.1 percent, Honda said.

The new price for the Civic CRX 1500HF is $9,325, up 2 percent, while the Civic four-door 1600EX is to be priced at $12,075, up 1.5 percent, the automaker said.

The Prelude 4WS went up to $19,400, a rise of 1 percent. The Integra four-door 1800RS jumped 1.3 percent to $13,750, Honda said.

The dollar lost nearly 10 percent of its value against the yen during October before staging a slight rebound at the end of the month.

Honda also raised its prices when it introduced the new models in September.

AMMAN, JORDAN (NOV. 1) UPI - A top Palestine Liberation Organization official said Thursday Iraq would free all hostages if it is guaranteed there will be no military action to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis.

Yasser Abed Rabbo, head of the PLO's information department, told reporters that if Iraq receives assurances from the Soviet Union, France and China - three members of the U.N. Security Council - that war will not occur and that discussions for a political solution will begin, then all foreigners will be allowed to leave Iraq.

''All of them (hostages) would be allowed to leave if there is a clear position against war, and for the beginning of a political solution to the gulf crisis,'' Abed Rabbo said.

The PLO official, who arrived in Amman from Baghdad on Wednesday after he met with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, stressed that the two main issues the Iraqi leadership was concerned with were stopping any possibility of war and beginning ''the political process to solve all political problems in the Middle East, including the Arab-Israeli conflict.''

Abed Rabbo added that although the United States was not willing to address all the problems in the Middle East when dealing with the gulf crisis, the Soviet Union and some European countries have expressed readiness to take a ''more balanced position.''

He described Soviet envoy Yevgeny Primakov's latest mission to Iraq as successful because of ''his beginning of a political dialogue.''

''We are looking for a new substantive initiative from the Soviets or the French. We believe that Primakov will have something on his next mission to the gulf and Iraq dealing with the crisis and the Middle East problems as a whole,'' Abed Rabbo said.

''There is still a chance for a joint initiative from the Soviet Union, France and China with the support of the European Community and the non-alligned movement,'' the PLO official said.

He reiterated that any missions to Iraq that did not link the gulf crisis with the Arab-Israeli conflict and the Palestinian problem would fail.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - The plastic box long used to tote fast food from McDonald's seems to be on its way out due to environmental considerations, The New York Times said Thursday.

The plastic box, a standard encasement for fast food burgers, has become a symbol of the garbage crisis and will be phased out of use by the McDonald's Corp., the Times said.

There was no comment from officials at the company's headquarters at Oak Brook Ill., on the development, the paper said.

But, Lee Masters of Golin Harris, McDonald's public relations firm, said Wednesday the company ''plans a major news announcement'' Thursday regarding the environment.

A decision to get rid of the plastic container would be an abrupt about-face for the corporation, which for years has doggedly defended its need to use plastics for its restaurants' takeouts, the paper said.

McDonald's, which operates 8,000 fast food restaurants around the country, has maintained that the foam keeps food warm, protects it from contamination and resists grease stains better than paperboard boxes.

But environmental advocates say producing the containers generates pollutants and note the box has a useful life of only a few minutes while taking years to degenerate in a landfill.

Plastics tend to last longer in the environment than products made from paper or wood.

McDonald's has come under increased pressure as towns and cities enact bans on containers, which are not biodegradable or cannot be recycled.

RACHAYA, LEBANON (NOV. 1) UPI - Israeli aircraft raided a Palestinian guerrilla base in the Bekaa Valley of east Lebanon Thursday, scoring direct hits and wounding six people, security sources said.

Four U.S.-made F-16 Israeli warplanes dropped four rockets on a base of the Syrian-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine- General Command headed by Ahmad Jibril in the village of Majdal Balhis, 11 miles west of Syria's borders, the sources said.

The base, a two-story building, was directly hit and demolished, the sources said. Six people, including two guerrillas, were wounded, they said.

The air strike inflicted massive damage, witnesses said. They said 20 nearby houses were hit with shrapnel.

An army spokesman in Jerusalem said the Israeli planes struck at ''terrorist targets.''

''The targets that were attacked were used as bases for staging attacks against Israel,'' the spokesman said.

All the Israeli aircraft returned safely, he said.

The Israeli strike was the 16th into Lebanon this year.

On Oct. 24, Israeli aircraft raided a guerrilla missile base in the Palestinian refugee camp of Rashidyeh on the southern outskirts of the port city of Tyre, 46 miles south of Beirut.

Meanwhile, security sources in Tyre said Israeli troops expelled a Lebanese citizen along with his seven-member family from the border region after his son refused to join the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militia.

The sources said Israeli soldiers expelled Abed Al Hussein Ghanoui, 50, and his family Thursday after they demolished their house in the village of Houla inside Israel's self-proclaimed ''security zone'' along Lebanon's border with Israel.

The Shiite Amal movement said in a communique distributed in Tyre that the expulsion came after Ghanoui's 18-year-old son, Rabie, refused to join the SLA militia of Gen. Antoine Lahd.

The communique said more than 200 recruits have fled the pro-Israeli militia since the ouster of rebel Christian Gen. Michel Aoun Oct. 13 in Beirut. They joined the legitimate Lebanese Army of Gen. Emile Lahoud, the communique said.

According to officials sources, the 6,000-strong SLA militia includes about 3,000 Christians, all inhabitants of the security zone. The remaining 3,000 are Moslem Druzes and Shiites.

SLA militiamen and Israeli troops patrol the 9-square-mile security zone established by Israel after it withdrew the bulk of its invasion troops from Lebanon in 1985.

NEWARK, OH (NOV. 1) UPI - Sen. John Glenn says the effectiveness of an economic embargo against Iraq and the treatment of Americans being held in Kuwait likely will determine whether the United States goes to war in the Persian Gulf.

''That is the big $64 billion question,'' Glenn, D-Ohio, said Wednesday following a campaign rally for the state Democratic ticket. ''I think the United Nations and our support for their resolutions is going to be brought to a fruition of some kind.

Glenn said he believes chances are ''50-50'' that the United States will become involved in fighting in the Middle East.

''We are not going to get into another Vietnam,'' he said. ''I don't think the administration is going to have us bogged down there for years and years.''

Glenn said he hopes the U.S. troops won't have to attack the Iraqis, but added the embargo against Iraq has not taken hold as fast as hoped.

''That means you are saddled with waiting a little longer until they run out of some of their equipment, spare parts and things like that.''

Glenn, a decorated Marine Corps pilot in the Korean War, said forcing Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait is a factor but not the primary reason for being concerned about the Persian Gulf.

He said the industrialized world runs on oil, with up to 70 percent coming from that region.

''You cannot let any dictator, whether it be the Soviets, who we used to worry about making a run at the Persian Gulf, or now (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein, control that oil to that extent.''

The senator said he does not foresee the military draft being reinstated, but a major call-up of reserves may be needed to relieve U.S. troops in Saudia Arabia.

''This is a different kind of environment than we have fought in,'' Glenn said. ''You don't go off to have liberty in some city. It's remote, though, and out in the sand dunes. You can't leave people over there for a year.''

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - New construction spending plunged 2.8 percent in September in the worst showing since January 1982 and the last recession, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

Private analysts predicted a fall of 0.5 percent after no change in August, and the latest figures indicate the already hard-hit construction industry is far from recovery.

The 2.8 percent decline - to $428.7 billion at an annual rate and adjusted for seasonal factors - is the worst drop since a 3 percent decline in January 1982 a government spokesman said.

In dollar terms, it is the largest decline since this past April and the lowest level since an annual rate of $423.1 billion in November 1988, the spokesman said.

Total private construction tumbled 2 percent in September after sliding 2.2 percent in August, while public construction plunged 5 percent for the month after a strong 6.5 percent gain in August, according to the department's Census Bureau.

Private residential construction was off by 2.3 percent in September - somewhat of an improvement over a 4.8 percent drop in August, the government statistics indicated.

For the 12-month period from September 1989, new construction spending was down nearly 1.1 percent.

''During the first nine months of this year, $299.4 billion of new construction was put in place compared to $298.3 billion for the same period in 1989,'' the Commerce Department said.

In the private sector, spending was off on single-family homes, apartments, industrial complexes and private hospitals. It was unchanged for offices, hotels and motels, and up for churches and private schools.

In the public sector, spending was down on public schools, highways, streets, conservation projects and sewer systems. It was unchanged for public housing, and increased on public hospitals, military facilities, and water supply facilities.

BOSTON (NOV. 1) UPI - A federal judge says an AIDS-infected Marine officer who sued the Navy for $55 million may only collect a maximum of $750,000 for emotional damages in the AIDS-related deaths of his wife and son.

U.S. District Judge Rya Zobel said she based her ruling on California law that limits money awards for emotional damages to $250,000, the sum she awarded for each infected family member.

Zobel earlier this year found Navy doctors in California negligent in the mishandled blood transfusion that infected the wife and infant son of Marine Chief Warrant Officer Martin Gaffney, who is stationed at South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Gaffney had sued the Navy for $55 million after his wife Mutsuko and son John died from AIDS.

Gaffney had charged the Navy doctors infected his wife with AIDS in a transfusion during her 1981 pregnancy. His wife and son later died, and Gaffney is now infected with the AIDS virus.

Gaffney said he believes he is dying and that the damage awards would help take care of his daughter Maureene, who has tested negative for the virus, after his death.

An award based on economic damages is yet to be determined.

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA (NOV. 1) UPI - The Sri Lankan military launched a major offensive Thursday in the northern port district of Mannar where thousands of Moslems fled following threats from a Tamil militant group, a military official said.

Hundreds of soldiers landed in Mannar district of northern Jaffna peninsula, 135 miles north of Colombo, and began a search and destroy operation against the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, a powerful separatist group.

Air Force and Navy planes provided cover as soldiers spread into the interior, said the official.

He said the offensive began a day after the expiration of a 10-day deadline period given by the Tamil Tigers to Moslem inhabitants to leave the Northeastern province. They threatened to kill those who ignored their order.

More than 50,000 Moslems fled towards the southern area of the island nation. The government housed the refugees in several camps in the Sinhalese-dominated districts of Puttlam, Anuradhapura and Vavuniya.

Moslems make up 26 percent of the people in Mannar, the rest being Hindus and Christians.

The troops had met no resistance from the Tamil Tigers, said Defense Minister Ranj an Wijeratne.

He told reporters the military would crush the Tamil Tigers so that Moslems could go back to their homes.

Tamil Tigers accuse Moslems of siding with Colombo in militant campaign for an independent Tamil nation.

Northern Jaffna peninsula is the stronghold of the Tamil Tigers, and about 10,000 of its estimated 15,000 fighters are believed to be concentrated there.

The government has about 7,000 soldiers on Jaffna, most of whom are stationed in Palali base.

Fighting between security forces and the Tamil Tigers erupted in mid- June after rebels staged four simultaneous attacks on military bases in eastern Sri Lanka.

Since then, more than 2,600 soldiers, rebels and civilians have been killed.

Tamil rebels are waging a bloody campaign to establish an independent Tamil nation to be called ''Eelam'' in the northastern Province.

Tamil rebels believe that Sri Lanka's minority Tamils, who are mostly Hindu, need a separate nation because of years of alleged discrimination by the predominantly-Buddhist Sinhalese, who control the Colombo government.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (NOV. 1) UPI - Burma's military government has announced new legal restrictions on the Buddhist monkhood and setting prison sentences for monks who violate them, official Rangoon Radio reported.

The radio, in a broadcast late Wednesday, said Gen. Saw Maung, leader of the military government, decreed additional regulations for control of the Sangha (Buddhist) organization.

The tough new law was seen as an effort to legalize a crackdown on the ''young monks sect'' that has staged political demonstrations against the government in recent months.

The monks aroused government anger with a ''religious boycott'' in which monks refused to perform religious ceremonies for the military or its dependents.

The government responded by raiding monasteries and arresting dozens of monks.

The radio said that under the new law the Sangha Organization acknowledged only nine Buddhist sects, making it illegal to form or join any other sects. Many of the dissident monks belong to sects outside of the main sects and beyond the control of the government-appointed Buddhist leadership.

''No one shall organize, incite and speak or write with the aim of breaking up the Sangha Organizations at any levels,'' another provision said.

The radio said penalties of up to three years in prison will be imposed on monks who violate the law.

The military junta, led by Saw Maung, seized power in September 1988 and crushed pro-democracy demonstrations. The government promised to return to democracy but has so far refused to hand over power to the legislature elected in May.

MOSCOW (NOV. 1) UPI - A mass renaming of Moscow's streets and subway stops is expected to efface almost all Communist-era names - including Karl Marx's - from the capital, a newspaper said Thursday.

''Karl Marx Prospekt is giving way to Hunter's Row,'' the daily Moscovksky Komsomolets newspaper said. ''Thirty streets will be getting back their old names.''

Two of the renamed streets, however, will be quite modern. One will be named for the late American civil rights champion Martin Luther King Jr. and the other for the late French President Charles de Gaulle.

In a gratuitous dig, the newspaper said the renamings recommended by a committee of the Moscow City Council are a ''present for Nov. 7,'' the holiday that marks the day Communists seized power in Russia in 1917.

The municipal panel also decided to rename 10 metro stations, striking at the very symbol of the Soviet era. The metro was built in the 1930s and no expense was spared on marble, chandeliers and statues for each palatial station.

''We will for the time being not give the new names of the metro stations,'' the newspaper said playfully.

Although the full City Council must still approve the name changes, it is now controlled by radicals and will almost certainly give the go- ahead.

''Swept away will be the streets named for Dzerzhinsky, Frunze and Kalinin,'' Moscovsky Komsomolets said.

Felix Dzerzhinsky was the first head of the KGB, Mikhail Frunze was head of the Red Army briefly under Josef Stalin, and Mikhail Kalinin was the figurehead Soviet president when Stalin ruled the country as party leader.

Kalinin, who had peasant roots, was particularly hated for what Russians believe was his silence while Stalin sent millions of wealthy farmers into exile for resisting the collectivization of their land and equipment.

Another famous Communist whose name will be erased from Moscow's topography is Yuri Andropov, the late KGB chief and then Soviet leader who was the reputed mentor of President Mikhail Gorbachev, the newspaper said.

The names of Leonid Brezhnev's defense minister Dmitri Ustinov and his despised ideology chief Mikhail Suslov also will ''finally disappear'' from the Soviet map, it said.

Detroit officials will hold a news conference tomorrow to announce the final toll from this week's Devil's Night period. Police in Santa Monica, California, say a seven year-old- girl who dropped dead last night may have had a heart defect. They originally thought she had been poisoned while trick-or-treating. .

Two young brothers who were among a group of children trying to cross a street in Stanton, California, were hit by separate cars last night. A five-year-old was killed and his seven year-old-brother was critically injured. Police say the boys were hit after they stopped in the middle of the street and turned back.

Police in New York say a gang of teens, some wearing masks, went over a foot bridge onto Ward's Island and attacked eight homeless people in makeshift shanties, fatally stabbing one man and injuring seven. China says it has suffered substantial economic losses by implementing economic sanctions against Iraq. China says those losses include two BILLION dollars in business and undisclosed debts, but it declined to say how much was lost in arms sales. The disclosure by the Chinese Foreign Ministry was apparently aimed at enhancing the country's image.

CAIRO, EGYPT (NOV. 1) UPI - About 150 people belonging to extremist Moslem groups were arrested Thursday in a crackdown against Moslem fundamentalists spurred by the assassination of a top government official, security sources said.

The sources said the extremists, some belonging to the fundumentalist Al-Jihad (Holy War) organization, were apprehended at Bani Suwaif, about 65 miles south of Cairo.

Authorities have said Al-Jihad was responsible for the slaying last month of Egypt's speaker of parliament, Rifaat El Mahgoub, and five other people in Cairo.

''Large quantities of weapons, explosives and leaflets urging people to resist police have been seized in the hideouts of the extremists,'' a security source said.

Earlier in the week, authorities killed two extremists and arrested a dozen others believed responsible for the Mahgoub assassination.

Egyptian officials said the extremists had admitted they killed Mahgoub, the No. 2 man in the government after President Hosni Mubarak.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - The U.S. manufacturing economy contracted in October, the first decline since December 1982, the National Association of Purchasing Managers reported Thursday.

The National Purchasing Manager's Index slipped to 43.4 percent, its fourth consecutive monthly decline.

A reading below 50 generally indicates the manufacturing segment of the economy is experiencing a decline in growth. A reading above 50 usually indicates that the manufacturing portion of the economy is expanding.

Robert Bretz, the chairman of the association's business survey committee, said, ''The fourth quarter began like the third quarter ended, with a decline in the manufacturing economy.

''Virtually all indicators confirmed the growing weakness in manufacturing, which was enough to pull the overall economy in to slightly negative growth.

''With new orders the weakest in eight years, immediate relief does not seem likely.''

''If the PMI remains unchanged at the October level for the remainder of the year, past experience indicates this would be consistent with real GNP growth of about 1.0 percent for all of 1990,'' said Bretz, who is the director of materials management for Pitney Bowes Inc. of Stamford, Conn.

Employment fell for the 20th consecutive month, and at the highest rate since May 1985. The rate of 40.7 percent, down from September's 41.5 percent, indicates manufacturers are continuing to adjust employment levels to reflect the declining economy, the association said.

Prices rose for the fifth consecutive month, to 76.4 percent from 73.4 percent and from 48.5 percent in May this year.

''The surge in the price index is virtually 100 percent attributed to the Middle East crisis and the resulting increase in crude oil, petrochemical feed stocks and derivatives, such as plastic resins, chemical solvents, and many other chemicals,'' the association said.

''Many purchasers reported that suppliers are using the uncertainties in the Middle East situation to increase prices even when not warranted.''

The new orders index declined in October, also for the fourth consecutive month and is the lowest since Nov. 1982, the trough of the previous recession. ''This index will have to improve in order for the economy to turn around,'' the association said.

New export orders continued to increase although at a lesser rate than in September, the association said. Imports declined for the sixth consecutive month although at a lesser rate than last month.

Supplier deliveries were faster in October for the second consecutive month, reflecting the lower demand from a declining economy. Inventories declined for the sixth consecutive month although at a lesser rate than in September.

The production index was also down, falling to 43.0 percent from 45.1 percent last month and from 56.3 percent as recently as May 1990. ''The continued weakness in new orders suggests no near-term improvements in production,'' the association said.

The association's report is based on data compiled from monthly replies to questions asked of purchasing executives in more than 300 industrial companies. Membership of the business survey committee is diversified geographically based in value added by state, and by standard industrial classification caterogry based in each industry's contribution to gross national product.

Twenty industries in 50 states are represented on the committee.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (NOV. 1) UPI - About 200 Vietnamese boat people in Thai refugee camps have expressed a desire return home with the financial support from the United Nations, a U.N. statement said Thursday.

''At present there are some 200 Vietnamese at Phanat Nikhom camp who expressed the wish to return to Vietnam,'' said a statement of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) issued in Bangkok.

It said four Vietnamese consular officials under UNHCR auspices have arrived in Thailand and will carry out interviews with those refugees.

The statement said the UNHCR will provide documents and arrange a flight to Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon) for the refugees after completing the interviews.

''Back in Veitnam each returnee will be monitored by UNHCR and will be provided with $30 per month for one year to assist in their integration,'' it said.

So far 129 boat people in Thailand have returned home voluntarily under the UNHCR plan, it said.

''The UNHCR expects the voluntary repatriation program from Thailand for boat people who do not qualify for refugee status to be expanded gradually,'' the statement said.

More than 13,000 Vietnamese remain in Thai camps in hopes of resettlement abroad. Under an agreement among refugee receiving countries in the region, however, only those boat people who can show a genuine fear of political or religious persecution qualify as bona fide refugees with the right to resettlement.

The rest must remain in the camps until they volunteer for repatriation.

More than 5,000 Vietnamese boat people so far have been repatriated voluntarily from Hong Kong and countries of Southeast Asia, the UNHCR statement said.

PITTSBURGH (NOV. 1) UPI - It's called the common cold but a nationwide survey released Thursday shows there is little common ground when it comes to attitudes and treatments for the ailment.

Men favor whiskey as a home remedy and women like juice; spouses think they're nice to their mates when the other is down with the sniffles and sneezes but don't think they get an equal return in the pamper department when it's their turn, the N'ICE National Cold Survey found.

SmithKline Beecham of Pittsburgh, makers of N'ICE sore throat lozenges, commissioned the study of 150 male and 150 female adults. An equal number of people were surveyed in the Northeast, North Central, Southeast South Central and West. The survey found 73 percent of males and 76 percent of females reported having a cold during the last 12 months, with the average being 2.2 colds and little difference between the sexes.

Females said they were bothered more by nasal congestion but males said overall aches and pains added to their misery. Nine out of 10 respondents named a specific symptom rather than the fact that they are forced to function while being sick. Men and women are likely to go to work when sick and feel miserable about it but men are more likely than women to say they feel ''virtuous'' about it, the survey found.

Although both men and women believed they are nice to their sick spouse, they said they do not receive the same attention in return when they are ill.

Chicken soup may have been the remedy of the past for the common cold, but the SmithKline survey found tea the choice elixir of 21 percent of both groups. A good belt of whiskey - a hot toddy in more passive terms - was favored by 27 percent of the males and 13 percent of the females mentioned juice. Chicken soup, though, was the choice of many moms for treating a child's cold.

The survey found that men and women agreed that when they get colds, ''men turn into grizzly bears and women become crabs.''

Those living in the Northeast believe they get more colds than people in any other region but so do those living in the North Central states. Those living in the Southeast, South Central states and West agreed they experience fewer colds. But, not to be outdone, folks in the Southeast and South Central states say their colds are more miserable than those in other regions.

LONDON (NOV. 1) UPI - The tabloid Sun newspaper Thursday launched an extraordinary campaign against European unity with a front-page picture of a two-fingered insult to French-born EC Commission Chairman Jacques Delors headlined, ''Up Yours Delors''.

The newspaper printed one page of risque anti-French jokes and instructions to readers on how to deliver their personal ''Bawl at Gaul'' protest countrywide at noon Friday.

In one of its most aggressive outbursts since the Falklands War with Argentina the Sun appealed to its patriotic readers to ''tell the feelthy French to Frog Off.''

It said trenchantly that British tradition was threatened by the Delors plan to integrate the European market and create a common currency, known as the European Currency Unit.

''His bid to replace the pound with the faceless ECU is the last straw after centuries of Froggy Brit-baiting...They insult us, burn our lambs, flood our country with dodgy food and plot to abolish the dear, old pound,'' stated the front-page article, signed by the paper's diplomatic staff.

''Now its your turn to kick them in the gauls,'' it added. ''At the stroke of noon tomorrow (Friday) we invite all true blue Brits to face France and yell, 'Up yours Delors.'''

The paper gave a long list of supposed British grievances over French behaviour, which overlooked several centuries of Anglo-French conflict in the Middle Ages and the burning of Joan of Arc, but did notice that English troops put a stop to Napoleon Bonaparte's nonsense at Waterloo 175 years ago.

It also reminded readers that France ''gave in to the Nazis during the Second World War when we stood firm.''

''Remember folks, it won't be long before the garlic-breathed (sic) bastilles will be here in droves once the Channel Tunnel is open,'' the article trumpeted. ''So grab your megaphones, turn south and let 'em hear the British lion roar.''

Backing Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's mostly lone battle against other EC members on European unity, the paper printed an open letter to Delors inquiring from him whether his face would be printed on the proposed ECU notes.

''Do you hate British people in general?'' the letter asked in French and English. ''You seem to want to strip us of our sovereignty and our individuality.''

Page three of Thursday's paper, which used to be reserved for pictures of ladies long on charm and short on clothing, was filled by a half-page, full color snap of a bearded Briton in tweed cap denouncing Delors from the top of the White Cliffs at Dover.

He held a pint pot of ale in his right hand and was draped in the Union Jack.

''English Chann-Yell,'' read the caption.

Beneath it was a set of French jokes.

Sample: ''Have you heard about the new lager for French girls. It reaches the parts anyone can reach.''

The Sun, owned by Rupert Murdoch's News International group - which also publishes The Times and The Sunday Times - has an audited British sale every day of 3,979,330 copies.

The French Embassy in London was closed for comment Thursday. It was All Saints Day.

BURLINGTON, MA (NOV. 1) UPI - President Bush said Thursday he ''wants desperately to have a peaceful solution'' to the Persian Gulf crisis, but declared he is determined to turn back Saddam Hussein's aggression.

At the start of a final six-day campaign swing, Bush came out slugging against the Iraqi leader as concern grew over a possible outbreak of war.

Assuring the Iraqi people that the United States bears no hostility toward them, Bush said:

''Our problem is with Saddam Hussein alone. I want desperately to have a peaceful solution to this problem. We are giving the (U.N.) sanctions time to work, but let this be clear ... there will be no compromise on the stated goals of the United Nations resolutions. None at all.''

''This brutality will not stand,'' he asserted to loud and enthusiastic applause.

''No one is more determined to see this aggression turned back and I will not change on this fundamental point of morality,'' he said.

At the same time, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater greeted Saddam's invitation to the families of the American hostages to visit Iraq during the Christmas-New Year's season with less than yuletide enthusiasm.

''Why doesn't he let the hostages come home?'' asked Fitzwater. ''That would be the best way, or better yet, Thanksgiving.''

While speaking to a partisan audience of several hundred in support of the Massachusetts GOP ticket, Bush said he is grateful for the support of his policies on both sides of the political spectrum.

Tracing the history of the crisis since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2 including Saddam's promise to withdraw his forces, Bush denounced the brutality of the Iraqi leader, and declared, ''Today I am more determined than ever that this aggression will not stand.''

He said that there are 300 innocent American civilians held against their will in Iraq, ''many reportedly staked out as human targets, something Hitler didn't do. Others,'' he said, ''are hiding out.''

''The right of these American citizens are being denied by Iraq's dictator,'' he said. ''We have no argument with the Iraqi people.''

He also spoke of the systematic dismantling of Kuwait by the invading army and likened it to Hitler's dismantling of Poland during World War II.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (NOV. 1) UPI - Prices for raw materials rose sharply and the official value of the national currency was cut nearly in half Thursday as a watered-down package of economic reform measures took effect.

Unrest over the price increases were believed to have fueled an outbreak of violence late Wednesday, when police clashed with hundreds of youths in the capital. At least two police officers were injured, the official news agency Rompres reported.

The reforms include some of the most radical measures to be introduced by the National Salvation Front government since it was inaugurated in June. The Front, which won a landslide victory in the May 20 multiparty elections, has controlled the government since the December overthrow of communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, who was executed a few days later.

The measures liberalizing the prices of goods ranging from farm machinery to footwear were announced Oct. 18 by Prime Minister Petre Roman, who said drastic reforms were necessary to make the jump to a market economy.

But because of fears of widespread social unrest, the government delayed until January planned increases in prices for food, fuel and other basic goods.

Thursday's price hikes, ranging up to 200 percent, affected coal, iron, copper aluminum and a variety of other raw materials

Rumors that gasoline prices would also increase Thursday led to long lines earlier in the week at filling stations. The lines had mostly vanished Thursday, and there were no reports of further disturbances.

Besides price liberalization, the measures introduced Thursday included a major devaluation of the Romanian currency, the lei, which fell in value from 21 to a dollar to 35 to a dollar. The current black market rate is about 100 lei to a dollar.

''We have reached a level where we have no alternative and no compromise is possible,'' Roman said in an Oct. 18 speech to unveil the reforms. ''The state is determined to get rid of the relics of the past, and the old system.''

Rompres said the violence Wednesday started as a confrontation between police and a motorist who tried to flee in a van when ordered to stop for a traffic violation.

Police disabled the van the van by shooting out its tires, but shortly afterward a large number of youths gathered and began taunting police. A squad car was overturned and scuffles broke out in which at least two police officers were injured.

The unrest grew into a demonstration involving hundreds of youths who blocked traffic and chanted slogans against the government and denouncing the planned price increaes.

In another development, Romanian President Ion Iliescu, in an interview with Austrian television, expressed concern over rising tensions in the neighboring Soviet republic of Moldavia, but said Romania would not seek to unite with the province's ethnic Romanian majority.

The interview followed a day of unrest in Moldavia in which ethnic Romanian vigilantes attempted to block border crossing points in a breakaway Turkic-speaking region.

Iliescu told Austrian television his government was closely following the events in Moldavia, but had no intention of becoming directly involved despite undercurrents in both countries for unification of Romania and Moldavia.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (NOV. 1) UPI - A stick of dynamite blew up near the French embassy in the mainly-Moslem sector of Beirut Thursday but caused little damage, police said.

Witnesses said the explosion occurred outside an unfinished building about 600 yards from the main gate of the heavily-guarded embassy in the seaside area of Ain Mreisseh.

The blast came as the pro-Syrian government sought to restore law and order to a unified Beirut following the ouster of defiant Christian Gen. Michel Aoun.

Aoun has taken up refuge at the French embassy annex building on the outskirts east of Beirut since he was toppled Oct. 13 by a combined Syrian-Lebanese force.

JAKARTA, INDONESIA (NOV. 1) UPI - Foreign Minister Ali Alatas said Thursday the Cambodian peace process meeting will be held in Jakarta by the end of next week.

Alatas made the announcement upon arrival from Paris where he and his French counterpart, Roland Dumas, discussed a timetable for the resumption of the Paris International Conference on Cambodia.

He said they agreed to hold further meetings, preceeded by a preliminary meeting of senior officials from Indonesia and France as co- chairman and from such other countries as India, Canada, Malaysia, Laos, Australia and Japan.

The Paris International Conference on Cambodia held a lenghty but fruitless first session in the French capital in August 1989.

The representative of the U.N. secretary-general and the four other members of the U.N. Security Council - the United States, Soviet Union, China and Britain - were also invited to attend, Alatas said.

The Jakarta meeting is scheduled to open Nov. 9 and will last for several days he said.

He said the meeting is to discuss a draft agreement for a comprehensive political solution to the Cambodian war.

At the same time, Alatas reiterated that Cambodian leaders should resolve their differences over the chairmanship of the Supreme National Council because only the SNC will represent Cambodia at an international conference planned later this year.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia in 1979 and drove out the Khmer Rouge regime headed by Pol Pot, blamed for several million deaths in Cambodia, and installed a puppet regime.

The four Cambodian factions - the Vietnamese-backed Phnom Penh government and the three members of the coalition resistance - accepted a U.N.-brokered peace plan this year and agreed in September to set up the SNC to govern Cambodia during an interim period leading up to U.N.- supervised elections, but have been unable to agree on a chairman.

That is why the trade was made. Why settle for the present state of mediocrity when you can build for the future?

''We feel that we can afford to make the trade and still maintain the same kind of year we were going to have, plus have the luxury of another No. 1 pick '' Williams said shortly after the trade Tuesday night.

It's also important to know this: Next year's draft will be the first since 1988 with at least two legitimate center prospects, maybe more.

Those players, in turn, will be joined by several potential underclass prospects who will expand the talent base in the first round.

The top seniors include Georgetown center Dikembe Mutombo, New Mexico center Luc Longley, Missouri center Doug Smith, Nebraska center Rick King, Michigan State guard Steve Smith, and Nevada-Las Vegas forward Larry Johnson.

Some players who have indicated they might leave school early include Georgia Tech guard Kenny Anderson, Syracuse forward Billy Owens and LSU center Shaquille O'Neal.

''Potentially, the centers (in the 1991 draft) are better than Felton Spencer '' said NBA director of scouting Marty Blake. Spencer was the first center selected in this year's draft, No. 6 overall. ''I think the lottery has the potential to be exceptional.''

Orlando will select among the first 11 players with its own pick. But Tuesday's trade enables the Magic to perhaps come away with another player who under normal circumstances, would have been taken earlier in the round.

''It's too early to project exact values to those positions in the first round. It's just that we know there is value,'' said John Gabriel, Orlando's director of scouting.

Gabriel is a talent buff. He knows that San Antonio had the 24th pick last year, and that means only three teams drafted later than the Spurs. Using simple arithmetic, Gabriel figures that five, possibly six teams could post better records than San Antonio this year. That means Orlando would select no higher than 21st or 22nd.

''But research indicates that a large percentage of players drafted between 24 and 30 become starters or backups,'' said Gabriel. ''Younger teams in a position like ours have to explore the possibility of finding players.''

Veteran players like Green, who aren't good enough to start for the better teams in the league, can only stabilize an expansion team, not make it better.

The Minnesota Timberwolves, who joined the league the same year as the Magic, traded forward Rick Mahorn to Philadelphia for a first-round pick in this year's draft. The Timberwolves selected Gerald Glass, who is projected as a starter. Mahorn is 32 and has had chronic back troubles.

In June, Orlando traded 32-year-old Reggie Theus to New Jersey for a pair of second-round draft picks. Green and Theus were the Magic's first two selections in the expansion draft.

''You risk the possibility of stagnation and the future growth of the team by not exposing yourself to young talent,'' said Gabriel.

''You don't take veteran guys to retire their numbers in the rafters. We don't have the ability to keep players like Sid, Jerry Reynolds and Sam Vincent until they are 36 and retire their numbers.''

Not yet, anyway.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Exporters sold 200,000 metric tons of U.S. barley to Saudi Arabia and 25,000 tons of wheat to the Philippines with the aid of export subsidies, the Agriculture Department reported Thursday.

The barley sale was worth about $18 million, based on farm-gate prices for barley during October. The wheat sale was worth $2.4 million based on Chicago prices.

Both sales, plus a sale of 5,000 tons of wheat flour to west and central African nations, were made through the Export Enhancement Program. Under it, exporters who reduce their prices in order to make a sale to a targeted country qualify for bonus amounts of commodities from government stockpiles.

Saudi Arabia is the No. 1 customer for U.S. barley this marketing year. With the latest sale, it has purchased 1.07 million tons of the 1.43 million tons of barley sold for export.

There are 45.9 bushels of barley in a metric ton, so the new sale calls for delivery of the equivalent of 9.2 million bushels during November and December.

In its transaction, the Philippines purchased 20,000 tons of northern-dark northern spring wheat and 5,000 tons of western white wheat. There are 36.7 bushels of wheat in a metric ton.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Police in Santa Monica, California, now say a seven-year-old girl who collapsed and died of cardiac arrest last night may have had a congenital heart defect. Police initially thought the girl had been poisoned while trick-or-treating. However, a hospital spokesman says ''The first set of toxicological tests done at the hospital did NOT turn up anything that had poisoned her.'' He said the girl's parents told police that the girl had been tested for a heart murmur.

Officials in Detroit say this year's Devil's Night was quieter than in the past, and they credit the drop in arson to community participation that included 35-thousand volunteers patrolling city streets. Fires were set on the city's east side again last night, and officials said the annual Halloween tradition remained a problem. Figures on the numbers of fires Monday, Tuesday and last night will be announced tomorrow during a news conference.

Police in New York say eight men sleeping in shacks on an island were attacked last night by a gang of youths. One of the homeless people was stabbed and killed and the other seven were injured and taken to hospitals. The incident occurred when between 10 and 12 teens headed into a wooded area on Ward's Island, a small piece of land in the East River near Manhattan.

NAIROBI, KENYA (NOV. 1) UPI - President Daniel arap Moi criticized British Broadcasting Corp. radio, accusing it of lying about his country, and said there was no need for BBC correspondents to remain in Kenya, local newspapers reported Thursday.

''The BBC made wild allegations and told lies about Kenya,'' the newpapers quoted an Office of the President statement as saying. The statemernt said the BBC was no longer usseful to Kenyans or the British people.

It said there was ''no need of having BBC correspondents in Kenya since they had lost objectivity and misinformed Kenyans and British listeners.''

It was Moi's strongest attack to date against the British radio network and came after the BBC ran a series of politically sensitive stories about Kenya.

''We try to cover events in Kenya as accurately and even-handedly as we do the rest of the world,'' the BBC responded.

''Nevertheless if there are specific complaints against any particular piece of journalism then we are always ready to listen to them.''

In Parliament, Foreign Minister Wilson Ndolo Ayah accused the BBC of having become ''the voice of dissidents and revolutionaries ... an agent of disorientation, disorganization and the advocate of violence.''

He also claimed the British government-supported BBC was patronized by Marxists who, together with Norway, had been encouraging violent revolution in Kenya.

Kenya broke diplomatic relations with Norway ten days ago, giving all Norwegian diplomatic and aid personnel one week to leave the country. It accused the Scandanavian nation of being involved with a leading political dissident's bid to overthrow Moi's government.

Koigi wa Wamwere, long loudly critical of the government, had been in exile in Norway since 1986. He was arrested in Kenya Oct. 8, allegedly caught with a cache of weapons and ammunition.

The uproar over the BBC comes at a time of heightened political tension in the country. A number of people perceived as anti-government have been detained, questioned or harassed since two leading advocates of multi-party democracy for Kenya were jailed under the Public Security Act in July.

Moi declared Kenya a one-party state in 1982, three years after he succeeded the nation's first President, Jomo Kenyatta.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (NOV. 1) UPI - A car-bomb exploded Thursday in an eastern town of troubled Natal Province, critically injuring a senior Zulu politician - the third victim of increasingly brazen attacks involving black factional fighting in a week, police said.

The afternoon blast came soon after President Frederik de Klerk met with Zulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi to discuss the internecine violence that has shaken Natal and other areas and its possible threat to talks on a post-apartheid constitution.

Both leaders said after the meeting the need for talks was ''urgent.'' The violence between supporters of Buthelezi's Inkatha and the African National Congress could not be allowed to continue, they said.

Thursday's blast ripped apart the vehicle of 49-year-old Lancelot Ntombela, a regional organizer of the exclusively Zulu Inkatha Freedom Party, in a busy street in the town of Greytown, a police spokesman said.

''He is in critical condition. We suspect this is the usual black-on- black fighting,'' he said, referring to the battles between Inkatha and the ANC that have killed up to 4,000 people in Natal since 1987.

Another senior Inkatha member was shot and killed Tuesday in the town of Pietermaritzburg and a priest trying to mediate the conflict was shot to death outside his Clermont church Saturday.

The government, trying to quell an outbreak of unrelated inter- resident and anti-government conflict near Cape Town, clamped emergency regulations and a nightly curfew Thursday on three strife-torn black townships.

The move came a day after it lifted special security measures in 11 other townships around Johannesburg because of a sharp drop in the black factional fighting that killed upwards of 800 blacks between August and September. The announcement left 16 remaining areas still under the emergency regulations.

Minister of Law and Order Adriaan Vlok said late Wednesday the townships of Lingulethu, Khayelitsha and Old Crossroads would be designated ''unrest areas '' giving police wide powers of search, confiscation and arrest.

Police would also enforce a 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. curfew.

''The growing turmoil in these areas has made these steps inevitable, '' a spokesman for Vlok said.

The sprawling townships of more than 500,000 people have been rocked by strife for more than a week. In the first two days - the most serious - clashes involving police and rival residents' groups in Khayelitsha killed eight people and injured at least 36.

Police estimate scores more have been hurt. Witnesses said followers of the ANC, which has demanded the dismantling of apartheid-created local black town councils, sparked the fighting with attacks on the homes of councillors and council supporters.

PHILADELPHIA (NOV. 1) UPI - The cost of employing workers in the Northeast region rose 1.1 percent over the past three months, the U.S. Department of Labor said Thursday, slightly above the national average.

While the increase pushed the cost of wages, salary and benefits in the Northeast to the highest level of any region, over the past year the increase has averaged just 4.6 percent, below the national average of 4.9 percent and on par with increases in the West, where the cost of employment is the least.

It also continued a downward trend since the annualized peak of 7.2 percent in September 1989.

The Employment Cost Index measures changes in the cost of employment for non-farm private employment. As structured it is free from the influence of employment shifts among occupations and industries and measures only changes in straight-time average hourly earnings. It excludes differentials and nonproduction bonuses, but includes production bonuses, incentive pay, commissions and cost-of-living adjustments.

The Northeast includes nine states from Maine to New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Measured against a base of 100 established in 1989, the cost of employment in the Northeast has risen to 106.5 percent, compared to a national average of 106.2. The South and Midwest are at 106.3 percent while the West region is at 105.6 percent of the base.

Over the third quarter, ending in September, the cost of employment rose 1 percent in the United States on average, 0.6 percent in the South, 1.1 percent in the West and 1.4 percent in the Midwest, the highest increase of all regions.

The Midwest also has the highest increase in the cost of employment over the past 12 months, at 5.2 percent. The South was second highest at 5 percent. It was the first time in seven years that the Northeast posted the lowest annual change.

Excluding employer costs of employee benefits such as Social Security, health insurance and the like, the cost of employment rose 1 percent in the Northeast above the national average of 0.9 percent and below the 1.4 percent increase of the Midwest.

The West's costs increased 0.8 percent and that of the South 0.5 percent. On an annual basis the cost of employment rose 4.2 percent nationally, 4.4 percent in the South, 4.3 percent in the Midwest and 4 percent in the West and Northeast.

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA (NOV. 1) UPI - The investigation of a plot to destabilize the Panamanian government is unraveling amid rumors and retractions that have damaged the image of the police and justice departments, observers say.

Former police chief Eduardo Herrera is accused of masterminding the plot, but two government witnesses have retracted their statements against Herrera.

One of the witnesses escaped from jail and held a clandestine press conference Tuesday. He accused Attorney General Rogelio Cruz of pressuring him to testify against Herrera.

Adding to the cloak-and-dagger atmosphere are reports that everyone from past government officials to Vice President Dan Quayle are connected to the plot.

''The government will look very weak if nothing is proven,'' said Alberto Conte, a member of the Civic Crusade, which led the protests against former dictator Gen. Manuel Noriega. ''And if the charges are proven, the government will have a problem because there will be tremendous distrust (of the police).''

When the plan was uncovered two weeks ago, Cruz said Herrera was the leader of a scheme to plant bombs and take over the police barracks in Chiriqui province on the Costa Rican border.

A former colonel in Noriega's army, Herrera was named police chief in January after the U.S. invasion that ousted Noriega. But Herrera was allegedly opposed to plans to transform the army into a watered-down police force and was fired in August for unexplained reasons.

The case against Herrera is largely based on statements by police Capt. Carlos Ivan Moreno and Otilio Miranda, a former legislator. Moreno has refused to testify under oath, however, and charged in a letter from jail that he was being pressured by the government to testify against Herrera.

On Tuesday, Miranda escaped from jail - where he was being held on corruption charges - and retracted his statements against Herrera at a secret 3 a.m. press conference.

Miranda said Cruz offered to free him from jail and to unfreeze his bank account in exchange for testimony against Herrera. Cruz has denied Miranda's statements.

Later that day, Panamanian President Guillermo Endara called an urgent meeting at the presidential palace and Vice President Ricardo Arias Calderon later expressed confidence in Cruz and the investigation.

But in a country trying to rebuild the justice and police departments after years of corruption and coups, the controversy is proof to some that little has changed under Endara.

Herrera and his backers say the government fabricated the plot to distract public attention from economic troubles and criticism of Endara's leadership.

Several anti-government marches have been held in recent weeks while Endara has come under fire for his ties to a bank accused by U.S. drug agents of money laundering.

Herrera, who was in Peru when the plot was revealed but was arrested and jailed when he returned to Panama last week, said it would be impossible to overthrow the government while 10,000 U.S. troops are stationed in Panama.

''Some people have begun to think the case is a political ploy,'' said Camilo Brenes, a Christian Democrat legislator. ''It will hurt if we lose what little confidence is left in the efficiency of our judicial system.''

But Ebrahim Asvat, the new police chief, said the government has a strong case against Herrera. He said union leaders and members of Endara's Arnulfista political party are also suspected of involvement.

Cruz told the National Assembly on Monday that Herrera claimed to have the support of Quayle and the Pentagon when he was discussing the plot with other police officers.

A U.S. official said police officers in Chiriqui were sewing some kind of destabilization plan to convince Endara to grant more power to the police force. He said the plot represented no threat to Endara and said he suspects U.S. troops would intervene if a serious coup attempt was mounted.

The controversy also presents more problems for the police force, which has been trying to win public support, observers said.

When the force was built 10 months ago from the remnants of Noriega's army, critics predicted it would become a threat to the government. The invasion and the installation of Endara brought an end to 21 years of military rule in Panama.

''The police are accustomed to running the show,'' said Arturo Beltran, who runs a Panama City pawnshop. ''They want to return to power again.''

(NOV. 1) UPI - The Commerce Department says construction spending plunged two-point- eight percent in September. A government spokesman says that's the worst showing since January 1982... when the nation was in its most recent recession. Private analysts say they had been expecting a dip of just one-half of one percent.

The official Iraqi news agency says President Saddam Hussein will allow the families of hostages to visit them for Christmas. The report says the Iraqi Foreign Ministry has instructed embassies around the world to issue visas to the families of foreign nationals being held as human shields in Iraq and Kuwait. Just yesterday, President Bush said he has ''had it'' with the treatment of Americans held in Iraq and Kuwait.

Lebanese security sources say Israeli warplanes raided a Palestinian guerrilla base in the Bekaa Valley in eastern Lebanon today, scoring direct hits with rockets and wounding at least six people. The sources reported that four U-S-built F-16 Israeli jets fired four rockets on the two-story building that served as a guerrilla base, demolishing it and sending shrapnel into nearby houses.

Israel reported that all four planes returned safely today after the raid. An Israeli military spokesman says the base belonged to the Syrian-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command. The action occurred just 11 miles west of Syria's border.

Children throughout the country are re-counting their loot this morning, making certain that nothing disappeared overnight. And Detroit is still counting the damages from the ''Devil's Night'' madness of arson fires. Mayor Coleman Young says it will be tomorrow before the full extent of the damage is completely known. And he blames the media, in part, for what's gone on, calling the publicity ''unprecedented.''

New York City Transit police say they have plenty of witnesses but few suspects following the stabbing death of a 14-year-old Brooklyn youth inside a subway train yesterday. Jerome Drayton was listed as brain-dead after being rushed to Brooklyn Hospital. He was one of two stabbing deaths on New York City subways yesterday, the 20th and 21st such deaths this year. An unidentified man became the 22nd fatality later yesterday in a Lower Manhattan incident.

Researchers in Philadelphia say they have discovered a genetic defect that appears to pre-dispose individuals to deadly ruptures of the aortic artery. Aneurysms are a weakening and ballooning of the side of an artery wall that can eventually burst. Doctors long suspected that aneurysms ran in families, but the new research is the first direct evidence of a genetic link. More than 15-thousand Americans die each year from aortic aneurysms.

BERLIN (NOV. 1) UPI - Food produced in formerly communist eastern Germany contains high levels of hazardous pesticides, a government official said Thursday.

Anton Pfeifer, director of the Berlin branch of the Federal Health Ministry, said high levels of the pesticides DDT, Lindan and Hexaschlorbenzol have been found in eggs produced in eastern Germany.

The use of DDT was banned in West Germany and the United States in the early 1970s.

Contamination of fish and fish products is ''enormously high,'' Pfeifer told a news conference. Almost 90 percent of the fish examined by the ministry were found to have high levels of toxic substances, he said.

Relatively high levels of mercury and cadmium have been found in east German soil, Pfeifer said. Spinach, grains, potatoes and wild game have shown particularly high levels of these substances, the minister said.

Federal German pollution laws and food standards are currently being introduced to the five new states created out of the former East Germany, which joined the Federal Republic of Germany upon the Oct. 3 unification.

The subject of Pollution was taboo under the Stalinist government which ruled East Germany for 40 years until it was toppled one year ago.

Heavy industry and enormous factory farms operated to meet five-year production plans with scant regard for the country's few pollution control laws.

Statistics on environmental contamination were regarded as state secrets but even the reliability of the newly available figures is open to question.

''We do not know if outside political pressures influenced the selection of data,'' said Pfeifer.

Pfeifer announced a $5 million to purchase food analysis technology and a retraining program for food technicians as part of a government drive to raise eastern German food standards to those of the west.

''We must be open about the level of the environmental problems in eastern Germany,'' he said. A return of the past policy of ''silence'' on the issue would be ''fatal,'' Pfeifer added.

FRESNO, CA (NOV. 1) UPI - A magician who compared himself to the legendary Harry Houdini and had himself buried inside a plastic-and- glass coffin for a Halloween night escape trick was killed when the coffin collapsed under tons of dirt and wet cement.

Joseph Burrus, 32, a recovering drug addict, was performing the stunt at a local amusement park, Blackbeard's Family Fun Center, when the coffin unexpectedly collapsed.

As trick-and-treaters watched in shock, rescuers frantically dug Burrus out, but were unable to reach him in time.

''I consider myself a master of illusion and escape artist,'' Burrus said before he attempted the stunt. ''I believe I'm the next Houdini and greater.''

Harry Houdini, considered the master of escape artists, died on Halloween night 1926.

Burrus had performed the escape-from-the-buried-casket stunt successfully on Halloween a year ago in Oregon using only dirt to cover the coffin.

Wednesday night, wearing a white tuxedo, Burrus was handcuffed, wrapped in chains, locked inside the see-through coffin and then lowered into a 7-foot-deep hole.

Crews started pouring wet cement into the hole from a cement truck until Burrus knocked on the casket lid asking them to stop.

''He said the chain was too tight (around his neck) and was choking him,'' said Sean Henderson, a resident of the Third Floor drug recovery clinic. Burrus was staging the stunt as a benefit for the clinic.

''We gave him time to slip the chain from his neck. After he got that done he wanted the locks back on and asked us to start burying him again,'' Henderson said.

The crews put another three feet of dirt into the hole and then began covering that with three feet of cement.

''As soon as we finished and the truck pulled away the whole thing dropped,'' Henderson said. ''The ... cement busted the coffin. It buried him alive.''

Witnesses said they could hear the plastic and glass of the coffin shatter from the estimated nine tons of cement and dirt.

The crews worked frantically to exhume the casket, but efforts to revive Burrus were unsuccessful.

WARSAW, POLAND (NOV. 1) UPI - Polish Christians marked All-Saints Day Thursday by praying over newly scrubbed graves decorated with flowers and candles, and, for the first time since 45 years of totalitarian rule ended, officially honoring dead anti-communist heroes.

Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki lighted a candle at the foot of the Katyn Monument to the 15,000 Polish officers killed by Soviets in 1940. The cross had been the site of anti-government protests until democracy came in 1989.

Mazowiecki also dedicated a monument to ''the innocent political prisoners who were executed in Warsaw between 1945 and 1946 by the communist regime.''

''On behalf of the independent and democratic Polish government, I pay homage to those who died so that others could live in dignity,'' Mazowiecki said. ''They were executed in the name of intimidation and subduing the nation. There are among them officers and soldiers of the Polish armed forces.''

The monument, which is under construction, is in the Communal Cemetery, near the grave of Gen. August Emil Fieldorf, a Polish resistance hero during the Nazi occupation who was executed by the communists who took charge after World War II.

In southern Poland, thousands of candles were lighted at the Nazi concentration camp Auschwitz-Birkenau, where 1.5 million people were killed, most of them Jews.

Carrying plastic bags full of brushes, trowels and candles, and bouquets of hearty flowers, thousands of people made their way to cemeteries across the country to give tombs a once-a-year tidying.

The youngest arrived in their mother's arms or riding on their father's shoulders, roles that were reversed for parents five decades older who needed the help of a steady, younger arm.

Powazkowski Cemetery, which dates from 1790, lies beneath a filigree of branches with the last autumn-painted leaves struggling against the wind to keep their purchases. Sandy paths angle between neat rows of tombs, decorated with 10-foot-high crosses, Madonnas, or angels.

Three older women, despite their years, stockings and heels, tidied the family tomb. One shuttled crumbled leaves to a mountainous rubbish heap at the end of a long line of graves, another balanced precariously to scrub the headstone clean of green mold. The third laid down a spray of flowers and touched a match to candles. Their work finished, they offered a hasty prayer and retreated from the blustery day.

Behind them the candles burned, the waxy smell mixing with the crispness of autumn.

A widow in black sat quietly before a black granite slab etched with the name of her husband and his death - 1990.

The black and white of the graveyard was brightened by flowers that will withstand the cold - zinnias and chrysanthemums and red carnations on fir wreaths.

A family of four stood with heads bowed before a plot of newly planted purple pansies.

Neglected graves stood out in contrast. The resting place of Stefan Jakubowski who died in 1912, was forgotten in a tangle of grass and vines.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - An overwhelming majority of Catholics reject efforts by the nation's Roman Cahtolic bishops to punish or sanction church members - especially politicians - who oppose the hierarchy's tough anti-abortion stance, according to a poll released Thursday.

The poll, released by Catholics for a Free Choice, an independent group that supports the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing most abortions, showed 73 percent of the Catholics polled are opposed to bishops taking punitive action against legislators who support legal abortion.

In the last year, a number of bishops across the country have taken actions against Catholic legislators, candidates and health workers who oppose the bishops' campaign to overturn the Supreme Court decision.

Those actions include barring Catholics from the eucharist, banning them from speaking on church property and, in the case of a Planned Parenthood official in Texas, excommunication from the church.

The poll surveyed 2,002 randomly selected adults, including 523 Catholics, between Oct. 12 and Oct. 21.

''Poll data of the past 20 years has clearly shown that Catholics reject the bishops' position that abortion should be illegal in all circumstances,'' said Frances Kissling, president of Catholics for a Free Choice.

''What we have not known until now is how strongly Catholics feel about the strategy employed by the bishops in seeking to make abortion illegal,'' she said. ''We have found that Catholics are consistent in their commitment to freedom of conscience.''

A year ago, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops adopted a new resolution on abortion, naming it the No. 1 human rights issue and calling on all Catholics - especially officeholders - to work to make abortion illegal.

Cardinal John O'connor, chairman of the bishops' committee for pro- life activities, went so far as to say that Catholic politicians who vocally support legal abortion ''must be warned that they are at risk of excommunication.''

The bishops also hired a prominent advertising firm, Hill and Knowlton, and a polling company, The Wirthlin Group, to prepare a campaign reflecting the bishops' opposition to abortion.

But the poll suggests the high visibility punitive tactics embraced by some bishops are backfiring and both Catholics and non-Catholics have misgivings about the bishops' involvement in the political issues.

Three-quarters of all respondents and seven of 10 Catholcis said they do not think that the bishops should use the political arena to advance their moral opinions, and nearly eight out of 10 of all respondents said it is inappropriate for the bishops to tell Catholics how to vote.

When asked whether Catholics have a religious obligation to vote for candidates who oppose abortion, 31 percent of Catholics said yes, 61 percent said no, and just 19 percent said it is appropriate for the bishops to tell church members not to vote for candidates who support abortion rights.

''The most striking finding of the poll is the impact that the bishops' involvement in abortion politics has on how people view Catholic officeholders and candidates,'' the report said. Nearly half - 46 percent - of all those surveyed said the bishops' involvement makes people distrustful of Catholic officeholders.

On punishment, 76 percent said they would oppose taking action against a woman who has an abortion; 73 percent opposed taking action against legislators, and 71 percent opposed excommunicating a doctor who performs an abortion.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Iraq offered Thursday to let the families of hostages visit during the holidays, but the Bush administration said the captives should be allowed to come home immediately and Britain condemned the proposal.

The government of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, holding the foreigners as shields against possible military attack, denied it is mistreating them.

President Bush, campaigning for Republican candidates, told an audience in Burlington, Mass., he ''wants desperately to have a peaceful solution'' to the crisis, but declared he is determined to turn back Saddam's aggression.

''Our problem is with Saddam Hussein alone,'' Bush said. ''I want desperately to have a peaceful solution to this problem. We are giving the (U.N.) sanctions time to work, but let this be clear ... there will be no compromise on the stated goals of the United Nations resolutions. None at all.''

''No one is more determined to see this aggression turned back, and I will not change on this fundamental point of morality,'' Bush said.

The State Department said the U.N.-backed economic sanctions are beginning to seriously affect Iraq's economy but have not had any real effect on Saddam's resolve to end his 3-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

Reacting to Saddam's offer to let relatives see the hostages at Christmas,

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater asked, ''Why doesn't he let the hostages come home? That would be the best way, or better yet, Thanksgiving.''

Fitzwater said he had no guidance on whether Americans should accept Iraq's offer.

Britain's Foreign Office called the offer ''disgraceful'' and labeled it ''cynical propaganda.'' However, an official at the Iraqi Embassy in London said two families had contacted the mission about getting visas to Iraq.

''It's a disgraceful example of Iraq exploiting the feelings of relatives of hostages at a time of particular importance of family life, that is, Christmas " a British official said. "All hostages should be freed immediately."

A top Palestine Liberation Organization official in Amman, Jordan, said Thursday Iraq would free all the hostages if it is guaranteed there will be no military action to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis. The PLO official said Iraq also wants assurances that discussions for a politiacl solution will begin.

Iraq's Foreign Ministry told its embassies around the world to issue visas to families of foreign nationals held at economic and military installations. Iraqi forces seized the foreigners after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent U.S.-led international military build-up in Saudi Arabia.

''The Foreign Ministry issued instructions to ... grant entry visas to Iraq to families of the foreigners hosted in Iraqi vital installations if they wanted to visit them on the occasion of Christmas and New Years,'' the Iraqi News Agency said.

The offer came a day after Bush said he had ''had it'' with Iraq's treatment of the captive Americans.

INA quoted an official spokesman as denying charges the foreigners, estimated to number slightly less than 4,000, were being mistreated, and he accused the United States of using the situation as a pretext for a possible military strike. There are about 700 American men in Kuwait and Iraq.

''The U.S. administration tends to escalate the situation in the region through fabricating pretexts and lies to prepare for a military aggression against Iraq,'' INA quoted an official spokesman as saying.

An Iraqi newspaper confirmed reports Thursday that Iraq was in the ''highest state of preparedness for a battle.''

Bush said Wednesday that he would not use the hostages as a pretext for a military strike, but said he had ''had it'' with their treatment, especially that of U.S. diplomats holed up in the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait.

Iraqi occupation troops cut off food, water and electricity to the U.S. and other Western missions more than a month ago when they defied an order to move to Baghdad.

The Washington Post reported the U.S. Embassy staff still in Kuwait, believed to be fewer than 10, only had a three or four week supply of canned tuna and rice. The newspaper also said the diplomats were running low on generator fuel to power a satellite telephone link to Washington.

LONDON (NOV. 1) UPI - Britain's High Court Thursday granted Polly Peck International,the embattled conglomerate, the right to hear details of an investigation mounted against it by the government's Serious Fraud Office.

Polly Peck was granted the judicial review after lawyers for the company claimed it was unfair for anti-fraud officials to refuse to list their complaints.

In September, the total market capitalization of Polly Peck shares, traded on the London International Stock Exchange, collapsed from more than $720 million to about $180 million as share prices plunged. The exchange suspended the shares after word spread that the Serious Fraud Office was investigating alleged insider trading.

The Serious Fraud Office raided Polly Peck headquarters Tuesday as part of its investigations into the heavily leveraged company, which faces bankruptcy. Serious Fraud Office officials had no comment on the court's decision that they reveal what they are investigating, but they previously maintained they were under no legal obligation to relinquish the information.

Polly Peck executives have claimed that there is no evidence of wrongdoing to back up the investigation. Owner and Chairman Asil Nadir, a Turkish-Cypriot, has claimed there is a conspiracy to undermine Polly Peck by unnamed "Greek interests."

The High Court last month appointed administrators to try and untangle the finances of Polly Peck, which owes 50 banks about $1.9 billion. The company's far-flung operations - ranging from fruit growing and light manufacturing in Turkey and northern Cyprus, to Del Monte Fruits Co. in the United States, to electronics distributors in the Far East - make the administrators' task difficult, analysts said.

UNITED NATIONS (NOV. 1) UPI - A delegation of the European Parliament currently visiting the United Nations called Thursday for more coordinated activities between the two bodies.

Jas Gawronski, a member of the Italian Republican Party and president of the eight-person delegation, listed disarmament, narcotics, refugees, and monitoring of elections as areas in which their activities overlap.

''There is room for better cooperation,'' he said at a news conference.

Gawronski said that during last February's elections in Nicaragua there was ad hoc cooperation between vote monitors from the United Nations and Europe. He said his delegation has discussed joint monitoring of upcoming elections in Haiti and El Salvador.

The delegation met Wednesday with U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, and has also held meetings with numerous other U.N. officials and committees. It intends to be a permanent group covering relations between the United Nations and the European Parliament, Gawronski said.

Besides Italy, the delegation includes members from France, Spain, the Netherlands, and Portugal.

The European Parliament is elected by voters of the 12 member states of the European Community. It sits in Strasbourg, France.

PARIS (NOV. 1) UPI - Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy said Thursday that last month's U.N Security Council resolutions condemning Israel were really intended to maintain the anti-Iraqi coalition in place.

Levy discussed the crisis in the Middle East with President Francois Mitterrand Wednesday night and said at the end of his three-day visit that Mitterrand acknowledged he did not know how the situation in the Persian Gulf would develop.

''We will be wiser after the November congressional elections in America,'' Levy quoted Mitterrand as saying.

Last week the International Herald Tribune and the satirical French weekly Le Canard Enchaine reported that Mitterrand told visitors he expected an imminent war in the gulf, where a U.S-led mulitnational force of several hundred thousand troops is deployed to discourage Iraq from further aggression after its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The presidential Elysee Palace denied the reports.

Levy told French officials that Israel considers the recent U.N Security Council resolutions condemning it for violence against Palestinians in the occupied territories to be unjust and that their real purpose was to maintain the anti-Iraqi coalition of Western and Arab countries in place.

''Israel is asked to pay the price and we are not ready to do so,'' Levy said. The foreign minister said his country has kept a low profile in the gulf crisis ''in order not be accused of exploiting the situation.''

''But a danger persists and we are sure that the free world will not bend before (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein's challenge,'' he said.

France voted for the resolutions condemning Israel for the deaths Oct. 8 of 20 Palestinians on Temple Mount in Jerusalem. The Palestinians were killed by Israeli police after they showered rocks on Jewish worshippers at the nearby Western Wall.

During his meeting with French officials, Levy reiterated his government's refusal to accept a U.N. committee assigned to investigate the disorder.

Mitterrand reminded Levy Wednesday night that France has always supported Israel's right to exist and its insistence that Jerusalem remain part of the Jewish state.

''Jerusalem is the very soul of the Jewish people and I understand that Israel will never give up the city or stop considering it the capital of the state,'' Levy quoted Mitterrand as saying.

The foreign minister, insisting he was pleased with his visit to France, said Mitterrand acknowledged differences between the two countries but ''Israel can count on me and can rest assured of our friendship.''

Despite the conciliatory remarks, the three days of talks between Levy and French officials, including Prime Minister Michel Rocard, concentrated on the serious differences that separate French and Israeli policy in the Middle East.

Among these are France's insistence that an international conference be convened to discuss the crisis in the region, including a homeland for the Palestinians. Israel rejects this approach in favor of direct talks with all the parties concerned.

Another subject of discord is Paris' recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization as a legitimate political group. Mitterrand and Dumas have received PLO leader Yasser Arafat numerous times since 1989. The third point of contention is the installation of exclusively Jewish colonies in the occupied territories.

''There exists a French policy, and I am not here to change it,'' Levy told reporters before returning to Jerusalem.

The Israeli minister reportedly asked Paris for financial help in resettling Soviet jews in Israel, whose number is expected to reach 1 million by 1992.

French diplomats said Levy also asked France to help improve relations between Jerusalem and the 12 members of the European Economic Community, which has condemned Israeli policy in the occupied territories.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - President Bush will attend the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe to be held in Paris, Nov. 19-21, the White House announced Thursday.

The 34-nation gathering, a follow-up to the Helsinki Conference in 1974, was expected to be highlighted by the signing of a conventional arms agreement by Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said other stops and dates on the president's itinerary will be announced later.

Bush was expected to leave Washington on Nov. 15 and to meet with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl in Germany on his first stop of a European swing. The journey, expected to last for some 10 days, also will take Bush to Saudi Arabia where he will spend Thanksgiving Day with the thousands of troops sent to the Persian Gulf to deter further Iraqi aggression.

Bush also was expected to travel to Egypt before returning to Washington around Nov. 24.

TOLEDO, OH (NOV. 1) UPI - A carryout owner turned the tables on a would-be holdup artist, making him report his own robbery, police said Thursday.

Police said Rodney Boyd, 32, pulled a gun on the owner of a food market Halloween night and demanded cash from the register.

But when Boyd's attention was diverted, owner Glashan Smidi pulled out a 9mm handgun and ordered Boyd to drop his weapon, investigators reported.

Smidi then ordered the would-be robber to call the 911 emergency number and summon authorities to the attempted robbery at the Arlington Food Mart, they said.

Boyd was in jail on a charge of robbery.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (NOV. 1) UPI - Winnie Mandela, wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, was fined $80 or 10 days in jail Thursday for failing to pay umplemployment insurance for workers at her fish-and-chips shop.

Mrs. Mandela, due to stand trial in February on charges of assault and kidnapping, pleaded guilty to charges of failing to pay a $50 premium to the Department of Manpower and failing to submit an insurance statement.

A magistrate last week ordered Mrs. Mandela's arrest when she failed twice to appear in court in connection with the case.

A charge of non-appearance was dropped Thursday when her lawyer, Ismail Ayob, told the court Mrs. Mandela was unaware a summons had been served at the shop in suburban Johannesburg until she heard about the arrest warrant from reporters.

Ayob also produced a receipt showing the insurance premium for the period between January and August has since been paid.

Mrs. Mandela is free on her own recognizance pending trial in February with seven others on charges of kidnapping and assault in connection with the December 1988 abduction of four blacks by her unofficial body guards and the alleged assault at her home.

One of the four, a 14-year-old boy, was found murdered in January 1989. Mrs. Mandela's chief bodyguard, Jerry Richardson, was sentenced to death for the murder earlier this year.

The case led to Mrs. Mandela's repudiation by the anti-apartheid community before her husband's February release from 27 years imprisonment.

DHAKA, BANGLADESH (NOV. 1) UPI - An indefinite curfew was put in effect Thursday for the entire capital city amid fears of communal riots over the storming of the Babri mosque in India.

Police using the public address system announced the curfew and advised people to say indoors. Government offices were closed two hours early to allow employees to return home.

On Wednesday an indefinite curfew was imposed in three police stations of Dhaka after some people tried to set fire to two Hindu temples. But no adverse incident was reported Thursday.

Police shot at a violent mob Wednesday night, injuring at least 34 people who were admitted later to hospitals.

Meanwhile Nirmal Sen, leader of the five-party left alliance, said the government imposed the curfew to foil planned opposition peace rallies scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

All opposition political parties, including the Islamic fundamentalist Jamaat-e-Islami, have appealed for peace and urged the people to maintain harmony at any cost.

In India, 10 people died Thursday in the third day of violence that erupted when Hindu fundamentalists tried to build a temple on the site of the 460-year-old Moslem holy site. The conflict has already cost 59 lives throughout India.

DOVER, DE (NOV. 1) UPI - Under clear and sunny skies, the bodies of 11 servicemen killed in Operation Desert Shield accidents returned to the United States Thursday.

Navy and Marine Corps officials received the bodies of the 10 sailors killed Tuesday in an accident aboard the USS Iwo Jima and that of a Marine killed in a vehicle accident.

An honor guard of sailors and Marines carried the metal coffins one by one from the aircraft and loaded them onto hearses which took the remains to the base mortuary. Military personnel saluted as each coffin was brought out of the C-141 Starlifter.

No families were present at the hour-long ceremony. The bodies were formally received by Adm. Jerome Johnson, Vice Adm. J.S. Donnell III, Rear Adm. J.D. Olson II and Marine Corps. Brig. Gen. R.H. Sutton.

Capt. Bill Perry, chaplain of the Navy District, Washington, D.C., said a brief prayer for comfort of the families.

A base spokesman said the families of the 11 will be officially notified of the arrivals and arrangement will be made for funerals according to their wishes.

The 10 sailors died when a steam line ruptured in the boiler room of the USS Iwo Jima.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Iraq is offering to allow families of the hostages being held in Iraq and Kuwait to visit during the Christmas holiday, instructing Iraqi embassies around the world to issue entry visas to any hostage relative. The Bush administration says instead that the hostages should be freed immediately and Britain condemns the Iraqi idea as ''cynical propaganda.''

A British Foreign Office spokesman in London describes the Iraqi holiday visit offer as ''disgraceful'' and a move by Iraq to exploit the feelings of relatives of the hostages at a particularly vulnerable time... Christmas.

President Bush was on the campaign trail in Burlington, Massachusetts, saying he wants a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis but is determined that Iraq must pay for its aggression. White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater referred to the Iraqi holiday visit offer, saying the hostages should be freed immediately so they can be home for Thanksgiving.

Heavy fog in the nation's capital delayed the start of the president's six-day cross-country campaign blitz for about 25 minutes, grounding the Marine One helicopter. Instead, Bush traveled to Andrews Air Force Base by motorcade, where his Air Force One jet took off late. The second stop on the Bush agenda today is Mashpee, Massachusetts, and finally, Orlando, Florida.

The Commerce Department reports more economic slowdown. The value of new construction dropped two-point-eight percent in September for the worst decline since a three percent retreat in January 1982- during the last recession. Private construction was down two percent from August, and private residential construction was down two-point-three percent. But that actually is a smaller drop than the four-point-eight percent dive recorded in August.

Police in Saginaw, Michigan, are conducting a state-wide search for a drug store employee they say went on a deadly rampage in a stock room last night, attacking three co-workers with a claw hammer. One 24-year- old woman was killed and a 17-year-old boy is hospitalized in critical condition. Police say they don't know what motivated the suspect, 28- year-old Steven Edward King.

Fast food giant McDonald's is cleaning up its act, as far as environmentalists are concerned. The company based in Oak Brook, Illinois, says it will begin phasing out use of foam packaging within the next 60 days, first changing the containers it uses for hamburgers and other products. Those account for nearly 75 percent of McDonald's total use of foam packaging.

Israeli military spokesmen and Lebanese security sources confirm a strike by Israeli warplanes at a Palestinian guerrilla base in east Lebanon, just 11 miles from the Syrian border. Four U-S-built F-16 fighter jets dropped four rockets on the two-story guerrilla base building, wounding six people.

The Press Trust of India reports that 10 more people have died in a third day of violence as Hindu fundamentalists try to tear down a 460- year-old Moslem mosque and build a Hindu temple. It brings the death toll to 59 in a dispute that has plunged India's government into a leadership crisis.

Moslems also have come under attack on the island nation of Sri Lanka off the Indian coast. More than 50-thousand have fled into southern areas of the country as the Sri Lankan military begins a major offensive against militant Tamil residents in the north.

More possible hot water for Victor Kiam, owner of the Remington shaver company and the New England Patriots football team. WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Abortion rights advocates and opponents Thursday sought the meaning behind Health Secretary Louis Sullivan's comment about a physician's duty to discuss abortion when a woman's life is endangered.

Sullivan's statement that physicians have ''broad professional responsibility'' to protect the life of a pregnant woman came when reporters asked his views of a Supreme Court case, heard Tuesday, challenging government regulations preventing federally financed family planning clinics from discussing abortion.

While skirting the precise issue of Title 10-funded clinics, Sullivan, a physician, got advocacy groups wondering about his abortion views when he said:

''While we are opposed to abortion, it's not absolute. If there are cases where the life of the mother is threatened, then it's the physician's responsibility to do whatever he can. ... The issue is what is required by the situation.''

Sullivan's views on the volatile issue of abortion are significant not only because he is the nation's top health official, but because the subject has gotten him into hot water with the administration in the past.

Before his confirmation, it was reported that Sullivan favored abortion rights differing from the administration's view that the procedure should only be allowed in cases of rape, incest or when the mother's life is threatened. After much controversy, Sullivan publically stated he stands with the administration on the matter, causing some to question his veracity.

A Planned Parenthood Federation of America official said he takes some, but not much, solace over Sullivan's comments following the Supreme Court oral arguments,

''It's an itsy, bitsy step in the right direction, but he has a long way to go ... to offer comfort to people who believe the regulations are wrong,'' said Roger Evans, director of litigation for Planned Parenthood, the group challenging the regulations on First Amendment grounds.

''My personal belief is that Sullivan is, in a sense, a victim of the same censorship of views as doctors in Title 10 clinics, because probably the guy (Sullivan) believes these regulations are unconscionable and he is just forbidden to say so,'' Evans said.

He stated satisfaction that Sullivan recognized the need for abortion when a woman's life was immediately threatened.

''This offers a small piece of solace to women, but he doesn't begin to address all other circumstances when the mother's life is not in imminent danger. What about if the woman has AIDS? Or a heart condition? Or diabetes or another condition when pregnancy exacerbates the condition but she is not going to die within the next couple of hours?'' Evans asked.

Sullivan's comments were not very clear to Robert McFadden of the Ad Hoc Committee in Defense of Life.

''I'm not really sure what to think. It's a bit more complicated. My very first reaction was, 'Oh no.','' McFadden said. ''But it's tough to say he's a turncoat.''

James Bopp Jr, general counsel for the National Right to Life Committee, said his group agrees with Sullivan and does not believe the secretary strayed from the administration's views.

''The National Right to Life Committee has no opposition to abortion when it is necessary to save the life of a woman. And we also believe Title 10 regulations allow that. I don't think what we're saying is inconsistent with what (Solicitor General Kenneth) Starr said. True, there was some confusion about what he said, but he eventually got it right,'' Bopp said.

Starr told the justices the regulations allow a doctor to tell a woman she is in danger and needs treatment, but not to recommend an abortion. ''To actually go forward and counsel, 'You need an abortion,' is beyond the regulations,'' he said.

Justice David Souter, who had steadfastly kept secret his views on abortion during his confirmation, appeared to question Title 10's constitutionality.

He asked Starr why, if the woman already is pregnant and so beyond the government's professed pre-pregnancy scope of the program, a doctor could still not discuss abortion without the clinic risking a loss of government money.

''For all we know, her blood pressure is going to result in a stroke within the next hour,'' Souter said.

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST (NOV. 1) UPI - Opposition political leaders said Thursday police launched a clampdown on their activities and made mass arrests of their supporters after the country's first multiparty presidential election.

More than 200 supporters of the opposition Ivorian Popular Front were arrested in towns throughout the country Wednesday and Thursday, the party said.

The government had no comment on the opposition's charges.

On Sunday the FPI put forward a candidate, Laurent Gbagbo, in the country's first multiparty elections, but President Felix Houphouet- Boigny, who has ruled the West African country for 30 years, was declared the winner with more than 80 percent of the vote amid accusations of ballot-rigging and fraud.

Ivorian Popular Front supporters, including Jean Oulai, a law professor at Abidjan University, were being held at the Jalliene army camp near the capital city Thursday night, opposition leaders said.

Arrests also took place in the towns of Daloa and Gagnoa, where FPI sympathizers tried to march through the town.

''It's the terror. It's the terror,'' said FPI spokesman Louis Dacoury-Tablis. ''They just want to stop the electors of the Ivory Coast from organizing and fighting elections.''

The FPI is now planning to field candidates for the country's first multiparty national Assembly elections scheduled for Nov. 27.

In explaining the arrests of opposition leaders earlier this week, the official government newspaper accused FPI supporters of smashing ballot boxes during Sunday's election.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - Work continued Thursday on eight feature movies in New York City and Long Island despite expiration of a contract between film and television producers and a production crafts union that could threaten the city's future as the nation's second film capital.

Although some members of the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers have said they probably will write New York out of their scripts in the near future, expiration at Wednesday midnight of a contract with Local 52 of the International Alliance of Theater Stage Employess and Moving Picture Machine Operators failed to halt filming of movies already in production.

Negotiations with IATSE's Locals 52, and Local 644, representing cinematographers, reportedly were at an impasse but union officials have not threatened a strike. Some 127 permits for feature films have been issued by the city through Oct. 19, involving employment of nearly 3,500 workers.

"My people will continue to work while we're in negotiatations, and we expect to still be in negotitions in December," said Lou D'Agostino, a spokesman for Local 644.

Film-making, including television, commercials, documentaries, and educational films, is New York's third largest industry, topped only by tourism and fashion. The Mayor's Office for Film said the film industry was expected to pour $3 billion into the city's economy this year.

"Since we're in our slowest season right now through March, we probably won't see the effects of this situation right away," said Amy Sultan of the Mayor's Office.

"This isn't like a factory situation where the machinery shuts down. We won't know about the effect for sure until films scripted for New York wind up shooting in Toronto."

According to D'Agostino, the sticking point in negotiations is over different work rules that prevail on the West Coast which producers would like to see put into effect in New York in order to reduce production costs.

The rules include a looser definition on overtime that eliminates considerable time-and-a-half work and weekend differentials as well as different financing of health and pension benefits.

West Coast locals agreed last year to overtime revisions that benefitted the producers in return for $40 million in payouts to health and pension funds from the residual earnings of films from network television sales, cable television and videocassettes.

D'Agostino said New York workers want to preserve current work rules because extra money earned in overtime was needed to equal residual payments received by West Coast workers, an assertion disputed by the Producers' Alliance.

The alliance represents Paramount, Columbia, Warner Bros., 20th CenturyFox, Orion and MGM studios. Universal and Disney ar not involved in current negotiations.

LONDON (NOV. 1) UPI - Stock prices closed lower in moderate trading Thursday on the London International Stock Exchange, driven down by official statements that put an end to speculation interest rate cuts were in the offing. Stocks also fell in Frankfurt and Zurich.

London's blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which gained 16.4 points Wednesday, fell 22.3 points to 2,028.0. The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 20.8 points to 1,572.1.

Volume amounted to around 373 million shares, compared with the 384 million that changed hands on Wednesday. Analysts said stocks eased following a British Treasury announcement making it clear a cut in British interest rates is not imminent.

In what market watchers described as an unusual move - coming in the wake of widespread speculation the government would be forced to lower rates - the Treasury said "it is obvious from authorities' actions in the market in recent days that they do not consider a fall in interest rates appropriate."

Meanwhile, the Bank of England issued a statement stating "our recent actions in the money market have been consistent with a continuing level of interest rates 14 percent."

"We certainly agree with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, John Major, that it would be wrong to cut interest rates until it is safe to do so," the central bank said. Speculation of a cut in interest rates helped drive stocks broadly higher Wednesday.

Renewed tensions in the Persian Gulf also returned to the forefront in setting the tone for trading stocks, with statements from Saddam Hussein that his troops were ready for war, analysts noted.

This spurred oil shares higher, with British Petroleum adding two cents to $6.36 and Shell gaining eight cents to $8.52.

Among other widely traded issues, hotel company Trusthouse Forte fell 20 cents to $4.75 amid speculation that higher air fares would hurt the industry.

Eurotunnel fell 38 cents to $8.93 as dealers awaited details of its upcoming rights issue.

In Germany, stocks closed broadly lower in holiday-lightened trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange. The closely watched Weighted German Index, which added 2.68 points Wednesday, fell 16.07 points to 1,417.75.

On the ecomonic front, the Bundesbank hiked Germany's key Lombard lending rate one-half percentage point to 8.5 percent, in what was partly interpreted as a warning against excessive government borrowing. The Lombard rate is used by banks to borrow from the central bank, using securities as collateral.

The bank said the Lombard will again act as a "very short-term, standby liquidity reserve," a remark seen as expressing the Bundesbank's displeasure over growing use of the facility for extensive borrowing rather than as a last-resort window.

The increase, the first since October 1989, was ordered by the Bundesbank's policy-making Central Council, which decided not to hike the discount rate from six percent.

In Zurich, stocks closed lower in cautious trading on the Zurich Stock Exchange.

The Credit Suisse Stock Index fell 7.6 points to 479.5 as local investors stepped to the sidelines amid growing concerns over conflicting statements surrounding the Persian Gulf situation.

Elsewhere around Europe, banks, businesses, and financial markets were closed in France, Belgium, Italy, and Spain for the All Saints Day holiday. Trading will resume Friday.

LIMA (NOV. 1) UPI - The Peruvian cost of living rose 9.6 percent in October, a report released Thursday by the official National Institute of Statistics and Information showed. Two private economic groups estimated higher October inflation rates of 11.1 percent and 12.1 percent.

Felix Murillo, head of the government statistical institute, said the figures showed a "deceleration" of inflation in the country since President Alberto Fujimori assumed power July 28. Fujimori had inherited an economy burdened by hyperinflation, or inflation in excess of 50 percent a month, that hit its peak in August at 397 percent.

In early August the Fujimori administration ordered a drastic economic plan that freed controls on prices and currency exchange and drastically increased rates of government-owned goods and services, such as public utilities and gasoline.

Inflation rose 5,812 percent in the first ten months of the year, the official statistics showed. In September, inflation rose 13.8 percent, the institute reported.

Murillo said that the official and private inflation rates differed because of differences in the way the statistics were taken. The government used as a reference the prices of the last day of the the previous month.

The Apoyo Group reported the October inflation at 11.1 percent, but it noted that if meat prices had not risen significantly in the first week of the month the overall cost of living would have increased less than seven percent. The private statistical group Cuanto S.A., which measures daily variations in prices, reported the inflation rate at 12.1 percent.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - U.S. business failures, driven by dramatic increases in the New England and Middle Atlantic states, climbed 14.5 percent in the first nine months of 1990, Dun & Bradstreet Corp. said Thursday.

Failures in the New England and Middle Atlantic regions combined soared more than 90 percent in the first nine months of the year, the business information company said.

''Every industry and every state in these two regions reported sharp increases in business failures, reflecting stress throughout the Northeast,'' said Joseph Duncan, corporate economist and chief statistician for D&B.

Overall, U.S. business failures increased 14.5 percent to 43,836 from 38,296 in the first nine months of 1990, after three years of steady declines.

Only two of the nine U.S. census regions reported decreases in failures during the period, the East North Central - comprised of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin - and Pacific regions.

''In addition to the dramatic increase in the Northeast, failures are up across the United States, signaling weakness in the U.S. economy overall,'' said Duncan.

Duncan also noted that the size of liabilities associated with the bankruptcies jumped sharply, indicating a rise in the number of large businesses filing for bankruptcy.

Business failures were up in every major industry, with the exception of the mining industry, D&B said. Mining failures fell 4.8 percent to 257 from 270.

Failures in the finance, insurance and real estate sector posted the sharpest increase, up 31.1 percent to 2,767 in the latest nine months from 2,111 in the year-ago period, when failures were also at high levels.

''There is strong evidence of ongoing stress due to the savings and loan crisis, as the upward trend in finance, insurance and real estate failures continued to mount throughout the United States,'' Duncan said.

Manufacturing failures also increased sharply, rising 19.5 percent to 3,469 from 2,902. Bankruptcies in wholesale trades climbed 13.4 percent to 3,106 from 2,740, and failures among retail establishments increased 12.5 percent to 9,372 from 8,329.

Service failures rose 8.5 percent in the latest nine months to 14,777 from 13,777. Construction failures climbed 10.8 percent to 5,857 from 5, 285; transportation and public utilities increased 20.1 percent to 1,826 from 1,520; and agriculture, forestry and fishing rose 7.3 percent to 1, 160 from 1,081.

The New England states reported the sharpest increase in business failures, up 192.8 percent to 2,196 from 750 in the same period a year ago. The most dramatic increase occurred in Massachusetts, where failures more than tripled to 1,426 from 395.

In the Middle Atlantic region, bankruptcies soared 64.6 percent to 4, 816 from 2,925. Failures climbed sharply in New Jersey, up 117.8 percent to 858 from 394. New York posted an increase of 70.3 percent to 2,372 from 1,393.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (NOV. 1) UPI - The army-backed alliance that won last week's parliamentary elections Thursday nominated its president, Nawaz Sharif, as the country's next prime minister.

The Islamic Democratic Alliance, a loose coalition of parties opposed to ousted Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto, unanimously elected Sharif at its first high-level meeting since its decisive victory in the Oct. 24 elections, an IDA spokesman said.

The new National Assembly is virtually certain to confirm Sharif as prime minister when it meets for the first time on Saturday.

Sharif, 42, is a wealthy industrialist and, as chief minister of Punjab, Pakistan's most populous province, was Bhutto's main adversary during her term of office.

He would become Pakistan's first Punjabi prime minister. The position has traditionally been filled by natives of Sind because of the southern province's ethnic sensitivities.

But observers say Sharif drew support for his nomination over Sindi caretaker Prime Minister Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi by his prominent role in the IDA's convincing election victory over Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party.

Sharif told reporters after the meeting he did not believe his premiership would inflame communal tensions in Sind, where thousands have died in ethnic violence in the past few years.

''I don't foresee any reaction in Sind to my premiership,'' Sharif said. ''Every prominence will be given to Sind in my government.''

Sharif also said no further corruption cases would be filed against Bhutto, who has been charged in Special Disqualifiction Courts on seven counts of misuse of power.

''We don't believe in victimization,'' he said. ''We have been fair to (Bhutto) and we will not file any more cases. But we have no control over the cases already in the courts.''

Bhutto could be barred from politics for seven years if convicted of any of the charges against her.

Her husband, businessman Asif Ali Zardari, is in jail in the southern city of Karachi, facing charges of kidnapping and extortion. Officials said Thursday Zardari, who won a National Assembly seat in the elections, would be allowed to take the oath of office in Islamabad on Saturday.

President Ghulam Ishaq Khan sacked Bhutto's 20-month-old government on Aug. 6, accusing it of corruption and nepotism and of failing to control law and order and dissolved the National Assembly. He appointed opposition leader Jatoi to head an interim government until the elections.

Bhutto has charged the IDA had resorted to ''gross rigging'' in the elections. Most international observer teams said they had found no evidence to support her allegations. But a team from the International League of Human Rights in Paris said ''a highly sophisticated fraud mechanism'' was partly responsible for the IDA win.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Environmental and consumer groups launched an advertising campaign Thursday criticizing President Bush for opposing tougher energy conservation laws while sending U.S. soldiers to the Mideast to protect oil supplies.

In an effort that raises politically charged questions about U.S. motives for sending soldiers to Saudi Arabia, the advertising blitz contends higher federal fuel economy requirements for cars could eliminate the need for Mideast oil and, by implication, the need for American military intervention.

"How high a price are we willing to pay for Mideast oil?" ask the ads, which show a picture of a U.S. soldier superimposed on a gasoline pump. "Saving energy at home: It's better than losing American lives abroad."

Though the ads suggest U.S. troops are in Saudi Arabia to safeguard oil supplies, Bush has said the main reason for U.S. involvement is to counter aggression against Kuwait by Iraq. The ads will start Friday in The New York Times and other major newspapers and also include radio and television public service announcements.

The campaign is being organized by the Coalition for Fuel Efficient Transportation, which includes nine non-profit environmental, consumer and energy conservation lobbying organizations.

The ads drew a blistering response from the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, which said the attempt to link U.S. troops in the Middle East with automotive fuel economy was "misleading and outrageous."

"These spots are yet another instance where purposely misleading statements are made in an attempt to convince consumers that the automobile is the energy culprit," said Thomas Hanna, head of the automaker group. "I don't think the American public is going to buy that for a minute."

"Motor vehicle manufacturers have more than doubled the fuel efficiency of the fleet of new cars since the oil crises of the '70s, and are committed to continuing improvements," he said.

But the advertisements charge car manufacturers could do more to reduce consumption of oil and they urge greater public support for legislation that would force automakers to build more fuel-efficient cars - a bill strenuously opposed by the administration.

Administration officials joined the auto industry in an all-out lobbying effort in Congress last month that killed a Senate bill to raise federal auto fuel economy standards from the current fleetwide average of 27.5 miles per gallon to 40 mpg by 2000.

The opponents charged the bill effectively would require automakers to make cars smaller and lighter, making them more dangerous in accidents. They said that also would hurt sales, because many Americans want larger cars.

Backers of the legislation rejected the "down-sizing" arguments, saying automakers had other technological options for improving fuel economy. They also said the bill would greatly enhance national energy security because it eventually would save 2.8 million barrels of oil a day - roughly one-third of current U.S. imports.

The advertisements maintain those savings would exceed the amount of oil now imported from the Mideast. "If every car in America got at least 35 miles per galllon, we wouldn't need another drop of Mideast oil," the newspaper ad reads.

"We're in an energy war. But the weapons we need to win this war aren't troops or tanks - but energy efficient cars and tough new legislation. "We won't pay the high price of Mideast oil," the ads conclude. "We won't fight Detroit's war."

In addition to tougher fuel economy standards, the ads call for higher taxes on "gas-guzzler" automobiles, tax rebates for owners of economical cars and greater federal support for mass transit and other alternative transportation.

AUSTIN, TX (NOV. 1) UPI - More than three million Texans, one-third of them children, have no health insurance and have little prospect for improving coverage in the future, a report said Thursday.

The report by the Texas Research League, a private research group, said more than 17 percent of Texans have limited access to health care because they are uninsured. The study was undertaken at the request of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The percentage of Texans without health insurance is about three points higher than the national average, the report said. Only California has more uninsured residents.

The group said Texas' uninsured rate is higher than the national average because of the state's higher percentage of poor and young people, few labor unions, restrictive Medicaid policies and high levels of employment in the service and retail trade sectors.

Most uninsured Texans are working adults and their families, students, the disabled and early retirees. Only 11.4 percent are unemployed. The Research League said the highest percentage of uninsured workers is in the retail trade and service sectors, which are expected to create the great majority of new jobs in the future.

Meanwhile, the study said employer-provided health insurance "seems to be crumbling" because small businesses increasingly cannot afford it. "The businesses that are large enough to access the best rates or to self-insure are far from satisfied with the status quo, as their premiums have increased steadily over the last decade, often by 10 to 20 percent per year," the report said.

Children make up 35.2 percent of uninsured Texans, which is slightly larger than the national average. Uninsured children are five times more likely to name the hospital emergency room as their primary source of health care as are insured kids. But the study said the age group most likely to be uncovered is between 18 and 24.

"Often they have 'grown out' of coverage from a parent, are in school or in entry-level jobs that are unlikely to provide coverage and may be less likely to perceive a need for health insurance," it said.

Among Texas' ethnic groups, 12.6 percent of whites have no health insurance compared to 19.9 percent for blacks and 35.8 percent for Hispanics. The rates for whites and blacks mirror national averages, but the Hispanic rate is three percentage points higher than the national rate.

Nearly 77 percent of all uninsured Texans have annual household incomes below $25,400. The Research League said there is "no simple painless solution" to the health insurance problem in Texas.

For families with incomes of more than $25,000, it said they could better afford insurance through a combination of public subidies and market reform. It said there must be varying levels of subsidies for the poorest.

But the report said neither market reforms nor public health insurance subsidies will solve the problem of runaway health costs. "If costs are not controlled, access will always be threatened," it said. "Tackling the cost problem is going to require some belt-tightening in every sector of health care delivery; health costs cannot go down unless somebody makes less money."

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - An independent study of voter registration figures predicted Thursday that slightly more than one-third of eligible voters will cast ballots in next week's election, perhaps leading to the lowest turnout in a half century.

The Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, a non- partisan group, said final registration figures from 31 states and the District of Columbia showed a decline of 1.27 percent from 1986. Republicans enjoyed a slight gain, while Democrats had a small loss.

Overall, the group said national registration should total 122.6 million. That would be more than the 119.7 million voters registered in 1986, but the increase did not keep pace with the growth in population.

Curtis Gans, director of the organization, predicted that as a result, voter turnout next Tuesday could be the lowest in nearly 50 years.

''All this points to a generally low turnout election with spotty surges in individual states with either hotly contested races or races of state or national significance,'' said Gans.

''Turnout could be as low or lower than the 36.4 percent of eligible voters who turned out in 1986, which, in turn, was the lowest turnout since 1942,'' Gans said.

Meanwhile, People for the American Way, a liberal lobbying group, compiled its own partial registration figures and came to virtually the same conclusion.

''Barring an unexpected surge in the states that have not yet reported, today's data presage a significant drop in voter turnout,'' said Sanford Horwitt of the group. ''If the registration figures in these states are an indication, we should brace ourselves for the lowest voter turnout for a federal election since World War II.''

Turnout in midterm elections is almost always lower than in presidential election years, when the race for the White House draws more people to the polls. The turnout in the 1942 midterm election was about 30 percent of eligible voters, Gans said.

Gans said a study of voter registration this year showed no consistent pattern nationwide.

''Rather, there are increases in registration in states which have recently adopted driver's license registration and in states which have or have had very hotly contested and substantively significant contests in either the primaries or general election,'' said Gans. ''The overwhelming majority of states had lower registration.''

He added that in some of the large states, including New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, turnout is likely to suffer because the top races are one-sided.

''Because some of those states are among the most populous in the nation, they are likely to make national turnout figures look worse than they are,'' Gans said.

THUNDER BAY, ONTARIO (NOV. 1) UPI - Escaped Milwaukee killer Lawrencia ''Bambi'' Bembenek will apply for refugee status in Canada, her lawyer said Thursday.

Lawyer Ron Lester said Bembenek also will issue a constitutional challenge to a Canadian government ruling last week that she is a ''danger to the public'' who must be deported.

Such refugee claims and constitutional challenges can take years to work their way through the courts.

Bembenek's fiance, Dominic Gugliatto, who helped her escape from a Wisconsin prison, was to appear at an immigration hearing Thursday afternoon.

Canada Immigration adjudicator Carmen DeCarlo ruled during Bembenek's appearance Thursday that news cameras and tape recorders will be allowed to record future hearings.

District court Sheriff George Burns, responsible for court decorum, had earlier said he would not allow cameras in the courtroom. But it appears Bembenek's next hearing, Nov. 22, will be held at the local jail where she's being held.

At Thursday's hearing, which lasted about 1 1/2 hours, Bembenek autographed a help wanted sign proferred by her former restaurant boss, Louis Kebezes.

Bembenek wrote: ''To the kindest Greek I know. You were the best boss.'' She signed it ''Jennifer'', the alias she used while living in Thunder Bay. She also signed her real name.

Canadian officials plan to expel the couple on immigration law violations for living and working in the country illegally.

Bembenek, 32, was convicted in the 1981 slaying of Christine Schultz, the former wife of Bembenek's husband, Elfred Schultz, a Milwaukee police detective who divorced Bembenek after her conviction.

Gugliatto, 34, Milwaukee, is accused of helping her escape July 15 from the Taycheedah Correctional Institution, a prison for women near Fond du Lac, Wis. They were believed to have been in Thunder Bay since the day after the escape until their arrest.

They were arrested Oct. 17 after someone saw her featured on a segment of the television show ''America's Most Wanted.''

WARSAW, POLAND (NOV. 1) UPI - Traces of the lethal gas used at the Auschwitz concentration camp remain in the walls of the crematorium, an analysis released Thursday showed.

Polish scientists found cyanide gas in samples taken from the walls of crematorium No. 2 in Birkenau, an integral part of the Auschwitz- Birkenau Nazi Germany death camp of World War II, the Polish news agency PAP said.

The findings came 45 years after last mass exterminations in the camp.

An estimated 1.5 million people, the overwhelming majority Jews, perished in the Auschwitz-Birkenau concentration camp, built by Nazis in 1940 near Krakow in southern Poland.

MIAMI (NOV. 1) UPI - The University of Miami has received a $10 million federal grant to increase its involvement in improving relations among nations in the Western Hemisphere, officials said Thursday.

The money is to be used for the university's North-South Center, the research component for the Graduate School of International Studies. The main focus will be on key issues from the ''Latin America agenda,'' said Ambler H. Moss, dean of the international studies school.

''There is a complex set of tough issues on the agenda with Latin America, every one of which bears upon the protection of U.S. strategic interests,'' he said. ''Successful negotiation on a equitable basis with Latin American countries in pursuit of common objectives is essential.''

Moss said key issues include external debt as a continuing obstacle to development, investment opportunities, trade and the increase of markets for

Latin America and the United States, transfer of technology especially involving environmental issues and ways to shut down illegal drug trafficking.

The center is devoted to exchanging ideas, technology and research between the United States and the nations of Latin America, the Caribbean, and Canada. The federal grant will enhance that goal, said UM President Edward T. Foote II.

''The North-South Center will provide a disciplined, intellectual focus for improved relations, commerce and understanding between North America and our friends to the south,'' he said. ''It will collaborate with institutions in this country and other countries of the world.''

Moss said the grant was in line with President Bush's call last June for a new initiative in the hemisphere. The president said trade, investment and eliminating debt in the area were the ''three pillars'' of his proposal.

''The North-South Center will now be able to expand on these and other vital concerns,'' he said.

In 1925, the University of Miami charter proposed that the university take advantage of its unique location for study and research of Latin America. By 1937 UM was offering a special undergraduate major in Latin American studies.

Foote said he reaffirmed the commitment to international studies in his inaugural address 10 years ago when he said Latin America and the Caribbean were the focus of programs that would lure students and scholars.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - The exhumation of the 137-year-old remains of a former slave began in a Manhattan graveyard Thursday in what the archbishop of New York described as a step towards the possible canonization of Pierre Toussaint.

If canonized, Toussaint, a native of what is now Haiti who died in 1853 after a life dedicated to caring for the sick and poor, including his former owners, would be the first black American saint.

The exhumation began in a graveyard adjacent to Old St. Patrick's Church in lower Manhattan's Little Italy following a prayer ceremony attended by neighborhood parishioners, reporters and church officials.

''This could be a great day for the city of New York, not just for the church '' said Cardinal John O'Connor, the head of the archdiocese of New York. ''It would be magnificent if he was eventually declared a saint.''

O'Connor said the exhumation begins the process of investigating Toussaint's life to determine whether the archidiocese will recommend that he be canonized but the digging up of the remains does not guarantee that he will become a saint.

Toussaint's name can be translated as ''all saints'' in French, and even though the exhumation began on All Saints Day, O'Connor said it was a coincidence not planned.

''We're not trying to preempt anything,'' the cardinal said.

Church officials did not know how long the canonization process would take.

''The church is never in a hurry to do this, because the Church does not try to create saints,'' O'Connor said.

Doctors who have volunteered to supervise the exhumation process said they did not know what to expect once the grave was completely excavated. They said they would attempt to identify Toussaint's remains and those of his adopted daughter and wife, believed to be buried with him.

''We could find nothing, bones or an entire body,'' said Dr. Victor Tchertkoff of the New York Medical College.

''I've been involved in exhumations before, but nothing this old. This is unique,'' said Dr. Millard Hyland, chief medical examiner for Westchester County.

''We might just find trinkets, like a cross,'' Hyland said.

Joseph Zwilling, spokesman for the archdiocese, said, ''There's a remote possibility that we will find his body preserved, and then we'd have to examine whether that was because of the way he was embalmed, the soil he was buried in, or some other reason.''

After the exhumation, Toussaint's remains will be kept temporarily at a crypt at Old St. Patrick's Church, before being moved to St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue for re-internment.

Toussaint was born a slave in Haiti in 1766 to a wealthy plantation owner who later moved the family to New York. When his owner lost his fortune in the French Revolution, Toussaint, who attended mass daily, supported the family by working as a hairdresser for wealthy New Yorkers. He won his freedom in 1804.

Toussaint became known for caring for the sick, especially in sections of the city ravaged by the yellow fever and cholera plagues, and for his explanations of the Catholic faith.

Church officials credit Toussaint with lifting some of the religious and racial prejudice that existed in New York at the time.

Raphael Grullon, a custodian at Old St. Patrick's for 20 years and a resident of the neighborhood, said he was proud that his church might have a saint buried in its graveyard.

''I say he's a saint, but nobody knows for sure,'' Grullon said.

''Only God knows.''

BEAUMONT, TX (NOV. 1) UPI - Mobil Corp. said Thursday that M.W. Kellogg of Houston was awarded the contract to modernize the oil company's Beaumont refinery in an project expected to cost more than $300 million.

Already the largest of Mobil's five U.S. refineries, the Beaumont plant will be expanded to process various grades of crude oil while incorporating new environmental controls to reduce emissions of sulfur and nitrogen dioxides.

"With the new Beaumont refinery, the total Mobil U.S. refining system will be among the best in industry. We are building to become a first-class world-class refiner," said Bill Blackmon, Beaumont refinery general manager.

The project will expand Mobil's total U.S. refining capacity from 285,000 barrels of crude oil a day to 325,000 barrels a day. It also will increase the production of super unleaded gasoline and distillate fuels, he said.

By shutting down older processing units and employing new technology in existing units, the refinery will improve its overall competitiveness through greater reliability and octane capability, Blackmon said.

Construction is expected to begin in the fourth quarter of this year and to be completed by the third quarter of 1992. During peak construction, the labor force is expected to number about 1,200 workers. After construction is finished, about 100 people will be required to maintain and operate the expanded refinery.

RICHMOND, VA (NOV. 1) UPI - Faced with a mixed reaction from U.S. auto makers the Ethyl Corp. Thursday temporarily shelved its effort to introduce a new gasoline additive touted as a way to save energy and reduce pollution.

Before any additive can be added to gasolines, the Environmental Protection Agency must approve it. Ethyl had applied for permission to market HiTEC 3000, and the EPA had until next Monday to decide yes or no.

After a Wednesday meeting in Washington between Ethyl Chairman Floyd Gottwald Jr. and EPA officials - a meeting at which it became obvious EPA questions about the additive could not be answered before the deadline - the company decided to withdraw the application.

Ethyl spokesman Pres Rowe said it will be at least a month before the company resubmits the application, as various meetings are planned to resolve differences among HiTEC 3000 test results. He did not elaborate on the differences.

Ethyl conducted more than 3 million miles of road testing with a 48-car fleet to see how the compound performed. The tests were overseen by EPA-recognized consultants, and the company concluded if the additive was used in all unleaded gasoline in the United States, some 82,000 barrels of oil could be saved each day and some 1.7 billion pounds of pollutants would be eliminated each year.

General Motors Corp. supported Ethyl's bid, Ford Motor Co. had some questions and Chrysler was opposed on the grounds it harmed catalytic converters. "Obviously we disagree," Rowe said. "We did three million miles of testing without any harm to converters."

Ethyl was long the nation's leading producer of lead anti-knock compounds for gasolines, but as soon as the EPA started the move to unleaded gas, Ethyl started diversifying, developing financial interests in fields as diverse as insurance and the pain-killer ibuprofen.

The additive boosts the octane in gasoline, which means the fuel burns more cleanly and efficiently. Higher octane also "means refiners can lower their use of toxic aromatics like benzene," Rowe said. "In terms of crude oil savings, if it was used in all unleaded gasoline in the U.S. ... we're looking at 30 million barrels a year."

Rowe said in terms of comments filed to the EPA on HiTEC 3000 - which is already used in Canada - "far more were in favor than opposed."

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - A House committee, citing the lessons learned in a 16-month investigation, says both Congress and the White House should stay out of the process for deciding who gets federal grants for housing projects.

Politics and cronyism were among the chief causes of the abuses that occurred at the Department of Housing and Urban Development during the term of Secretary Samuel Pierce, said the report released Thursday. "It is estimated that this waste, abuse and mismanagement at HUD has cost the American taxpayer in excess of $2 billion," the report said.

Chief among the committee's recommendations "is a need to take politics and discretion out of housing programs. This applies equally to the executive and legislative branches."

The recommendations were based on a HUD probe by a subcommittee headed by Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif. A number of major reforms already have been enacted into law or adopted by the department with the support of the current secretary, Jack Kemp.

The panel harshly criticized Pierce and other former officials for giving housing grants based on political considerations or former associations. "HUD was enveloped by influence peddling, favoritism, abuse, greed, fraud, embezzlement and theft," the report said.

But it warned that the problem also extends to Congress which sometimes passes bills that "earmark" funds for specific housing projects. "HUD funding decisions should be based on merit and competition," the report said.

"Just as it was wrong for HUD, under Secretary Pierce, to dole out housing units and grants to former HUD officials and the politically well-connected, and just as it was not right for President Reagan in 1982 to give housing units to New Jersey to influence a Senate race, so too Congress should not earmark funding for housing projects in appropriations bills."

The committee noted that in one of last year's major appropriations bills, Congress specified funding of nearly $30 million for 40 housing grants. "This practice by Congress which circumvents objective criteria, competition, and merits should be ended."

The report acknowledged that while reforms are needed, they should be made "without unduly infringing on the right of the HUD secretary to conduct policy and to have his or her team running the agency. But the positions of deputy assistant secretaries should be filled by HUD career employees, not by political appointees."

Early in the investigation, Pierce appeared before the subcommittee and denied influencing the selection process for housing program grants. The report, however, said "at best, Secretary Pierce was less than honest ... At worst, Secretary Pierce knowingly lied and committeed perjury during his testimony."

Possible criminal violations by Pierce and other former HUD officials are being investigated by an independent counsel appointed early this year at the request of the attorney general.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Iraq says families can visit hostages for Christmas, but the White House and Britain's Foreign Office are telling Saddam Hussein thanks, but NO thanks.

The holiday visit offer came from Baghdad today. Iraq's Foreign Ministry told its embassies around the world to issue visas to families of foreign nationals held in Iraq and Kuwait. But White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says Saddam has it backward, and that the hostages should be set free by Christmas, or ''better yet for Thanksgiving.'' In London a British spokesman called the Iraqi gesture ''disgraceful'' exploitation and ''cynical propaganda.''

It's NOT yet known if anyone will accept Hussein's holiday offering. However, an official at the Iraqi Embassy in London says two British families have contacted the mission already to ask about getting visas to Iraq.

The Iraqi Christmas visa offer comes as President Bush is making a cross-country, six-day campaign swing to bolster Republicans in next week's elections. Bush told an enthusiastic partisan crowd of a few hundred in Burlington, Massachusetts, today that Iraq's ''brutality will NOT stand.'' Bush appeared at a fund-raiser for William Weld, the G-O-P gubernatorial nominee seeking to replace Michael Dukakis, who is NOT seeking re-election. Weld is opposed by Democrat John Silber.

Unspecified problems with the top-secret military payload have forced a delay in the shuttle Atlantis mission to launch what is reported to be a spy satellite over the Persian Gulf region. The Atlantis launch had been scheduled for November 9th, but officials now say the delay will be as long as two weeks. A two-sentence Air Force statement referred to ''anomalies'' found during cargo testing. It is NOT clear whether the problems involve the satellite itself or support equipment in the shuttle cargo bay.

Halloween in some parts just keeps getting scarier. Despite a beefed- up force of transit police in the New York City subway, four teens were stabbed- two of them fatally. But extra precautions reportedly did work in Detroit, where so-called ''Devil's Night'' arson fires fell off from past years. The city had about 35-thousand volunteers patrolling the streets to guard against an outburst of arson.

A final report by a House committee says former Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce was directly involved in the abuses and favoritism that guided funding decisions by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The report issued in Washington today is based on a 16- month investigation by the Government Operations sub-committee. It points a finger at Pierce and other former HUD officials for giving housing grants based on politics.

Maybe you can drink the water, but don't eat the food. German officials report that food produced in areas of what used to be called East Germany contains high levels of hazardous chemicals. Contamination of fish and fish products is reported ''enormously high'' by the German Federal Health Ministry. It also says relatively high levels of mercury and cadmium in East German soil is now found in everything from spinach to grains, potatoes and even wild game. And eggs have high levels of D- D-T banned in West Germany in the early 1970's.

A Moscow newspaper indicates that streets and subway stops in the capital are about to lose their Communist-era names. LONDON (NOV. 1) UPI - Former Prime Minister Edward Heath condemned President Bush on Thursday for enmeshing himself in a ''horrifying'' personal battle with Saddam Hussein, and called on Bush to have a ''cool head and patience'' in resolving the Persian Gulf crisis.

Elsewhere, the Foreign Office slammed a German and Italian initiative under which former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt will go to Baghdad to try and free Westerners held hostage by Iraq.

The Foreign Office also described as ''disgraceful'' Baghdad's offer to allow relatives of British hostages to visit their loved ones in Iraq for Christmas, an offer some citizens have accepted.

Heath, who met Iraqi President Saddam during a humanitarian visit to Baghdad last week that yielded the release of more than 30 elderly and ailing British hostages, said he objected statements by Bush Wednesday that he had ''had enough'' of Saddam.

''These issues are far too great to be decided on a personal like or dislike by the head of the greatest and most powerful country in the world,'' said Heath, who served as prime minister from 1970-74. ''It's horrifying that this position should be reached. What it requires is a cool head and patience.''

Heath, a senior member of the ruling Conservative Party, called on Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to disassociate herself from Bush's statement.

''There must be a distinction between appeasement and solving a problem,'' he said. ''What we have to do in the Middle East is solve a problem. It requires a major diplomatic effort and that effort has not been made. Governments have abdicated diplomacy.

''They believe it is enough to pass United Nations resolutions and sit back, and that is not enough, when peace and war are at stake, and tens of thousands of lives are at stake.''

Heath said he supported Brandt's planned mission, which was given a cautious welcome by the German government, but it was criticized by the Foreign Office for contravening a decision made at a stormy weekend European Community summit in Rome that governments of the 12-nation body would not send envoys to Baghdad.

Heath also condemned the Foreign Office for dismissing as ''cynical propaganda'' Baghdad's offer for relatives of hostages to visit Iraq for Christmas.

''This is a free country, and if they decide to go they are prefectly free to go,'' Heath said. ''The Foreign Office ought to know better than to say this is a cynical performance by the president of Iraq.''

The Foreign Office advised all relatives not to venture to Iraq.

''We obviously have a great deal of sympathy for the predicament of the relatives, but it is a difficult situation, and travel to Iraq would be risky '' an official said. About 1,400 Britons are in Iraq and Kuwait.

The minister plenipotentiary at the Iraqi embassy in London, Z. Ibrahim, said two families had applied for visas.

''You must remember that 17 million people are hostages to the West's embargo '' he said. ''Ordinary Iraqis for looking for food and milk. At least our guests are living in nice hotels and rest houses.''

He said the hostages would remain until Baghdad had ''guarantees of no aggression by the United Kingdom and the United States,'' nations he accused of ''beating war themes, without giving any chance for people to have talks.''

Some relatives reacted favorably to the offer, and the British Broadcasting Corp. reported at least 10 wives were willing to go to Baghdad to see their husbands.

Donald Fathers, whose son, Christopher, was in Kuwait on a business trip when Iraq invaded on Aug. 2, said he is actively pursuing a visit and declared disillusionment with the West's stance.

''I do have a feeling, obviously, particularly about my son,'' he said. ''But I do also have a feeling for the tens of thousands of soldiers on both sides, Iraqi, Americans and British, soldiers who will die in this slaughter if the war is going to go ahead. We must stop the war.''

TARANTO, ITALY (NOV. 1) UPI - Eight navy ships from NATO nations are preparing to sail for the eastern Mediterranean to provide backup support for the multilateral Western operations in the gulf, NATO officials said Thursday.

The small flotilla is composed of five frigates and three destroyers, which since Sept. 17 have been involved in NATO exercises in the Mediterranean in the role of what NATO calls the Naval On-Call Force, Mediterrenean.

After exercises in the central and western Mediterranean the flotilla was previously ordered into the eastern Mediterranean Oct. 12, for further exercises that were scheduled to terminate Oct. 31.

But on Oct. 29 the headquarters of Allied Forces Southern Europe in Naples announced that the eight ships would return to the eastern Mediterranean after a maintenance stop at the naval base at Taranto in southern Italy and a brief port call at Palermo, Sicily.

The NATO command said the extended operations were in response to a request U.S. Secretary of State James Baker made to the NATO Council in September.

In Taranto, Adm. Norman King, chief of General Staff for Allied Naval Forces in Southern Europe, said the new mission in the eastern Mediterranean would continue until Dec. 11.

King said the decision was taken at the request of Baker because of the ''persistent crisis'' in the gulf.

''Their mission will be to demonstrate NATO solidarity, observe and report on shipping traffic of interest, develop the preparation of the allied NATO ships and compensate for the absence of other NATO ships that are deployed in the gulf area,'' he said.

The eight ships are from the navies of the United States, Britain, Italy, Germany, Portugal, Spain, Turkey and Greece. The force is under the command of Capt. George Beserianos of the Greek Navy, NATO said.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Americans' life expectancy is unlikely to surpass age 85 even if medical science manages to totally wipe out cancer and heart disease, researchers reported Thursday.

The average time a newborn American baby can expect to live has nearly doubled in the past century - rising from 47 years in 1900 to the current level of about 75 years. That increase stemmed mainly from dramatic reductions in the number of infant deaths and pregnancy-related deaths among women.

But it may be difficult to push that life expectancy much higher because science has not found a way to slow the natural deterioration of the human body.

''Barring major advances in the development and use of life-extending technologies or the alteration of human aging at the molecular level, the period of rapid increases in life expectancy has come to an end,'' a team from University of Chicago and Argonne National Laboratory said in a study published in the journal Science.

In their computer study, the scientists calculated how much current death rates must be cut to boost American's life expectancy to ages 80, 85, 90 and 105.

A life expectancy of 85 would require a reduction in the overall death rate of 43 percent for women and 65 percent for men, the study found. Furthermore, even if both cancer and heart disease were eliminated, the life expectancy would rise only to about 85 for females and 83 for men, researchers said.

''Even if we found a cure for most fatal diseases such as heart disease and cancer, the natural degeneration of the body puts a cap of about 85 years on the average age of death,'' wrote S. Jay Olshanksy and his colleagues.

The latest projection of the upper limits of life expectancy is slightly higher than estimates made in several past studies. However, in a previous study, Ken Manton of Duke University in Durham, N.C., estimated Americans could live to age 99 on the average if all negative lifestyle factors like smoking, alcohol, and high cholesterol were eliminated.

''I believe there is the potential for getting higher life expectancies than they estimate,'' Manton said, noting Japanese females already have an average life expectancy of nearly 82 even though the nation has a high rate of stomach cancer and stroke.

''I think this may make us set our goals too low. If we accept the upper limit as 85, and we don't think reducing cancer and heart disease will make a big difference, we might not make it past 80,'' Manton said.

For Americans to achieve a life expectancy of 105, the Chicago team calculates overall death rates would have to be cut 90 percent from the present level - a task they say is virtually impossible to accomplish without new scientific breakthroughs.

''I think it is a superb study. It is an extremely well thought out analysis of presently available data,'' said Edward Schneider, dean of the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

Schneider said he is optimistic science will soon uncover new ways of extending life. ''If we were back in the year 1900 and asked people if you thought they'd be able to land a man on the moon, they'd say you'd be luckly to fly a man 100 yards,'' he said.

However, Schneider noted: ''Adding years of life is not the real issue, it's adding years of health.''

The Chicago researchers agreed, saying greater efforts should be made to reduce non-fatal, debilitating ailments associated with aging, like osteoarthritis and hearing loss.

''We need to be more concerned with quality of life for the elderly,'' said Bruce Carnes, a co-author of the study.

Carnes pointed out that even if life expectancy does not rise, the aging of the massive ''baby boom'' population means there will be far more elderly people in the United States in a few decades. Currently, there are about 2 million people over the age of 85 in the United States - a figure expected to increase eight-fold to 16 million by the year 2050.

MIAMI (NOV. 1) UPI - Burger King Corp. will publish an open letter to the American public next week voicing its support for family values in order to eliminate any confusion about its television advertising policy, a spokeswoman said Thursday. The company outlined its plans for the advertising campaign after a Christian organization Wednesday called off its boycott of the fast-food chain.

"We are going to clarify what we stand for," said Burger King spokeswoman Cori Zywotow. "To eliminate confusion with our customers, we are taking out these ads - any possible confusion as to what Burger King stands for."

The ads will appear Sunday and early next week in newspapers across the nation she said. Zywotow declined to say how much the ad campaign will cost.

Christian Leaders for Responsible Television, or Clear-TV, ended its two-month-old boycott of Burger King restaurants this week after a series a meetings with company officials.

Clear-TV labeled Burger King as a leading sponsor of television violence, sex and anti-Christian bigotry, and promoted its boycott through mailings and other methods. Zywotow said the boycott had no measurable effect on sales.

Rev. Donald Wildmon, the Mississippi minister who is executive director of Clear-TV, said organizers decided to end the boycott because they believe Burger King has adopted a new advertising policy that reflects their concerns. Wildmon declined to say whether Burger King agreed to launch the ad campaign in order to end the boycott.

Burger King, which spends about $215 million a year on all forms of advertising and promotion, welcomed the group's decision to end the boycott, but insisted it did not cave in to any demands made by organizers. "Our policy has not changed," Zywotow said.

Zywotow said the ads appearing next week will state: "Burger King wishes to go on record as supporting traditional American values on television, especially the importance of the family.

"We believe the American people desire television programs that reflect the values they are trying to instill in their children. We pledge to support such programs with our advertising dollars."

When asked for the example of a television program Burger King will not support, Zywotow cited "Saturday Night Live" on NBC. "You certainly don't know because it is live, what will be said," she explained. "The Cosby Show" is an example of television programming Burger King supports, she said.

Four years ago, Burger King was the target of another boycott launched by the Rainforest Action Network in San Francisco. The group objected to Burger King's purchase of beef from Central America because of the threat expanding cattle ranches posed to the region's rain forests. Burger King stopped buying beef from Central America in August 1987 and the boycott was called off.

Zywotow said Burger King is an "easy target" for such boycotts. "Seven (million) to nine million customers come into our restaurants daily," she said.

Wildmon said his group may launch boycotts targeting other corporations early next year, based on results of the group's current effort to track sex, violence, and profanity on television. Wildmon said 1,600 Christian leaders representing a constituency of about 60 million people participate in Clear-TV.

BOSTON (NOV. 1) UPI - The Trump Shuttle has canceled plans to put into effect what would have been its fourth fare increase in ten months but said Thursday the decision had nothing to do with the Pan Am Shuttle's unusual decision not to follow suit in hiking fares.

As a result, seats on the New York-Boston and New York-Washington flights of both airlines will remain at the record high $139 one-way fares to which they were recently raised.

The Trump Shuttle fare increases, which were supposed to have gone into effect this week, were a "contingency" drawn up because of rising jet fuel prices, said Joan Fudala, a spokeswoman for the carrier.

"We evaluated it on a day-to-day basis and decided we would not raise the fare at this time," because fuel prices had leveled off, she said. As for a price drop if fuel prices should decline, Fulda said: "I don't know. Some other prices could go up. It's hard to say."

CHICAGO (NOV. 1) UPI - Soybeans were higher and grain futures narrowly mixed at the close Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybeans made session highs about midday on follow-through buying and short-covering, then gave up some of the gains to profit-taking during the final minutes. Gains in soybeans also were limited by continued harvest activity in the eastern Soybean Belt.

Corn was fractionally higher in relatively light, choppy trading. The lack of farmer selling and a slight pick-up in export business kept a floor under prices. South Korea was in the market for 250,000 tons of corn and Taiwan bought a small quantity.

Traders were on both sides of the wheat market and closing prices were narrowly mixed. Higher prices for soybeans and soybean meal provided underlying support for wheat futures.

Reports that Canada had sold 4 million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union prompted renewed talk on the floor that the United States will be pressured to grant most-favored-nation status to the USSR.

Interior and Gulf basis levels were mixed.

At the close, corn was up 1/4 to 1 1/2, soybeans up 1/4 to 4, wheat up 1/4 to 3/4 and oats off 1/4 to 1/2.

HOUSTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Jury selection began Thursday the ''Pottygate'' trial of a woman ticketed for using a men's restroom during a concert because the lines outside the women's bathrooms were too long.

Denise Wells, 33, faces a $200 fine if convicted of violating a city ordinance against using a bathroom of the opposite sex in a disruptive manner.

''I don't feel that I'm guilty,'' Wells told reporters. ''I had no choice, I couldn't wait.''

Wells said she went into the men's room after seeing a man take his girlfriend into the men's bathroom. She said she covered her eyes when she went into the restroom at The Summit arena.

As she left the bathroom, a policeman gave her a ticket and threw her out of the July 7 concert, which she had paid $125 to attend.

The media has dubbed the case ''Pottygate'' and has nicknamed Wells the ''bathroom bandit.'' More than 20 reporters and photographers waited outside the municipal court for Wells' arrival Thursday.

Her family passed out mock media passes with a drawing of a toilet under the word ''Pottygate.'' The toilet lid featured the female biological symbol and the words, ''Free Denise Wells.''

Attorney Valorie Davenport said Wells used the men's bathroom only out of necessity.

''I think everybody needs to have certain basic human rights. The men actually are as sympathetic as the women are. They feel that, frankly, when you gotta go, you gotta go,'' Davenport said.

But an attorney for the city of Houston disagreed.

''She violated a city ordinance,'' prosecutor Karl Rosette said. ''We have an ordinance prohibiting a person from entering a restroom of the opposite sex without the permission of the owner or the person in charge, in a manner calculated to cause a disturbance.''

Davenport said Wells did not mean to be disruptive and the charge should be dropped.

''You've got to stand up for something, or sit down for something, as the case may be,'' a smiling Davenport said.

During jury selection, attorneys asked prospective jurors if any of them had ever gone into the wrong restroom. Out of a jury pool of 30, 10 people said they had mistakenly done so in the past.

Since her arrest, Wells has appeared on the ''Tonight Show'' and has had her story told in ''People'' magazine and ''Ladies Home Journal'' and in columns by Ann Landers and Erma Bombeck.

She reportedly has agreed to appear on the ''Geraldo'' show in early November, whatever the outcome of her trial.

Davenport estimated the trial could take about two days.

LONDON (NOV. 1) UPI - Deputy Prime Minister Geoffrey Howe resigned Thursday because of differences with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher over her resistance to the European Community's economic unity strategy, officials said.

A spokesman for Thatcher's office said she accepted the resignation ''more in sorrow than in anger.''

He said Howe - the last member of Thatcher's Cabinet to be with her since the start of her 11-year-old administration - resigned during a 30-minute meeting with Thatcher at Downing Street.

A replacement will be announced soon, he said, adding that the resignation was over Britain's policy on Europe.

David Harris, Howe's personal assistant, refused to discuss Howe's motives, saying all would be clarified in letters the government and Howe would release.

''Of course he is saddened to be leaving the government after such a long period,'' Harris said.

Howe, 64, served under Thatcher as chancellor of the Exchequer and foreign secretary. His appointment as deputy last year was perceived as trying to tame his insider challenges to her foreign policy, which is now conducted by Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd.

The differences surfaced clearly last weekend when he announced he had tried to persuade Thatcher to join the European Exchange Rate Mechanism - a plan under which EC currencies are set under a basket rate - earlier than she wished. Britain joined in late September.

Increasing numbers of Thatcher's Conservative Party have challenged her solitary stance in the EC over the pace of unity, with many fearing that Britain will be left out of the benefits of the unified market.

''It now looks like European policy will be the anvil on which the Thatcher government will be broken,'' said Paddy Ashdown, the pro- European leader of the centrist Liberal Democrat Party. ''It could be a mortal blow to the Thatcher administration and will bring into question her leadership.

''Until she goes, Britain will not have the united policy we need in Europe,'' he said. ''This indicates the wide division, the San Andreas fault, that runs right down the Cabinet table.''

Thatcher believes many of the community's goals are hastily thought out and impractical, obliging member nations to yield too much power to the 12-nation body's headquarters in Brussels.

At a stormy community summit in Rome last weekend, Britain alone refused to sign a communique in which the other members pledged to try to create a European currency by the year 2000.

(NOV. 1) UPI - Military bands played during an hour-long ceremony in Dover, Delaware, this morning to honor the returning bodies of 11 servicemen killed in Operation Desert Shield. An honor guard of Navy and Marine Corps officials carried the metal coffins one by one off a C-141 Starlifter aircraft and loaded them onto hearses bound for the military mortuary. 10 sailors died two days ago in an accident aboard the U-S-S Iwo Jima and the Marine was killed in a separate vehicle accident.

A top official of the Palestine Liberation Organization said in Amman , Jordan today that Iraq would free all its hostages if it is guaranteed that military action will NOT be used to solve the Persian Gulf crisis. Iraq, meanwhile, drew new fire from U-S and British officials for an offer to allow hostage relatives to visit their loved ones in Iraq and Kuwait for Christmas. The White House says the hostages should be released immediately, and British officials called the proposal ''disgraceful.''

Israel's police minister has announced a re-organization that will include personnel changes. It follows a review of the Israeli investigation into the Temple Mount riots last month. The report criticized police officers for NOT preventing violence from escalating into the deaths of as many as 21 Arabs.

The chairman of the National Democratic Party is accusing Republicans of voter intimidation tactics in North Carolina and possibly Texas. Party Chairman Ron Brown is asking Attorney General Thornburgh to investigate postcards that were sent to voters in the two states. Brown says the mailings are attempts to confuse voters and to discourage them from going to the polls next Tuesday. In North Carolina, Republican Senator Jesse Helms is facing a stiff challenge from liberal black Democrat Harvey Gantt. In Texas, Republican Clayton Williams and Democrat Ann Richards are in a close race for governor.

November 1st is All Saints Day, and in Poland, Christians are marking it by praying over newly scrubbed graves decorated with flowers and candles. In the Philippines, Millions took the day off work to visit cemeteries, lugging flowers, picnic baskets, guitars and casette players in a fiesta-like way of paying homage to their dead relatives. Police forces were placed on alert in the capital to maintain peace and order during the celebrations.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - A possible buyer has been found for the Daily News in the seventh day of a crippling strike against the nation's largest tabloid, raising the possibility of a joint publishing venture with the New York Post, it was announced Thursday. A spokesman for the embattled tabloid immediately replied that the paper was not for sale.

Theodore Kheel, an unpaid advisor to nine striking unions at the News, said he has put together a group of people who would like to purchase the News from its current owners, the Tribune Co. of Chicago, and publish it in a joint arrangement with the New York Post.

"Several American investors are involved, and they do not include Rupert Murdoch," Kheel said, referring to the international press tycoon who sold the Post to realtor Peter Kalikow two years ago. Kalikow responded by saying he was "surprised" by Kheel's announcement but considered it a "resourceful" idea.

"It allows the unions to survive and it allows the News to survive," Kalikow said. "If a joint venture with the News means it will keep the Post operating as a viable entity, then I will not preclude anything. Whatever has to be done will be done." Kalikow said he was not one of the investors organized by Kheel noting that if he were, "It might be fraught with legal complications."

Kheel said the deal he proposed to Tribune Co. President Charles Brumback involves giving News employees 20 percent equity in the paper, a deal similar to that Kalikow reached when he obtained concessions from Post unions.

Lisa Robinson, a spokesman for the Daily News, issued a response, "The Daily News is not for sale," which she repeated three times, adding, "It's that simple."

Meanwhile, copies of the News were hard to come by at midtown Manhattan newsstands and elsewhere. It was an under-the-counter item at some newstands because of union pressure on the vendors.

"The unions don't like to see the paper on the stands," explained a vendor on East 56th Street as he pulled the paper out from under the counter. "It means trouble for us." The paper was being sold by newsboys on some streetcorners for 25 cents, ten cents less than the usual price.

Two people were arrested mid-morning Thursday for lying down in the street at the Daily News building to prevent a newspaper truck from turning onto Second Avenue.

When the pair refused to move when ordered by a policeman, they were given disorderly conduct summonses and taken to the 17th precinct headquarters. They were identified as Anthony Rieber, 32, of 329 Court St., Brooklyn, and Tonice Sgriginoli, 38, of 48 Fourth Place, Brooklyn. Police also reported vandalism at 23rd St. and Eighth Avenue where several bundles of the newspaper were set on fire.

A union leader's announcement Wednesday that a negotiator had been called in to mediate the impassed between Daily News management and editorial workers offered hope the two sides would bridge their differences.

And News management was continuing to meet with other unions in collective bargaining negotiations, and met with the drivers union Wednesday at a federal mediator's office in a session scheduled before the strike began.

MIAMI (NOV. 1) UPI - A Dade County judge shot and wounded one of two assailants who gained entry into his home Halloween night by wearing gorilla masks and pretending to be trick-or-treaters.

The injured suspect, Jeffery Dale Parnell, 30, was arrested after he showed up at Jackson Memorial Hospital for treatment of a gunshot wound to the stomach, Metro-Dade Police said Thursday. Detectives said he was in good condition.

Parnell and an unidentified companion knocked on the door at Judge Harvey Baxter's home about 9:20 p.m. Wednesday, police said. Both wore gorilla masks.

Elaine Baxter, the judge's wife, had been greeting trick-or-treaters. But when she opened the door and saw the masked men, she questioned them, police said.

One pushed her inside and held her while the other pulled a handgun from his waistband, police said.

The judge heard her scream that one of the intruders had a gun.

''At that moment, Mr. Baxter, who was in the kitchen, retrieved a firearm and walked toward the front door. The subject shot at him and Mr. Baxter returned fire,'' a police report said.

The suspects fled, leaving blood on the pavement as they climbed into a car parked around the corner, police said.

Police were alerted when Parnell showed up at the hospital, and the victims later identified him as one of the men who attacked them.

Parnell was charged with attempted murder, armed burglary, aggravated battery and use of a firearm during commission of a felony. Police said additional charges were pending.

They were still searching Thursday for the other suspect.

ATLANTA (NOV. 1) UPI - The number of Americans reported to have died from Alzheimer's disease jumped more than 10-fold in eight years, perhaps because of greater awareness of the mind-decaying disorder, federal researchers said Thursday.

The number of reported deaths from Alzheimer's climbed from 857 - or 0.4 per 100,000 people - in 1979 to 11,311 - or 4.2 per 100,000 - in 1987, the last year for which figures were available, the Centers for Disease Control said.

The increase does not necessarily mean the incidence of the incurable disease has risen by that much, the researchers said. The jump may have been caused by more doctors being aware of the ailment, they said.

''The (reported) death rate may have increased because the numbers of people with (Alzheimer's) have increased or because physicians are recognizing the disease more frequently than in the past and writing the diagnosis on death certificates more frequently,'' said Dr. Richard Sun, a CDC epidemiologist.

More studies are being conducted to determine the actual degree of increased incidence and death rate from Alzheimer's, listed as the underlying cause of 46,202 deaths between 1979 and 1987.

An estimated 1.3 million to 1.8 million Americans over age 65 and about 80,000 Americans in their 40s and 50s suffer from Alzheimer's. It kills 120,000 people a year.

Alzheimer's causes progressive memory loss and increasing failure of the higher functions of the mind, such as abstract reasoning. The cause is unknown. There is no cure.

Doctors recommend people who suffer symptoms consult a physician to determine whether they have Alzheimer's or other diseases with similar symptoms.

Harvard Medical School researchers reported last year that 3 percent of the population between 65 and 74 may be afflicted by Alzheimer's. The study said 19 percent of people age 74 to 85 could have the disease and as many as 47 percent of those older than 85 could be Alzheimer's sufferers.

The CDC study, published in the agency's Mobidity and Mortality Weekly Report said reported Alzheimer's deaths rose among women by from 0.3 to 3.9 per 100,000 women during the eight years. The increase among from 0.5 to 4.6 per 100,000. The difference in rates could not be explained, Sun said.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - Ronald Reagan resents being called the president of the rich but still believes raising taxes is no way to increase revenue, the former president said in an interview released Thursday.

Reagan made the comments in response to questions by Barbara Walters in an interview to air Friday on the ABC News program ''20/20.''

Walters asked Reagan if it bothered him to be called the president of the rich.

''Yes, it bothers me very much,'' Reagan said, ''because it is a completely phony story that has been created by many of the people in the media. And this comes back to the whole tax thing. My reason for reducing taxes - and remember I have a degree in economics - my reason for reducing them is that history reveals that reducing the rates usually results in more revenue for the governemnt, not less. Because it's a stimulant to the economy.''

He added later, ''I can't believe that you can raise taxes without reducing the revenue.''

Walters asked him about President Bush's decision about raising taxes.

''I know how George felt about taxes and I know how he meant it when he said, 'Read my lips on this.' But I can also see ... can he afford to bring a halt to any negotiations on the deficit? So I'm sure that he thought of some things that well, okay, this will be in the negotiations. Now he didn't say he'd give in. He said these would be in the negotiations.''

He also defended himself against critics who call him an indecisive president who was only acting the role, saying they were people who disagreed with his philosophy and ''they were just spilling hot air and talking through their hats.''

He said he was flattered by what some people in this country and abroad have said about giving the United States ''credit for all the things that are happening there in the communist countries and how they're turning to free enterprise and democracy and so forth.''

Walters asked if that was because of what Reagan did.

''Well, it wasn't in spite of what I did,'' he said.

Reagan was asked about the estrangement from his daughter, Patti.

''I don't know whether something began back when suddenly she was faced with having to share us with a brother,'' he said. ''I don't know that. But also I think she was at an age in that wild period of the '60s when youth of our country was off on a tangent from a great many of us adults.

''I think that possibly that could now add to it because some of the things that she says shows that she is on opposite sides from me on a number of beliefs and so forth.''

He recalled an incident when Patti, 3 years old, was sitting in his lap and asked to marry him. Mrs. Reagan signalled he should say yes.

''But I said we'll have to wait, you know, because marriage is for when you get older.''

As for his relationship with first wife, actress Jane Wyman, he said:

''Well, we haven't seen very much of each other but there were not hard hard feelings ... against each other. At that time it was that she decided that we'd made a mistake and I wasn't the one, and I took it kind of hard.''

Walters asked Reagan how he thought history would remember him.

''Well, I hope that it'll remember me on the basis that when I took office I felt very strongly that our government had grown too officious and imposing too much on the private sector in our society, and that I wanted to see if the American people couldn't get back that pride and that patriotism, that condfidence that they had in our system. And I think they have.''

BEIRUT, LEBANON (NOV. 1) UPI - The Lebanese like to believe their war-shattered country is full of contradictions, and provided proof Thursday when hundreds turned up for a fashion show in the rubble of the once fashionable St. George Hotel.

The Lebanese designer, Loulwa Abel Baki, chose the setting herself.

The floor was strewn with rubble, dust and pieces of shrapnel. Steel bars jutted from the badly burned ceiling. Graffiti on the walls marked the passage of various militiamen.

Models in colorful autumn and winter clothes appeared on stage from behind burned out walls of the hotel's lobby, once the most luxurious and popular gathering place for snobbish, wealthy Lebanese and rich foreigners until civil war broke out in 1975.

Abdel Baki elected not to change the setting. Marks of the bitter battle to control the seaside resort area in the early days of the war were preserved.

She also used only candles to light the lobby, a common method that all Beiruties use since power was completely cut off a year ago.

''The designer has a lot of imagination. She used destruction to create an orginal setting,'' said Tamara Jaber, a student of communications at Beirut University College. ''She put us in a surrealistic atmosphere that was very realistic.''

''It's a marvellous idea,'' said Huda Khoury, 45. ''I never thought I would ever return to this place where I spent my best years before the war.''

A French journalist who attended the show expressed astonishment over how Lebanese can adapt easily to states of war or peace.

''It is amazing how they can leave behind them all atrocities they have witnessed and try to maintain a normal life even within the context of war,'' he said. ''They have once again proved they have a passion to live.''

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - National Democratic officials charged Thursday that Republicans are engaged in voter intimidation tactics in North Carolina and Texas and they asked Attorney General Richard Thornburgh to investigate.

In a letter to Thornburgh, National Democratic Chairman Ron Brown contended that postcards that had been sent to voters in the two states were attempts to confuse them and discourage them from voting.

Republicans denied any improprieties and while Democratic aides said the North Carolina postcards were clearly sent by the GOP, they were not certain who had financed the effort in Texas.

Both states are the sites of close races. In North Carolina, conservative Republican Sen. Jesse Helms is facing a stiff challenge from liberal black Democrat Harvey Gantt. In Texas, Republican Clayton Williams and Democrat Ann Richards are in a close race for governor.

In North Carolina, state Republican officials said they sent postcards to voters whose addresses appeared to be different from those on other lists obtained by the GOP.

Democrats said the postcards were sent mostly to heavily Democratic areas and contained the warning that it is ''a federal crime, punishable by up to five years in jail, to knowingly give false information about your name, residence or period of residence to an election official.''

Rick Shelby, political director for the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, said the Democrats' complaints were ''much ado about nothing'' and said ''ballot integrity programs'' have always been part of the campaigns of both parties.

In Texas, Democrats said postcards were sent to people - mostly elderly blacks - who had requested absentee ballots.

Those postcards urged the people to throw away their absentee ballot and proudly vote in person.

''The problem is that under Texas law, once a voter requests an absentee ballot, the voter cannot vote on Election Day at the polling place, absent going through a special, time-consuming and burdensome exercise to cancel the absentee ballot,'' Brown wrote to Thornburgh.

''These examples raise constitutional and civil rights concerns that require the Department of Justice's prompt attention and immediate efforts to preserve the exercise of the constitutional right to vote,'' Brown added.

Brown based much of his argument on the fact that in 1982 the Republican National Committee signed a federal consent decree agreeing to ''comply with all applicable state and federal laws protecting the rights of duly qualified citizens to vote.''

Asked whether the postcards in North Carolina violated the consent decree, Shelby said those decrees covered only the National Republican Committee and the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee - ''and do not apply to state parties.''

The Justice Department had no immediate comment on Brown's letter, but Thornburgh said his department would ''vigorously enforce the federal election laws to ensure that this important right is not subverted through intimidation or bribery.''

''Attempts to corrupt the election process are crimes of the highest magnitude '' Thornburgh added. ''The department will deal with such offenses swiftly and sternly.''

The attorney general said 212 federal observers are scheduled to observe polling places in Arizona, New Mexico, North Carolina, South Carolina and Utah on Election Day.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - The market-based interest rate on U.S. Savings Bonds has been increased to 7.19 percent for the next six months from 7.01 percent, the Treasury Department announced Thursday.

The rate, which is changed twice a year on May 1 and Nov. 1, is 85 percent of the average market yield on five-year Treasury notes during the last six months. That average yield was 8.46 percent.

"The new rate will keep Savings Bonds extremely well-positioned during the coming months," said Catalina Villapando, Treasurer of the United States and national director of the savings bond program.

Before Nov. 1, 1982, interest on the bonds, which is exempt from state and municipal taxes, was fixed. With the change to a market-based rate, sales have increased dramatically.

The government offers the Series EE bonds - which are "backed by the full faith and credit of the United States" - to raise cash to help pay its obligations, including interest on the huge national debt.

"For bonds held at least five years, yields at redemption are the average of semiannual market-based rates during the time held, compounded semiannually, or a minimum rate, whichever is greater," the Treasury Department said.

The government guarantees a minimum market-based rate of six percent on the bonds, which are sold through financial institutions as well as a payroll deduction plan in denominations ranging from $50 to $10,000. The purchase price of a savings bond is equal to half of the bond's face value. For example a $100 bond costs $50.

Interest on bonds purchased after Dec. 31, 1989, is also exempt from federal income taxes if the bonds are redeemed for paying tuition at a college, university or technical school.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Hungarian Ambassador Peter Zwack has a dream and in it 50 U.S. Army tank trucks carrying gasoline are lined up on his country's borders ready to deliver fuel to his energy-starved economy.

Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the resulting dramatic rise in oil prices, coupled with a cut in Soviet oil deliveries, has hurt the economy of Hungary, a fledgling democracy struggling with demands of a free-market system.

Other Eastern European countries like Czechoslovakia and Poland also were hard hit by steep increase in energy prices, making their already Herculean effort of trying to transform their economies much more difficult.

Zwack said Hungary had been paying about $3.5 billion annually to service debt of $20.7 billion and had been attracting thousands of Westerners interested in investing in a stable country throughly aligned with the West.

Then came the Soviet decision to cut oil supplies by 35 percent and the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait by Saddam Hussein's troops. Hungary was forced to buy oil on the spot market, which is subject to daily price swings, which after Iraq's aggression mostly swung up. Hungary, which had been paying about $18 a barrel found itself having to meet prices approaching $40 a barrel.

Another blow was the annual loss of $500 million in trade with Baghdad and East Germany, whose fate is tied to the economic policies of a united Germany.

''The combined loss of all this income is $5.5 billion, plus a terrible drought, which is costing the country another $1 billion a year, and thousands of cattle, which have to be slaughtered,'' Zwack sadi.

To top it off, Budapest was paralyzed last week when taxi and truck drivers struck to protest a 65-percent increase in fuel prices. A government price retreatended the strike, but most expect the problem to resurface as winter approaches.

Zwack and his colleagues from Poland and Czechoslovokia are meeting weekly to devise a campaign to get Washington to back its promotion of democracy with money and maybe some gasoline.

In response to this, Zwack says President Bush has offered a package of $47 million, in credits not grants.

''The United States is mainly acting as a pusher, pushing Western Europe, Japan and Saudi Arabia to help, but the United States, itself, is doing very little,'' Zwack said in an interview.

He understands that the United States is having its own budget problems, but he has an idea to help relieve the short-term emergency.

Germany and Austria provided emergency oil for Hungary and Zwack believes the United States can do the same under an atmosphere devoid of a Warsaw Pact threat by drawing down the petroleum stocks of U.S. military forces based in Europe.

''Imagine the public relations, what it would do for the American image, to have 40 or 50 American Army trucks arrive in Hungary, loaded with gasoline.''

He also thinks it would be worthwhile for the United States to dip into the Strategic Petroleum Reserve as an emergency measure to help the economically distressed countries during the current oil price shock.

For the long term, Zwack said he would like to see a new version of the Marshall Plan, the post-World War II economic recovery program for Europe.

Zwack has argued to the State Department that Hungary deserves special consideration, if only because it began the erosion of the Soviet empire with its ''Goulash'' style of modified communism.

Hungary also started the precipitous collapse of communist rule in East Germany by opening its borders to tens of thousands of East German refugees.

But, he complains that the United States has been slow to offer meaningful economic support to Hungary, and businessmen, while they are looking at possibilities for investing in Hungary tend to be short- sighted. ''They insist on a profit in the first year, but it is usually two or three years before an investment begins to pay off.''

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - Heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield Thursday appealed to the World Boxing Council to follow its own rules and allow him to defend his title against George Foreman before fighting Mike Tyson.

The Mexican-based WBC wants Holyfield to make his first title defense against Tyson. Holyfield has signed instead to fight 42-year-old Foreman for $20 million in the spring. He said he will fight Tyson later in the year.

Holyfield, 25-0 with 21 knockouts, won the title Oct. 25 with a third-round knockout of Buster Douglas.

''I believe that Foreman and Tyson are both worthy contenders,'' Holyfield said in a statement released by his promoter, Dan Duva. ''I plan to give them both the opportunity to fight for my title in 1991, beginning with Foreman sometime in March or April.''

Under WBC rules, Holyfield would have a year to defend against top- ranked contender Tyson. However, WBC President Jose Sulaiman says Tyson deserves an immediate shot at regaining his title because of the controversy surrounding his championship loss to Douglas. Tyson and his promoter, Don King, claimed Douglas received a long count in the eighth round - two rounds before Douglas knocked out Tyson.

''All I want to receive are the same rights and same respect that is given to any No. 1 contender who wins a world championship,'' said Holyfield, who was ranked No. 1 for 18 months before fighting for the title.

''I waited patiently for my turn to fight for the heavyweight title and I will not deny any worthy challenger their opportunity to fight me as long as I am champ.

''I believe all boxing fans want one undisputed heavyweight champion and that titles should be won and lost in the ring. I hope that all three sanctioning organizations will cooperate to keep the heavyweight title unified.''

The World Boxing Association and International Boxing Federation joined the WBC before the Douglas-Holyfield bout in calling for the winner to fight Tyson next. The WBA and IBF have since softened their stance, however, and appear willing to sanction a Holyfield-Foreman bout.

Sulaiman says the WBC executive council has voted three times to give Tyson the next shot at its heavyweight championship. He said when Holyfield's promoters officially inform him of their intention to fight Foreman next, the WBC will vote on whether Holyfield will be stripped of his title.

''We have taken a position,'' Sulaiman said by telephone. ''Everybody knew this was the WBC's position. Believe it or not, WBC decisions are made by the executive council, and not myself.''

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 1) UPI - Lockheed Corp., which lost $300 million last year on the now-cancelled P-7A anti-submarine aircraft, has been discussing a possible resumption of the program with the Navy, a company spokesman said Thursday.

"We have been exchanging informal ideas with the Navy about the P-7A or a possible successor aircraft," said James Ragsdale, spokesman for Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co.

But Ragsdale stressed that the Navy has not yet made a formal "request for proposal" to re-start the P7-A program, which the Navy terminated in July after deciding that Lockheed was not meeting its contractual obligations to build the plane. "We don't know if the Navy is going to have a new version of the plane," Ragsdale said.

Lockheed took a $300 million charge against last year's fourth-quarter earnings because of cost overruns on the $600 million four-year, fixed-price development portion of the program. The company said at the time that changes in the government's requirements for the aircraft, an updated longer-range version of the P-3C patrol plane, had created the cost overrun because the changes had eliminated common technology found on the P-3C.

Under that contract, the first new aircraft would have been delivered in 1994. Lockheed has appealed the Navy's termination of the contract, which it won over Boeing Co. and McDonnell Douglas Corp.

As a practical matter, it may be difficult for the Navy to find another contractor to build a new version of the P-3C. Boeing has a huge order backlog and McDonnell Douglas has been having problems of its own that could make it reluctant to bid on a program that caused Lockheed such a significant financial headache. Additionally, Lockheed has been the principle supplier of the nation's anti-submarine warfare aircraft for the past three decades.

Aerospace analyst Lawrence Harris of Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards of Los Angeles said that the Navy has several options on the P-3C. These include simply upgrading the avionics of the fleet; producing a modernized P-3C that is not as advanced as the P-7A was going to be; resurrecting the P-7A program and possibly calling it something else, and modifying the Lockheed C-130 aircraft.

"My guess at this point would be that the Navy would upgrade the existing fleet," Harris said. "That's the least expensive and least controversial option, even though it does not address the range issue."

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - A hospital stay for Medicare beneficiaries will cost an extra $36 in 1991, with the deductible increasing to $628, the Health Care Financing Administration said Thursday.

The deductible for calendar year 1991 is calculated according to a formula set by law.

Except for the $628 deductible for the first day of inpatient care, Medicare will pay for all necessary inpatient hospital services for stays of up to 60 days. For stays between 61-90 days, Medicare beneficiaries will be responsible for making co-insurance payments of $157 a day. The co-insurance rate is required by law to be one-fourth of the hospital deductible.

If a Medicare beneficiary needs extended care in a skilled nursing facility after hospitalization, Medicare pays for all approved nursing facility services for the first 20 days. For stays between 21-100 days, beneficiaries will be responsible for co-insurance payments of $78.50 in 1991, a $4.50 increase over the 1990 level.

For persons 65 and over who have not earned entitlement to Medicare hospital insurance through employment under the Social Security or Railroad Retirement systems, the law will allow them to purchase hospital insurance coverage for a monthly premium of $177 in 1991.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - A federal jury Thursday rejected a woman's request for $2.5 million in punitive damages against former heavyweight champ Mike Tyson, who was found guilty one day earlier of grabbing the woman in a midtown disco.

After the verdict was announced, the 24-year-old boxer playfully slapped a $100 bill against his forehead, signifying the amount of money he must pay the woman for his conviction on a single battery charge.

''I'm just happy they saw it as the truth,'' the boxer replied when asked for reaction to verdict.

Tyson was sued originally for $4.5 million by Sandra Miller Reese, who alleged the boxer grabbed her breasts and buttocks Dec. 10, 1988 at Bentley's disco in Manhattan.

Judge Michael Mukasey in U.S. District Court in Manhattan earlier in the week threw out one of her charges asking $1 million for ''inflicting intentional emotional distress.''

And the jury of five women and one man Wednesday found he committed battery against the plaintiff, not assault, and awarded her $100 in compensatory damages.

The jury's decision not to award punitive damages came after a second woman testified Tyson had grabbed her at a Manhattan disco and fondled her.

The testimony by Lori Davis was designed to buttress Reese's charge that Tyson's behavior was not a solitary act but part of a pattern requiring high punitive damages.

Davis, a 31-year-old mental health therapist who now lives in Atlanta, has filed a $7 million damage suit against Tyson in state Supreme Court in Hauppauge.

LIMA, Peru (NOV. 1) UPI - President Alberto Fujimori started a raging controversy with Peru's powerful Catholic Church when he ordered a national birth control program that includes giving out free contraceptive pills and prophylactics.

The Peruvian Episcopalean Conference, the ruling body of catholic bishops in Peru, issued a statement last week that the position of the Catholic Church was outlined by Pope John Paul II, who rejects ''unnatural'' methods of birth control.

The government has destined more than $1 million to finance a program that, starting this month, is intended to make birth control pills and prophylactics available to women across the country free of charge.

A nation of 22.3 million inhabitants, Peru's population is growing at an annual rate of 2.5 percent, according to official figures. On an average, 5.2 children are born to each woman.

Fujimori responded Wednesday to Church criticism of the program by saying that some ecclesiastical sectors had ''medieval opinions and recalcitrant positions'' in being against artificial birth control.

Later in the day, Archbishop Luis Bambaren, head of the Family Commitee of the Bishop's Conference, retorted that ''it is medieval that medicines do not reach those who are sick.''

The Catholic Church, of which 85 percent of the Peruvian population are members, encourages what birth control specialists call the ''rhythm method,'' wherby a couple keeps track of the woman's menstruation cycle and only has intercouse when she is statistically less susceptible to pregnancy.

The Church calls prophylactics and the birth control pill ''artificial'' contraceptive methods because they involve using manmade devices or substances to avoid pregnancy.

Bambaren last week argued that the government's apparent concern for unborn children was surprising while living Peruvian children were dying of hunger.

Fujimori said he considered such arguments ''completely wrong.'' The president said the population growth has nothing to do with economic growth, while poverty in Peru was a function of the economic situation.

Fujimori, a Roman Catholic of Japanese ancestry, also ran into problems with the Peruvian Catholic Church during his campaign in June.

Church officials alleged that a number of protestant Fujimori campaign workers had distributed pamphlets that ''defamed'' the Virgin Mary and the Catholic practice of revering saints as ''fetishistic and pagan.''

Fujimori denied his campaign workers had anything to do with the pamphlets.

OTTAWA (NOV. 1) UPI - Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, warning that the country is in imminent danger of breaking up, Thursday appointed a special commission to determine if Canadians want to remain a nation.

Mulroney told Parliament the country needs a ''new consensus'' to take it into the 21st century. ''The situation is urgent ... the problem is serious,'' said Mulroney.

He said the country is in danger of ''fracturing along linguistic and regional fault lines'' that have run deep throughout its history.

The 12-member commission, representing labor, native groups, business and cultural groups will hold public forums across the country and present its report next July 1, coinciding with the country's 124th birthday.

It will be preceded, however, by another report on Quebec's future in Canada commissioned by that province's Liberal government shortly after the failure of the Meech Lake constitutional accord aimed at preventing Quebec's secession.

The accord, essentially a constitutional amendment drafted by the federal government, would have granted Quebec special powers to promote and preserve its French language and culture.

It was killed in June when two provinces, Manitoba and Newfoundland, refused to support it.

Recent opinion polls indicate Quebecers are more concerned with the national economy - Canada is in a recession brought on by high interest rates and massive public debt - than with sovereignty.

Nonetheless, the Quebec government hopes the report, due next March, will help wangle additional concessions and powers from Ottawa.

But some consider Mulroney's special commission a ploy to divert attention from the economy and to arrest the Conservative government's dramatic fall in popularity.

According to Mulroney, the catch-all commission will examine Quebec's future in Canada, regional hostilities, western alienation, the distribution of powers among municipal, provincial and federal governments and reform of parliamentary institutions, including the appointed Senate.

It will also examine minority groups and the plight of natives.

''The future of Canada depends on the answers to some very simple questions. Do we all want to live together? What kind of country do we want,'' Mulroney said.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - The dollar fell back sharply against the German mark in New York dealings Thursday after the Deutsche Bundesbank's policymaking council raised its key Lombard short-term rate by 1/2 percentage point.

The German central bank's decision was mainly for domestic considerations, to brake borrowing and control inflation related to the reconstruction of former East German regions, but it also reinforced the mark.

"It took people a little off guard," said senior customer dealer John Lyman at the Bank of Tokyo in New York. He said many participants expected the bank to follow up with a hike in its longer-term discount rate.

Higher German interest rates boost the mark because they draw mobile global funds into the currency to benefit from improved returns.

Late in the New York session the dollar was quoted at 1.5045 German marks, off more than one pfennig from 1.5175 marks Wednesday, and at 130.55 Japanese yen, ahead from 130.10 yen the day before.

Lyman said Britain's pound sterling declined but recovered on news of Deputy Prime Minister Sir Geoffrey Howe's resignation over a difference with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher over European economic policy. The pound moved up to $1.9450 from $1.9435.

Lyman said that if the dollar remains relatively firm amid the onslaught of bad news about the U.S. economy, it is mainly because global foreign exchange players are afraid war might break out in the Persian Gulf.

But he said U.S. unemployment data due out Friday morning could be a "litmus test" on the dollar. Serious bad news on jobs could oblige the Federal Reserve to aggressively lower short-term interest rates. Surging joblessness could "validate the sentiment that we've had the (dollar) correction and we're on our way down again," Lyman said.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2730 Swiss francs, off from 1.2855; 5.0435 French francs, down from 5.0825; and 1,127.75 Italian lire, off from 1,137.

In London, the dollar closed lower against most major currencies despite the harsh tone of Persian Gulf exchanges and market sentiment that the dollar may have bottomed out after plunging since late summer.

"The dollar has drifted off a bit," said economist David Smith of Williams de Broe Ltd. "But in the medium term it looks stronger." He said the dollar was hurt by the German Bundesbank's announced hike of the Lombard rate from 8 percent to 8.5 percent.

In London, the pound gained against the dollar when the Treasury denied it would cut interest rates. It ended at $1.9525 vs. $1.9450.

The dollar ended lower in Frankfurt, at 1.5080 German marks against 1.5160, after the Bundesbank rate hike announcement. It also declined in Zurich, to 1.2815 Swiss francs vs. 1.2835.

Currency markets were closed in Paris, Brussels and Milan for the All Saints' Day holiday, and were to resume trading Friday.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose above the 130 yen level for the first time in more than three weeks on a report of official U.S. concern at the dollar's fall.

The report followed U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady's comment Tuesday that he does not welcome a weak dollar, and fueled dollar buying, said Sumitomo Bank assistant general manager Hidehiko Nakagawa.

The dollar closed at 130.70 yen, up 1.35 yen over Wednesday's close of 129.35 yen, the Bank of Japan said. That was the highest closing rate since Oct. 8 when the U.S. unit closed at 130.05 yen.

In Zurich, gold closed higher at $380.50 an ounce against $378, and was also higher in London at $380.25 an ounce vs. $379.25.

Silver was down in Zurich at $4.20 an ounce vs. $4.25. It also fell in London to $4.19 an ounce compared with $4.22.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $381.25 an ounce, up from $379.50 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $381.50 an ounce, up from $379.40.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.245 an ounce, ahead from $4.175. Comex silver closed at $4.256 an ounce, also up from $4.18.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 1) UPI - Reports of a possible DEA connection to the 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 reopened some old wounds and raised new questions about the government's role in the largest criminal investigation ever conducted.

The Justice Department, which has been stung by criticism of its efforts to catch the Pan Am bombers, issued a statement Thursday saying the FBI will look into accusations that a Drug Enforcement Administration informant may have smuggled the bomb aboard the Boeing 747 jumbo jet that exploded over Lockerbie Scotland, killing 270 people.

''While at this time we know of no evidence giving credence to these allegations, it is important to examine these allegations to determine their credibility as soon as possible,'' said Deputy Attorney General William Barr.

''Securing the arrest and conviction of those responsible for this cowardly act is a top priority,'' he said.

But the Justice Department's refusal to immediately dismiss what many consider an old and groundless story has rekindled speculation about the cause of the crash. It also has incited anger among the families of crash victims more than four months after Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said ''significant progress'' has been made in the case.

''The conduct of the DEA is outrageous and inexcusable,'' said Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y. ''They are not replying to these allegations forthrightly, quickly and without undue delay.''

''They've had more than ample time to respond,'' D'Amato said. ''They're just adding to the confusion and they are adding to the general distrust people have as it relates to government.''

NBC and ABC reported Tuesday that Pan Am flights from Frankfurt, West Germany, including Flight 103, had been used several times by an undercover DEA operation to fly informants and suitcases of heroin into Detroit. The flights were part of an elaborate sting operation to snare Middle East drug dealers.

The reports said drug operatives may have uncovered the top-secret operation and retalitated by slipping a bomb in the suitcase of Khalid Jafaar, a Lebanese-American acting as a DEA courier.

Bill Ruzzamenti, a DEA spokesman, said Thursday that the agency is reviewing its files to see if there was any link to the Pan Am flight. ''There's been absolutely nothing that's come up in the review,'' he said.

DEA officials maintain Operation Courier was shut down two months before the Dec. 21, 1988, crash, and a presidential commission on air terrorism concluded last year that there was no evidence the DEA was linked to the bombing.

However, Justice Department officials privately concede it was a public relations gaffe to say the allegations will be investigated rather than issuing a prompt denial. The statements have incited a whole new round of criticism of the department from victims who want to put the crash behind them.

''It's obvious now that there's a rat involved in this whole Pan Am Greek tragedy,'' said Bert Ammerman, president of Victims of Pan Am 103. ''This is a major concession by the government ... that it was directly or indirectly involved in the downing of Flight 103. This is the first time the government has not denied something saying they were involved.''

The latest chapter in the long-running Pan Am saga has rekindled charges of government foot-dragging - a thought particularly unsavory to relatives of crash victims.

Ammerman, whose brother, Tom, died in the crash, said government inaction ''tells me that 270 people on Pan Am Flight 103 are allowable casualties.'' He said he was disturbed that one Justice Department agency, the FBI, would be investigating another, the DEA, and called for a congressional inquiry into the disaster and into how it was handled by the government.

Jim Swire, who represents the families of British victims, said the newest development in the Pan Am case ''reinforces the question as to what may be locked in CIA files.''

He said the government has never fully addressed reports that surfaced last year suggesting possible CIA and BKA-West German police involvement in the bombing.

There has been no conclusive evidence pinning the bombing on any one person or group, although Middle East political terrorism has long been suspected.

D'Amato, who last year was a member of the air terrorism commission that looked at the Pan Am crash, said he did not believe there was evidence the DEA was involved in the crash. Nevertheless, he said the DEA shot itself in the foot by not responding quickly to the story.

ATLANTA (NOV. 1) UPI - Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan called on local governments Thursday to take children from drug- and alcohol-ravaged families and put them up for adoption - even if it means turning the youngsters over to single parents.

Sullivan said efforts to help the mother and preserve the family should come first, but he made clear his feelings that drug abuse by mothers, and the devastating effects on children before and after birth, justify a harsh response by government.

''We may not agree, but I want you to know that in the head and heart of Louis Sullivan, M.D., substance abuse by a pregnant woman is a serious moral issue '' the secretary said. ''It is an offense against the quality of our life and our civilization.''

Sullivan, an Atlanta native and former president of Morehouse School of Medicine, made his recommendations while speaking to the Georgia General Assembly's Joint Conference on Children of Cocaine and Substance Abuse. The conference of state legislators opened Thursday.

Mothers who abuse drugs or alcohol first need society's help, Sullivan said.

''Drug treatment and supportive services may successfully enable a substance abusing mother to be an effective parent and keep the family together during recovery,'' the secretary said.

However, when mothers fail to stop addictive behavior that threatens their children's health and well-being, society must end her parental rights, and the rights of the father or other family members who allow her behavior to continue.

''We must aggressively intervene, using the law to its fullest extent to protect these children,'' Sullivan said. ''We must be more willing to make these children available to loving, nurturing adoptive parents, including single parents.''

Sullivan said the costs to both society and the child run high, noting that four out of every 10 babies born at Atlanta's inner-city hospital, Grady Memorial, have been exposed to cocaine while in the womb.

He noted that one baby suffering for his mother's cocaine abuse has run up a bill for $450,000 in six months at Grady - a bill that largely will be paid by the taxpayers.

Children of mothers who abuse alcohol or cocaine usually are born with a multitude of defects, including heart and brain damage. The secretary said social costs will only increase as children born to mothers who abused crack cocaine begin to enter the school system, taking with them a host of special educational and emotional needs.

Sullivan did say he is encouraged by data showing marijuana and cocaine use among adults and teens has dropped significantly. He also pointed to statistics showing cocaine-related hospital emergencies dropped in the last quarter of 1989 and the first quarter of 1990.

He cited those statistics as an indicator President Bush's so-called ''War on Drugs'' is working.

TORONTO (NOV. 1) UPI - The Canadian brewing giant that owns the Montreal Canadiens announced Thursday it will exercise an option to buy an interest in the Toronto Maple Leafs, the Canadiens' long-time hockey arch-rival. However, Molson Cos. Ltd. said it will eventually sell the shares and won't become involved in the day-to-day operation of the Maple Leafs.

Molson owns the Montreal Canadiens, and National Hockey League rules prohibit companies from involvement with more than one team. Molson spokesman Hershell Ezrin said that a stake of about 20 percent of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. will be purchased from Harold E. Ballard Ltd. and placed in a trust set up in conjunction with the league.

Ezrin said the company then will dispose of the shares, worth about $17 million at current market prices, in a way most beneficial to Molson shareholders. The purchase option, which became active Thursday, allows Molson to get the shares for $8,500 each.

Molson acquired the option in 1980, in exchange for providing Maple Leafs owner Harold Ballard with financial assistance in his successful attempt to consolidate control of his financial empire. Ballard died earlier this year.

There had been speculation Molson might consider selling the Canadiens and try to take over the Maple Leafs as a marketing tool to gain advantage in the lucrative southern Ontario beer market. But Ezrin said Molson does not plan to sell the Canadiens.

The latest speculation is that Molson may seek to sell its shares to a friendly buyer and seek to extend its current marketing rights with the Maple Leafs to shut out rival brewer John Labatt Ltd.

Meanwhile, Ballard's son Bill has launched a court battle to gain control of the team. In his lawsuit, Bill Ballard contends he had right of first refusal when his brother Harold Jr. sold his shares to the elder Ballard for $18 million in 1989. If his suit is successful, Bill Ballard will gain control of the Leafs' arena and the team.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (NOV. 1) UPI - Problems with a military satellite aboard the shuttle Atlantis do not appear as serious as first believed and the ship may be ready for launch by Nov. 15, only six days or so behind schedule, sources said Thursday.

Atlantis and its five-man all-military crew were formally cleared Tuesday for blastoff Nov. 9 to carry a top-secret Pentagon spy satellite into orbit. But the Air Force announced an indefinite delay Wednesday, citing problems with the classified payload.

Sources initially said the flight faced a delay of at least a week to 10 days and possibly more than two weeks. Officials who asked not to be named said Thursday, however, the problem did not appear to be as serious as they first believed and that Atlantis may be ready for flight as early as Nov. 15.

In the meantime, engineers are pressing on with preparations to launch both Atlantis and the recently repaired shuttle Columbia as soon as possible. Shuttle program director Robert Crippen said in a statement Thursday that Atlantis - mission STS-38 - still has priority over Columbia.

''At this time, we are continuing to proceed with the schedule to fly STS-38 before (Columbia),'' he said. ''I am optimistic about flying (Columbia) sometime in December.''

Before Atlantis was delayed, Columbia was on track for takeoff around Dec. 1 to kick off a 10-day astronomy mission that has been grounded since May by a series of elusive hydrogen fuel leaks. The repaired shuttle finally passed a fueling test Tuesday without any problems, clearing the way for launch.

Sources who requested anonymity said NASA managers are discussing the possibility of waiving a rule requiring three weeks between shuttle missions so data from one flight can be analyzed before launching the next.

Waiving the rule would raise the possibility of two shuttle launches in less than three weeks, but Crippen said Columbia would not be launched on mission STS-35 until data from Atlantis's flight can be studied.

''A specific target launch date for (Columbia) will not be determined until after the flight readiness review has been conducted and performance data from the STS-38 mission has been analyzed,'' he said.

NASA managers currently are in the final stages of developing a 1991 launch schedule and while the flight sequence appears to be solid, the dates may yet change. Here is a preliminary schedule of major 1991 events:

-March 7: Shuttle Discovery; Payload: Four unclassified Air Force experiments.

-April 11: Shuttle Atlantis; Payload: Gamma Ray Observatory.

-May 7: The new shuttle Endeavour is delivered to the Kennedy Space Center.

-May 16: Shuttle Columbia; Payload: Spacelab science module.

-July 11: Shuttle Discovery; Payload: A NASA Tracking and Data Relay comunications satellite.

-Aug. 4: Columbia is ferried to a Rockwell International facility in Palmdale, Calif., for five months of major modifications.

-Aug. 15: Shuttle Atlantis; Payload: An Air Force Defense Support Program early warning satellite.

-Nov. 14: Shuttle Discovery; Payload: An atmospheric research satellite.

-Dec. 12: Shuttle Atlantis; Payload: A materials processing Spacelab mission.

A final manifest is expected to be announced after new launch dates are set for the upcoming flights of Atlantis and Columbia.

In a two-sentence statement released Wednesday, the Air Force said Atlantis's flight would be delayed ''to resolve anomalies discovered during cargo testing. Details are classified and it's too early to predict a new launch date.''

Because the payload and all other details about the 37th shuttle mission are classified, it was not immediately possible to determine the nature of the problem or whether it involved the satellite or on-board support equipment.

Atlantis originally was scheduled for launch in mid July, but the flight was grounded after a hydrogen leak showed up during a June 29 fueling test. The problem was fixed and NASA managers Tuesday formally cleared the ship for takeoff Nov. 9.

#90305u1722 11/01/1990 ~United Press International
NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - Stocks gained in moderate trading Thursday as investors focused on an improved outlook for interest rates after some weak economic reports.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 5.69 Wednesday, rose 12.62 to close at 2454.95.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index added 1.42 to 167.59. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 3.02 to 307.02. The price of an average share rose 25 cents.

Advances led declines 890-612 among the 1,983 issues crossing the Big Board tape. Volume totaled 159,270,000 shares, up from the 156,060,000 traded Wednesday.

Analysts said stocks gained on hopes that the Federal Reserve would lower interest rates further after a weak purchasing managers' report Thursday and expected weakness in the employment data for October due out Friday. The Fed dropped short-term rates a 1/4 point after the budget accord was reached.

The U.S. manufacturing economy contracted in October, and for the first time since December 1982 the purchasing managers' index slipped below 44 percent, the National Association of Purchasing Management reported Thursday.

The index slipped to 43.4 percent, its fourth consecutive monthly decline. A reading below 50 generally indicates the manufacturing segment of the economy is experiencing a decline in growth and one below 44 percent indicates the economy as a whole is contracting. The news boosted Treasury bonds, sending their yields lower, which in turn bolstered stocks. Bonds finished up 20/32 on the day.

The purchasing managers' report gave rise to hopes that Friday's employment data would show weakness also, possibly enough to force the Federal Reserve to cut interest rates another notch soon, which also helped stocks gain.

"With the economy slowing and the picture for tomorrow looking like it will be quite bad, bonds rallied and stocks followed suit," said James Andrews, first vice president in charge of institutional trading at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc. in Philadelphia. "The rate picture is beginning to look like it will soften considerably," he said.

"At the beginning of the week, (Fed chairman Alan) Greenspan lowered interest rates 1/4 point, and now with the economy slowing as shown in the purchasing managers, and the jobless rate tomorrow expected to be up 0.2 to 0.3 percent, this will put a lot of pressure on Greenspan to lower rates," Andrews went on. "That will give a nice kick back into the economy."

He said that if the Fed does push rates down further, November could prove to be a lot better month for Wall Street than October was. "We could get a nice rally out of it, Andrews said. "October has always been bad for the market, so with all this we could have a decent move."

On the trading floor, Ford Motor was the most active issue, off 3/8 to 27 3/8 in dividend-related trading. Philip Morris followed, up 7/8 to 48. Fannie Mae was third, up 1/4 to 28 3/8.

Schering-Plough was also active, down 3/4 to 43. It was said to be under pressure partly from a recent campaign by a lawyers' group against the asthma drug Theophylline.

Humana was active as well, falling 1 1/4 to 40 1/2 in what analysts said was a response to negative articles in a Florida newspaper. The company Thursday gave a vote of confidence to its Florida health maintenance organization, which was the subject of the reports.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T rose 3/4 to 34 3/4, IBM rallied 1 3/4 to 107 1/4, Merck gained 5/8 to 77 1/2, and General Electric rose 3/8 to 52 3/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 191,519,420 shares, compared with 191,313,860 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices gained in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index added 1.11 to close at 288.90. Advances led declines, 266 to 256, among the 769 issues traded. The price of an average share rose three cents. Composite volume totaled 12,782,500 shares, vs. 10,968,550 traded Wednesday. Salomon's put warrants on London's Financial Times-Stock Exchange 100-share index led the Amex issues, up 1/2 to 5 7/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index gained 0.77 to 330.61.

TRENTON, NJ (NOV. 1) UPI - The state Insurance Department unveiled Thursday an industry-funded program to offer rewards to people who turn in car thieves.

Under the Help Eliminate Auto Theft program, or HEAT, citizens who call a department hotline to turn in auto thieves and so-called chop shops where stolen cars are dismantled are eligible for rewards of up to $10,000.

"Auto theft is a big, big business" in New Jersey, said Insurance Commissioner Samuel Fortunato. "It is an illicit business, but it is a big, big business."

Thieves stole 71,039 cars in New Jersey in 1989, an increase of nearly 13,000 vehicles from 1986, including 15,698 in Newark alone, making it the city with the highest per-capita rate of auto theft in the nation.

Nationally, a car is stolen once every 20 seconds and once every 20 minutes in New Jersey, making the state fourth in the nation for auto theft and adding $55 to the cost of the comprehensive portion of an average insurance policy,

Fortunato said. Reducing the rate of auto theft in the state could help reduce that amount, he said.

The initial $45,000 pool of reward money is being put up by three auto insurance trade associations, which may be asked to contribute more money once the original pool is depleted, Fortunato said.

Under the program, citizens who have knowledge of auto theft rings or related activities would call a toll-free hotline to report their information, he said.

The individual could give his or her name, an alias or code number and the local police agency would then be given the information to conduct an investigation, he said.

Decisions about the the size of the reward and who would receive the money would be based on the usefulness of the information, as reported by the police and the amount of property recovered, Fortunato said.

Generally, rewards would be paid only after convictions but "if it is going to be two years (before the trial) the committee might approve the reward earlier " said Lou Parisi, director of the department's fraud division.

The committee that makes those decisions will be made up of insurance industry representatives, he said. The program is modeled on a similar effort in Michigan, which recently celebrated its fifth anniversary.

"Since October of 1985, we have paid out over $660,000 in rewards, and the value of the vehicles recovered is more than $11.2 million," said Suzanne Allen, the administrative assistant at Michigan's pool for high-risk drivers. Tips called into the hotline have resulted in the arrests of 676 suspects and led to the recovery of more than 940 vehicles, she said.

More importantly, the reduction in auto thefts has enabled insurance companies in Michigan to reduce the cost of comprehensive insurance by 7.3 percent in downtown Detroit, by 15.9 percent in the Detroit metropolitan area and by 14 percent in the rest of the state, she said.

At the same time, auto thefts in Michigan have declined from 72,021 in 1985 to 65,297 in 1989, officials said. "We feel our program is working," she said. "Citizens are getting involved and are responding to the fact that auto theft does affect everyone." The toll-free hotline, which will be answered between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, is 1-800-447-HEAT.

MEXICO CITY (NOV. 1) UPI - President Carlos Salinas de Gortari condemned violence and human rights abuses, and reaffirmed the country's attack on the drug trade in a heavily heckled state-of-the-nation-address Thursday.

''We are strongly committed to protecting human rights,'' Salinas said before a special session of congress convened in the country's Fine Arts Palace.

In a speech lasting more than two hours, Salinas reviewed the government's work in the last year and the state of the Mexican economy.

Throughout the speech, congressmen from opposition parties interrupted Salinas denouncing electoral fraud and misuse of funds.

Many held up banners with anti-government slogans such as ''Salinas is more hunger and more misery.''

Salinas praised a new electoral law aimed at improving voter registration and voting techniques that was recently pushed through congress by the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, majority.

''Democracy involves the acceptance of pluralism ... Violence is an irrational resource that attacks the strength of the nation,'' he said. ''The new electoral legislation is today a positive law.''

Opposition parties, particularly the center-left Party of Democratic Revolution have condemned the new law, saying it will only raise the number of PRI voters and promote increased electoral fraud by the ruling party.

The PRI has been in power in Mexico since it was formed in 1929.

Opposition party congressmen of both the left and right rose to their feet and disrupted the speech for minutes cheering ''total repudiation of electoral fraud,'' when Salinas announced a program to distribute new voter registration cards.

In upcoming elections in the central state of Mexico, the PRI has been accused of falsifying thousands of voter cards for non-existent residents to justify stuffing ballot boxes.

Opposition parties have also attacked the PRI for electoral fraud in municipal elections last week in the northern border state of Coahuila.

Much of Mexico City was closed off to traffic Thursday. Police and army units cordoned off some 50 north-south blocks and about 35 east- west blcoks surrounding the palace.

Policeman Juan Diaz told United Press International the entire Mexico City police force made up of 16,000 men had been assigned to security. He said 10,000 state police as well as federal police, the army, the marines and national security were brought out for the event.

''There are definitely more than 70,000 security forces taking part in the operation,'' Diaz said.

Salinas reaffirmed the country's commitment to the war on drugs, praising international cooperation, but saying that only Mexicans can fight the drug trade in the country.

He said more than 45 tons of heroin and cocaine, with an approximate street value of $120 billion, were seized in Mexico in 1990. He said 18, 000 people had been arrested this year in connection with drug trafficking and production.

Salinas did not directly address accusations by human rights groups that drug agents regularly violate human rights using torture, disappearances and murder to procure confessions.

The accusations led recently to the removal of the government's anti- drug chief and dismantling of his drug-fighting department.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - Poland has set June 1, 1991, as the date for starting up a stripped-down version of a stock exchange, a Polish government official said Thursday.

Speaking at a conference on business in Poland, Wieslaw Rozlucki, director of capital markets development for the Ministry of Ownership Transformation, said the exchange, to be located in Warsaw, will operate on a central order book system designed to allow price formation in an orderly manner.

Initially, more speculative forms of trading, such as options and derivative securities markets, will be avoided, he said. Sophisticated market features, such as market-making, also will be delayed until sometime in the future, Rozlucki said.

Establishment of a stock exchange is a key move in Poland's accelerated transformation into a free market economy, he said, noting it will provide a market for the stocks of corporations created through the privatization of state-owned enterprises.

Another ministry official, Waldemar Kuczynski, estimated the market value of 7,000 state enterprises to be privatized at $70 billion to $80 billion, with the 500 largest accounting for about half of that amount.

Under current plans, about 50 percent of these state-owned assets are to be privatized by the end of 1993. After that, privatization will continue at a somewhat slower pace, according to Kuczynski.

Poland's privatization law, enacted in July, calls for state enterprises to be transformed into corporations, with the government the sole shareholder. The stock of these companies then would be sold to investors, both Polish and foreign. In some cases, the shares of new companies would remain in government hands for a number of years, Kuczynski said.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the basic U.S. money supply, known as M1, fell $400 million in the latest reporting week. The broader monetary aggregate M2 dropped $4.3 billion, and the broadest measure of all, M3, increased $2.0 billion.

M1, including cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money available for immediate spending - slipped to a seasonally adjusted average of $818.8 billion in the week ended Oct. 22, from a revised $819.2 billion the week before.

Over the past 13 weeks, M1 averaged $818.7 billion, up 5.5 percent from where it stood over the previous 13-week period, the central bank said.

The more broadly defined M2 averaged an estimated $3,318.7 billion in the latest week, off from a revised $3,323.0 billion. M2 includes M1 plus passbook savings, small time deposits such as money market deposit accounts, consumer money market mutual funds and other short-term assets.

M3, defined as M2 plus large time deposits, securities repurchase agreements longer than one day at banks and thrifts, and institutional money market funds averaged $4,091.0 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $4,089.4 billion, the Fed said.

UNITED NATIONS (NOV. 1) UPI - The Peruvian government plans to remove heavy-handed laws that make growing crops other than coca leaves unprofitable for peasants, a Peruvian presidential adviser said Thursday.

Economist Hernando de Soto, a noted advocate of free markets and a close adviser to Peruvian President Alberto Fujimori, said Peru currently produces about 60 percent of the world's coca leaves, the main ingredient in cocaine.

The United States has been pressuring Peru to reduce that production, and has provided the Peruvian armed forces with help in fighting drug gangs.

But last weekend, Fujimori rejected U.S. military help and announced a plan that relies less on law enforcement, and more on helping peasants switch to new crops. About 1 million of Peru's 20 million inhabitants rely on coca for their livelihood.

De Soto told a U.N. committee on economic development that Peruvian peasants don't receive more money for their coca leaves than they would for crops such as coffee or cacao.

But he said current laws make the cultivation of those alternative crops uncertain and unprofitable, largely because peasants don't have legal title on their land and because a cumbersome bureaucracy makes it nearly impossible for them to get permission to export their products.

''There is no market economy in Peru,'' de Soto said, ''what we have is mercantilism, public enterprise for only a few.''

Coca is the only deregulated crop in Peru because it is illegal, he said.

To prove the point, aides unfurled a computer printout that stretched across the room listing all the steps needed to obtain an export license from the Peruvian government. De Soto estimated that a literate farmer would need 345 days to comply with the regulations. Many Peruvians are illiterate, he pointed out.

De Soto said Peru produces about 27,000 laws a year, with little consultation with the people the laws affect.

The Fujimori plan calls for eliminating many restrictions on free enterprise, and for involving peasants more in the law-making process.

Another key element in the plan is giving legal title to peasants working the land. Only about 10 percent of Peru's farmland is titled, de Soto said, and lack of security over the right to land forces many peasants into the hands of drug lords and discourages them from making the investment needed to switch to other crops.

He said that seven years of study has shown that most local farmers are in agreement about who works the land, and the Fujimori plan would involve giving those farmers legal title. De Soto said that using personal computers, legal title could be given to 90 percent of the untitled land within a month at a modest cost of $4 million.

Besides problems related to coca production, the new Fujimori government faces a powerful guerrilla movement and a collapsing economy.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - Atlana wide reciever Andre Rison and San Francisco linebacker Charles Haley Thursday were named the NFC's offensive and defensive players for the month of October by the NFL office.

Rison caught 26 passes for 489 yards and six touchdowns in the Falcons' four October games. He had three 100-yard receiving games, including 172 yards and two touchdowns on nine catches against the 49ers. His 45 catches and 724 receiving yards for the season are NFL highs. Rison came to the Falcons in a trade from Indianapolis, where he caught 52 passes last year as a rookie.

Haley had six sacks for 50 yads in losses, with 23 tackles, three passes deflected and two fumbles forced in the undefeated 49ers' four October games. He made 11 tackles, two sacks and forced a fumble in a victory over Houston. Haley leads the NFL with nine sacks.

Tampa Bay quarterback Vinny Testaverde and Chicago defensive end Richard Dent were the NFC players of the month for September.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - Pittsburgh quarterback Bubby Brister was named AFC offensive player of the month for October, and Miami's Jeff Cross and John Offerdahl shared defensive honors, the NFL announced Thursday.

Brister completed 60 of 88 passes for 76 yards, 11 touchdowns and only two interceptions during the Steelers' 3-1 October. Brister's passing record was 125.3 for the month. He fired four TDs twice in October, against Denver and the Los Angeles Rams.

Defensive end Cross and linebacker Offerdahl helped the Dolphins to a 3-0 mark during October. Cross had three sacks, 12 tackles and forced a fumble - running his sack total to an AFC high eight for the season. Offerdahl, a four-time Pro Bowl pick, had 17 tackles. Miami has allowed 10 fewer points and 115 fewer yards than in 1989, and leads the NFL in total defense. The Dolphins have not finished No. 1 in team defense since 1972.

Kansas City quarterback Steve DeBerg and Los Angeles Raiders defensive end Greg Townsend were the AFC players of the month for September.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - The former director of Merrill Lynch's World Financial Center project and two others Thursday were charged with defrauding the firm and the Internal Revenue Service.

Albert Young, 61, the project director, and John Serino Jr., 41, both former Merrill Lynch vice presidents and Marvin Weiner, 60, owner of Newark Foods Service Equipment Co., were named in charges filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

They face maximum penalties ranging from Young's 18 months and $1 million in fines to the others' five years and $250,000 in fines.

Roger Hayes, acting U.S. Attorney, said the charges arose from an investigation referred to the office by Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc.

Hayes said Young, of 375 South End Ave., and Hemlock Farms, Hawley, Pa., was charged with conspiracy to commit mail fraud, commercial bribery, tax fraud and the filing of a false tax return.

Weiner was charged with currency transaction violations and Serino with income tax evasion.

The assistant U.S. Attorney prosecuting the case, Jonathan Liebman, said that according to the court papers, Young supervised his firm's participation in the construction of its headquarters in Battery Park City, and was in a position to authorize or deny payment to contractors.

The charges filed said Young ''solicited and demanded payoffs'' as part of a conspiracy in which he made it clear to contractors they would have to pay him to obtain and maintain contracts with Merrill Lynch.

The court papers filed said Young and the others then concealed the payoffs from the IRS, through phony invoices and funneling payments through a consulting firm he operated.

Liebman said Merrill lynch was deprived of money and property and control over how it spent its money in connection with the World Financial Center,

He said in 1986 Young said his taxable income was $23,969 and owed no taxes when he actually earned $147,118 and owed at least $45,137.

Weiner, according to the prosecutor, helped supply cash, through a construction firm that performed work at the center, for payoffs to Young, among others.

Weiner's food firm issued checks for less than $10,000 to avoid having to file cash transaction reports, Liebman said. The court papers charge Weiner then had ''bags of cash'' delivered to officers of the construction firm.

Serino, with managerial responsibility in connection with the construction, received approximately $50,000 in payoffs from his firm's vendors in 1986, according to Liebman's papers.

Young was released on $250,000 bond, Weiner, $150,000 bond and Serino on his own recognizance. Young and Weiner were to appear Nov. 8 and Serino Nov. 14 for pre trial hearings, Liebman said.

TORONTO (NOV. 1) UPI - Workers at a Placer Dome Inc. gold mine in Timmins, Ontario, voted to accept a settlement from the company that will end a 5 1/2-month long strike, a union official disclosed Thursday.

The about 600 workers, members of Local 7580 of the United Steelworkers of America, Wednesday voted 75 percent in favor of a tentative settlement reached last week.

USWA's negotiators Homer Seguin and Gerry Loranger said the settlment answers the union's major strike issues.

The deal will boost wages 17.5 percent over three years, reinstate benefits from the date of ratification, protect workers during layoffs and improve early retirement provisions.

But Leo Gerard, Ontario director of the USWA, said in a statement that Placer Dome deserved ''little thanks'' for the settlement.

''There is a certain malevolence in a comany that would use a strike- breaking tactic that had not been seen in the mining industry (in Canada) since the violent strikes of the 1950s,'' Gerard said in refering to the continued use of replacement workers.

Gerard cited the company's use of replacement workers, or scabs, and refusal to deal with early retirment issues for forcing the lengthy strike in the first place.

Placer Dome's mine manager Bob Perry said the company was pleased with the workers' vote on the deal. He said an earlier announced ''renewal plan'' to reduce costs at the mine will now be implemented.

As a result, the mine will operate with 400 workers, cutting 45 staff and 309 hourly jobs from the prestrike workforce.

Placer Dome had threatened to close the mine if the strike was not settled by mid-November.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) UPI - R. H. Macy & Co. said Thursday it will sell up to $150 million of additional equity to its existing outside investors as part of its previously stated plan to reduce debt and interest expense.

The retailing company said its four largest shareholders - GE Capital, Loews Corp., Mutual Series Fund and Taubman Investment Co. - have committed to purchase a minimum of $100 million of the offer.

Macy's said proceeds of the new equity investment will be used to purchase its subordinated debt, from time to time, in the open market.

''This is another important step in our on-going debt reduction program,'' said Edward S. Finkelstein, chairman and chief executive officer.

''The proceeds should enable us to take advantage of attractive market opportunities to buy back additional subordinated debt,'' he said. ''Moreover, this solid support from our largest shareholders speaks eloquently to their commitment to Macy's future.''

Finkelstein said the company expected to report further steps it is taking to reduce its debt in the coming months.

Despite reports to the contrary, Finkelstein said Macy's had ample liquidity to meet all of its obligations.

''Although the retailing environment is sluggish, we have successfully implemented our plans to reduce inventory, maintain planned gross margins and prudently lower expenses without damaging Macy's ability to serve its customers,'' he said.

MASHPEE, MA (NOV. 1) UPI - President Bush, preparing the American people for ''every eventuality,'' said Thursday he ''wants desperately to have a peaceful solution'' to the Persian Gulf crisis but is determined to to turn back Saddam Hussein's aggression.

At the start of a final six-day campaign swing, Bush escalated the rehetoricl war against the Iraqi leader as concern grew over the possibility of hostilities.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters the reason the president is speaking out was that ''if we have to take dramatic action, we want the American people to know why.''

And White House chief of staff John Sununu said, ''We want to prepare the American people for every eventuality,'' but he quickly added the administration still hopes that the matter will be resolved peacefully.

As for negotiations, Fitzwater said, ''We have not changed out position one iota.''

Assuring the Iraqi people that the United States bears no hostility toward them, Bush said:

''Our problem is with Saddam Hussein alone. I want desperately to have a peaceful solution to this problem. We are giving the (U.N.) sanctions time to work, but let this be clear ... there will be no compromise on the stated goals of the United Nations resolutions. None at all.''

''This brutality will not stand,'' he asserted to loud and enthusiastic applause. ''No one is more determined to see this aggression turned back, and

I will not change on this fundamental point of morality,'' he said while campagning in Massachusetts.

And later, at a news conference during a campaign stop in Orlando, Fla., the president said, ''I am not trying to sound the tocsins of war, but I am concerned with the hostages.''

And while stressing that the waiting game in the Persian Gulf region was working against Iraq, he added, ''I don't think the status quo can go on forever and ever.

''The sand is running through the glass. We've got these economic sanctions in place (against Iraq),'' the president said. ''We continue to move force. I think it's important for the American people to know why I'm doing this and I'm going to keep on (informing them) now and after the election.''

Asked about reports of harsh treatment of U.S. hostages in Iraq, Bush said he believed the American people ''are as outraged as I am. ... I don't think (Saddam will) win the humanitarian award for this. I see it as brutal.''

Bush dismissed as a ''ploy'' Iraq's offer to allow U.S. hostages to be visited by their families. ''I think those people should come home to visit their families,'' he said. ''This canard of calling hostages 'guests' is turning off the whole world.''

Fitzwater also greeted Saddam's invitation to the families of the U.S. hostages to visit Iraq during the Christmas-New Year's season with less than yuletide enthusiasm. ''Why doesn't he let the hostages come home?'' he asked rhetorically. ''That would be the best way, or better yet, Thanksgiving.''

While speaking to a partisan audience of several hundred in support of the Massachusetts GOP ticket, Bush said he is grateful for the support of his policies on both sides of the political spectrum.

Tracing the history of the crisis since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2 including Saddam's promise to withdraw his forces, Bush denounced the brutality of the Iraqi leader, and declared, ''Today I am more determined than ever that this aggression will not stand.''

He said that there are 300 innocent American civilians held against their will in Iraq, ''many reportedly staked out as human targets, something Hitler didn't do.''

''Others,'' he said, ''are hiding out.''

''The right of these American citizens are being denied by Iraq's dictator,'' he said. ''We have no argument with the Iraqi people.''

He also spoke of the systematic dismantling of Kuwait by the invading army and likened it to Hitler's dismantling of Poland during World War II.

SAN FRANCISCO (NOV. 1) UPI - U.S. District Court Judge Robert Aguilar was sentenced Thursday to six months in prison for lying to the FBI and disclosing wiretap information to a mobster.

Aguilar, 59, faces almost certain impeachment by Congress unless he resigns his lifetime post. He is only the second federal judge in the last decade to be convicted of a felony and the fourth to be indicted in that time.

Aguilar turned to his attorney Paul Meltzer in stunned relief as the sentence was pronounced. He was could have been sentenced to as much as 27 months in prison.

U.S. District Judge Louis Bechtle also ordered Aguilar to pay a $2, 100 fine and give 1,000 hours of community service upon his release. Bechtle ordered Aguilar to serve his term in the federal facility at Duluth, Minnesota.

Aguilar, a federal judge for 10 years, will remain free without bail, while he appeals his conviction.

Bechtle, brought in from Philadelphia to preside over both Aguilar's trials, noted Aguilar is beginning the process of impeachment, disbarment as a lawyer and that rates a reduction in the sentence.

''It will be a long humiliating and embarrassing process... a punishment is warranted but so is some degree of departure downward (from the eligible 21 month to 27 month term),'' he said.

Meltzer, in urging a reduced sentence said, ''You have a man before you who has been destroyed.''

Aguilar was convicted in August of trying to obstruct justice by lying to the FBI about his role in an alleged conspiracy to influence the criminal case of Teamsters Union embezzler Rudy Tham and disclosing wiretap surveillance to 84-year-old mobster, Abe Chapman.

It was the second trial for Aguilar. The first ended in a deadlocked jury.

He is one of the few Hispanic federal judges in the nation and earned a reputation as a liberal jurist.

He remains a federal judge and will continue to collect his $96,000- a-year salary even though he has agreed not to hear cases. Federal judges are appointed for life and leave office only through death, retirement or impeachment by Congress.

In 1989, Aguilar became the first judge in the country ever charged with racketeering, a law usually used against suspected mobsters. He was accused of using his judicial office as a criminal enterprise. That count was dropped after jurors deadlocked on the charge in his first trial.

Of the four federal judges indicted in the last decade, Aguilar was only the second convicted. The three others were eventually impeached by Congress.

Aguilar's defense was an attack on the government, accusing federal agents of prosecuting him in retaliation for his liberal, sometimes anti-government, rulings.

(NOV. 1) UPI - President Bush says he doubts Iraqi President Saddam would ''win any humanitarian of the year award'' for today's offer to allow families to visit hostages in Iraq and Kuwait around Christmas- time. Bush interrupted his campaign swing through Florida this afternoon to meet with reporters in Orlando. He told reporters that- IN HIS WORDS- ''This canard of calling people 'guests' when they're hostages is turning off the whole world.''

The president says French hostages who have been freed indicate that the way Americans are being treated ''is just terrible'' and that Iraq ''staking out people next to what might become military targets is unconscionable.'' Bush says the State Department earlier issued an advisory discouraging Americans from going to Iraq and Kuwait and that the advisory still holds.

Federal researchers say the number of Americans reported to have died from Alzheimer's disease jumped more than 10-fold in eight years. They caution that the figures do NOT mean the disease is rampaging, but may mean that there is greater awareness and diagnosis of the mind-decaying disorder. The number of reported deaths from Alzheimer's in 1979 was 857. In 1987, the figure rose to 11-thousand 311. More studies are being conducted to determine the actual degree of increased incidence and death rate from Alzheimer's. What causes it is NOT known. There is NO cure.

Once the deductible is met, Medicare pays for all necessary in-patient hospital services for stays of up to 60 days.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 1) UPI - Pathe Communications' oft-delayed $1.36-billion purchase of MGM/UA was completed Thursday in the latest foreign acquisition of a major Hollywood studio.

Dousing months of skepticism that the transaction could be finalized, the companies said that the new entity would be known as MGM-Pathe Communications Co.

Pathe's Italian owner, financier Giancarlo Parretti, who has been the driving force behind the deal, will be chairman and chief executive officer.

Parretti, calling the deal ''historic,'' said: ''Our goal is to make the MGM lion roar again with all the spirit and excitement that implies.''

But analysts believe the new company will have a rough time, since MGM/UA is a shell of its former self, with only a few films in production.

Moreover, the rights to its key asset, the 1,070-title United Artists film library, were sold off to help finance the deal.

''It will take hundreds of millions of dollars to ramp up the studio again and develop a strong motion picture slate,'' said Steven Hill of Sutro & Co. in San Francisco. ''Right now, I'm not sure how strong the company will be.''

ANCHORAGE, AK (NOV. 1) UPI - A ''guerrilla strike force'' of local oil spill cleanup workers who picked up where Exxon left off collected more than 150 tons of oily debris left by the Exxon after its second year of cleanup, the state of Alaska announced Thursday.

Exxon quit work at the end of summer, claiming it was unsafe to do any more cleanup after Sept. 15 on beaches hit by oil from last year's disastrous 11-million-gallon Exxon Valdez spill.

After Exxon declared its two-year $2-billion cleanup a success and packed up, the state and a dozen local communities hurt by the spill mobilized forces and sent 15 cleanup teams to the despoiled shores of Prince William Sound and the Gulf of Alaska.

The state-sponsored cleanup came to an end Thursday, and state spill coordinator Ernie Piper said the $8 million six-week effort substantially improved the condition of beaches. However, he said some oil still remains.

''We extended the cleanup because the locals are very good at this sort of guerrilla strike force operation,'' Piper said.

The 164-person strike force - about as many cleanup workers as Exxon had on beaches this summer - proved ''really good at finding oil,'' Piper said.

''They're mobile. They're well-disciplined. And they can hit a particular point and finish it off and move off to the next place and that's what makes them most effective,'' he said.

Five Prince William Sound communities - Valdez, Cordova, Whittier, Chenega Bay and Tatitlek - cleaned around salmon spawning streams, scooped up oily sediment and gathered oily debris.

Seven Kodiak Island villages - Larsen Bay, Karluk, Akhiok, Old Harbor, Ouzinkie, Port Lions and Ivanof Bay - scoured the shores around their communities, picking up oily debris they found.

More than 150 tons of oily gravel and cleanup debris - including ''a lot of fresh-looking'' oily mousse - were collected and will be shipped to a hazardous waste landfill in Arlington, Ore., Piper said. He said a bill for all this will be sent to Exxon.

The value of this kind of cleanup, Piper said, is that locals weren't afraid to work past the Exxon quitting date; they knew exactly where to go to find oil; and they went to places that mattered most to their communities.

''I referred to them as a guerrilla army,'' Piper told a news conference, ''and that conjures up visions of a bunch of ragtag peasants out there freelancing. Anybody who knows the history of revolutionary armies and rebel armies knows that they are the most tightly-disciplined groups around and that's why they succeed.''

The state spill chief said the teams of local workers ran into none of the safety problems Exxon feared. He said Exxon people were ''not used to operating in the kind of conditions and climate that are up here.''

''A lot of them were people from the south, I mean far south, and they were clearly uncomfortable with that,'' he said. ''I'm not going to criticize somebody for being overly cautious in the name of safety, but somebody needed to be out there to do work and our contention was that operations could be conducted safely.''

Alaska Gov. Steve Cowper, who has already called on Exxon to return next year for a third cleanup season, praised the local strike force for playing an important role in the cleanup.

Exxon has said it will wait until next spring, after winter storms have had another chance to work on the remaining oil, before surveying the beaches again and then doing whatever the Coast Guard says must be done.

In March 1989, the Exxon Valdez smashed into well-known Bligh Reef, broke open and spewed crude oil into pristine waters, killing thousands of wild animals, ruining fishing and coating more than 1,000 miles of shoreline with crude oil.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 2) UPI - Pathe Communications' oft-delayed $1.36-billion purchase of MGM/UA was completed Thursday in the latest foreign acquisition of a major Hollywood studio.

Ending months of skepticism that the transaction would ever be finalized, the companies said that the new entity would be known as MGM- Pathe Communications Co.

Pathe's Italian owner, financier Giancarlo Parretti, 49, who has been the driving force behind the deal, will be chairman and chief executive officer.

The sale all but removes from the Hollywood scene Kirk Kerkorian, who has been MGM/UA's controlling shareholder for two decades and has sold and repurchased the assets of the once-great studio time and again, fueling its decline.

Parretti, calling the deal ''historic,'' said: ''Our goal is to make the MGM lion roar again with all the spirit and excitement that implies.''

MGM/UA, descendant of what was once a formidable force in Hollywood, becomes the third major studio in recent years to be acquired by a foreign investor, following Twentieth Century Fox (controlled by Rupert Murdoch's Australia-based News Corp.) and Columbia Pictures Entertainment (bought about a year ago by Sony Corp. of Japan for $3.4 billion).

''We will continue to develop the kind of product that has made the MGM and UA names legendary for generations, while building on Pathe's global presence,'' Parretti said.

But analysts believe the new company will have a rough time, since MGM/UA is a mere shell of its former self, with only a few films in production and many in Hollywood long hesitant to deal with a company that remained on the sales block for more than two years.

Moreover, the rights to its key asset, the 1,070-title United Artists film library, were sold off to help finance the deal.

''It will take hundreds of millions of dollars to ramp up the studio again and develop a strong motion picture slate,'' said Steven Hill of Sutro & Co. in San Francisco. ''Right now, I'm not sure how strong the company will be.''

To complete the deal, Pathe raised $600 million in equity from a web of European companies - none of which have been identified. Those companies will receive ownership stakes in the new MGM-Pathe.

Most of the rest of the money came from the sale of rights to the UA library, which includes the 16 James Bond films, the ''Pink Panther'' movies, ''Rocky '' ''Rain Man'' and ''One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest.''

Pathe announced two of those deals last week, with about $200 million coming from the sale of domestic television rights to Turner Broadcasting and $125 million coming from the sale of home video rights to Time Warner Inc.

But the complete structure of the deal will probably not be unveiled until the company files documents with the Securities and Exchange Commission in a few more weeks.

''I think everyone is very curious as to the financing, because we're not sure that the new company will be able have enough funds to operate effectively,'' Hill said. ''Of course, not many people thought Parretti could raise the funds to buy the company in the first place.''

Along with the library, the MGM-UA name, and the Leo the Lion logo, the company's assets include film and television production units and a distribution arm.

Kerkorian, who built an empire based on fortunes derived from aviation and Las Vegas casinos, had put the studio up for sale on a number of occasions. A $1.5 billion deal to sell the company to Qintex Australia Ltd. collapsed a year ago.

MGM/UA executives claimed at the annual meeting in January that the company was not for sale. Two months later, Pathe unveiled its offer and said it would close it in June.

But a $650-million financing agreement with Time Warner collapsed, prompting a restructuring of the transaction and a promise to finalize the deal by Oct. 23. That closing date was then delayed three times before being completed on Thursday.

Parretti gained his foothold in Hollywood when he and his partner, Florio Fiorino, bought troubled Cannon Group in 1988 for $200 million. He renamed the company Pathe and hired veteran film executive Alan Ladd Jr. to run the studio.

Much of Pathe's credibility has rested with Ladd, Hill noted. ''Ladd is probably the best thing that the company has going for it right now,'' he said.

Pathe's first major production, a drama called ''Russia House'' with Sean Connery and Michelle Pfeiffer, is scheduled to open around Christmas.

Thursday's announcement said that Fiorini will be chairman of the MGM-Pathe board and that Yoram Globus, who has been co-president of Pathe, will be president and chief operating officer.

(NOV. 1) UPI - President Bush says the United States is discouraging relatives of hostages held in Iraq and Kuwait from accepting Iraq's offer of entry visas for Christmas-time visits. Bush interrupted his six-day campaign trip for Republican candidates to answer questions from reporters in Orlando, Florida. He called the Iraqi treatment of the hostages in Iraq and Kuwait ''unconscionable'' and said the whole world agrees.

Iraq announced this morning that its Foreign Ministry had told embassies around the world to issue visas to the relatives of any hostages in Iraq or Kuwait. U-S officials said the Iraqis have it all wrong... the hostages should be freed so they can spend Christmas- or better yet, Thanksgiving- with their families. British officials called the Iraqi proposal ''disgraceful,'' and ripped it as a propaganda ploy.

At the same time, Iraq announced that it will free four ailing American hostages. It says the decision came on the request of the American-Arab fellowship for reconciliation, which has representatives visiting Baghdad. Iraq says the four Americans will be allowed to leave with the visitors.

Amnesty International is criticizing Saudi Arabian security personnel for torturing and mistreating hundreds of Yemeni nationals. The international human rights group says the Saudi action is aimed at isolating Iraq from other friendly Arab countries. Amnesty International says its charge is based on interviews with about 800 people during a visit to Yemen in early October. Amnesty says the Saudis contend there was NOT a ''widespread'' violation but added that officials will investigate the charges.

The Justice Department says the F-B-I will investigate allegations that a Drug Enforcement Administration informant may have smuggled a bomb aboard the Pan Am jetliner that exploded over Lockerbie, Scotland, in 1988. A statement issued in Washington says there is NO evidence currently to lend authority to reports that the D-E-A had an indirect role in the bombing, which killed 270 people.

The F-A-A says a period of severely bumpy air rattled a United Airlines flight from Hong Kong to Seattle today... causing injuries to seven passengers and four flight attendants. The Boeing 747-S-P hit the turbulence about four hours short of Seattle, cruising at 38-thousand feet. It landed safely. A spokesman says the injuries to passengers were minor, but injuries to the flight attendants were ''a little more severe.''

They call it the velvet coffin. A new study says the U-S economy may be headed toward a deeper recession than initially forecast because Americans have become so dependent on debt to maintain comfortable standards of living. The report by the NON-partisan Economic Policy Institute in Washington says the ratio of consumer debt to disposable income is at a post-war high.

An article in the journal Science says there is evidence in Scotland that early animals crawled out of the water and began life on land at least 15-Million years earlier than previously believed. The article says the fossilized remains of two centipedes and one spider-like creature were found in England's famed Ludlow Bone Bed. Scientists report that the fossils indicate that animals roamed on land at least 414-Million years ago.

University of Chicago and Argonne National Laboratory researchers say the period of rapid increases in life expectancy has come to an end. In a report in the journal Science, the scientists say the life expectancy of Americans is NOT likely to surpass 85, even if cancer and heart disease are wiped out. They say science has NOT found a way to slow the natural deterioration of the human body... hence life expectancy is NOT likely to go beyond 85.

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Brown Disc Products Co. Inc. has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission its quarterly report on Form 10-Q for the first fiscal quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, showing an increase in revenue of $240,957 over the same period in the previous year.

This represents an increase of 23 percent due to increased sales of Brown Disc's 3.5-inch products, expanded software duplication services, and stabilized pricing across the company's product lines.

Total costs of goods sold increased from $826,044 in the three months ended Sept. 30, 1989, to $932,165 in the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990. The company's gross margin increased from 22 percent to 28 percent as a result of successfully implementing its pricing strategy and improved cost accounting system.

General and administrative expenses decreased $27,535, or 27 percent from the previous year's quarter as a result of management conducting a cost reduction and control plan to monitor discretionary overhead costs.

Selling costs also declined $17,174, or 17 percent, due to decreased travel and promotion costs.

Profit from operations increased by $179,545, or 533 percent due to the increased sales volume, increased gross margin on sales and reduction in operating costs.

Interest expense increased due to the increase in outstanding borrowings for the period. Interest costs are expected to be higher throughout the current fiscal period until borrowings are paid down.

Net income increased $131,784, or 841 percent for the period. Management believes that the company has recovered from the loss sustained during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, and is positioned to improve its competitiveness and profitability in the long term.

The increase in demand for the company's quality software duplication services and the demand for the company's high quality products and other services lead management to expect that the company will maintain its strong earnings trend throughout this fiscal year.

The restructuring would result in MGC owning nine commercial and residential properties, including hotels, apartments, boat slips, office buildings and retail shopping centers. MGC and Lurie will remain partners in another venture where they are planning a luxury retirement hotel.

In 1989, MGC acquired a 49.9 percent interest in both partnerships.

TEMPE, AZ (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Arizona Instrument Corp. (NASDAQ:AZIC) Friday reported operating results for the third quarter ended Sept. 28, 1990.

Revenue for the quarter was $2,202,000 compared to $2,053,000 for the same period in 1989. Net loss for the quarter was $206,000, or 9 cents per share, compared to a loss of $610,000, or 26 cents per share for the same quarter last year.

However, ''Our Soil Sentry underground systems continue to generate interest and we have been successful in obtaining an increasing number of commitments. We are not losing business -- a large percentage of the work is simply being delayed,'' Hudnall said.

SANTA CLARA, CA (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Siliconix Inc. (NASDAQ:SILIQ), announced that at a hearing held on Nov. 1, the Bankruptcy Court approved the Company's Disclosure Statement describing its amended Plan of Reorganization.

Early next week, the Plan and Disclosure Statement will be sent to creditors and shareholders to solicit their votes to approve the Plan. The Official Creditors' Committee, which represents the Company's institutional lenders, vendors, other trade creditors and Subordinated Debentureholders, has concurred with the Plan, as has the Official Equity Committee.

The Committees are urging all creditors and shareholders to vote for the Plan. Therefore, the Company anticipates that, in early December, a confirmation hearing will be held at which the Court will confirm the Plan of Reorganization. The Company expects that it will thereupon implement the Plan and emerge from the Chapter 11 proceedings by year end.

Under the Plan of Reorganization, AEG Capital Corp., an affiliate of AEG Aktiengesellschaft, will become an 80.1 percent shareholder of the company. In return, AEG will contribute $13 million of cash to the Company and cancel a $2 million secured obligation. The Company's institutional lenders, vendors and trade creditors will receive 82.5 percent of their claims, with 20 percent paid in cash upon Implementation of the Plan and 62.5 percent paid over seven years with interest.

International Rectifier will receive $12.3 million plus interest over an 18-month period (of which $5.8 million will be paid upon Implementation of the Plan) and will grant the Company a royalty-bearing license under the MOSFET patents that were litigated between them. The Subordinated Debentures will receive new debentures maturing in 2005 in an aggregate principal amount equal to 50 percent of the principal and pre-bankruptcy interest owing on the existing Debentures.

The Subordinated Debentureholders will also receive their pro rata share of 7.5 percent of the Company's Common Stock. The current shareholders, other than AEG Capital Corp. (which currently owns 38.3 percent of the outstanding Common Stock), will receive their pro rata share of the remaining 12.4 percent of the Common Stock of the Company.

The total number of outstanding shares will be reduced from approximately 13.5 million to 10 million. AEG Aktiengesellschaft will guarantee the seven-year obligations to senior creditors and the new subordinated debentures to be issued under the Plan of Reorganization.

Implementation of the Plan is contingent upon the satisfaction of certain conditions including AEG's $13 million cash contribution and other conditions that deal primarily with the maximum permissible amounts of indebtedness and fixed charges to be borne by the reorganized corporation.

RICHMOND, CA (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Tinsley Laboratories, manufacturers of precision optics and optical systems, Friday reported sales for the first nine months of $6,368,451, down 17 percent from sales for the comparable period last year of $7,637,939.

Net income was $429,903, or 48 cents a share, against net income of $571,940, or 64 cents a share for the first three quarters of 1989, a decline of 25 percent.

Third quarter sales of $2,230,834 were below last year's September quarter by 20 percent. Third quarter earnings came to $104,793, or 12 cents a share, against net income for the September quarter a year ago of $201,941, or 23 cents a share.

The company attributed lower operating results for the third quarter to lower than anticipated shipments on two major new programs in the startup phase and to the write off of all current start expense on one of these programs rather than deferral of some of these costs to future follow-on contracts.

Backlog at the end of the September quarter amounted to $7,736,000, down from June backlog of $8,587,000. As the result of new bookings at the start of the fourth quarter, the company said, backlog by the end of October had risen to $9,495,000, the highest level thus far in 1990.

IRVINE, CALIF. (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Corollary Inc., the leading developer of multiprocessing products for UNIX-based PCs, Friday announced an EISA enhancement to the company's ISA-based (AT-based) 486/smp symmetrical multiprocessor.

The two-board set, called the 486/smp EISA Base CPU, operates with existing Corollary 486/smp and 386/smp boards to create an EISA-compatible system with 2 to 10 CPUs, supporting as many as 256 users.

Corollary will demonstrate the 486/smp EISA Base CPU at Comdex, Nov. 12-16, in booth N1078 at the Sands Expo and Convention Center. Evaluation units are available now to OEMs.

''An EISA version of the Corollary 486/smp is a natural evolution of our multiprocessing technology,'' said George White, president of Corollary. ''EISA is a high-end bus, and multiprocessing defines the high end of PC computing; it's only natural to combine the two in one system.''

The design of the 486/smp EISA Base CPU board set was a collaborative effort, with input provided by several of Corollary's OEM customers.

The two-board set is a 33MHz EISA 486 PC that includes a 256K write-back cache Intel EISA support devices, floppy disk controller, COM1 port, keyboard interface, and standard BIOS. An optional third board -- a paddle interface card -- offers more PC functionality via a COM2 port and mouse and PS/2 keyboard connections.

The new EISA boards are compatible with Corollary's other smp board products, including a memory board configurable with 4 to 16 megabytes of ECC memory.

Corollary develops, manufactures and markets proprietary, high-performance hardware and software products that extend the power of 386- and 486-based PCs running the UNIX operating system. Corollary's multiprocessor hardware and software technology increases processing capacity; its multiport subsystems provide for multiple users. The company developed the multiprocessing version of SCO UNIX, which is marketed by The Santa Cruz Operation as SCO MPX.

LAJOLLA, CALIF. (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - CHoPP Computer Corp. continues its research in basic technology aimed at major increases in the performance of future general purpose computers.

Herbert Sullivan, president with the CHoPP research staff, has completed a technical paper entitled ''Unifying Parallel Processing,'' which describes the CHoPP approaches and shows how the CHoPP concepts can be applied to parallel computer designs in many price categories, including work stations, minicomputers and mainframes.

The implementations described include the CHoPP patented conflict free memory as a crucial component. In large configurations, these implementations have the potential capability of increasing computer speed by hundreds to thousands of times.

The work is being supported, in part, by a contract from the Department of the Navy. CHoPP continues its patent activities, aimed at protecting its intellectual property. In the opinion of management, CHoPP continues to maintain its position at the leading edge of computer technology.

The critical problem for the company continues to be raising adequate capital to commercially exploit its technology.

The company's recent work has been the basis for the creation of multiprocessor systems building blocks. These chips are called CHoPP glue chips for their capability of bringing together CPU chips in an effective parallel processing structure. There are three proposed glue chips.

A task manager chip, a memory chip, and a network chip. These chips are currently being designed and represent all of the unique qualities of the CHoPP architecture.

The company is preparing documentation for a proposed $10/12 million funding of a joint venture licensing company. This company will be owned jointly by CHoPP Computer Corp. and its investment banker, International Investment Group Of Atlanta, Ga.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA. (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Adobe Systems Inc. announced Friday the formation of the Adobe Japanese Type Advisory Board at the fall general meeting of the Japan Typography Association held in Kanazawa, Japan.

The board is intended to help Adobe strengthen its relationship with influential members of the Japanese graphics arts and type communities, advise Adobe on key trends and requirements unique to Japanese design and typography, and help Adobe better satisfy the typographic needs of Japanese users.

The Japanese board is patterned after the six-member U.S. Adobe-Type Advisory Board, which Adobe created in 1987 to consult with the company on Roman-type-related activities.

''Adobe has established very productive working relationships with Japanese printer and typesetter OEMs, as well as with Morisawa & Co., a leading type vendor in Japan,'' said Ned Bunnell, Director of Typography, Adobe Systems. ''Working with this new board can help us strengthen those relationships and help us keep the strong commitment we've made to meeting the typographic needs of a wide range of Japanese users.''

The Japanese board consists of the following four distinguished Japanese designers and typographers.

Takenobu Igarashi teaches at Tama Art College in Tokyo and at the University of California at Los Angeles, where he received his M.A. degree. He has designed posters and calendars for the New York Museum of Modern Art since 1984.

Tsuyokatsu Kudo is a director of the Japan Typography Association and a member of ATypl (Association de Typographie Internationale). His specialty is editorial and book design, and he is the editorial designer for SD, a Japanese magazine covering architecture.

Shin Matsunaga is a member of the Association Graphic International and a committee member of the Tokyo Art Directors Club. His work is on permanent display at various museums, including the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

Kei Mori is Image Technology Instructor for the Technology Department at Chiba University in Japan, and is an advisor to the German type company URW. He art directs Science magazine, the Japanese version of Scientific American.

Adobe's PostScript language incorporates outline font technology, in which type is generated from character outlines, giving users sharp, smooth type on displays and printers. In an outline font, each character is stored as a mathematical formula. Another technology, called bitmapped fonts, stores each letter as a pattern of dots.

Fonts stored as formulas take up less space in a printer's memory than bitmapped fonts. Outline fonts can be scaled to any size, skewed, or rotated by changing a few variables in the formulas that define the shapes of the characters. Bitmapped fonts, in contrast, suffer in appearance and legibility when scaled to different sizes and can't be easily skewed, rotated or otherwise transformed.

Adobe's PostScript Level 2 software, with composite font extensions that enable developers to use the PostScript font mechanism to encode very large character sets and handle non-horizontal writing modes, is especially well suited to creating Japanese font software.

The company has already released two Japanese font programs, Ryumin Light KL and Gothic Medium BBB, which are resident on all PostScript Japanese printers and typesetters. Adobe plans to release three more font programs - Morisawa's FutoMinA101, FutoGoB101 and Jun101 - in early 1991.

Adobe Systems Inc. has headquarters in Mountain View, Calif., with offices in Tokyo; Amsterdam, The Netherlands; and London.

Its PostScript software has been licensed by 39 major computer, printer and typesetter companies, including Apple Computer Inc., Digital Equipment Corp., Hewlett-Packard Co., International Business Machines Corp. (IBM), and QMS Inc. in the United States, as well as by Canon Inc., Fujitsu Limited, Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. Ltd., NEC Corp., Oki Electric Industry Co. and Ricoh Company Ltd. in Japan.

PostScript printers and typesetters with Japanese language support are currently being sold by Agfa-Gevaert N.V., Apple Computer Japan, Digital Equipment Corp., Fujitsu Limited, Linotype AG, NEC Corp., Oki Electric Industry Co., QMS Inc. and Varityper Inc.

VALENCIA, CA (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Huntway Partners L.P. (NYSE:HWY) Friday said it suffered a nine month net loss of $2.8 million, or 24 cents per unit, compared with last year's restated net loss of $835,000, or 7 cents per unit.

For the nine-month period, revenues rose 32 percent to $86 million, compared with $65.3 million a year ago, due to a 20 percent increase in sales volume and higher prices for refined petroleum products.

The 1990 volume increase of about 740,000 barrels is the result of Huntway's Arizona refinery volume increase of 1.1 million barrels.

Arizona's total more than offset sales volume decreases of some 240,000 barrels in the Southern California market and 130,000 barrels in the Northern California market.

While other petroleum product prices have increased in Northern California, liquid asphalt prices have not risen in that market due to current price practices by major competitors.

These competitors are integrated oil companies, which do not purchase all of their crude oil in the open market.

The third quarter net loss was $3.6 million, or 31 cents per unit, compared with a restated 1989 third quarter net loss of $1 million, or 9 cents per unit.

Third quarter revenues rose 52 percent to $35.7 million, compared with $23.5 million during last year's comparable quarter.

Sales volume increased to 1.7 million barrels from 1.4 million barrels a year ago.

During 1989, Huntway changed its method of accounting for inventories from the first-in, first-out FIFO method to the last-in, first-out LIFO method.

The effect of the change to LIFO on operating results for the first nine months of 1989 was to reduce the previously reported net income of $734,000, or 7 cents per unit.

This accounting change also increased the previously reported third quarter net loss of $475,000, or 25 cents per unit.

CANOGA PARK, CALIF. (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - New Image Industries Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:NIIS) announced Friday that it had a net loss of $956,000, or 23 cents per share, for the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared with net income of $229,000, or 10 cents per share, for 1989.

Per-share computations are based on a weighted average number of shares outstanding of 4,074,000 for Sept. 30, 1990, and 2,359,000 for 1989. Revenue for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $1,740,000 compared with $2,117,000 in 1989.

The net loss for the quarter was attributable in part to one-time charges for closing regional offices and severance pay to personnel, and other costs incurred in the reduction of selling, general and administrative expenses, along with a lower than expected revenue base worldwide.

In addition, selling, general and administrative expenses continued in the first quarter to be in excess of that mandated by New Image's current revenues.

Robert Gurevitch announced, ''Reductions in selling, general administrative expenses put in place during the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 and the first quarter of fiscal 1991 will be fully reflected in results of operations for the second quarter of fiscal 1991.''

At Sept. 30, 1990, New Image announced plans for a repurchase of company stock and had cash and cash equivalents of approximately $10,508,000. Net worth at Sept. 30, 1990 was $18,459,000, or $4.53 per share.

DALLAS (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Tuesday Morning Inc. announced third quarter sales increased 15% to $21 million from $18.3 million for the prior year.

Comparable store sales rose 6% in a sluggish overall retailing environment.

This strong showing enabled the company to produce an operating profit versus the small prior-year loss. After allowing for higher interest expense, the favorable operating performance permitted the company to trim its seasonal third quarter loss to 4 cents a share or $170,838 compared to 5 cents a share loss for $186,367 in 1989.

For the first nine months the company posted record sales of $60.8 million, an increase of 12.3% over the prior year's nine month sales of $54.1 million. The nine month loss of 21 cents a share was compared to last year's loss of 9 cents.

''Historically the fourth quarter generates our highest revenues and profits of the year,'' said Lloyd L. Ross, chairman and chief executive officer.

''We are expecting momentum to continue in this important period. We have implemented a variety of important internal and merchandising improvements to help us maximize sales in what we consider will be a very 'price-sensitive' selling season.''

During the third quarter the company opened four new units with six additional new stores planned for the fourth quarter. This would bring the year-end total to 132 up from the prior year's 114.

Tuesday Morning is a deep-discount, closeout gift chain operating in 21 states. The stores are open four times a year on an event sale basis during the retail industry's peak selling seasons.

Each location offers thousands of closeout items in categories that include gifts, housewares, linens, toys and seasonal items such as holiday trim.

All merchandise is sold at 50-80% off retail prices, and the firm specializes in famous-maker, first quality merchandise which is often found in prestigious department and specialty stores.

GREENSBORO, GA (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - While recycling aluminum soft drink and beer cans may only be a recent practice for many American households, a team of Alcan employees in Greensboro has recycled used beverage cans by the billions every year for the past decade.

This weekend, Alcan Recycling celebrates its milestone 10-year anniversary at Greensboro with a plant open house for employees and their families, local government officials and business leaders, and area residents.

The plant recycles aluminum beverage cans into aluminum ingots, weighing as much as 50,000 lbs., for further processing in Alcan rolling and manufacturing operations throughout North America. In the 10 years since Alcan has operated the plant, Greensboro has recycled close to 25 billion aluminum cans, or 50 percent of the total volume of aluminum cans recycled by Americans last year.

Alcan acquired the Greensboro plant in the fall of 1980 from Keystone Resources. It was Alcan's first totally dedicated can recycling plant. Through capital improvements and productivity gains by employees, Greensboro's recycling output has increased significantly each year over the past decade.

When completed, the expansion will enable the Greensboro plant to recycle the equivalent of an additional 1 billion cans per year to an annual total capacity of more than 5 billion used beverage cans (UBC's), or 160 cans per second, 24 hours per day, 365 days per year.

In 1989, Americans recycled a record 49.4 billion aluminum cans, and raised the national can recycling rate to 60.8 percent, a significant increase over 54.6 percent in 1988 and 50.5 percent in 1987. In 1980, when Alcan acquired Greensboro, the U.S. recycling rate was only 37.3 percent, for a total of 14.8 billion aluminum cans recycled.

Also significant, but generally unknown outside the industry is that aluminum recycling actually saves energy. Making aluminum from recycled aluminum cans requires only 5 percent of the energy required to make aluminum from raw materials. The Aluminum Association, a Washington D.C.-based organization of aluminum producers, estimates that by recycling last year alone, aluminum makers saved more than 12 billion kilowatt hours of electricity -- the energy equivalent of 20 million barrels of oil.

Every year aluminum recycling becomes more and more convenient to consumers, Pchola said, estimating that more than 10,000 buyback centers, employing 30,000 to 40,000 workers now exist throughout the United States. An estimated 3 million to 4 million Americans are regular visitors to these centers while millions more support recycling through curbside pickup and municipal recycling programs.

Alcan Recycling is part of Alcan Aluminum Corp., the U.S. subsidiary of Alcan Aluminium Ltd., Montreal.

HOPKINTON, MASS. (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - The first menuing package to include built-in software metering exclusively for Banyan Systems Inc., networks ships next week, with the release of StreetMap 1.1, by Trellis.

The extensive software metering capabilities enhance this robust menu-building system, which is free to all support customers of Trellis, based here. Approximately 20,000 users are affected by the announcement.

StreetMap 1.1 includes a range of network management and menu-administration features. Together, these features are designed to help network managers comply with the often-complicated restrictions governing secured network access and site licensing agreements.

''An increasing number of companies are very conscious of respecting the limits of site licenses,'' said Bob Shea, president of Trellis Software, a leading developer of applications for Banyan networks.

StreetMap 1.1 monitors user activity across the entire network. Its ability to track an infinite number of applications running under the VINES operating system means that various licensing agreements can be simultaneously monitored.

Software metering prohibits access to an application if the maximum number of allowed users are already on line. Because many companies own more than one restricted copy of an application, StreetMap can automatically route potential users to the next available slot.

Metering also permits network managers to gauge overall activity, and determine whether additional licenses, or even different software, might better serve the company's needs.

Trellis is a leading systems integrator, trainer, network applications developer, and software publisher. Its portfolio of products include calendaring, menuing, bulletin board, mirroring, fax, and an optical disk interface for Banyan VINES networks.

Trellis, a privately held company, has offices in Hopkinton, Mass., Falls Church, Va., and Princeton, N.J.

CLEARWATER, FLA. (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Robert S. Wiggins, chairman and chief executive officer of Technology Research Corp. (TRC), (NASDAQ:TRCI), Friday reported that the company's revenues for the second quarter ended Sept. 30 were $1,507,294 compared to $2,020,194 reported in the like quarter of the prior year, and the net loss for the current quarter was $98,024 compared to net income of $72,794 for the prior year's quarter.

Revenues for the six-month period ended Sept. 30 were $2,887,292 compared to $3,973,240 reported in the like period in the prior year, and the net loss for the current period was $492,549 compared to net income of $83,230 for the like period in the prior year.

Wiggins commented that sales of the company's ground fault circuit interrupter (''GFCI'') products were 75 percent of total sales for the current quarter, 73 percent for the six month period as compared to 65 percent and 67 percent for the like periods in the prior year.

Domestic GFCI sales for the current quarter increased slightly over the corresponding period for the previous year; however total GFCI product sales reflect a decrease of approximately $560,000 for the six months, primarily caused by a delay in receiving certain orders from original equipment manufacturers and a general slowdown in both the company's international and domestic markets.

In addition, military product sales decreased by approximately $500,000 during the current six month period reflecting the continued delay in the phase-over to the new Tactical Quiet Electrical Generator System. This situation will continue to exist at least through the next fiscal quarter.

The loss for the current quarter and the six month period can be attributed to the lower sales levels presently being experienced.

The company is benefitting from the aggressive cost reduction program that was implemented in the current period and expenses are in line with expected revenues.

TRC, a Florida based corporation, is engaged in the design, development, manufacture, and marketing of electronic control and measurement devices related to the distribution of electrical power.

MANCHESTER, NH (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Numerica Financial Corp. (OTC:NUME) announced Friday an after tax loss for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, of $4,142,000, or 93 cents per share, compared to an after tax loss of $1,033,000 or 23 cents per share, one year ago.

Year to date, the company has lost $17,642,000, or $3.96 per share, compared to a net loss of $13,772,000, or $3.09 per share, one year ago.

The company's loss during the third quarter was primarily due to the following: a $1.1 million provision for possible loan losses, compared to $680 thousand one year ago; foreclosure expense of $1.3 million, compared to $248 thousand one year ago; and a decrease in net interest income from $5.7 million one year ago, to $4.2 million in 1990.

At Sept. 30, 1990, non-accrual loans amounted to $28.2 million, and other real estate owned was $39.2 million, totalling $67.4 million of total non-earning assets, or 6.81 percent of total assets. This was up slightly when compared to $26.2 million of non-accrual loans, and $36.2 million of other real estate owned, totalling $62.4 million of total non-earning assets, or 6.23 percent of total assets at June 30, 1990.

Loans 90 days past due still accruing interest at Sept. 30, 1990, were $2.7 million, compared to $3.0 million at June 30, 1990. Total restructured loans at Sept. 30, 1990, were $9.2 million, compared to $2.4 million at June 30, 1990.

Net interest income for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $4.2 million, down $1.5 million from one year ago. Fees and service charges were up $97 thousand from one year ago, to end the quarter at $1.6 million. Non-interest expenses, exclusive of foreclosure expenses and additional costs associated with a prior disposition of a mortgage-banking subsidiary, were down $139 thousand from one year ago, to $7.5 million for the third quarter of 1990.

The allowance for possible loan losses at Sept. 30, 1990, was $11.8 million and represented 1.79 percent of total loans. This compares to $12.0 million, or 1.46 percent of total loans at June 30, 1990, and $10.1 million, or 1.08 percent of total loans at Sept. 30, 1989. At Sept. 30, 1990, the allowance for possible loan losses represented 41.7 percent of total non-accrual loans, compared to 45.6 percent at June 30, 1990, and 30.2 percent at Sept. 30, 1989.

Total loans at Sept. 30, 1990, were $656 million, down $282 million, or 30.1 percent from one year ago, and down $163 million, or 20.0 percent from June 30 1990. The reduction in loans during the quarter was principally due to the securitization of $141 million of residential mortgages at Numerica Savings Bank, and the securitization and sale of $25 million of adjustable rate mortgages by HomeBank.

Assets were also reduced in line with the company's plan to continue to downsize the balance sheet. At Sept. 30, 1990, total assets were $990 million down $152 million, or 13.3 percent from one year ago, and down $13 million, or 1.3 percent from June 30, 1990.

At Sept. 30, 1990, the company's equity to asset ratio was 3.00 percent. The tangible, core, and risk-based capital ratios at Numerica Savings Bank were 1.67 percent, 1.67 percent and 3.72 percent, respectively; and at HomeBank were 4.95 percent, 5.70 percent, and 9.30 percent, respectively. Under the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA), both banks' required tangible, core, and risk-based capital levels are 1.5 percent, 3.0 percent, and 6.4 percent.

The company announced during the third quarter that it has withdrawn its application to the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS), which requested permission to contribute the stock of HomeBank held by Numerica Financial Corp. to Numerica Savings Bank. As a result of this withdrawal, and a subsequent denial by the OTS pertaining to Numerica Savings Bank's associated capital plan, the bank is currently in discussions with federal regulators pertaining to a capital directive.

The capital directive, when finalized, is expected to result in significant operating restrictions on Numerica Savings Bank and will define the timing associated with a required capitalization of Numerica Savings Bank. Until the capital directive is finalized, the bank has agreed with the OTS as to certain restrictions on its lending and investment activities.

To assist Numerica Savings Bank in its recapitalization efforts, the company announced today that it has retained BEI/Golembe Capital Markets to act as its financial advisor. Given current economic conditions, the capital position of Numerica Savings Bank cannot be expected to be brought into capital compliance with existing regulatory requirements without the infusion of new outside capital. It is likely that any infusion of capital will probably result in substantial dilution to existing shareholders.

If Numerica Savings Bank cannot reach capital compliance within a time frame acceptable to federal regulators, it is likely that more stringent regulatory action will be taken by such regulators.

BURLINGTON, MASS. (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Xylogics Inc. (NASDAQ:XLGX) Friday announced it expects to post significantly lower fourth quarter sales and a resultant loss.

According to Bruce Bergman, president and chief executive officer, ''Fourth quarter sales will be down a little over 25 percent from the third quarter. This is caused by delays in several major OEM customers' programs and a slowing in orders from other customers and resellers. The delays are temporary, and shipments are already resuming in some programs and expected to resume in others shortly. The slowing of orders reflects current economic conditions which are forcing customers to minimize inventories.''

Although the company declined to estimate the exact size of the loss, Bergman said, ''With the lower revenue figures and various actions taken in response to the lower revenues, we will also incur a loss for the year.''

Bergman said that based upon some significant new customer programs and new products, he expected a return to revenue growth and profitability for Xylogics in 1991. However, he declined to make any quarterly or detailed projections.

NEW YORK (NOV. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Strong demand by Japanese passengers for Japan Airlines' international and domestic flights, and growth in domestic cargo traffic combined to produce an operating profit of $395 million for the first half of JAL's 1990 fiscal year, resulting in a net profit of $214 million.

Operating revenues for the April 1 through Sept. 30 period rose 10.7 percent to $4,295,400,000, while operating expenses, effected by increased jet fuel and other costs, jumped 14.1 percent to $3,900,400,000, which resulted in the $395 million operating profit, down 14.1 percent from the half-year 1989 amount.

Following adjustments for non-operating revenues and expenses and special profit-and-loss items, JAL's midyear pretax profit came to $401,700,000, up 3.1 percent. Japanese corporate and other tax obligations of $178,400,000 resulted in the $214 million midyear net profit, 18.9 percent above 1989.

JAL carried 4,304,996 international passengers, an increase of 3.5 percent, and 7,643,939 domestic passengers, up 10.3 percent from the same six-month period last year.

The total number of passengers flown was up 7.8 percent to 11,948,935, which produced a combined passenger load factor of 78.5 percent, a full four points higher than in 1989.

Except for a major slump on the Southern Route between Japan and Europe caused by the unstable Mideast situation, passenger traffic on JAL's international routes either increased or stayed about the same for the period. Demand on Japan-China routes showed marked improvement from 1989.

Projections for the end of the fiscal year on March 31, 1991, forsee revenues totaling $8.3 billion, with an operational profit of $225 million. Payment of a 10 percent dividend on par value of JAL stock is also forecast.

PROVIDENCE, RI (NOV. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Nortek Inc. (NYSE:NTK) announced Friday that net sales from continuing operations for the third quarter of 1990 totalled $263,200,000 compared $272,153,000 for the third quarter of 1989.

Net loss for the quarter was $2,700,000, compared to a net loss of $8,300,000 for the third quarter of 1989.

Pre-tax operating earnings from continuing operations for the quarter were $5,776,000, compared to a loss of $407,000 for the third quarter of 1989.

For the third quarter of 1990, net sales increased at the Air Conditioning Group only, with all other groups reporting lower volume, particularly the Plumbing Group, as compared to the third quarter of 1989. Pre-tax results improved at the Wood Group and significantly at the Air Conditioning Group, but these gains were partially offset by losses at the Plumbing Group, as compared to the third quarter of 1989.

During the quarter, the company purchased, at a discount $14,665,000 face amount of its outstanding subordinated debentures.

For the first nine months of 1990, net sales from continuing operations were $812,634,000 compared to $823,449,000 for the first nine months of 1989. Net loss for the first nine months was $2,300,000, compared to a net loss of $5,850,000 for the first nine months of 1989.

Pre-tax operating earnings from continuing operations for the first nine months were $19,795,000, an 84 percent increase over $10,774,000 reported for the first nine months of 1989.

For the first nine months of 1990, higher sales levels at the Air Conditioning Group were more than offset by lower sales levels at the Wood and Plumbing Groups. Pre-tax earnings at the Air Conditioning Group continue at higher levels, compared to 1989, and reduced losses at the Wood Group were partially offset by a significant drop in earnings at the Plumbing Group, compared to the first nine months of 1989.

Operating results at Universal-Rundle Corp., in the Plumbing Group, have been and continue to be particularly hard hit by weak market conditions, lower volume of shipments to its major customer and a shift of product mix from high volume wholesale customers to retail and other markets, which carry much higher selling costs.

The loss from discontinued operations for the first nine months of 1990 was $1,700,000, compared to earnings from discontinued operations of $3,950,000 for the comparable 1989 period.

The company continued, and is continuing, its debt reduction program. During the first nine months of 1990, the company purchased, at a discount, $42,107,000 face amount of its outstanding subordinated debentures.

As previously released on Oct. 31, 1990, the company announced the retirement of Ralph R. Papitto as chairman and chief executive officer and the election of Richard L. Bready, president, to succeed him as chief executive officer. Payments made by the company to Papitto in connection with his retirement will result in a charge to earnings of 43 cents per share in the fourth quarter of 1990. See paragraph G to the attached Summary of Operations.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows on Oct. 12 1990, Landmark/Community Bancorp Inc.(TICKER: LCBI) of Hartford, Connecticut, announced that federal and state regulators seemed willing to resume consideration of the bank's application to merge its two bank subsidiaries, Community National Bank of Glastonbury, Connecticut, and Landmark Bank, of Hartford.

Landmark had previously reported that a merger of the two banks would enable the combined entity to realize significant cost savings.

In its first quarterly report to shareholders this year, Landmark president Louis Bossie said regulatory approval would not be triggered until Landmark reached a primary capital ratio of 8%.

Landmark announced last month that in an effort to raise capital for Community National Bank,it had approved the distribution of all common stock of Community to existing shareholders of Landmark, after which it anticipated that Community National Bank would undertake a rights offering to its shareholders.

The board of directors of Community has since determined, however, that it is unlikely a rights offering can be successfully undertaken in the current economic environment.

As a result, Landmark has suspended for the time being its plan to distribute Community common stock to existing shareholders.

Landmark reports it is considering alternatives for raising capital.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - The Japan Atomic Industrial Forum has reached a basic accord with the Chinese government to jointly develop high-level radioactive waste disposal methods in China, Jiji Press reported Friday.

The news agency said specifics of the plan would be worked out when Japanese officials inspected facilties at Taiyuan, Shansi province, in January next year.

The basic agreement was reached in late October when officials of the China Nuclear Industry Corp. visited Japan, according to Jiji.

The two sides agreed to cooperate in evaluating the safety of materials that could be used to store high-level radioactive waste from nuclear power plants, notably through underground tests, Jiji said.

GOTHENBURG, SWEDEN (NOV. 2) - The Swedish Volvo car company on Friday declined to comment on reports from Tokyo that it had reached agreement with Mitsubishi Motors Corp. to create a joint venture in the Netherlands to produce Mitsubishi cars.

The report had appeared in the Japanese Nihon Keizai newspaper which said that the new company, to be established early next year, would produce 200,000 Mitsubishi mirages from 1993.

Volvo spokesman Knut Leman said: "Negotiations are continuing with Mitsubishi but we cannot comment on reports of an agreement."

He said: "Yesterday we had a meeting in Japan with Mitsubishi, and that it is perhaps the origin of these reports, but we cannot confirm them."

Earlier in Japan Mitsubishi neither confirmed nor denied the report.

CANBERRA, Nov 2 (AFP) - Australia singled out France and Germany on Friday for the deadlock threatening world trade talks, but added that Japanese attitudes were encouraging European intransigence.

Trade Negotiations Minister Neal Blewett said the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) had reached "a critical stage."

The European Economic Community was three weeks overdue in meeting a deadline to produce proposals to reform agricultural trade and reduce protectionism, he said.

"I have got to say that prospects for the Round do not look good," he told reporters here.

It was, Mr. Blewett went on, "up to (European) Community nations -- particularly France and Germany -- to break the deadlock for which they are solely responsible."

"While there are blockages in other areas of negotiations, the crisis we now face stems directly from the procrastination of the European Community in its presentation," he said.

But, he added, "it is very difficult to argue for reforming European agriculture if at the same time the Japanese maintain their position of not permitting the import of a single grain of rice."

Mr. Blewett was due to leave here later Friday for Geneva, where he was to chair a meeting on Monday of ministers from the 14-member Cairns Group of agriculture-exporting nations.

The group includes Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Hungary, Indonesia, Malaysia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and Urguguay.

Fiji is also a member, but is not a participant in GATT, and is not taking part in the ministerial meeting in Geneva.

Officials here said the group produced one-third of the world's total agricultural exports.

Mr. Blewett would not say what measures the group might take if the talks failed to produce a satisfactory agreement, but he warned that the collapse of the Uruguay Round would "give the green light to forms of creeping protectionism seen in the '80s."

WELLINGTON (NOV. 2) - Former New Zealand prime minister Sir Robert Muldoon said Friday he would try to end current monetary policy, which is threatening to split the ranks of the new ruling National Party.

At the same time Prime Minister Jim Bolger warned his MPs not to threaten party unity.

Mr. Bolger and his new cabinet were sworn in here Friday by Governor-General Sir Paul Reeves.

Sir Robert, who rejected Mr. Bolger's offer of a post outside cabinet that included ministerial responsibility for horse racing, warned Thursday that he would "make a little prick" of himself as a result.

In an interview Sir Robert, prime minister and finance minister between 1975 and 1984, said he wanted to repeal part of the Reserve Bank Act requiring the central bank to use monetary means to bring zero to two percent inflation by 1992.

National is committed to the same goal, but by 1993.

Sir Robert urged introducing a private member's bill to parliament which would give members on both sides of the House the opportunity to declare their positions on "this disastrous monetary policy".

Sir Robert said he believed that part of the Reserve Bank Act should never have been passed and he believed many backbenchers in the new government shared his opinion.

His bill would give new members an opportunity to support policies which would help them to retain their seats in the next election, he said, and denied he was making a threat.

"It's not a threat," Sir Robert said. "I haven't made a firm decision to introduce a bill but it's very much in my mind."

Excessive power had been given to the Reserve Bank and too great an emphasis had been placed on a single indicator, Sir Robert said.

Newly-appointed Maori Affairs Minister Winston Peters has also criticised the new government's anti-inflation line, calling it "economic drivel".

BEIJING (NOV. 2) - The Chinese capital is set to host preliminary talks this weekend between Japan and North Korea on forging diplomatic ties, but Beijing will stay on the sidelines, analysts here say.

The bilateral discussions, the first of their kind, begin here Saturday at the North Korean Embassy and continue Sunday at its Japanese counterpart, less than a kilometer (half-mile) away.

Beijing is the venue because it offers the best telecommunication links with both Pyongyang and Tokyo, and has direct air services to both capitals, sources in Tokyo have said.

Otherwise, the Chinese government is not taking part in the talks, a Japanese diplomatic source said.

"They just let us use their territory," he said.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry has limited its public comment on the Japanese-North Korean meeting to an upbeat expression of good wishes to both sides.

"We welcome the improvement of relations between Korea and Japan, and we hope the relevent talks will be fruitful," ministry spokeswoman Li Jinhua told a press briefing this week.

For the past month China has been striving to reassure North Korea - with apparent success - that it will not sacrifice their historic alliance as Beijing inches closer to Seoul.

No diatribes were heard from Pyongyang after China and South Korea signed an agreement October 20 to exchange trade offices that will also perform consular functions, such as issue visas.

The pact acknowledges a flourishing indirect trade between China and South Korea that reached 3.2 billion dollars last year, and Seoul makes no secret of its desire to see full diplomatic relations to follow.

By contrast, North Korea had bitterly accused its other traditional ally, the Soviet Union, of betrayal after it set up formal diplomatic ties with South Korea in September.

Diplomatic observers say China sees itself as a moderating influence on the Korean peninsula, and wants to encourage President Kim Il-Sung to ease out of his self-imposed isolation.

To that end it has spent the past month sending high-level delegations to North Korea.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - Japan and China have exchanged official notes to resume Japanese financial lending frozen after China's military crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators in June last year, government sources here said Friday.

Under the notes, which were signed in Beijing, japan will provide 36.51 billion yen (280 million dollars) in the first tranch of a six-year loan package.

The money is to be used for seven projects to construct, hydropower plant, multi-purpose dam, three fertilizer plants, and water supply and road construction projects, the sources said.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 2) - Swiss-based commodity trading company Marc Rich is South Africa's main supplier of petroleum products and the country gets a large proportion of its oil from the United Arab Emirates (UAE), a report said here Friday.

South Africa's sources of oil have always been shrouded in secrecy, mainly to beat the oil embargo against the country.

It is an offense to publish or divulge any details of the procurement of oil or the movement of tankers around the coast.

The Weekly Mail newspaper on Friday published a report based on a document compiled by the Dutch pressure group which monitors the embargo, the Shipping Research Bureau (SRB), saying that Norwegian shipping companies played a major role in transporting petroleum products to South Africa.

The newspaper named six Norwegian groups involved and said the companies, banned from delivering oil to South Africa, have taken advantage of a loophole in Norwegian law to deliver refined petroleum products.

The SRB document listed 28 tankers which delivered crude oil to South Africa in 19891990, the majority of the deliveries were done by the Hong Kong-based World-Wide Shipping Group, the Weekly Mail said.

The South African government this week came under pressure from the South African Chamber of Business (SACOB), representing some 35,000 businesses, to lift the shroud of secrecy around the country's oil supplies.

SACOB president Lesley Boyd challenged the government of the national oil reserves and asked how they could be used to escape the effects of the present high world price of oil.

The SRB document also detailed South Africa's underground oil supply locations holding between 44 to 46-million barrels of oil in mostly converted coal mines.

Some 19 million gallons of petroleum-based products were shipped from the U.S. despite the 1986 Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act banning "crude or refined products" from being sent to South Africa, the report said.

Some of the other countries where South Africa gets its oil from are Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Oman, Iran and Quatar, the report said. Four Greek companies and one Austrian company also delivered the oil to South Africa.

Most of the tankers sailed from the UAE, 12 out of the 28 deliveries, while seven sailed from Egypt and three from Oman.

The newspaper said Mineral and Energy Affairs Minister Dawie de Villiers has promised to be more frank in future saying: "There is no desire on our part to keep information confidential".

MANILA (NOV. 2) - The Philippine inflation rate reached 12 percent in October up one percent from a month earlier, following a hike in fuel prices, the government said Friday.

But inflation in Manila dropped from 16.7 percent to 15.8 percent in the same period as the cost of vegetables and fish declined, spokesmen for the National Statistics Office said.

A 29 percent hike in oil prices in late September was partly to blame for the overall rise in inflation, they said, although businesses are believed to have raised prices earlier in the month in anticipation of the higher oil prices.

Paris (NOV. 2) - France intends to boost its troop presence in Saudi Arabia by sending a further 800 soldiers, state-run radio reported here Friday.

The troops from the rapid deployment force will be backed up by 18 artillery pieces. Military chiefs in charge of France's operation ''Draguet'' in Saudi Arabia had requested the guns, said the report.

A further 500 French troops with 24 helicopters, 24 Amx-10 R armoured personnel carriers and Fla missiles arrived in Saudi Arabia Thursday to augment the 5,000 French soldiers already in the country.

SEOUL (NOV. 2) - South Korea suffered its worst monthly trade deficit in nine years last month due to sluggish exports and soaring oil imports, officials here said Friday.

October exports amounted to 5.286 billion dollars on a customs clearance basis up a mere 0.3 percent from a year ago, while imports increased 14.8 per cent to 6.15 billion dollars, leaving a 864 million dollar gap.

The monthly trade deficit is the largest since South Korea registered a 894 million dollar trade deficit in December 1981.

The aggregate trade deficit on a customs clearance basis for the first ten months to October amounted to 3.87 billion dollars, compared with 128 million dollars during the same period of last year.

The current account deficit for October is expected to be less, at around 550 to 600 million dollars.

Trade figures on customs clearance basis exaggerate the import side of the ledger, as they include insurance and freight costs.

During the first nine months to September, the aggregate trade deficit on a customs clearance basis amounted to three billion dollars, but on current account basis the aggregate deficit was 457 million dollars.

Officials at the Trade and Industry Ministry said imports had increased sharply as oil import bills rose to 740 million dollars, up from 340 million dollars a year ago, and because of the purchase of 200 million dollars worth of aircraft.

Exports remained flat, especially because plants were closed for five days during holidays in early October.

The arrivals of letters of credit, a barometer to predict export performance in the coming months, increased a meager 5.3 percent, down from 6.2 percent from September.

JERUSALEM (NOV. 2) - Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories held a general strike Friday on the anniversary of the Balfour Declaration that led to the creation of the state of Israel, Arab sources said.

The strike in the West Bank and Gaza Strip was called by the Islamic fundamentalist organisation Hamas.

The Balfour Declaration of November 2, 1917 - named after the British Foreign Secretary at the time, James Balfour - recognized for the first time the right of the Jewish people to a homeland in Palestine.

HANOI (NOV. 2) - Vietnam criticized Friday the Coordinating Committee on Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM) for opposing its purchase of two Airbus aircraft.

"Policies of isolation and embargo (toward Vietnam) are obsolete," a spokesman for the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said, adding that they "could cause losses to companies doing business with Vietnam."

Reports Thursday from Jakarta said COCOM, which oversees the export of Western technology to communist countries, opposed the sale of two aircraft to the Vietnamese national airline Hang Khong Vietnam from Airbus Industrie, the French-led European manufacturer.

One Western diplomat said: "COCOM's decision was more likely imposed by the United States as part of its embargo than taken out of a desire to stop the export of advanced technology, now that Airbus Industrie sells aircraft to the East."

The United States has linked the lifting of its economic and commercial embargo on Vietnam to a resolution of the 12-year-old Cambodian conflict, in which the two countries back rival factions.

COPENHAGE (NOV. 2) - Denmark registered a surplus on the balance of trade of 2.846 billion krone (466 million dollars) in September, compared with a surplus of 166 million dollars in August, provisional official figures showed on friday.

In September 1989 the trade balance showed a surplus of 2.406 billion krone (401 billion dollars).

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the September surplus was 1.463 billion krone (243 million dollars) compared with 2.200 billion krone (366 million dollars) in August.

The surplus was due to a fall of imports, while exports, and particularly industrial exports, stagnated because of an economic crisis in Sweden which is one of Denmark's most important trading partners.

BANGKOK (NOV. 2) - Plans to launch a joint Thai-Vietnamese oil exploration project in the Gulf of Thailand will be discussed when a senior Thai official visits Hanoi this month, officials said here Friday.

Korn Thapparangsri, minister attached to the prime minister's office, is to visit Hanoi November 14 to 16 in line with the Thai government's policy of seeking energy supplies from neighboring countries to meet rising demand at home.

Veitnamese Prime Minister Do Muoi is to visit Bangkok in mid-November for a summit with his Thai counterpart Chatichai Choonhavan that will mark a new era of Thai-Vietnamese relations after years of mutual suspicion.

The two countries recently agreed to hold joint meetings to discuss economic, trade and technical cooperation.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - Japan's Mitsui Engineering and Shipbuilding Ltd. and Hitachi Zosen Corp. announced Friday strong recoveries for the six months to September but predicted mixed fortunes for the second half.

Mitsui Engineering, the world's leading producer of diesel marine engines, said its net profit soared 341 percent from a year earlier to 7.6 billion yen (55 million dollars) in the six months to September. Sales climbed 33.6 per cent to 104 billion yen (754 million dollars) in the same period.

But the company forecast a loss in the second half with its projected profit for the full year reaching only seven billion yen (51 million dollars). Sales are expected to reach 300 billion yen (2.2 billion dollars), it said.

Hitachi Zosen, one of Japan's major heavy machinery and engineering companies, posted a net profit of two billion yen (15 million dollars), reversing a loss of 6.7 billion yen (49 million dollars) a year earlier. Sales grew 24.4 percent to 104 billion yen (754 million dollars).

The company forecast a net profit of five billion yen (36 million dollars) for the full year with sales reaching 270 billion yen (two billion dollars).

Mitsui's sales advanced in all divisions except steel structures where revenue plunged 54 percent to 7.7 billion yen (56 million dollars).

Shipbuilding and defence orders soared 325 percent to 38 billion yen (275 million dollars) while machinery sales leapt 20 percent to 29 billion yen (210 million dollars). Sales of industrial plants edged up 2.8 percent to 27 billion yen (196 million dollars), the company said.

Hitachi posted higher sales in all areas except steel and environmental equipment, which fell 10.2 percent to 26 billion yen (188 million dollars), and plants which fell 12.2 percent to 12 billion yen (87 million dollars).

But shipbuilding orders soared 151 percent to 33 billion yen (239 million dollars) while sales of machinery and prime movers rose 15.8 percent to 27 billion yen (196 million dollars).

TAIPEI (NOV. 2) - Total assets of Taiwan's offshore banking units amounted to 18.44 billion U.S. dollars in the first three quarters of 1990, up 21.7 percent over the same period last year, the Central Bank of China said Friday.

Claims on financial organizations accounted for 85.3 percent of the assets, with loans to non-financial institutions and investments in securities accounting for the rest, the bank said.

Deposits from financial institutions made up 93.9 percent of liabilities, with 83 percent of the deposits coming from Asia, 11 percent from the United States and five percent from Europe, it said.

Eleven local and 15 foreign banks have joined Taiwan's offshore banking system since it was introduced in June 1984 in an effort to develop the island as one of the Asia-Pacific region's financial centers.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - Japan's current account surplus shrank 43.7 percent from a year earlier to 15.4 billion dollars in the six months to September, mainly due to a stronger yen, the finance ministry said Friday.

The contraction in the current account -- measuring trade in goods and services plus certain other financial transactions such as gifts and grants -- reflected a flat export performance and a 10 percent jump in imports.

The smaller surplus also reflected a surge of almost 50 percent in the country's deficit in service transactions -- such as tourism and shipping -- which widened to an all-time high for the six-month period.

A finance ministry official said the decline mainly reflected the stronger yen which tends to discourage exports and boost imports, while the recent surge in crude oil prices had only a modest impact.

"The Gulf crisis began to be felt from the latter half of September," the official said. "Many companies rushed to buy oil before their prices jumped."

Japan's trade surplus narrowed 21.9 percent to 30.8 billion dollars during the period. Exports inched up 0.8 percent to 135.8 billion dollars while imports jumped 10.3 percent to 105 billion dollars. The deficit in service transactions ballooned 49.4 percent to 13.3 billion dollars.

The bigger services deficit was mainly due to increased Japanese travel abroad which boosted the country's deficit in travel transactions by 9.5 per cent to an all-time high of 11 billion dollars.

The official said the ministry was uncertain about developments in the current six-month period ending in March but indicated it would largely depend on oil prices. Crude averaged 22.33 dollars a barrel in September, up from 16.33 dollars in August and 16.92 dollars in September last year.

In September alone, the surplus in the current account narrowed 24.4 per cent from a year earlier to 4.6 billion dollars, the ministry said.

The trade surplus shrank 1.8 percent to 7.7 billion dollars, the third consecutive monthly decline. Exports rose six percent to 25.1 billion dollars and imports increased 9.9 percent to 17.4 billion dollars. Japan's services deficit surged 37.8 percent to 2.1 billion dollars.

Exports were led by motor vehicles, ships, audio-visual equipment and chemicals which offset reduced shipments of steel, electronics and office equipment. Increased imports of vehicles, aircraft, gold, paintings and crude oil meanwhile offset smaller purchases of timber, pulp, foodstuff and textiles.

Crude oil imports skyrocketed 48.7 percent from a year earlier to 2.45 billion dollars on a customs-cleared basis.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - The European Commission has notified Japan of its "concern" at being excluded from a Japanese ministerial working group - open to the United States - on telecommunication satellite manufacturing, an informed source here said Friday.

The European Economic Community (EEC) delegation here confirmed that it sent a memo Wednesday to the Japanese Foreign Ministry complaining of anti-European discrimination in the aerospace sector.

The working group, under the Posts and Telecommunications Ministry, includes Japanese officials and manufacturers as well as representatives of the U.S. Electronics Industry Association. The Europeans said they were repeatedly barred from the group.

Officials at the Posts and Telecommunications Ministry are calling the EEC response "excessive" and trying to downplay the importance of the working group, which it describes as strictly technical and non-commercial.

Confirming that a U.S. official was part of the study group, inaugurated early last month and set to finish its work in February, they maintained that any European role remained "unlikely."

But observers said the aim of the European initiative was to highlight exclusive U.S.-Japanese ties in the aerospace and particularly aeronautic sectors, which often ignore both market forces and European interests.

EEC aerospace manufacturers here last week called on Japan to open its market to European goods and aircraft, saying Japanese imports from the United States are eight times those from Europe, which supplies 30 per cent of the world's aerospace market.

According to official EEC statistics, European manufacturers supply only three per cent of the Japanese aerospace market, or some 20 million dollars in 1988.

This figure compares to 1.76 billion dollars for the United States, which claimed 26.5 percent of the market and 87 percent of imports.

BRUSSELS (NOV. 2) - Belgium is to raise its discount interest rate by 0.25 percent to 10.5 percent, effective from Monday, the Belgian National Bank announced here in a communique Friday.

The national bank raised its directive Lombard rate, the interest rate charged to banks for very short-term credits, by 0.25 percent to 11 percent with immediate effect.

The move comes one day after the Bundesbank announced it was raising the German Lombard rate by 0.5 percent to 8.5 percent. But the German discount rate was left unchanged.

Earlier this week, the U.S. Federal Reserve and the French central bank announced a 0.25 percent drop in directive interest rates. Britain was expected to follow the downward trend.

German financial analysts said this week that Germany was compelled to follow a more cautious path because of the huge costs of German unification and the ensuing economic uncertainty.

NAIROBI (NOV. 2) - Sudanese leader Omar el-Beshir has denied reports of famine in Sudan, accusing the Western media of spreading rumours to tarnish the country's image.

Addressing journalists recently, Lieutenant-General el-Beshir said the Sudanese people would respond to the reports by producing more food than they needed, the Sudanese embassy in Nairobi announced in a press release Friday.

Last week the United Nations World Food Programme (WFP) said it was sending 25,000 tons of cereals to people in drought-stricken areas of Sudan.

It said the cereals were being sent to the Kordofan and Darfur regions of western Sudan, and to the Red Sea province in the east.

WFP warned that a major emergency was imminent in Sudan as reports indicated that farmers and herders were continuing to leave their land in search of water, food, grazing and employment after two consecutive years of drought.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) director general Hans Blix hopes North Korea will budge on a safeguard agreement before an IAEA board meeting in December, a Tokyo newspaper reported Friday.

In an interview with the economic journal Nihon Keizai, he confirmed that North Korea had reached complete agreement on a document clarifying how IAEA would inspect North Korean nuclear facilities.

But North Korea has insisted that the agreement would be signed only after the United States pledges not to use nuclear weapons against it, he said.

The guarantee is an issue to be solved between the United States and North Korea while IAEA is not directly involved in it, Mr. Blix was quoted as saying.

The former Swedish foreign minister said he hoped that the issue would be settled before the IAEA board meeting in December.

North Korea signed the nuclear non-proliferation treaty in 1985. But it has refused to sign the safeguard agreement within 18 months as required by the treaty, raising suspicion about its possible development of nuclear arms.

Mr. Blix told the National Press Club in Washington last month his agency had wrapped up negotiations with North Korea in the summer and "all technical points have been cleared up."

He added, however, the talks were being held up by the North Korean insistence that "they should not be subjected to nuclear threats" from the United States.

BEIJING (NOV. 2) - Kuwait's new ambassador to China presented his credentials to President Yang Shangkun on Friday, in a gesture that underscored Beijing's continuing recognition of the sheikhdom's government-in-exile.

The ambassador, Abdul Hamid al-Baejan, arrived Monday to head Kuwait's tiny embassy here, which was staffed only by a charge d'affaires when Iraq invaded the Gulf nation last August 2, the New China News Agency said.

China says it is fully complying with United Nations sanctions against Iraq, while calling on Baghdad -- formerly one of its biggest arms buyers -- to make a complete and unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait.

Mr. Yang also accepted credentials Friday from Iran's new ambassador, Mohammad Hossein Taremi Rad, in a separate ceremony, NCNA said.

FREETOWN (NOV. 2) - About 1,500 refugees from war-torn Liberia arrived here Friday aboard the Nigeria naval ship, Ambe, bringing the total number of Liberians and West Africans evacuated here by sea in the past six weeks to about 20,000, port officials said.

Many of the pale and hungry refugees staggered off the vessel with their meager belongings. An old man had to be carried from the ship on a makeshift stretcher.

Sam Puell, one of some 800 Liberians who left the ship, said Monrovia was "a ghost town haunted at night by marauding bands of the Armed Forces of Liberia soldiers" who were loyal to the late president Samuel Doe.

Many of the refugees complained of not having enough food to eat. Some said they had not seen a piece of bread for months.

Rufus Thomas, a Sierra Leonean who had been in Monrovia for 15 years said: "There is still no peace in Monrovia. Every night there are shootings and we don't know what is going on."

He said there were many thousands of refugees still waiting to get out of the besieged Liberian capital.

On Tuesday, Bu Buakei Jabbi, chairman of the National Refugee Coordinating Committee, said Sierra Leone authorities could no longer cope with the influx of tens of thousands of Liberian refugees.

In letters to the West African expeditionary force (ECOMOG) secretariat headed by Nigerian Ambassador Joshua Iroha and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) office here, he recommended that Liberian refugees remain in the Monrovia port where they could receive food and medical care.

The expeditionary force, sent into Liberia in August by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) to impose a ceasefire between rebels and government troops, has been operating out of Freetown.

Mr. Jabbi said there were more than 200,000 Liberian refugees in Sierra Leone, while U.N. officials put the figure at about 130,000.

A Guinean diplomat told AFP Friday that another 800 Guinean refugees had crossed the border into Sierra Leone by foot Thursday.

Meanwhile, a foreign affairs ministry spokesman said a five-man ECOWAS delegation was to go to Tripoli over the weekend "to hold discussions with the Libyan leader Colonel (Moamer) Kadhafi on the situation in Liberia."

The spokesman said a ministerial "contact group" of the ECOWAS mediation committee was to "persuade Colonel Kadhafi to halt the arms pipeline which is now assisting (rebel leader) Charles Taylor's continued belligerence in Liberia."

Sources close to the ECOMOG secretariat here confirmed the mission.

Libya and Burkina Faso have been accused by ECOMOG officials of supplying arms to the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) rebels, headed by Mr. Taylor.

The rebel leader refused to meet with the ECOWAS contact group in a meeting scheduled for Wednesday in the Malian capital, Bamako, but invited the West African leaders to Liberia for the talks.

The NPFL rebels launched their bid to overthrow the Doe government last December 24 in northeast Liberia near the Ivory Coast border. Mr. Doe was tortured to death September 10 in Monrovia by a rival rebel group led by Prince Johnson.

BY JOACHIM SCHUCHT

BONN (NOV. 2) - ''I'm leaving the bridge but not the ship,'' declared Willy Brandt when he stepped down as chairman of Germany's opposition Social Democrat (Spd) party two years ago.

Former West German Chancellor Brandt, 76, who is now to travel on a humanitarian mission to Baghdad, kept his word. He did not retire and has never turned his back on politics.

With German reunification Brandt became a key figure again within the ranks of his own party but continued to demonstrate much independence of thought.

In the course of the turbulent unification process, the speed of which took Brandt by surprise, the politics expressed by the Spd's honorary chairman were often closer to those of Chancellor Helmut Kohl than Spd standard bearer Oskar Lafontaine.

Kohl also sees himself as following the tradition established by Bradt with his Ostpolitik policy towards East Germany and the former communist nations of eastern Europe.

As head of the left-wing liberal coalition, Brandt turned the years 1969 to 1974 into an era of reconciliation with Poland, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia - countries which particularly suffered under German occupation during World War Ii.

At a time when German politics were still revolving solely around reunification, there was no shortage of warning words from Nobel Peace Prize holder Brandt.

He stressed that amid the joy of seeing communist dictatorships collapse in eastern Europe, the increasing problems of the Third World must not be forgotten.

At the height of German reunification fever, Brandt joined forces with former Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere to issue an appeal for more genorosity in awarding development aid to poor countries.

The ability to look beyond his own backyard was something which always characterised a man whose own path through life had moulded him into a ''world citizen''. Brandt was never a one-track thinker.

''Never a starry-eyed apostle of peace, he was a wary, long-term thinking foreign politician of great calibre who also weighed up the factor of power in all his doings,'' former Spd national secretary Peter Glotz said two years ago on the occasion of Brandt's 75th birthday.

As president of the Socialist International (since 1976) and chairman of the North-South Commission for Development Issues (since 1977) Brandt has further grown in stature and gained an authority of his own since bowing out of everyday German politics.

His regular lectures at American universities and in front of the members of influential organisations are in demand. His advice is sought by statesmen from all over the world. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev spends hours talking to Brandt when the Spd politician visits him at the Kremlin.

Brandt's international commitment and the worldwide respect accorded to him more than to any other German politician have frequently faced him with the decision whether to intervene in conflict situations.

The most recent example of this came a few months ago when Brandt was proposed as an intermediary by both sides at proposed peace talks between the Ethiopian government and rebels seeking to destabilise the regime.

KHAYELITSHA, SOUTH AFRICA (NOV. 2) - Liberal white member of parliament Jan van Eck and human rights lawyer Willie Hofmeyr were detained by police Friday in this black township outside Cape Town, an AFP correspondent who witnessed the arrests said.

She said Mr. Van Eck, an MP for the liberal Democratic Party, was arrested after he refused to leave the strife-torn township when ordered out by police.

Mr. Hofmeyr then lay down in front of the police van to prevent it driving off and he too was arrested.

Earlier Friday Mr. Van Eck told AFP that he had been prevented from entering Khayelitsha by police who told him that "people overreact when they see you."

Khayelitsha is one of three black townships near Cape Town declared "unrest areas" by Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok on Thursday.

Police spokesman Major Jan Calitz said Mr. Van Eck had Thursday been prohibited by the Regional Police Commissioner Major General Flip Fourie from entering the area and was arrested when he refused to leave Khayelitsha on Friday.

Both men were released after "processing", Maj. Calitz said.

Lingulethu and Old Crossroads, along with Khayelitsha, have been hit by a wave of killings, sparked by attempts to oust local community councillors regarded as government "puppets".

Mr. Vlok has also imposed 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. curfews in the affected areas.

Declaration of a township as an "unrest area" under the Public Safety Act enables police to use extraordinary powers to curb violence, including curfews roadblocks and house-to-house searches.

MOSCOW (NOV. 2) - Independence for Georgia is set to become a priority following this week's victory for the anti-communist nationalist opposition in the republic's first multi-party legislative poll, provided splits among the nationalists can be overcome.

Official results issued in Tbilisi on Friday by the electoral commission gave the seven parties of the Round Table-Free Georgia coalition 114 seats from last Sunday's voting, and 60 to the Communists, out of 250 seats being contested. Independents won four, and three seats went to small parties separate from the Round Table.

Fresh elections for the remaining 69 seats where candidates failed to get 50 per cent majorities are scheduled for November 11.

Strictly speaking, Round Table still lacks a parliamentary majority, but Georgia's nationalist and anti-communist movement as a whole has certainly won the day, for the single objective common to all the myriad parties and movements which have sprung up in its name -- nearly 140 to date -- is the "restoration of national independence".

Georgia was annexed by the Tzars in 1801. It was briefly independent from 1918 to 1921 following the Bolshevik Revolution.

All these parties are expected to regroup and present single candidates for the second round of voting, in which it is practically impossible for the Comunist Party to carry off all the constituencies evn though it retains strong local influence.

"This parliament is going to begin preparing for independence, and one of our first initiatives is going to be the adoption of a declaration of sovereignty " Round Table chief Zviad Gamsakhurdia explained in a phone call.

He saw the new parliament as a transitional body "which must be used to restore Georgia's sovereignty" and which would have the duty of guiding the Caucasian republic during its passage to independence.

MUSCAT (NOV. 2) - Jordan's King Hussein on Friday ended a discreet three-day visit to the Sultanate of Oman, where only his arrival and his departure were reported by the official news agency ONA.

ONA said the monarch was seen off by Sultan Qaboos bin Said. On Wednesday the agency announced King Hussein's arrival but gave no details of his visit, saying only he would have talks with the sultan.

But informed sources here and officials in Jordan have said the discussions would cover the Gulf crisis and means of reaching a peaceful solution to Iraq's three-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

Jordan has been repeatedly criticised by Gulf states for its support to Iraq despite its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Qatar and Saudi Arabia has been at the forefront of Jordan's critics, expelling Jordanian diplomats and military personnel and imposing economic sanctions on Amman.

Doha stopped importing Jordanian goods while Riyadh ceased pumping oil to the Hashemite kingdom.

Jordan was also rebuked by the international community for its failure to adhere to U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

Late last month the United States said Amman was now complying with the sanctions and urged Gulf states to provide Jordan with financial aid to help ease the burden caused by the Gulf crisis.

King Hussein's visit to Oman also came ahead of a trip to Paris Monday for talks with French President Francois Mitterrand on the Gulf crisis.

Earlier this week Mr. Mitterrand agreed with his Soviet counterpart Mikhail Gorbachev on the need to promote the "Arab factor" in efforts to reach a settlement to the Gulf crisis.

But he did not endorse Mr. Gorbachev's call for an inter-Arab conference to find a solution to the conflict.

Jordan and Iraq were among those welcoming the call for an Arab summit but Iraq's Arab critics such as Egypt and the United Arab Emirates have flatly rejected the notion.

MANAMA (NOV. 2) - Iraq, baiting its Western opponents by promising Christmas visits to the relatives of hostages, has reacted to sharp criticism of its offer with a further pledge to treat the families properly.

The Iraqi governenment made the promise Friday, stating that families of Western hostages invited to visit their captive relatives during the holidays would be treated properly and would be free to leave the country, the Iraqi news agency INA reported.

Iraqi Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassem also said that he was "surprised at the biased and inhuman attitude of American and British leaders who asked families" of hostages not to visit their relatives in Iraq, according to INA, monitored here.

Mr. Jassem promised that the families "will be well-treated and free to leave."

He said that Iraq "will assure that all families visiting the country are provided with all necessary comforts in order to insure their joy."

Britain, however, has rejected the offer and discouraged Britons from making the voyage, which a Foreign Office spokesman characterized on Thursday as "risky."

Despite official disapproval, ten wives of British hostages have announced that they plan to visit their husbands in Iraq next week.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler denounced the Iraqi offer as "shameless" and "cruel and insensitive," but said that the State Department would not try to stop Americans from visiting their families.

On Thursday, Baghdad announced that four U.S. citizens who were either aged or sick would be set free, and that all Irish nationals could leave the country as soon as their employment contracts were terminated.

Meanwhile, six former Swedish hostages arrived in Stockholm, and the Iraqi parliament was reportedly preparing to ratify President Saddam Hussein's decision to release some 700 Bulgarians.

Close to 4,000 Westerners remain captive in Iraq and Kuwait, including 1,400 Britons, 1,000 Americans, 320 Italians, 300 Germans and 220 Irish nationals.

In Bonn, the German government on Thursday gave its official approval to former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's upcoming visit to Baghdad, despite having undertaken at the October 28 European Economic Community summit in Rome to "discourage" isolated initiatives to free the hostages.

The discussions, just over two weeks before the November 19 meeting in Paris of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE), were expected to deal with bilateral relations, political and economic reforms in Eastern Europe, European development and arms control, according to German sources.

Mr. Genscher was also scheduled to meet with parliamentary speaker Alexander Dubcek.

MANAMA (NOV. 2) - The exiled prime minister of Kuwait, Sheikh Saad al-Abdallah al-Sabah, on Friday rejected a Soviet call for an Arab summit to find a settlement for the Gulf crisis saying it would be a "waste of time."

"Any initiative or proposal that fails to guarantee the withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait is considered a waste of time and aims at multiplying efforts at beating around the bush," said Sheikh Saad.

He added, in remarks carried by the Kuwaiti news agency KUNA received in Manama, that it was "useless to convene a new Arab summit as long as the Iraqi regime is not willing to withdraw from Kuwaiti territory and allow the return of the legitimate authorities."

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev on Monday called for an inter-Arab conference to find a peaceful settlement to the Gulf crisis, triggered three months ago by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Iraq and Jordan have welcomed the call.

But Egypt and the United Arab Emirates, who are among Iraq's first Arab critics, have flatly rejected the Soviet proposal.

An Arab summit on August 10 failed to find consensus for a resolution to denounce Iraq's military operation and to dispatch an Arab force to shore up Saudi defenses against Iraqi troops in neighbouring Kuwait.

Only 12 of the League's 21 members backed the resolution while only three countries -- Egypt, Morocco and Syria -- have sent troops to the Gulf region.

LONDON (NOV. 2) - The Iranian embassy here re-opened Friday after being closed for 18 months when the two countries broke off diplomatic relations, the Iranian charge d'affaires said in a communique.

Charge d'affaires Seyed Shamseddin Kharghani, 38, said he hoped Iran and Britain could have good cooperation, particularly over the crisis caused by Iraq's continuing occupation of Kuwait. Neither Britain nor Iran has yet named an ambassador.

"Relations between Iran and Britain have a long history with its ups and downs " he said while raising the green, white and red flag of the Islamic Republic from the balcony of the embassy, in central London near Hyde Park.

The two countries broke off relations in March 1989 after Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeini sentenced British writer Salman Rushdie to death for alleged blasphemy in his book ''The Satanic Verses.''

Mr. Rushdie has been under police protection in Britain since then for fear of a terrorist attack.

British-Iranian relations were re-established last September. The British embassy in Teheran was re-opened Sunday.

Mr. Kharghani arrived in London Thursday with three other diplomatic staff. A fifth staff member is to arrive next week.

Two members of an association seeking the liberation of British cameraman John McCarthy, who was kidnapped in Beirut in April 1986, came to the embassy to welcome the Iranian diplomats. They also asked to meet Mr. Kharghani to discuss the fate of British hostages in Lebanon.

The two, Jane Parritt and Mary Lambe told reporters: ''Preferably we would like to see John back before his birthday, which is November 27."

PHNOM PENH (NOV. 2) - Tens of thousands of Cambodians flocked to the riverfront here Friday to watch a regatta highlighting Cambodia's Water Festival, which was allowed for the first time in 20 years.

Some 88 teams, including two all female crews, took to the Tonle Sap River to compete in the Bon Om Touk, or regatta, festival -- the most popular and important in war-torn Cambodia.

The festival is being celebrated on a major scale here for the first time since 1969, when monarch-turned-rebel Prince Norodom Sihanouk was in power, according to residents.

It marks the start of the rice harvest and the time when the river flows back towards the sea.

Top leaders, including Premier Hun Sen, National Assembly chairman Chea Sim and President Heng Samrin watched the races with their families from a specially built waterfront pavilion in front of the former royal palace.

Helicopters buzzed overhead and a heavy security presence was evident.

Earlier Friday, the three had kicked off massive celebrations in front of the railway station by planting sacred peepul saplings from India.

In the evening, illuminated floats sailed past the royal palace, fireworks filed the sky and a rock band entertained the crowds, taking advantage of the holiday and lifting of the curfew Friday for the festival.

The government lifted the night curfew, imposed to prevent sabotage and infiltration by the three-party resistance, for the first time since October 1989. The festival was to continue Saturday with more pirogue races, protocol chief Theam Chuny said.

Many of the long shallow draft boats, propelled by teams of between 20 and 40 people, are years old and have been restored at monasteries.

As dusk fell, people also prepared to pay homage to the full moon.

Indian charge d'affaires Rinzing Wangdi, who took part in the tree planting marked by a religious ceremony with saffron-robed monks, said two of the 12 peepul saplings given to Cambodia were planted here.

The rest would be planted in the provinces, he said, adding that a walkway leading to the saplings plot has been named the India-Cambodia Friendship Path.

BEIJING (NOV. 2) - China's first sexology institute has opened for business in the northern province of Heilongjiang, ending a centuries-old taboo inherited from the country's feudal past, the official press said Friday.

The institute, under the Ministry of Science and Technology, is to study sexology and veneral diseases, and will disseminate its findings as a means of strengthening socialist culture and ethics, the New China News Agency said.

The Education Ministry in August announced a pilot sex education program in some 6,000 secondary schools aimed at ensuring morality and basic knowledge.

Officials hope better information will stem what they view as an alarming increase in sex crimes.

These efforts also coincide with a new campaign against pornography, denounced as the product of Western capitalism.

LAGOs (NOV. 2) - Saudi authorities will soon install anti-narcotics X-ray machines at Aminu Kano international airport in northern Nigeria, official radio Nigeria reported here Friday, quoting a Saudi official.

The decision followed a discovery that most of the drug traffickers holding Nigerian passports being detained in Saudi Arabia use the airport as take-off point, the leader of a special delegation from the Saudi Arabia Drug Control Agency, Colonel Mohammed Al-Malik, told Nigerian counterpart Fidelis Oyakhilome.

Mr. Oyakhilome, a former deputy head of the Nigerian police, is the chairman of the National Drug Law Enforcement Agency, created last January to fight the menace of hard drugs in all its ramifications.

Some of the drug traffickers are often disguised as traders to secure commercial visas, while others travel under the pretext of performing the "Umra" (lesser hajj), he said.

A good number of these Nigerian passport holders arrested in Saudi Arabia were later discovered to be Chadians, another member of the Saudi delegation stated.

The government is making efforts to check irregularities in issuing Nigerian passports, Mr. Oyakhilome, a former detective, told the delegation.

Drug trafficking is subject to the death penalty in Saudi Arabia.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - Japan said Friday it had agreed to extend a 36.5 billion yen (280 million dollar) loan to China, the first official aid since the military crackdown on pro-democracy protests in Beijing 17 months ago.

"This official development aid is expected to contribute to the economic stability (of China) and promote economic modernization efforts of the country " foreign ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe said.

The soft loan is the first portion of an aid package frozen by Tokyo after the bloodshed at Beijing's Tiananmen Square in June 1989.

At an annual Western summit in July, Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said Japan would resume the process of extending 810 billion yen (6.2 billion dollars) in official loans to China for 42 projects from 1990 to 1995.

Mr. Watanabe said notes on the first installment of loans were exchanged in Beijing Friday between Japanese Ambassador Hiroshi Hashimoto and China's Vice Foreign Minister Qi Huaiyuan.

Japan joined the United States and other Western countries in freezing credit and limiting official contacts with China following the June 1989 crackdown.

But Mr. Watanabe said China had become increasingly cooperative with the West on such international issues as the Gulf crisis and Cambodia. China has also consistently pursued economic reform, he added.

The spokesman also noted that the European Economic Community decided on October 22 to resume talks on aid to China.

The first loan will help finance seven projects in Japan's fiscal year 1990 ending in March -- including 8.9 billion yen (68.5 million dollars) for urban water supply projects in Tianjin, Hefei and Anshan.

It will carry a low interest rate of 2.5 per cent per annum and be repayable over 30 years including a 10-year grace period.

Another 8.5 billion yen (65.4 million dollars) will cover construction of road bridges in Hubei Province.

A multipurpose dam project in Lianoning Province will receive 6.4 billion yen (49.2 million dollars) and a hydopower project in the upper Yuan River 3.1 billion yen (23.8 million dollars).

The loan will also help three fertilizer plant projects in the Shanxi and Yunnan provinces and Inner Mongolia.

WARSAW (NOV. 2) - The Polish police recently stopped part of Poland's national antiques' heritage worth hundreds of thousands of dollars from being smuggled to Italy, press reports said Friday.

The reports said that police found 250 antique items, including icons, furniture, musical instruments and 19th-century paintings, in an Italian truck on its way from a furniture manufacturer near Warsaw to Milan.

Most of the antiques were part of Poland's national heritage and were not supposed to be exported, said Trybuna, the Social-Democrat (ex-Communist) newspaper, suggesting that some items may have been stolen from museums or from individuals.

A police inquiry was opened.

BUENOS AIRES (NOV. 2) - Argentina and Britain will hold their first round of negotiations on fishing rights around the Falklands Islands November 12-14 in Madrid, Foreign Minister Domingo Cavallo said here Friday.

Mr. Cavallo said he was optimistic the two sides could find agreement on fishing within a 150-nautical-mile exclusionary zone declared by Britain around the Falklands, a south Atlantic archipelago also claimed by Argentina.

The minister denied local newspaper reports that Britain was considering extending its exclusionary zone to 200 nautical miles.

"We think the issue of fishing rights is going very well and there will be no unilateral decisions," he said.

The two countries resumed diplomatic relations last February, eight years after they fought a bitter war over the disputed archipelago which Argentina calls the Malvinas Islands.

While negotiations on the thorny issue of sovereignty -- which Argentina had challanged by occupying the island in March 1982 -- have been put on hold by mutual agreement, both sides have agreed to settle their dispute over fishing rights as quickly as possible.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 2) - South African mining giant Anglo American Corporation's coal mining subsidiary, Amcoal, reported an 18 percent decrease in profits to 198.2 million rands (78 million dollars) for the first half of this year, the company announced here Friday.

The decrease was mainly due to lower export tonnages coupled with the strengthened randdollar exchange rate and increased unit working costs, Amcoal said in a report for the six months ended 30 September.

Earnings attributed to Amcoal shareholders increased by 6.5 percent to 137.8 million rands (54.25 million dollars) for the six months ended 30 September, up from 129.4 million rands (50.9 million dollars) for the previous six months.

Earnings per share increased by six percent to 549.1 cents from 517.8 cents for the previous six months.

Amcoal will spend some 900 million rands (354.3 million dollars) over the next three years to boost production, primarily for export through the Richards Bay coal terminal in the north of Natal province, Amcoal Chairman Richard Boustred said in the report.

Mr. Boustred said Amcoal anticipated that the Richards Bay terminal will reach 53 million tons export capacity in 1995.

Coal and coke sales for the six months ended 30 September were marginally lower at 21.718 million tons compared to the 21.807 million sold during the same period last year.

Mr. Boustred predicted that earnings from coal exports will increase in the next six months due to higher tonnage but domestic earnings will be lower.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 2) - Two disabled members of the black nationalist African National Congress (ANC) were the first political exiles to arrive back in South Africa here Friday after the government announced guidelines for the indemnity (amnesty) of exiles on Thursday.

Dugmore Mthimkuke and Bongani Maseko arrived at Jan Smuts airport here accompanied by anti-apartheid activist Klaas de Jonge, who spent two years holed up in the Dutch embassy here from June 1985 to 1987 after he fled from police after he was arrested on suspicion of being an ANC agent.

The three men did not leave the airport's transit lounge and left later Friday for the capital of the Transkei nominally-independent tribal homeland.

On Thursday, Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee released a joint ANCgovernment working group report which details guidelines for release of political prisoners and indemnity for returning exiles.

The ANC said on Friday that it was satisfied with the report, but did not agree with the government's view that release of political prisoners and indemnity for exiles should take place in a "phased manner".

ANC spokesman Matthew Posa told a media conference here Friday that the organisation demanded immediate release of all political prisoners who qualified.

CAIRO (NOV. 2) - The Arab foreign ministers of Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Syria will meet again in the next few days to discuss the Gulf crisis, foreign ministry sources said here Friday.

They said Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid, his Saudi counterpart Saud al-Faisal and Syria's Faruk al-Sharaa will gather in Damascus but gave no details.

The three ministers met in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, last Wednesday.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev recently suggested an inter-Arab meeting to find a political solution to the Gulf crisis, triggered by the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak later rejected the idea of an Arab League meeting on the subject.

Syrian and Egyptian troops are part of a U.S.-led multinational force deployed in Saudi Arabia to deter a possible Iraqi attack.

JERUSALEM (NOV. 2) - Some Israeli politicians Friday expressed concern at United Nations head Javier Perez de Cuellar's report on the Temple Mount massacre in which he linked the deaths of 20 Arabs in Jerusalem to ''Palestinian suffering'' in general.

In the report Thursday, Peres called for a world conference to determine whether Israel's handling of Palestinians in the occupied territories complies with terms of the 4th Geneva Convention, which spells out the rights of civilians under occupation rule.

Israeli radio said government sources had reacted to the report with ''surprise and concern''. No official statement was issued. A news conference announced for Friday by deputy foreign minister was cancelled at the last moment. No reason was given.

Former Israeli foreign minister Abba Eban said on army radio that the constant attention being focussed by the U.N. on Israel ''damaged not only Israel but the whole coalition against Iraq.''

The secretary-general only mentioned the Temple Mount incident and devoted much of his report to the suffering of Palestinians under Israeli rule and the ''frustration'' of the residents of the occupied territories over inadequate protection by international organizations and support services.

The report had been requested by the Security Council in a unanimous motion four days after the October 8 shooting deaths of some 20 Palestinians in Jerusalem. The resolution condemned Israel.

Israel rejected moves to permit a U.N. mission into the country, forcing Perez to draw on other sources in drafting his report.

Perez de Cuellar stressed that ''at the heart of the tragic events'' in Jerusalem is a political problem. For that reason, he said it is necessary that ''an effective negotiating process'' be started as soon as possible.

He said the determination of the Palestinians to continue their uprising ''is evidence of their rejection of the occupation and their commitment to exercise their legitimate rights, including self-determination.''

HELSINKI (NOV. 2) (AFP) - Foreign ministers of the neutral and non-aligned countries of Europe on Friday emphasized the need to further strengthen the role of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE).

In a communique here after a two-day meeting, the ministers of Finland, Sweden Austria, Switzerland, Liechtenstein, Malta, Yugoslavia, Cyprus and San Marino called for the CSCE to be the forum for negotiations on military security in Europe.

At the moment, only the NATO and Warsaw Pact countries are taking part in the Vienna negotiations on conventional armed forces in Europe, while all the 34 CSCE countries are taking part at the negotiations on confidence and security-building measures.

The main purpose of the Helsinki meeting was to prepare for the CSCE summit meeting in Paris on November 19-21, and the ministers said the Paris summit should take decisions on new structures for a broadened CSCE role.

They suggested regular meetings of participating states at head of state or head of government level every two years, foreign ministers' meetings twice a year and meetings of other senior officials "as appropriate", the communique said.

They backed the setting up of a "centre for the prevention of conflicts" and a CSCE secretariat.

They also stressed "the importance of the creation of a parliamentary body of the CSCE to be based on the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe", the communique added.

The ministers said the Paris summit would "highlight the opening of a new era of relations between the CSCE participating states", marked by respect for human rights, development of democracy, the market economy and social justice, as well as closer cooperation in the field of security.

Ministers also later told a press conference that they had discussed a new role for "neutrality" and said they had agreed that in principle a country's neutrality was no hindrance to its joining the European Economic Community.

But most of them agreed that if political union within the community saw closer military cooperation, then membership was not possible.

Finland has said that it considers its neutrality incompatible with EEC membership. But three of the nine participants at the conference -- Austria, Cyprus and Malta -- have already applied to join the community.

CINCINNATI, OHIO (NOV. 2) - President George Bush Thursday assailed Iraq's continued use of foreign hostages as human shields as "inhuman" and warned such actions could not be tolerated much longer.

"The brutality against innocent civilians will not be tolerated and will not stand," Mr. Bush said at a fund-raising breakfast at a hotel here for Republican candidates in next Tuesday's elections.

Mr. Bush said he was also concerned over attempts at starving out U.S. diplomats resisting Iraqi orders to abandon the U.S. Embassy in occupied Kuwait City.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, he added, "is just as wrong as he can be. This must not be rewarded."

Using U.S. hostages as human shields to ward off any possible attack on strategic installations in Iraq violated all international laws, he said. "It is inhuman, it is wrong and it must not be rewarded."

According to the State Department, some 110 American men are being kept against their will at Iraqi military and industrial installations.

Stressing that he wanted a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis, Mr. Bush said "I hope there will never be a shot fired in anger" by the U.S. troops stationed in the Gulf. But he also reiterated that there could be no compromise on international demands that Iraqi forces fully withdraw from Kuwait.

"We will not stop short of our stated objectives," he said.

As scores of people demonstrated outside the hotel against the U.S. military buildup in the Gulf, Mr. Bush said that only the United States could lead an international coalition such as the one that has been formed against the Iraqi aggression.

More than 300,000 troops from the United States and other countries have gathered in Saudi Arabia and the Gulf region since Iraq invaded Kuwait three months ago.

LONDON (NOV. 2) - Rates for large tankers fixing for Western destinations out of the Gulf States area were little changed this week, although Japanese charterers conceded higher rates in the area, shipbroker E.A. Gibson said in its weekly report.

Activity in the market remains at a low level due to oil price uncertainty, the broker said, and not much business was done in smaller tonnage fixed out of the area.

Demand for tonnage out of West Africa was maintained throughout the week, and movements from the zone to the U.S. Gulf saw a rates improvement.

Enquiry in the Mediterranean loading zone was limited, and although Cross-Mediterranean trade enjoyed a modest rate improvement, rates for Europe-bound tankers made no progress.

Caribbean trade was reasonably active, but there was little fresh demand for North Sea movements.

Dar es Salam (NOV. 2) - Tanzania Friday protested against Baghdad's alleged efforts to hire its nationals as Iraqi army mercenaries and demanded that this be stopped immediately.

Ashour Abbas, principal secretary in the Tanzanian foreign ministry, summoned Iraqi Ambassador Fauz Ali al-Bandar to Dar es Salam to convey the protest. Abbas demanded that Iraq's mission stop its activities.

Al-Bandar denied that his mission tried to hire mercenaries and said Tanzanians called at the embassy solely to express their solidarity with Iraqi over the Gulf crisis.

Would-be mercenaries were reportedly asked to leave their names and addresses and pledge their will to wage a Jihad (Holy War) to defend Islam.

Several youths queued up outside the Iraqi mission here Friday to resgister. Many said they had heard that there was work in Iraq and one openly admitted, ''I know that I will join the Iraqi army.''

MOSCOW (NOV 2) - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has ordered Soviet businesses to sell most of their hard currency profits to state organs for rubles, Tass news agency reported Friday.

The hard currency funds set up by state bodies will be used in 1991 to buy essential goods abroad and pay off the Soviet Union's foreign debt, the presidential decree said.

Soviet-foreign joint ventures are not concerned by the measures.

The Soviet firms -- regardless of who owns them -- will have to sell 40 percent of their hard currency profits to the all-union hard currency committee.

They will be allowed to retain an as yet unspecified portion for their own development, but will have to sell the remainder to hard currency committees in the republics and local soviets.

Hard currency will be sold to state bodies at the new commercial rate of 0.6 dollars per ruble.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) - Former Japanese labor minister Hyosuke Niwa, who died Friday after being wounded in a knife attack last month, might have suffered complications from a transfusion of incompatible blood, police said.

Mr. Niwa, 78, was stabbed by what police described as a mentally deranged man while on a visit to a Self-Defense Force base in Nagoya on October 21.

He had been undergoing treatment at a hospital in Nagoya since the attack and had not regained consciousness, doctors were quoted as saying.

According to an autopsy, Mr. Niwa who had type O blood was given a transfusion of type B blood immediately after the attack, police said.

Police said Mr. Niwa might have died from shock resulting from excessive bleeding but that the wrong transfusion might have caused complications and hastened his death.

The veteran member of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party was made labor minister in December 1988 under then then prime minister Yasuhiro Nakasone.

MOSCOW (NOV. 2) - The first Soviet film to investigate the disappearance in Hungary 45 years ago of Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg concludes that a solution to the mystery lies in KGB hands.

Alexander Rodnianski, a young film-maker from Kiev and a member of the committee of international experts on the Wallenberg affair, believes that the file on the Swedish diplomat is kept in KGB archives.

His documentary, which questions the official Soviet version that Mr. Wallenberg died in detention of a heart attack in 1947, was filmed in various regions of the Soviet Union where witnesses claim to have seen the diplomat following his arrest by the KGB in Budapest on January 19, 1945.

Mr. Wallenberg was posted to Hungary during the Nazi occupation and saved thousands of Jews by supplying them with Swedish passports.

The film shows various people who claim to have seen Mr. Wallenberg at various times after 1947.

One former prisoner said he was with Mr. Wallenberg in the Vladimir prison, some 200 kilometres (125 miles) from Moscow. Others said he was deported to a camp in the Kolyma region of Siberia or to the Perm region in the Urals.

The film also features a man claiming to be Mr. Wallenberg's son and another who claimed to have buried him, giving them little credence, while at the same time raising doubts about the official version of his fate, according to which he died in the Lubianka prison of the KGB in Moscow in Juy 1947.

On June 7 a committee of international experts published a 1,200-page report in Denmark concluding that Mr. Wallenberg could still be alive and saying that if the Soviet Union could not prove he was dead then he must be alive.

RIO DE JANEIRO (NOV. 2) - Brazil will resume negotiations in New York next week with its commercial creditors on rescheduling 51 billion dollars of its foreign debt, officials said Friday.

Ambassador Jorio Dauster, who will lead Brazil's negotiating team, told local reporters the talks on restructuring the country's public sector debt would likely take several weeks or months.

Last month Brazil angered its commercial creditors by proposing to pay off its 51 billion dollars in public sector debt only from potential budget surpluses. In the 1980's, Brazil negotiated a deal under which its debt repayments were linked to the country's annual trade surpluses.

The last agreement between Brazil and its commercial bank creditors, in 1988, was reached after seven months of negotiations and remained in effect for nine months before Brasilia stopped paying interest on its loans.

In September Brazil asked the International Monetary Fund (IMF) for a stand-by loan of two billion dollars to help meet its loan obligations, but the request has been put on hold pending an agreement between Brazil and its commercial creditors.

Mr. Dauster said the IMF's refusal to grant the stand-by loan "reduces Brazil's capacity to repay creditor banks" which are demanding payment of some eight billion dollars in overdue interest dating back to the second quarter of 1989.

Following the meeting with representatives of its commercial creditors, Mr. Dauster will meet with European bank directors and government officials to outline Brazil's proposal for its debt renegotiation, officials said.

Mr. Dauster has not yet released a precise calendar for these meetings.

Brazil's total foreign debt totals more than 116.9 billion dollars, the Third World's largest.

RIYADH (NOV. 2) - Saudi Arabia Friday categorically rejected charges by Amnesty International that Saudi security forces have tortured and expelled hundreds of Yemeni nationals.

An official Saudi source, in a statement carried by the Saudi Press Agency (Spa), said Amnesty members were welcome to visit the Kingdom to confirm this.

The London-based human rights watchdog group said Thursday it had evidence indicating that Saudi security forces tortured and ill-treated hundreds of Yemeni nationals since August because of their suspected opposition to Riyadh's position on the Gulf crisis.

The Saudi source said, ''The measure taken by the kingdom equating Yemeni nationals to people of other nationalities, with regard to rights and obligations, has nothing to do at all with the Arabian Gulf crisis or with the Yemeni government's attitude towards the treacherous Iraqi aggression on the state of Kuwait.''

Saudi-Yemeni ties have soured over Yemen's support for Baghdad in the Gulf crisis, triggered by the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

In response to Yemen's stand, Saudi Arabia has suspended residence privileges for Yemenis working in the kingdom, setting off a mass migration of more than 350,000 Yemenis.

''The Yemenis who had left the kingdom following the new measures on residence did so at their own will, taking with them all their money savings and properties,'' the Saudi source said.

The source added that there are still hundreds of thousands of Yemenis working in Saudi Arabia after they had sorted out their residence problems.

PARIS (NOV. 2) - The Paris Bourse suffered a modest loss on Friday in depressed trading, with few deals and few investors in evidence, operators said.

The CAC-40 stock price index lost 0.65 percent on the day, and the very low volume of 600 million francs is explained by the absence of many investors for a long weekend, following the Nov 1 All-Saints holiday.

The day's only noteworthy activity related to Eurotunnel, the consortium building a tunnel under the English Channel. It lost 8.9 percent on the day after announcing a capital increase, on volume of 2.4 million shares.

Eurotunnel was quoted at 44.20 francs at the end of the day, against 48.50 at the Wednesday close. (Thursday was a holiday.)

Perrier (mineral water) was up 4.2 percent on the day at 1,141 francs after announcing a 115 percent jump in the group-share consolidated net result for the first half of the year.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) - Washington's record wave of murders claimed its 400th victim of the year early Friday morning, already 27 more homicides than documented during all of 1989, the police said.

The 373 murders last year had already set a new record for the District of Columbia, which has the highest murder rate per capital of any U.S. city.

Among the latest victims was an 82-year-old woman who was beaten to death by a burglar Wednesday night in her home in the normally quiet northwest section of the capital. She was the third elderly woman slain in the city since mid-October.

And Friday at dawn police found the body of a 21-year-old man who had been stabbed to death in an apartment in southeast Washington, an area plagued by violence and drug trafficking.

"You know there are some really young children," among the victims, lamented Reverend Richard Downing, who said a mass Thursday night as he does each year in memory of slain Washingtonians.

It has become a custom for the list of names of those killed to be read during the ceremony in their memory at St. James Episcopalian Church.

But Thursday night, only 389 names were able to be mentioned, as the pace of the murders has become such that Rev. Downing was not able to keep the list up to date.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) - U.S. Secretary of State James Baker will meet with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in Moscow next Thursday as part of his upcoming tour of the Middle East and Europe, the State Department said Friday.

Announcing a revision of Mr. Baker's travel schedule, State Department Margaret Tutwiler also said Mr. Baker would confer with Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen on the Gulf crisis and other issues in Cairo next Tuesday.

Mr. Baker was initially to have met only with Mr. Shevardnadze in Geneva for talks on the Gulf crisis and arms control. But Miss Tutwiler said both sides agreed to change the venue for mutual convenience.

She said Mr. Baker and Mr. Qian, who last met on the sidelines of the U.N. General Assembly in New York in September, would be in Cairo at the same time and decided to seize the opportunity to meet again.

Mr. Baker was to leave early Saturday at the start of a tour which will take him to Bahrain Sunday, Saudi Arabia Monday, Cairo and Ankara Tuesday, Moscow Wednesday and Thursday, London and Paris Friday with a return home tentatively scheduled for Saturday.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 2) - At least 24 temporary police stations will soon be opened in strife-torn Natal Province, Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok said Friday.

Speaking during a TV phone-in programme, he also called for a change of attitude among all parties in Natal for there to be permanent peace.

A four-year war between supporters of Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha Party and of the African National Congress of Nelson Mandela has claimed more than 4,000 lives in Natal in the past four years.

Mr. Vlok called for roundtable talks on the issue involving "all Natalians" including the ruling National Party and the pro-apartheid Conservative Party as well as the ANC and Inkatha.

Meanwhile police said that two men were gunned down by assailants and a third wounded by a stray bullet Thursday at Isipingo, 50 kilometres (30 miles) south of the port city of Durban.

GENEVA (NOV. 2) - The chief of the world trade agency warned Friday that current multilateral trade talks aimed at liberalizing commerce are in an "alarming" state, a month before final talks are due to start in Brussels.

Arthur Dunkel, director-general of the Geneva-based General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), told representatives of countries taking part in the four-year "Uruguay Round" of trade talks that "What we have in hand 31 days before ministers meet in Brussels is alarming".

He said that "The risk of losing everything has never been so present".

Mr. Dunkel appealed to the European Economic Community (EEC) to submit at once its proposals on reducing world agricultural subsidies, as otherwise "the offers already on the table will inevitably be withdrawn, thus generalizing a process which has unfortunately already begun, and which must be stopped and reversed".

EEC member countries have so far been unable to agree on the offer the Community should submit on cutting its agriculture support programs.

LONDON (NOV. 2) - Rubber prices stretched lower early on in the week, and were then boosted by short-cover buying in New York before dropping back again ahead of the weekend.

Conditions were quiet with many European markets closed for public holdays in the latter part of the week.

JERUSALEM (NOV. 2) - Israel on Friday delayed its response to a proposal by the U.N. secretary general that the 164 signatories of the Geneva Convention examine measures to protect Palestinians in the occupied territories.

Deputy Foreign Minister Binyamin Netanyahou at the last minute canceled a press conference that he had called to announce the Israeli position, saying the reply was not ready but would be forthcoming.

A source close to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said he was angry at the suggestion made Thursday by secretary-general Javier Perez de Cuellar and would undoubtedly "reject any initiative that cast doubt on Israel's sovereignty over Jerusalem."

"Israel is doing everything in its power to guarantee the security of the (Palestinian) populations under its control," said Yossi Ahimeir, the director of Mr. Shamir's office.

"The insecurity is due to the violence perpetrated by the Palestinians against the Israelis and against their own compatriots," he added.

Another source close to Mr. Shamir voiced hope that the United States would block efforts by Mr. Perez de Cuellar to enforce his proposal.

The U.N. chief on Thursday suggested that the 164 signatories of the Geneva Convention get together to study measures to ensure the safety of Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

He said there were sufficient reasons for the Security Council to invite the signatories "to discuss possible measures that might be taken by them under the convention."

The secretary general of Israel's Labour Party, Miha Harish, "categorically rejected" the offer on behalf of his group and said such a measure was aimed at "undermining Israel."

The only endorsement came from Palestinian figures, with one of them, Faisal Husseini, saying it would "finally allow the implementation of international human rights in the occupied territories."

KATHMANDU (NOV. 2) - More than 10,000 people held a peaceful demonstration here Friday to denounce what they said was a conservative conspiracy against a democratic constitution for Nepal.

The demonstration was organized by a Nepal journalist association and a university teacher's union.

Riot police guarded public buildings and followed the procession, but no violent incident occurred, witnesses said.

Meanwhile, the pro-leftist All Nepal People's Youth League held a demonstration Thursday night at Lalitpur, attended by more than 4,000 people carrying flaming torches.

The demonstrators shouted slogans denouncing the monarchy and what they described as palace conspirators. Amid applause, some later burned a copy of a draft constitution prepared by the palace, witnesses said.

Reports reaching Kathmandu Friday said a similar protest was held at Siraha district, 190 kilometres (118 miles) southeast of Kathmandu, under the sponsorship of the Nepal Communist Party.

Meanwhile, the United Left Front Kathmandu Committee called a general strike for Wednesday as well as a demonstration in the capital, apparently to pressure the king to promulgate a democratic constitution by the scheduled date of November 9, sources said.

PRETORIA, Nov 2 (AFP) - Red and white Polish flags and giant crates stamped "Warszawa Polen" at the showgrounds here on Friday were the most visible evidence yet of President Frederik de Klerk's claim that sanctions against South Africa are crumbling.

"The Polish government is against sanctions," declared Polish Foreign Ministry aide Marek Kulczycki at a press conference just before the opening of the first trade fair ever to be held in South Africa by an eastern bloc state.

And, against a backdrop of stands crammed with Polish products ranging from bottles of jam and vodka to surgical instruments and huge agricultural machinery, South African Trade Minister Kent Durr proclaimed the Polish Trade Fair part of the "growing globalization of South Africa's trade."

More than 140 Polish trade representatives, headed by member of Parliament Andrzej Arendarski, who is also president of the Polish Chamber of Commerce, are in the country to promote bilateral trade.

On Tuesday it was announced that the South African and Polish governments were to establish diplomatic ties in the form of "permanent offices of interests" in each other's countries.

"We are determined to develop this relationship and no-one is going to stop us " Professor Andrzej Zawislak, economic adviser to the Polish deputy prime minister, told the press conference.

OTTAWA (NOV. 2) - A government-appointed panel recommended Friday that Canada enact legislation within 10 years barring all oil tankers or fuel-carrying barges that are not equipped with double hulls from its territorial waters.

The independent panel was appointed in June 1989 to study ways to counter pollution following two major oil spills, including the March 1989 Exxon Valdes' accident in Alaska, fouled portions of Canada's west coast.

If the government were to accept the 107 recommendations made by the panel, it would have the world's strictest regulations for oil tankers and barges, the committee said.

The safety measures would be implemented over a period of 10 years at a total estimated cost of more than one billion U.S. dollars.

The money would come from levying taxes on all crude oil shipments in territorial waters accept those carried in vessels with double hulls, which are designed to keep oil from leaking if the ship runs aground or is struck by another vessel.

The federal government has stated it would "respond boldly and with concrete measures" to the environmental problems the committee has brought up.

LIMA (NOV 2) - Inflation dropped to below 10 percent in October here for the first time in a decade in a victory for President Alberto Fujimori's harsh anti-inflation program, economists said Friday.

The government said the official inflation rate in October was 9.6 percent, still high but well below the double- and triple-digit monthly rates that have prevailed in Peru since 1980.

Austerity measures introduced after Mr. Fujimori assumed office in July knocked down the monthly rate from 397 percent in August to 13.8 percent in September.

Economists calculate the inflation rate for the first 10 months of the year at 5,813 percent and the annual rate at 9,852 percent.

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) - Newly unified Yemen, an ally of Iraq, is planning to block Kuwaiti oil exports to five markets in the Indian Ocean region, ostensibly as a means of complying with U.N. sanctions against Iraq, informed sources said here Friday.

Kuwait had contracts with the five countries prior to the August 2 Iraqi invasion and had consigned some 200,000 tons of crude to refineries in the Yemen port of Aden as part of the deal. The countries involved are the Comoro Islands, Mauritius, the Seychelles, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

The Kuwaiti exile government in Taif, Saudi Arabia, has repeatedly appealed to the Yemeni government to fulfill obligations of the pre-invasion contracts.

Yemen's U.N. envoy has said the delivery of Kuwaiti oil and petroleum products could violate the August 6 U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a trade embargo against Iraq and occupied Kuwait. The resolution was adopted on a 13-0 vote with Yemen and Cuba opting to abstain.

The Security Council has set up a sanctions committee to deal with the issue at the behest of the exile Kuwaiti government. A majority of committee members meeting Thursday favoured approving the export of the Kuwaiti oil in question, according to sources.

A final decision on the issue is expected Monday. Committee sources expected, however, that Yemen would continue to quibble that the amount of oil shipped from Aden to Kuwait before the invasion is no longer determinable. Kuwaiti exile leaders are said to be prepared to provide documentation from the Kuwait

Petroleum Corporation (Kpc) in London confirming the figure of 200,000 tons.

BUCHAREST (NOV 2) - Thousands of people demonstrated in Romania Friday for the second day running against price increases and the lifting of price controls.

About 2,000 people staged a one-hour protest at the official residence of President Ion Iliescu, and about 3,000 demonstrators earlier occupied University Square in the city centre.

Meanwhile, about 1,000 workers from the biggest Bucharest factories responded to trade union calls to gather in the south of the capital.

Some of the protestors, bearing the Romanian national flag, shouted "Down with Iliescu" as they marched.

One of them said the president and the government were responsible for the price increases and the "disastrous economic situation".

The government, which lifted controls Thursday, said that price increases would affect only wholesale costs and would not immediately raise prices for such basic products as electricity, coal, food and children's clothing.

The unions demanded that "price liberalization be accompanied by wage liberalization."

The average salary in Romania stands at 3,000 lei (90 dollars) a month, and although the government has pledged to give workers a 750 lei (20 dollar) bonus every month to the end of the year to make up for higher prices, demonstrators said this was not enough.

A building industry labourer with a family of two children said his salary of 2,250 (67 dollars) lei a month would not even with the 750 lei bonus cover the price rises, which he described as "exorbitant."

The unions also called for a "parliamentary commission to work with the unions to make sure the population does not go short of basic needs."

University Square was occupied on Thursday for almost eight hours by some 3,000 people protesting against the price liberalization policy.

BAGHDAD (NOV. 2) - Western and Japanese nationals held as "human shields" by Iraq in key strategic installations Friday told correspondents visiting them for the first time in three months they were well-treated but would like to receive letters from home.

"They treat us with kindness but I haven't received a single letter from the outside despite having sent many letters to my nine sons in the United States," said 57-year-old American hostage Clem J. Hale.

He is one of 400 Westerners and Japanese, among some 4,000 held by Iraq, detained as "human shields" in military and strategic installations in Iraq and Kuwait to deter any attack in reprisal for Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Correspondents of foreign media based in Bagdhad were able to visit him and meet other U.S. nationals, Britons, Australians, Germans, and Japanese during a government-sponsored seven-hour tour of three sites located outside Baghdad.

The Information Ministry which organised the tour urged correspondents who were invited, including an Agence France-Presse reporter, not to reveal the exact location of the sites.

At one of the sites, the meeting took place near an empty swimming pool surrounded by prefabricated one-bedroom houses where the hostages, known in Iraq as "guests" were living.

The visit - the first since the Gulf crisis erupted - came in response to accusations this week by U.S. President George Bush who said he was "fed up" with Iraq's detention of foreigners who were kept in "inhuman" condition. All the hostages told reporters they were being "well treated" by the authorities but most complained about their isolation.

"Psychologically it is very difficult because I have never before been detained against my will," Hale said, adding that he was seized in Kuwait where he worked for the Education Ministry.

British engineer Less Robertson, who was also seized in Kuwait at the onset of the Gulf crisis, complained of "monotonous days." "I wake up, I walk, I read, I eat and that's all," he said, adding that he was also using the time to study Arabic and kept up with developments by listening to the radio.

Another Briton who refused to be identified said he had lost eight kilograms (17.6 pounds) since his detention and was in "urgent need of a nose operation". He did not elaborate.

Michael Jones, a 60-year-old pastor said he celebrated mass each day with 13 other co-detainees, including his wife, Jean, who had refused to be evacuated with the wives of the other hostages earlier on in the Gulf crisis.

Nicholas Fats Simon, a 54-year-old Australian, also complained of a lack of communication with the outside world and said he did not know if his family had received the letters he had sent them.

Saashio, a Japanese national who worked for Japan Airlines, voiced hope that his ordeal would soon be over saying he was looking forward to "a vacation in my country before returning to the Gulf, a region I like very much."

Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassem on Thursday dismissed remarks by Bush that the foreigners were being harmed in any way. Bernd Krueger of Germany also hoped for an early end to the Gulf crisis. "I hope that Willy Brandt's forthcoming mission will be crowned with the release of all the hostages, but it is highly unlikely," he said, referring to the former West German chancellor.

Krueger also said he had recently received through the German embassy in Baghdad a package from home containing foodstuff and cigarettes as well as a letter from his wife.

Brandt will be visiting Iraq next week on an unofficial visit to seek the release of Germans, Swiss, Belgians and Dutch nationals detained here and in Kuwait.

Iraqi Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassem on Thursday dismissed remarks by Bush that "Iraq's guests" were being harmed in any way. He told a news conference Thursday in Baghdad that the foreigners were provided with "all the means necessary for their comfort" in keeping with Arabic and Islamic traditions of hospitality.

Iraq has invited the relatives of the "human shields" to visit them for Christmas and the New Year, but Washington and London have officially rejected the offer. Jassem reiterated the offer on Friday and said that families wishing to come to Iraq "will be well-treated and free to leave."

BELFAST (NOV. 2) - The Irish Republican Army (IRA) claimed the killing of a part-time soldier in the Ulster Defence Regiment, an auxiliary force of the British army in Northern Ireland, in a car-bomb blast at Cookstown, County Tyrone, Friday, police said.

Mechanic Albert Cooper, 42, a sergeant in the UDR, was torn to pieces when the booby-trapped car exploded as he was getting ready to repair it, a Royal Ulster Constabulary spokesman said.

Witnesses said the car had been taken to the garage by a woman dressed in black. She reportedly asked the mechanic to install a new exhaust pipe.

The attack came a week after the IRA threatened vengeance for the killing of a member of the Sinn Fein, the IRA's political branch, by a loyalist (pro-British) para-military group near Cookstown.

The mechanic was the 64th person to die in political violence in Northern Ireland this year. Eight UDR members were among those killed.

TEGUCIGALPA (NOV 2) - The Honduran Government announced Friday that it was firing 10,000 public sector employees as of January in an effort to reduce the budget deficit.

The job cutbacks, representing 10 percent of all state workers, come as part of the Honduran government's effort to comply with the fiscal recommendations of international financial institutions, officials said.

"The government sector has grown in a disorganized manner, and it must be cut back," Civil Service director Roberto Lagos said.

The latest announced cutbacks follow President Rafael Callejas' decision earlier this year to eliminate 8,000 government jobs without providing severance pay or placement assistance.

Mr. Lagos promised that in the wake of this latest round of dismissals, efforts would be made to help those affected find private sector employment.

Honduras' general budget for 1991, approved by its Congress last Monday, has set aside five million dollars for such unemployment assistance.

These latest cutbacks to be implemented will increase Honduras' already skyrocketing unemployment, which economists estimate at more than 40 percent.

LAGOS (NOV. 2) - General Ibrahim Babangida Friday warned leaders and supporters of the two political parties in Nigeria not to allow "normal political conflicts" or "democratic rivalries" to degenerate into warfare.

The warning followed reports of violence between supporters of the conservative National Republican Convention (NRC) and the Social Democratic Party (SDP) in which a several people died.

"You should develop a live-and-let-live posture to politics", he said at his first official meeting with the chairmen of the NRC and SDP, Tom Ikimi and Baba Gana Kingibe.

Gen. Babangida said the consequences of the violence and factionalism within the parties would be grave for party system and democracy in Nigeria.

He urged the parties to discourage the emergence of "a new generation of political spoilers."

On the involvement of the military in the nation's politics, Gen. Babangida, who is the nation's sixth military head of state in 24 years, said that the involvement has "dangerously eroded the institutional core values of the defence and security systems of our nation".

"Military dominance in governance has itself now become anti-military in its consequence, he added.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) - Government reports Friday on a dwindling U.S. job market and falling economic indicators seem to confirm what many economists have been saying all along: the U.S. economy is slipping into a recession.

Unemployment for October continued as in September at 5.7 per cent, but that represented the highest rate since March 1988 and followed three months of steady increases from 5.2 per cent.

The October figure released by the Labor Department seemed to indicate unemployment had stabilized, when it really meant the economy had failed to create some 200,000 new jobs -- the average monthly increase over the past year.

The U.S. job market has been shrinking steadily for the past three months with 70,000 real jobs lost in October and 52,000 in September.

More bad news came when the Commerce Department reported a 0.8 per cent drop in its leading economic indicators for September, following a 1.2 per cent setback in August.

Only one of 11 indicators used as economic forecasting tools showed any improvement, nine fell and one -- average workweek -- remained unchanged: a highly unusual set of circumstances according to economists.

Three consecutive monthly setbacks in the index of leading economic indicators -- there have been two so far -- is widely considered a reliable sign of economic recession.

For some economists like Robert Dederick of Chicago's Northern Trust Company, Friday's government reports amounted to "strong evidence that the economy really has lost its footing now and slipped into recession."

David Blitzer, vice chairman of Standard and Poor's, agreed: "All these figures show a serious deterioration ... a very weak economy ... on the very edge of a recession."

Economists are most concerned over the shrinking job market, since it is expected to erode further consumer confidence -- already at a six year low because of the Gulf crisis and its escalating energy prices -- and consumer spending along with it.

Consumer spending is the only sign of strength the economy is left with: it accounted for the 1.8 per cent growth in the gross national product during the third quarter this year, after a sluggish 0.4 per cent growth from April to June.

Mr. Blitzer saw only gloom in store for the U.S. economy, with negative economic growth for the last quarter of this year, although he believed it was still possible to avoid a full-fledged recession if the Federal Reserve softened its credit policy and lowered interest rates.

Many economists equate a recession with two consecutive quarters of negative gross national product (GNP) growth.

The Fed lowered interest rates marginally this week, but many analysts said it was too little to spark any meaningful growth in the economy.

The latest survey conducted by the Blue Chip Economic Indicators financial magazine among 52 leading economists predicted a 0.6 per cent negative GNP growth for the remainder of the year, followed by a further 0.1 per cent decline in the first quarter of 1991.

Hopefully, the economists added, economic growth will pick up in the second quarter with an expected 1.2 per cent advance.

GENEVA (NOV 2) - Asian and Latin American developing countries on Friday blamed the European Economic Community (EEC) for what GATT Director General Arthur Dunkel described as the "alarming" state of world trade negotiations scheduled to wind up in barely a month.

With 31 days to go to the final ministerial session of the Uruguay Round of trade talks, scheduled to open on December 3 in Brussels, Mr Dunkel told an informal session of delegation heads of the 100-odd participating countries that the risk of a failure "has never been so present."

In such areas as agriculture, textiles and clothing, and trade in services, the gap between the objectives agreed when the Uruguay Round was launched four years ago at Punta del Este and "what we have in hand... is alarming," Mr Dunkel said.

The negotiations, held under the auspices of GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade), aim at sweeping trade liberalization and bringing services and other new areas such as intellectual property under the wing of GATT.

A collapse of the talks could threaten future trade expansion, vital to growth and development in both rich and poor countries, and to solving global debt problems.

Indonesia's chief negotiator, ambassador Hassan Kartadjoemena, strongly urged the EEC to come forward with a formal proposal on agriculture, warning that the the Uruguay Round could otherwise "grind to a halt" before the finish.

NEW YORK, United Nations (NOV 2) - The United States asked U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar Friday to try to stop the "inhuman" treatment inflicted by Iraq on foreigners and diplomats.

Mr. Perez de Cuellar received a mandate from the Security Council to use his good offices to protect the security and well-being of citizens of third countries and foreign diplomats in Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

The diplomats in Kuwait are living under "difficult and dramatic conditions" lacking food and water, said a senior U.S. official after meeting with Mr. Perez de Cuellar.

"Conditions there are very inhuman," said the U.S. official, who spoke on condition he not be identified. "They operate in very difficult situations in terms of food and basic services."

Following the departure of French diplomats, only a handful of U.S. and British diplomats continue to live in their respective embassies.

Prince Saddrudin Agha Khan, charged by Mr. Perez de Cuellar to look into the living conditions of foreigners in Kuwait and Iraq, has so far been refused a visa by Baghdad.

More than 3,000 foreigners are still being held in Iraq and Kuwait, among them 1,400 British and 1,100 U.S. nationals.

WASHINGTON (NOV 2) - The United States plans early talks with the new Pakistani Government on guarantees that Islamabad does not possess a nuclear bomb, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs John Kelly said Friday.

He told a congressional subcommittee that, in the meantime, the administration of President George Bush had "complied with the law and suspended all military assistance and new economic aid to Pakistan due to the absence of certification at the beginning of the new fiscal year (which began October 1)."

Without such presidential certification, required annually by law, Pakistan is not eligible for U.S. economic and military aid, which ran at an estimated total of 600 million dollars prior to fiscal 1990.

Commenting on October 24 elections which saw the defeat of former prime minister Benazir Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party, Mr. Kelly said the voting "seems to us to have given the Pakistani people a generally fair opportunity to choose their government.

"We will review all available information to implement the recently enacted requirement to certify the election as condition for certain U.S. aid," he added.

Mr. Kelly stressed that Washington and Islamabad shared "important interests in regional peace and stability and in an honorable political settlement in Afghanistan." Pakistan is a major conduit for covert U.S. aid to the Afghan rebels.

Mr. Kelly also cited Pakistan's support for the U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq and its participation -- 2,000 troops -- in the U.S.-led multinational forces protecting Saudi Arabia in the wake of the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

On Indian-Pakistani relations, Mr. Kelly said "the immediate risk of conflict has subsided, but tensions ... remain high." Indian charges that Pakistan was fanning separatist unrest in India's Jammu and Kashmir state brought tensions to an alarming level last spring.

WASHINGTON (NOV 2) - The World Bank has agreed to lend China 275 million dollars for agricultural projects.

The bank said Friday it had agreed to lend 75 million dollars while its subsidiary, the International Development Association, agreed to a 200 million dollar credit. The IDA specializes in lending to the poorest countries.

The bank said it was funding a program to provide investment funds for rural enterprises and agricultural projects.

Under the program, China will also receive technical assistance to strengthen rural financial institutions.

The loan is to be paid back in 20 years, with repayment to begin after a five-year grace period. The interest rate is variable, but is currently at 7.72 percent.

The IDA loan is interest-free for 35 years with a 10-year grace period. There is an annual charge of 0.75 percent of funds which have been disbursed and up to 0.5 percent on amounts not yet disbursed.

PARIS (NOV 3) - Three French soldiers on a reconnaissance mission near the Saudi-Iraqi border were captured by an Iraqi patrol and taken to Baghdad, where they were handed over to the French charge d'affaires, the defence ministry said Friday.

The incident took place on Monday somewhere northwest of the Saudi town of Hafar el Batin, which is 70 kilometres (40 miles) from the Iraqi border, the ministry said, adding that an inquiry had been opened.

The French soldiers, who were travelling in a jeep were taken without "any hostile act" on the part of the Iraqi patrol, the ministry statement said.

It was not clear if the soldiers were still inside Saudi territory or if they had strayed over the border into Iraq.

A French military source said it looked like the soldiers might have passed too close to the border despite strict orders to avoid doing so.

A "firm reminder" had been issued to French troops since.

French forces are spread over a wide area of desert to protect the strategic town of Hafar el Batin and make regular patrols within a few dozen kilometres (miles) of the Iraqi border.

The French military source said the nature of the terrain sometimes made it difficult for troops to use equipment determining their position and it was possible they crossed into Iraqi territory without being aware of it.

French forces had almost completed a redeployment a few dozen kilometres (miles) further away from the Iraqi border and have just received reinforcements of helicopters and armoured vehicles.

The French charge d'affaires in Baghdad was investigating how the soldiers could be returned to the French military authorities, the French Defence Ministry statement said.

A French military source here said the three soldiers, an officer and two non-commissioned officers, could soon be repatriated to France.

MEXICO CITY (NOV 2) - Salvadoran rebels and representatives of eight Salvadoran political parties Friday ended two days of meetings here on the role of the military and March elections, a rebel spokesman said.

In the second day of talks, representatives met privately "as friends, and sometimes even in the delegates' hotel rooms," a spokesman for the rebel Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front said.

"They discussed an agreement, as had been scheduled, but that doesn't mean there are agreements to report," he added.

In a plenary session late Thursday, the delegates discussed the armed forces and legislative and municipal elections set for March, according to Guillermo Ungo, head of the National Revolutionary Movement and a coordinator of the meeting.

Francisco Guerrero, a representative of the ruling Nationalist Republican Alliance and the president's private secretary, said the next round of talks between the government and rebels might be rescheduled for "around November 20." Currently, they are set for November 4 in Mexico City.

PASADENA, California (NOV 2) - The route of the Ulysses space probe was adjusted Friday to give it more time to study the sun, officials announced.

"This is just to tweak the trajectory for the maximum amount of time over the sun's poles," said Franklin O'Donnell, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

The latest correction and four days of thruster firings that began October 15 will allow the 250 million dollar Ulysses to spend an additional week orbiting the sun. It will reach the sun's south pole in 1994.

The probe, which is a joint venture by NASA and the European Space Agency, was launched from the space shuttled Discovery October 6.

NICOSIA (NOV 3) - An Italian parliamentary delegation arrived in Baghdad on Friday and met with the speaker of the Iraqi National Council or parliament, the official Iraqi News Agency reported.

The Italian delegation, headed by Giovanni Rosso Spina, is made up of representatives of several opposition parties and includes two members of the European Parliament.

Mr. Spina, upon arriving in the Iraqi capital, told INA in a report monitored here that Italians were against a military solution to the Gulf crisis.

The Iraqi parliamentary speaker, Saadi Mahdi Saleh, insisted on the need for a global solution to all the conflicts in the region as proposed by President Saddam Hussein in a speech on August 12, INA said.

The Italian government on Wednesday said it was opposed to sending a parliamentary delegation to Iraq.

The decision to dispatch a party was made Tuesday by the Foreign Affairs Commission of the Italian Chamber of Deputies, or lower house, following a proposal by ecologist parties and the extreme-left Proletarian Democracy.

A summit of the European Economic Community in Rome last weekend adopted a statement underlining the EEC's determination not to send government representatives to negotiate the release of hostages with Iraq.

OAXACA, Mexico (NOV 2) - Members of a self-described human rights group Friday released the acting German consul here after holding him hostage for five days in his office, and were then allowed to go free, officials said.

The captors had been pressing for the release of an imprisoned former university dean accused of links with leftist subversives and of involvement in the killing of two security guards at a newspaper in Mexico City.

Under a deal mediated by the government of southern Oaxaca state, the abductors freed Wolfgang Wilczek, who had yet to present his diplomatic credentials, after he agreed not to press charges against them.

The state government, in turn, pledged to try to speed up legal proceedings in the case of the jailed former dean, Felipe Martinez. Defense lawyers filed for a writ of habeas corpus September 20, but the Mexican courts have yet to act on the petition.

Mr. Wilczek, commenting on his ordeal, said "given the circumstances, they treated me well enough, although with mixed feelings -- there were several moments when the situation was very tense."

He said he had been denied food and medicine -- he had influenza -- for the past 24 hours.

PARIS (NOV 3) - Thousands of people, fleeing fighting in central Mozambique, have recently taken refuge in neighboring Malawi, the French humanitarian organization Medecins Sans Frontieres (Doctors without Borders) said Friday.

The organization said fierce combats had resumed in the Mozambican province of Zambezia, sending 13,000 north across the border to Malawi within the past 20 days.

Medecins Sans Frontieres last week decided to dispatch an extra medical team to Malawi and said it would be sending more reinforcements to cope with the "very large" refugee flow.

It said local observers expected another 10,000 to 15,000 refugees by the end of the month, bringing the total number to over 40,000. Transit camps in southern Malawi were overcrowded and the organization said it was treating 20 new cases of cholera per day.

LOS ANGELES, (NOV 2) - Actor Marlon Brando's daughter regained consciousness at a Tahitian hospital Friday after slipping into a coma following a drug overdose.

The actor flew to the island where Cheyenne Brando, 20, was hospitalized after taking antidepressants and tranquilizers, according to Robert Shapiro, a lawyer for the family.

Mr. Shapiro is defending Christian Brando, who is accused of killing Miss Brando's boyfriend, Dag Drollet, 26, at Marlon Brando's California estate on May 16.

Prosecutors want Miss Brando to testify at the trial.

Marlon Brando, 66, said his daughter had had a nervous breakdown and accused prosecutors of harassing her.

A doctor at Mamao Hospital in Tahiti confirmed that Miss Brando was hospitalized there but declined to elaborate. "She's hospitalized. That's all I can say," he said.

Christian Brando has said he accidentally killed Mr. Drollet during a scuffle over a gun.

"He's very depressed by this, exceedingly depressed. What else can happen?" Mr. Shapiro said of Christian Brando. "It just is a continuing chain of horrible events for both the Brandos and the Drollets."

Miss Brando, who was present at the shooting, fled to Tahiti, where she gave birth on June 27 to the child fathered by the late Mr. Drollet.

French authorities in Tahiti charged her as an accessory to Mr. Drollet's murder and ordered her to remain on the island but well-informed sources said the investigating magistrate was not opposed to her being heard by a U.S. court.

Also Friday, Deputy District Attorney William Clark confirmed a report that Miss Brando had once implicated her father in the killing. Mr. Shapiro said she recanted the accusation and that it was just one of five conflicting statements she gave.

Mr. Clark also said Miss Brando had implicated her brother in a deposition.

"He told me, 'It's done. I have killed him'," Miss Brando said, according to Mr. Clark. "He told me that it was necessary that I lie by saying, that I must say that he was fighting with Dag."

The family's lawyer said Miss Brando "clearly is suffering from serious mental and emotional problems."

Jury selection in the trial of Christian Brando is scheduled to begin Monday.

In the northern province of Chaco, 3,000 people were evacuated from their homes and some 120,000 hectares of farmland were deluged in just a few hours by rainfall of more than 400mm.

Temporary lodgings have been found outside the flood zone for the evacuees while the local authorities wait for the waters to go down to assess the damage.

The two drowning victims were a 16-year-old youth and a 53-year-old man who were found in a canal near the town of Roque Saenz Pena, 1,100 km north of Buenos Aires.

BUENOS AIRES (NOV 2) EFE - The Argentine government said Friday that plans for the second stage of its controversial privatization program would be completed by May next year.

Minister of Public Works and Services Roberto Dromi said the conditions for handing over road and rail construction and other state-controlled activities to private hands would be concluded by May.

The second stage of the privatization program envisages the transfer of water, electric power and gas services, and concessions for port maintenance to the private sector.

President Carlos Menem's government is currently in the process of selling the state telephone company ENTel and the national airline Aerolineas Argentinas, both set to be purchased by international consortiums.

The privatizations have stirred opposition within Menem's ruling Justicialist (Peronist) Party and split the Peronist trade union movement into two competing blocs.

MOSCOW (NOV 2) EFE - The Soviet Union wants to break down political barriers between the United States and Cuba without weakening Moscow's relationship with Havana, the Soviet daily Pravda Friday quoted Communist Party politburo member Oleg Shenin as saying.

Shenin, who just returned from a three-day official visit to Cuba, said the obstacles blocking normal relations between the United States and Cuba "are many, serious and basic", but added that "some possibilities already exist" of solving the neighbors' differences.

"The Soviet Union will try to make those obstacles disappear, but without harming Soviet-Cuban relations," he said.

In reference to recent criticism from progressive Soviet newspapers over Moscow's continued support for the hardline Communist island, Shenin said the criticisms were an "insult to the Cuban people."

He called on the Soviet government to give an official opinion on "these destructive publications which undermine our relations with Cuba."

He said Cuba was going through a difficult time and, "You should not heat up tension, but analyze calmly the many complicated problems, look for solutions and restructure outdated methods of cooperation in the interest of our country."

"The Cuban leaders trust that we will be able to maintain our friendship and collaboration," Shenin concluded.

Fierce antagonism between Washington and Havana dates back to the 1959 communist revolution, and thousands of Cubans opposed to leader Fidel Castro have flocked to the United States.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) XINHUA - A NEW SCANNING TUNNELING MICROSCOPE (STM) WILL ENABLE SCIENTISTS TO WATCH CHEMICAL PROCESSES AT THE ATOMIC LEVEL IN LIVING CELLS.

ORDINARY ELECTRON MICROSCOPES EMIT POWERFUL BEAMS THAT DAMAGE OR DESTROY BIOLOGICAL SPECIMENS. NEARLY A DECADE AFTER THE STM WAS INVENTED AT IBM'S ZURICH LABORATORY, THE TECHNOLOGY CONTINUES TO OPEN NEW FRONTIERS.

NOW, IBM'S NEW DEVICE FIRES A LESS HARMFUL BEAM. FIRST-GENERATION STM HAS A NEEDLE WITH A SUPERFINE POINT THAT CAN TRACE THE CONTOURS OF INDIVIDUAL ATOMS.

ACCORDING TO NOVEMBER 5 ISSUE OF THE BUSINESS WEEK, THE NEW INSTRUMENT, DEVELOPED BY A TEAM HEADED BY HANS-WERNER FINK OF IBM'S ZURICH LAB, USES A SIMILAR NEEDLE TO SHOOT ITS ELECTRON BEAM AT A SPECIMEN.

THE BEAM DOESN'T PENETRATE BIOLOGICAL SAMPLES, AS X-RAYS DO -- IT CASTS A SHADOW ON A FLUORESCENT-SCREEN DETECTOR. AROUND THE SHADOW'S EDGES IS AN INTERFERENCE PATTERN, SIMILAR TO THOSE THAT PRODUCE HOLOGRAMS. FINK'S GROUP IS WORKING ON COMPUTER SOFTWARE TO TRANSLATE THE PATTERNS INTO THREE-DIMENSIONAL IMAGES FOR DISPLAY ON A COMPUTER SCREEN.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) XINHUA - THE MOST POPULAR COLLEGE ENTRANCE TEST IN THE UNITED STATES -- THE SAT -- HAS BEEN REVISED SUBSTANTIALLY AFTER THREE YEARS OF DISCUSSIONS TO BETTER MEASURE STUDENTS' CRITICAL THINKING AND PROBLEM SOLVING SKILLS.

BOSTON-BASED COLLEGE BOARD, WHICH SPONSORS THE EXAMINATION, ANNOUNCED WEDNESDAY THAT THE NEW SAT (SCHOLASTIC APTITUDE TEST) WILL HAVE LONGER READING COMPREHENSION PASSAGES AND MORE QUESTIONS BASED ON THEM FOR THE VERBAL SECTION. MEANWHILE, IT WILL DROP 25 QUESTIONS ON ANTONYMS.

AS FOR THE MATH SECTION, THE REVISED TEST, SCHEDULED FOR SPRING OF 1994, WILL INCLUDE 10 TO 15 QUESTIONS THAT WILL REQUIRE STUDENTS TO PRODUCE ANSWERS, REDUCING THE NUMBER OF MULTIPLE-CHOICE PROBLEMS FROM 60 TO 40 TO 45. CALCULATORS WILL BE, FOR THE FIRST TIME, ALLOWED TO USE TO SOLVE THE PROBLEMS.

FOREIGN STUDENTS WHO WANT TO APPLY FOR A U.S. COLLEGE ARE USUALLY REQUIRED TO TAKE THE SAT. IN THIS COUNTRY, THERE ARE ABOUT 1.3 MILLION HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES TAKE IT EACH YEAR.

SIMILAR MATH AND READING CHANGES WILL BE MADE IN THE PRELIMINARY SCHOLASTIC APTITUDE TEST (PSAT), WHICH IS TAKEN EARLY IN AMERICAN HIGH SCHOOLS AND USED TO AWARD NATIONAL MERIT AND NATIONAL ACHIEVEMENT SCHOLARSHIPS. SOME COLLEGES ALSO USE LISTS OF TOP SCORERS OF THE PSAT FOR RECRUITING.

ADDITIONALLY, THE COLLEGE BOARD, AFTER VOTING AGAINST A PROPOSAL TO ADD AN ENGLISH ESSAY SECTION TO THE SAT, OPTED TO CREATE A NEW WRTING TEST AS PART OF THE ACHIEVEMENT TESTS THAT ARE GIVEN IN INDIVIDUAL SUBJECTS. THESE TESTS, AS A COMPANION TO THE SAT, ARE NOT REQUIRED BY THE MAJORITY OF AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES.

THE BOARD ALSO ADDS CHINESE AND JAPANESE TO THE LIST OF LANGUAGES IN WHICH OPTIONAL PARTS OF THE TESTS MAY BE TAKEN.

OFFICIALS OF THE COLLEGE BOARD DESCRIBED THE CHANGES AS "SUBSTANTIAL," BUT THEY INSISTED THEY WERE NOT MADE IN RESPONSE TO CHARGES OF BIAS OR OTHER CRITICISM.

RATHER, THEY SAID, THE CHANGES ARE INTENDED TO IMPROVE THE TESTS' RELIABILITY AND TO MORE ACCURATELY REFLECT THE INCREASING DIVERSITY OF STUDENTS AND WHAT IS BEING TAUGHT IN CLASSROOMS TODAY.

ACCORDING TO REPORTS, SEVERAL EDUCATORS, ESPECIALLY IN CALIFORNIA, HAD OPPOSED ADDING THE ESSAY PART TO THE SAT ON THE GROUNDS THAT IT WOULD HAVE PUT FOREIGN-BORN STUDENTS WITH LIMITED COMMAND OF ENGLISH AT A DISADVANTAGE. THE SPEAKER OF THE CALIFORNIA ASSEMBLY, WILLIE BROWN, HAD WARNED THE COLLEGE BOARD THAT THE STATE WOULD CONSIDER DROPPING THE SAT FROM USE AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA IF THE ESSAY PROVISION WERE IMPLEMENTED IN THE SAT.

CARACAS (NOV. 2) XINHUA - THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX FOR THE URBAN AREA OF CARACAS REGISTERED A 2.6 PERCENT INCREASE IN OCTOBER, WITH THE ACCUMULATED INFLATION RATE TO 28.2 PERCENT.

THIS FIGURE IS HIGHER THAN SEPTEMBER'S, WHEN THE INDEX ROSE BY 1.5 PERCENT.

VENEZUELA'S CENTRAL BANK SAID THE GREATEST INCREASE IN THE PRICE INDEX WAS OBSERVED IN THE DIVERSE EXPENDITURES CATEGORY, WHICH ADDED OCTOBER'S 3.1 PERCENT RISE TO ITS 30.8 PERCENT INFLATION RATE ACCUMULATED DURING THE FIRST 10 MONTHS OF THE YEAR.

THE SECOND HIGHEST INDEX RISE OCCURRED IN THE FOODS, BEVERAGES AND TOBACCO CATEGORY, WHICH REGISTERED A 2 PERCENT INCREASE IN OCTOBER AND A TOTAL ACCUMULATED INFLATION RATE OF 29.1 PERCENT SO FAR THIS YEAR.

HOUSING COSTS ROSE IN OCTOBER BY 3.3 PERCENT, NUDGING THE YEAR'S ACCUMULATED RATE TO 28.4 PERCENT.

IN FACT, ALL OF THE CATEGORIES THAT MAKE UP THE GENERAL PRICE INDEX SHOWED A GREATER PRICE INCREASE IN OCTOBER THAN IN SEPTEMBER. THIS THREATENS THE GOVERNMENT'S TARGET INFLATION RATE.

ECONOMISTS CALCULATE THAT THE RISE IN THE INFLATION RATE WILL PROBABLY LEAD TO A HIGHER INTEREST RATE.

THE COUNTRY EARLIER AVAILED OF 300 MILLION U.S DOLLARS IN 1987 TO FINANCE THE STRUCTURAL REFORMS IT LAUNCHED DURING THE EARLY PART OF THE AQUINO ADMINISTRATION.

THERE HAVE BEEN ANTICIPATIONS THAT THE FINANCING GAP FOR 1991 ALONE WOULD REACH 3.5 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS BASED ON WORLD CRUDE OIL PRICES OF 40 U.S. DOLLARS PER BARREL.

ESTANISLAO SAID THE LOAN FROM THE WORLD BANK IS PART OF THE EFFORTS OF THE COUNTRY'S ECONOMIC MANAGERS TO MEET THE INCREASING FINANCING GAP AND STRENGTHEN THE NATIONAL ECONOMY.

MANILA (NOV. 2) XINHUA - PRESIDENT CORAZON AQUINO TODAY APPROVED A FOUR-POINT ECONOMIC PROGRAM TO SPEED UP THE RECOVERY OF THE PHILIPPINES' FISCAL SECTOR.

ADDRESSING REPORTERS, PHILIPPINE FINANCE SECRETARY JESUS ESTANISLAO, WHO PROPOSED THE FOUR-POINT PROGRAM, STRESSED THAT THERE WILL BE NO RATIONING OF DOLLARS AS HE EXPRESSED CONFIDENCE OF DOLLAR TRADING IN THE MARKETS AS A RESULT OF THE RECENT DEPRECIATION OF THE PHILIPPINE CURRENCY PESO.

THE FINANCE SECRETARY SAID THAT THE FOUR-POINT PROGRAM INCLUDES TIGHTER CASH MANAGEMENT WITHIN THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, ENSURING THAT THE GOVERNMENT OWNED AND CONTROLLED CORPORATIONS (GOCCS) DO NOT LEAD WHAT THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT HAS SUPPORTED THEM WITH, RESTRUCTURING OF EXISTING DEBTS TO GOCCS AND ISSUANCE OF BONDS DIRECTLY TO THE PUBLIC AT HIGHER INTEREST RATES.

EXPLAINING THE DEPRECIATION OF PESO, ESTANISLAO SAID THAT THE GOVERNMENT "FELT THAT IF WE WANTED TO GET AWAY FROM RATIONING AND GET EVERYBODY TO PARTICIPATE IN THE ALLOCATION OF DOLLARS, WE WILL REALLY JUST HAVE TO GO ON THE BASIS OF RATES AT WHICH THE BANKS WERE SELLING AND BUYING FOREIGN EXCHANGE."

"WE DID NOT WANT A SITUATION WHERE A LOT OF FACTORIES WOULD CLOSE BECAUSE THEY DID NOT HAVE ACCESS TO DOLLARS, BECAUSE EVERYBODY WAS JUST MANAGING ON TO THEM " HE SAID.

WITH THE DEPRECIATION, MORE DOLLAR TRANSACTIONS ARE EXPECTED WITHIN, NOT OUTSIDE, THE BANKING SYSTEM, AND MORE DOLLARS MADE AVAILABLE TO IMPORTERS AND EXPORTERS AT BETTER PRICES, HE ADDED.

ESTANISLAO SAID THAT THE DEPRECIATION WILL RESULT IN A CUT OF 300 MILLION TO 350 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN IMPORTS AND A 500 MILLION U.S. DOLLAR INCREASE IN EXPORTS.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) KYODO - A BANK OF JAPAN (BOJ) SOURCE SAID THE WORSE-THAN-EXPECTED DROP IN U.S. NONFARM PAYROLLS IN OCTOBER IS CONSISTENT WITH A DOWNTREND IN THE U.S. ECONOMY.

THE U.S. LABOR DEPARTMENT SAID THE U.S. CIVILIAN UNEMPLOYMENT RATE WAS UNCHANGED IN OCTOBER FROM THE PREVIOUS MONTH'S LEVEL OF 5.7 PERCENT OF THE WORKFORCE, WHILE NONFARM PAYROLLS DECREASED BY 68,000.

''BUT IT'S HIGHLY UNLIKELY THAT THE U.S. FEDERAL RESERVE WILL LOOSEN ITS GRIP ON CREDIT IN THE NEAR TERM,'' SAID THE BOJ SOURCE, SPEAKING ON CONDITION OF ANONYMITY.

''THE FED'S RECENT 0.25 PERCENTAGE POINT CUT IN THE FEDERAL FUNDS RATE DIMS THE POSSIBILITY OF A FURTHER DROP IN INTEREST RATES IN THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE,''

HE SAID.

THE FACT THAT THE CENTRAL BANK WILL NOT HOLD ITS FEDERAL OPEN MARKET COMMITTEE (FOMC) MEETING UNTIL NOVEMBER 13 IS ANOTHER REASON ARGUING AGAINST AN EARLY RELAXATION OF CREDIT, HE SAID.

The NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE is freezing salaries and says it expects to reduce staffing by about 8% next year. ... HARCOURT BRACE JOVANOVICH says it has hired SMITH BARNEY to look at ways to cut its heavy debt.

FROM THE BULLS:

"The market had a little better tone to it," says ROBERT STOVALL of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS. "There's an old saying that the bears have Thanksgiving, but the bulls have Christmas." Assuming no hostilities in the Middle East and a Fed easing, Stovall looks for the market to move to between 2550 and 2700 by the end of December. ("Investor's Daily", 11/2)

"I think the market is on the verge of a very strong rally," says GENE SEAGLE at GRUNTAL & CO. (WSJ, 11/2)

FROM THE BEARS:

"The next rally peak will be the top of Wave 2 and precede a collapse," says ROBERT PRECHTER at the "Elliot Wave Theorist." "The market is approaching on the most important wave junctures it ever creates." Prechter's long-term outlook calls for another 2000 points of decline on the Dow. "The deflationary spiral is still in its early stages," warns Prechter. (CNBC "World Business", 11/2)

STOCK MARKET:

"We think the market to a large extent is discounting the bear market and at most we think we've probably got five or 10 percent more downside," says ALAN BOND at W.R. LAZARD & CO. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/1)

"The strength in the bond market spilled over to stocks, but people are still nervous," says KEN DUCEY at S.G. WARBURG. ("USA Today", 11/2)

"A few dozen stocks account for most of the volume on NASDAQ now," says PETER DaPUZZO at LEHMAN BROTHERS. "If there are 4,000 stocks on Nasdaq, I'd bet 400 stocks do 80 percent of the volume. Once you get past the first few hundred, there is very little interest." (NYT, 11/2)

"The good news [for the financial markets from recent bad economic figures] is that we can really see the valley," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "I think before today there were people who questioned whether the valley was there or not. ... The very fact that we can see the valley is very good for people to invest in bonds. Bonds are a safe investment at this point, even though we may have a few very bad days if oil shoots up [in price] for some reason. Stocks, I think, are beginning to start to be interesting to look at ... because we know something now: There is going to be a recession, there is a recession and general knowledge is better than uncertainty." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/1)

"The general tone of the market is pretty good," says ALEXANDER PURDIE at ROBINSON HUMPHREY. (WSJ, 11/2)

STOCK TIPS:

"DEAN FOODS is the ultimate beneficiary" of a number of changes in the dairy industry over the past two years, says BARBARA DIRVIN of WILLIAM BLAIR & CO. She points out that when other food stocks were following the market up from 1986 to 1989, Dean underperformed the market, but is now moving up even as others are falling. ("Investor's Daily", 11/2)

ETHYL CORP. has temporarily withdrawn its application to the ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY for a gasoline additive the company says would curb air pollution and improve engine performance. The stock fell $1.50 to $20.875 on the news. But Analyst LEONARD BOGNER of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE says it is a temporary setback and that Ethyl has a "greater than 50 percent chance of winning EPA approval." ("The Washington Post", 11/2)

"In a nutshell, HUMANA is a great company," says PETER SIDOTI of COUNTY NATWEST USA. "But they've got the federal government after them [for overly aggressive sales policies towards the elderly]. It's got to affect investor psychology." ("Investor's Daily", 11/2)

"Bear markets are usually coming to a close once they are recognized by the majority," says JEFF HALLIBERG at the "Marketarian Letter." Stay focused on proven industry groups, he advises. "They hold great potential once the next upleg begins." Among his current favorites are GILLETTE, which he says has support in the low 50s, and PFIZER, where he sees short-term support in the 68-70 area. (CNBC "World Business", 11/2)

JULIAN ROBERTSON has been making money for his exclusive TIGER MANAGEMENT fund by shorting CITICORP, McDONNEL DOUGLAS, MARRIOTT and FRUIT OF THE LOOM. (WSJ, 11/2)

"Obviously, this is a time to be defensive if you are going to be in the equity market," says SAM STOVALL, editor of "S&P Industry Reports." Foods, natural gas, and utilities are traditionally recession-resistant, but Stovall says the recent demise of drug stocks shows even defensive industry groups can still be hit. The quality of utility earnings impresses Stovall whose favorite is LONG ISLAND LIGHTING: "The company has been coming back into its own, the dividend has been reinstated and we see it getting firmer on the earnings side." #90306m0002 11/02/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys

FALLS CHURCH, VA (NOV. 2) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"The German move [to raise a key interest rate] illustrates the direction of international interest rates and highlights the lack of interest-rate support for the dollar," says MARC CHANDLER at IDEA in New York. (NYT, 11/2)

There is speculation the Fed will ease today, but DAVID JONES, economist for AUBREY G. LANSTON, says the market is ahead of itself. "I do not see an immediate easing. meeting on November 13." Jones says there is still a strong anti-inflation view within the Fed so he looks for a "typical Greenspan move" of reducing the Fed funds rate by only a quarter point to 7 1/2% in November, with a possible cut in the discount rate in early 1991. Although he expects the fourth-quarter GNP to show negative real growth, Jones says, "We do have some downside protection since most people were preparing for this [recession]." Jones says, "This is not the old- fashioned [credit] crunch where the Fed suddenly waves a wand, gives us very tight money and high interest rates like [what] we saw in the early '80s that turned the economy down sharply. This time around, it's a more dangerous grassroots, bank-induced crunch in which banks have become more selective on their own in cutting back availability of credit - particularly to the construction area." (CNN "Business Morning", 11/2 and CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/1)

"People seem to be getting on the recession story and are looking for a second ease in [credit] policy," says one government bond trader. Another short-term trader says: "The market is beginning to price itself toward the next easing in Fed policy, but I don't think it is going to happen before Thanksgiving. Betting on the Fed has not been a smart thing to do this year." (NYT, 11/2)

"The economy is gradually sliding down the slippery slope," says ROBERT DEDRICK of NORTHERN TRUST CO. "There will be a November move [by the Fed]. The only question is when." ("Investor's Daily", 11/2)

"Interest rates must come down rapidly," says JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA at GRUNTAL & CO. "This economy is weak and getting weaker and now we have the new element of psychology. Earlier this year, most of the pundits were saying 'We're going to have a soft landing, don't worry about it.' But now as the jobless claims go up, as large companies with a high public profile ... announce layoffs and consolidations and as the media continues to focus on the numbers the public will start to get nervous. The more nervous they get ... the more likely they'll pull in the reins and not spend and now you self-fulfill the prophecy that you will have a recession." He says the Fed can cut rates aggressively in the current environment without spurring inflation and "keep the economy in balance, or at least control the descent, because without that you can have an anarchy type situation." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/1)

"I think the Fed is going to get a terrible eye opener" with today's unemployment report, says SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS economist STAN SHIPLEY. He says that while the numbers of those losing jobs may have been relatively small, it was more difficult for those unfortunate few to find new jobs.

"We're falling into a standard recession," says Shipley. ("Investor's Daily", 11/2)

"The Fed has just eased in reaction to the budget deficit and the Fed's pattern in the past has been to wait from four to six weeks at least to see how that easing is going to impact the economy," says ALEXANDER POWERS of CHASE MANHATTAN. He says other factors will keep rates up as well. "There is a lot of supply that's coming, and that's going to put a little indigestion in the stomach of the bond market." (FNN "Marketwrap", 11/1)

"Bond investors are looking beyond some of the short- term problems of Middle East tensions and the upcoming Treasury refunding," says LAWRENCE LEUZZI of S.G. WARBURG & CO. Instead, they are "focusing more on the long-term very weak economic trends that we're 4 witnessing in the data." (CNN "Moneyline", 11/1)

THE ECONOMY:

"The recession showed it's hand today," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "We're almost certainly in a recession. ... We are in a recession and the numbers are popping and the next three weeks will really show that we are dropping really fast. We are falling off the edge and the recession has shown its hand, finally, so maybe even Washington can read it." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/1)

The high number of people applying for unemployment benefits and the expected weakness in today's employment report show "a severe, renewed deterioration in the economy," according to LACY HUNT of CAROLL, McENTEE & McGINLEY. "The economy is in a free fall." ("Investor's Daily", 11/2)

"Manufacturing is like the nose of the economy," says ROBERT BRUSCA of NIKKO SECURITIES. "If the nose is going into recession, the body and the tail will follow too." (FNN "Marketwrap", 11/1)

"If the purchasing managers index remains unchanged at the October level for the remainder of the year, then past experience indicates this would be consistent with real gross national product growth of about 1 percent for all of 1990," says ROBERT BRETZ, head of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PURCHASING MANAGEMENT's business survey committee and director of materials management at PITNEY BOWES. NEAL SOSS at FIRST BOSTON says the purchasing numbers "indicate that we are sliding, but not tumbling, into recession. I suspect things will remain the same for the rest of the year." (NYT, 11/2)

"We'll probably see negative growth in the fourth quarter," according to A. GARY SCHILLING & CO.'s TONY REILLY. "That's what the manufacturing index is telling me." He says manufacturing is the first to get hit when consumers curtail spending. (FNN "Marketwrap", 11/1)

"With the advent of NYMEX oil trading, the law of supply and demand is meaningless," says LEON HESS, chairman of AMERADA HESS CORP. "The paper trading is driving the worldwide price. ... We had no trouble before we had the Merc." Hess testified yesterday before a SENATE GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE. ("The Washington Post", 11/2)

"Despite the apparent easing of the supply-demand balance, the petroleum industry remains near capacity at almost every point in the production, refining and distribution system," according to the INTERNATIONAL ENERGY AGENCY. "Thus, the oil market is still at risk of further disruption." ("The Washington Post", 11/2)

"Given what we see now ... we have several more months to go before we can say we've hit the bottom" in construction spending, says DARYL DELANO, an economist at CAHNERS ECONOMICS in Newton, Mass. "Residential spending has been down so long, we're still searching for the bottom." KEVIN FLYNN, a Philadelphia-based developer, says "this is the worst [commercial real estate] market" he has ever seen. ("USA Today", 11/2)

"Real estate is going from its heyday to its hell day," says MICHAEL SUMICHRAST, former chief economist of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF HOME BUILDERS. "The flood of unsold homes - about a record 3 million - will continue to swell. I'd rent, not buy." He sees a 10% drop in average existing home prices in six to nine months. He tells "USA Today's" DAN DORFMAN he is even more bearish on land: "I wouldn't buy any land today unless it's discounted 40% to 45%. There's practically no credit available to build, so prices have to go down. Real estate is a bad situation that must get worse." ("USA Today", 11/2)

"The economy has to grow something between 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 percent just to absorb new people entering the labor force," says DAVID BLITZER of STANDARD & POOR'S. "What's happened is, in the last few months, we haven't grown that fast." ("Nightly Business Report", 11/1)

Ninety percent of the increase in business failures this year has been in the Mid-Atlantic and New England states, according to JOSEPH DUNCAN, corporate economist with DUN & BRADSTREET. "The interesting thing is, because of [export] demand, the old Rust Belt is one of the strong regions today." Duncan believes the U.S. economy will avoid the technical definition of a recession and sees growth of 1/2% in the fourth quarter. "But if you are serving domestic markets ... domestic sales are down, so there's certainly a recession feel to it," says Duncan. (CNN "Business Morning", 11/2)

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - National Fuel Gas Company (NYSE: NFG) today announced earnings of $51,998,000 or $1.83 per share for its fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, 1990. This compares with $52,420,000 or $1.93 per share in fiscal 1989. The share amounts reflect a greater number of average shares outstanding in the current period resulting mainly from the sale of 2 million shares of new common stock in March 1989.

The fourth quarter resulted in a loss of $7,851,000 or $.28 per share compared to a loss of $4,904,000 or $.17 per share in 1989. The company's operations normally produce a loss in the fourth quarter because of lower gas usage by its utility customers in the summer months.

The 5.2 percent decline in earnings per share in fiscal 1990 was due to a number of factors. The weather that was warmer than normal and warmer than in 1989 adversely impacted the sale of natural gas, especially in the company's Pennsylvania retail service area where it was nearly 10 percent warmer than normal. This lowered earnings in both the utility and pipeline subsidiaries. Higher than expected operating expenses and interest charges and the greater average number of shares outstanding also contributed to the earnings per share decline. The combination of these factors overshadowed the continued improvement in earnings from the company's exploration and production business segment and its other nonregulated activities.

Included in 1990's earnings was the restoration of the $.29 per share charge to earnings that had been recorded during the second quarter. On Oct. 26, the company announced that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) approved a favorable settlement that its pipeline subsidiary had reached with its wholesale customers and the FERC staff involving three rate cases. The per share earnings reported for the second quarter were restated to $1.26 from $.97.

Total system natural gas throughput was up 16.6 billion cubic feet (BCF) to 243.7 BCF in 1990. Throughput in the pipeline and storage segment was up 16.4 BCF because of increased transportation of Canadian gas and gas for non-affiliated companies of 14.5 BCF and a 1.9 BCF increase in its sale of gas to wholesale customers. For the utility operation, the transportation of gas for end-users was up 4.1 BCF while retail sales were down 3.9 BCF.

National Fuel's earnings report represents the total performance of National Fuel Gas Company and its subsidiaries including National Fuel Gas Supply Corporation (oil and gas production, pipeline, and natural gas storage), National Fuel Gas Distribution Corporation (utility), Penn-York Energy Corporation (natural gas storage), Seneca Resources Corporation (exploration and production), Empire Exploration, Inc. (exploration and production), and Utility Constructors, Inc. (pipeline construction and well-drilling and service).

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - At 9 a.m. EST today, Dean S. Marriott, senior deputy comptroller for bank supervision, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), declared Lone Star National Bank, Dallas, insolvent. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) was appointed as receiver.

The bank became a matter of concern to the OCC in 1987. Liberal loan underwriting standards, poor selection of credit risk, and poor documentation of lending collateral led to significant loan losses. Weak administration of the bank by management and the board led to further deterioration in the bank's condition.

The OCC obtained commitments from the board of directors to undertake measures to correct the bank's problems. However, these efforts were unsuccessful and losses finally exhausted the bank's capital funds, resulting in its insolvency.

Lone Star National Bank received a national bank charter on Aug. 3, 1984. On Sept. 30, 1990, it had total assets of approximately $40 million. The FDIC is expected to release additional information later today.

OLDSMAR, FLA. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Homestyle Buffet, Inc., (NASDAQ: HBUF) today reported that sales and earnings nearly doubled in the third quarter and were also up sharply for the three quarters compared to the corresponding periods a year ago.

For the third quarter (16 weeks) ended Oct. 10, 1990, record net sales of $13,526,000 were up 96 percent over sales of $6,884,000 in the third quarter of 1989. Net earnings were up 99 percent to $636,000 from third quarter net of $319,000 last year. Earnings per share were 11 cents on 1,171,000 more shares outstanding than in the third quarter of 1989 when the company earned seven cents per share.

For the three quarters, net sales increased 82 percent to $30,823,000 vs. $16,919,000 a year ago. Net earnings were up 95 percent to $1,815,000 over the $931,000 earned in the first three quarters of 1989. Earnings per share increased to 33 cents compared to 22 cents on the fewer shares a year ago.

Barry M. Rowles, chairman, pointed out that Homestyle has maintained a strong balance sheet, closing the third quarter with no long-term debt and more than $7 million in cash and short-term investments.

Rowles said four restaurants were opened during the third quarter, one each in Philadelphia, Reading and Harrisburg, Pa., and one in Virginia Beach, Va. The total number of restaurants open at the end of the quarter was 28 compared with 15 open a year ago.

The three newest restaurants incorporated the company's new "scatter" service system design with nine food islands replacing the usual five buffet lines. Rowles said initial data indicates that the new system is more attractive to customers and has the capability of handling significantly higher customer counts per hour, possibly with lower food costs. He noted that the openings of scatter-system restaurants were delayed an average of seven weeks to enable the necessary design changes.

The company expects to open two more restaurants in November near Monmouth, N.J, and in Richmond, Va., completing its 1990 development plan and closing the year with 30 restaurants.

KENT, WA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Flow International Corporation (NASDAQ: FLOW) announced today second quarter sales of $10.7 million for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, compared to $12.7 million for the same period last year.

This decline in revenues was partly due to deferral of orders which the company believes was caused by the crisis in the Middle East, recession fears, and currency devaluations in Eastern Europe.

Dr. Y. H. Michael Pao, chairman, president and CEO of Flow International stated, "During the past year, the company has reduced staffing levels by 15 percent and significantly reduced other expenses. Although we anticipate lower earnings, we expect all divisions, including HydroMilling Services and Flow Asia, to be profitable for the quarter." NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Medicis Pharmaceutical Corp. (NASDAQ: MDRXA, MDRXU), a development stage dermatological products company, "successfully launched its first products in the last two weeks of the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, and sales sharply exceeded our business plan, providing us with an excellent platform for the introduction this month of our Theraplex(TM) family of moisturizers and shampoos," Jonah Shacknai, chairman and CEO, reported today. "The rapid acceptance by physicians of our first prescription product line is encouraging, and comments from this normally critical audience indicate that our new product introductions will also be extremely well received," Shacknai said. "We expect sales to accelerate as we move forward in fiscal 1991," he added.

For the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, Medicis had net revenues of $1,012,000, derived from sales of the company's prescription product line launched during the last two weeks of the quarter. Since Medicis is a new company, there are no comparable figures from the year before. The net loss for the period was $903,000, or $.03 per share on a weighted average of 29,986,000 shares outstanding for the period.

Medicis' principal focus is the $2 billion dermatology market where it has developed high quality, innovative products. The company's prescription products include a unique acne care line which consists of Theramycin(TM)Z, a topical antibiotic that combines erythromycin and zinc, and BenzaShave(TM), a prescription shaving product used in the treatment of pseudofolliculitus barbae (razor bumps); Paplex(TM), a family of products to treat common and plantar warts; and Onyplex(TM), a nail hardener and bite deterrent. This month Medicis will launch its Theraplex family of therapeutic moisturizers and shampoos.

Recently, Medicis announced that it has been granted an exclusive worldwide license to market, when approved, a generic prescription form of Tretinoin. Tretinoin, which is currently being marketed by Johnson & Johnson's Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. under the name Retin-A(R), is a topical vitamin A derivative used in the treatment of acne.

In addition, Medicis is in stage III clinical trials with its photo chemoprotective agent, Bergasol(R). Bergasol(R), which to date has sold more than 42 million units in Europe, stimulates the production of melanin thereby promoting deep tanning while reducing sun burning and DNA damage which contribute to the formation of skin cancer.

BOULDER, COLO. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Synergen Inc. (NASDAQ: SYGN) announced today that it expects to begin human clinical trials soon to evaluate its interleukin-1 receptor antagonist, (IL-1ra), as a treatment for septic shock. Synergen recently filed its IND, or Investigational New Drug application, with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

The IND is the Company's second filing with the FDA to investigate therapeutic uses of IL-1ra. Clinical trials to evaluate IL-1ra in patients with rheumatoid arthritis began in September of this year.

Dr. Robert C. Thompson, Synergen's Executive Vice President for Research, has reported at several recent scientific meetings that administration of IL-1ra has significantly reduced the mortality associated with septic shock in several animal models.

Subject to FDA review, initial clinical studies in adult volunteers will focus on the intravenous safety profile of IL-1ra and will be conducted at the New England Medical Center Hospitals. Subsequent studies will evaluate the use of IL-1ra as a treatment for the high mortality associated with septic shock.

More than half a million individuals develop sepsis annually in the United States and 200,000 of these patients proceed to septic shock. Mortality rates for patients in septic shock are typically 40 percent to 50 percent.

Elevated levels of IL-1 are believed to occur in all patients suffering from septic shock, including septic shock caused by gram negative bacteria, gram positive bacteria and other organisms. IL-1ra functions as a receptor antagonist for IL-1 and prevents IL-1 from interacting with cells and initiating the cardiovascular and multiple organ failure responsible for septic shock mortality. IL-1ra could therefore have a broader spectrum of activity than monoclonal antibodies currently under development that only target gram negative septic shock.

"The filing of this IND for IL-1ra is another indication of Synergen's progress toward commercialization of our products. We believe IL-1ra is an important molecule and our program to clinically evaluate several products incorporating IL-1ra is well underway," said Jon Saxe, Synergen's President and Chief Executive Officer.

Synergen also expects to file a subsequent IND in 1991 to investigate the use of IL-1ra as a treatment for inflammatory bowel disease.

Synergen is a biotechnology company developing products to treat inflammatory diseases, vascular disorders and neurological conditions using recombinant DNA technology and the latest advances in molecular and cellular biology.

SAN FRANCISCO (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - On Nov. 3, all 40 Breuner's Furniture Rental stores throughout California and Nevada will change their name to Brook Furniture Rental, President Robert W. Crawford announced.

In May, Chicago-based Brook acquired the furniture rental arm of John Breuner Co., Walnut Creek, from B.A.T Industries for $15 million. The combined entity is one of the largest companies of its type in the U.S. with estimated 1990 sales of $50 million.

"We intend to grow the Midwest and West Coast markets, where we see a great deal of opportunity," Crawford said.

Crawford is optimistic about the future of the furniture rental industry. "It's approaching $1 billion, yet we've hardly scratched the surface of the need for temporary furniture," Brook said. "Right now, office furniture accounts for about one third of the business, but it's growing fast. Residential is also growing and there are a lot of niches," he added.

In 1979, Crawford acquired his firm, then called Broyhill, with sales of less than $1 million. He changed its name, moved its product upscale and diversified from exclusively residential furniture to include furniture for office and convention services, and sale of returned furniture.

A former executive with Procter and Gamble, Crawford has 25 years' experience in managing businesses, including divisions similar in size to his expanded company. He also holds an MBA from the Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania.

MONTEZUMA, UT (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - On this area's vast 25,000-square-mile Navajo reservation, two problems can plague the Navajo's aging - limited access to nutritional meals, and transportation to and from their rural and remote homes.

But after today, that situation stands to improve considerably. The reservation's Aneth Senior Center was the first recipient of a new, donated Chrysler minivan presented under a public-private partnership program called Give A Friend A Lift, sponsored by Thrifty Car Rental.

The program has been hailed by the U.S. commissioner on aging as a "landmark partnership" and "an important example of the role corporate America must play in finding new ways to meet the growing need for services."

"Transportation for the aging is a serious problem here," said center supervisor Thelma Lansing, as she accepted the keys to the new van. "We love our elderly, and this new van will allow us to improve their lives considerably. That means an awful lot to us and to them."

The center provides meals and support services for elderly residents in six communities within a 275-square-mile area of the reservation. The center has had only one van available both to transport senior citizens in for meals and to deliver an average of 60 meals a day to those unable to travel.

With the addition of the Give A Friend A Lift minivan, Aneth hopes to increase delivery of meals from twice a week to possibly four times a week. According to the 1980 Census, 49.7 percent of the Indians residing on the reservation are below the poverty level with a per capita income of $2,414.

Under the Give A Friend A Lift Program, Thrifty will donate a new Chrysler minivan to an aging organization for every 50,000 Thrifty rentals by members of American Association of Retired Persons. During the program's first year - July 1, 1990, through June 30, 1991 - Thrifty has reduced the rental requirement to 25,000. Thrifty is a participant in the AARP's Purchase Privilege Program, and offers discounts to its members.

"We developed Give A Friend A Lift because of our company's concern regarding the basic needs of many older Americans," said Douglas E. Harrison, vice president of market development for Thrifty. "We have a solid base of customers over age 50 who are able to enjoy leisure travel. This program allows Thrifty to acknowledge their support by in turn assisting others."

In order for AARP rentals to apply toward Give A Friend A Lift, members need only to use their AARP Thrifty discount identification number when renting a vehicle. Excluded from the program are AARP rentals at special government, corporate and tour rates; rentals for insurance replacement; and for term monthly rates.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - TriMas Corporation (NASDAQ: TMAS) today reported record third-quarter sales and earnings for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990. Net sales for the third quarter of 1990 were $90.9 million, as compared to $52.7 million for the third quarter of 1989. Earnings available for common stock, after providing for preferred stock dividends, increased 24 percent to $2.9 million, or $.30 per common share, as compared to the prior year third-quarter results of $2.4 million, or $.24 per common share.

Net sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $254.2 million, as compared to $171.1 million for the comparable period of 1989. Earnings available for common stock, after providing for preferred stock dividends, increased 15 percent to $10.8 million, or $1.10 per common share, over the prior year nine-months results of $9.4 million, or $.96 per common share.

Earnings per common share for 1989 have been adjusted to reflect the company's common stock split, effected in the form of a 100-percent stock distribution (one additional share for every share held) issued to shareholders in February 1990.

Results for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990 include the results of operations of the three businesses acquired from Masco Corporation in January 1990, as well as the previously announced acquisition of the assets and business of Draw-Tite, Inc., a leading manufacturer of vehicle towing systems for the recreational and light truck markets. The results of operations of Draw-Tite are included since June 1, 1990, the effective date of acquisition.

Due to seasonal factors, operating results in the second half have historically been lower than in the first half. While a number of the company's businesses continue to experience softened demand due to general economic conditions, management believes that the company will achieve record sales and earnings in 1990.

TriMas Corporation manufactures commercial and industrial products including fasteners, products for the containment and dispensing of fluids and gases, precision cutting tools, specialty insulation and tape products, and products for the recreational and marine markets.

FRASER, MI (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Tubby's Sub Shops, Inc. announced the completion of an earlier agreement to sell back two Stuff Yer Face units to their previous president, William J. Washawanny. Terms and conditions of the sale were revealed in the prospectus mailed to shareholders of record on Jan. 24, 1990.

The sale price for the two units, including real estate and businesses, was $1,481,500. NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Ann F. Lewis, chair of the American Jewish Congress Commission for Women's Equality and noted political analyst, announced today a shareholders' campaign urging the AT&T Foundation to reconsider its recent decision to end support for Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

In a resolution submitted to AT&T, Lewis stated that "continued operation of teenage pregnancy prevention programs is in the best interests of this nation." The resolution is accompanied by an explanation to shareholders pointing out that AT&T discontinued funding even though the money in question was earmarked for teenage pregnancy prevention.

American Jewish Congress' Commission for Women's Equality will organize support for the resolution from individual and institutional shareholders. The use of shareholder resolutions to effect corporate policy was undertaken by American Jewish Congress in 1975 to combat participation by American corporations in the Arab boycott of Israel.

The AT&T Foundation had supported Planned Parenthood Federation efforts to prevent teenage pregnancy for 25 years. It ended support after anti-abortion advocates mounted a publicity campaign; a company spokesman said Planned Parenthood had "become a player in the divisive abortion issue."

In response, Lewis' resolution says "Passage will make clear the intent of (AT&T) shareholders to support two important principles: prevention of teenage pregnancy is a socially useful goal; and genuine neutrality on the issue of abortion...means not penalizing otherwise worthwhile organizations that have taken policy positions."

Will Maslow, AJCongress general counsel, and an expert in shareholders resolutions that address social and political issues is served as counsel for this effort.

The Commission for Women's Equality includes prominent feminists, elected officials, academic and community leaders, working to achieve equality for women in Jewish life and around the world.

RICHMOND, VA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Investors Financial Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: INVF) ("Investors") the parent company of Investors Savings Bank, today reported that management has increased its general reserves for possible losses on loans and real estate acquired through foreclosure by approximately $8.2 million, or 70 percent, which contributed to a net loss for the third quarter of 1990 of $9.4 million or $1.09 per share. Investors reported net income of $1.0 million or $0.12 per share for the third quarter of 1989.

The net loss for the first nine months of 1990 amounted to $14.1 million or $1.64 per share, as compared to net income of $4.9 million or $0.57 per share for the first nine months of 1989. The nine month 1990 results reflect a $6.7 million increase in general reserves for losses on loans and foreclosed real estate and $3.6 million in amortization of intangible assets.

The third quarter loss resulted from management's decision to increase loan loss reserves given the further weakening of the southeast commercial real estate market. Such reserves do not reflect actual losses incurred, but serve to create a cushion to absorb any losses which may occur in the future. Accordingly, such reserves are included in the determination of total capital for regulatory purposes. During the quarter, total charges related to non-performing assets impacted Investors' earnings by $12.1 million, consisting primarily of increased provisions for possible loan losses of $7.0 million, $2.9 million in interest income not recognized and $2.0 million in provisions for possible losses in real estate acquired through foreclosure.

At September 30, 1990, Investors' total loan loss reserves were $21.2 million or 1.4 percent of total loans, as compared to $8.9 million or 0.5 percent of total loans at the same date last year. Excluding residential mortgages and the associated loan loss reserve, loan loss reserves were $19.3 million or 2.6 percent of adjusted loans as compared to $7.4 million or 0.8 percent of adjusted loans at the same date last year. Unallocated loan loss reserves of $18.7 million are included in the determination of Investors Savings Bank's risk-based capital for regulatory purposes at September 30, 1990, an increase of $6.9 million in the third quarter. In addition, Investors currently has a $2.0 million general reserve against its real estate owned acquired through foreclosure. Further, real estate owned properties are written down to their fair value when the foreclosure is deemed to occur.

At September 30, 1990, total non-performing assets were $156.0 million, net of specific reserves of $3.4 million. This total includes $89.1 million of non-performing loans, $65.3 million of non-performing real estate acquired through foreclosure and $1.6 million of real estate investments. Commercial real estate loans and foreclosed properties account for $106.4 million or 68 percent of non-performing assets. A summary of Investors' non-performing assets by property type and location is included as part of this release.

In January 1990, Investors filed a capital plan with the Office of Thrift Supervision ("OTS") as required under the new FIRREA capital regulations. This plan has been amended to reflect the additional loan loss reserves established in the third quarter of 1990. As of this date, there has been no decision rendered on the plan and it remains under consideration by the OTS staff.

NEW ORLEANS (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Entergy Corp. (NYSE: ETR) today reported third quarter 1990 consolidated net income of $209.6 million compared with a loss incurred in the third quarter of last year due primarily to the write-off of the Grand Gulf 2 nuclear unit.

Earnings per share, including the effects of a 4.7 percent reduction in average number of shares outstanding for the third quarter 1990 compared to the same period last year, were $1.07.

BOARD INCREASES DIVIDEND The board of directors voted on Oct. 31 to increase the regular quarterly dividend on common stock by 20 percent, from 25 cents to 30 cents per common share. The dividend will be payable Dec. 3 to stockholders of record as of Nov. 16.

The board also authorized the expenditure of up to $150 million to repurchase company common stock through Jan. 31, 1991, depending on market conditions. Any such repurchases depend upon approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) of the company's application in September to repurchase up to 10 percent of its common stock. The request is in addition to existing SEC authorization for stock repurchases of up to 20,458,109 shares.

Of that amount, over 18.8 million shares had been repurchased as of Oct. 31 at a total cost of nearly $371.6 million. These repurchases have reduced the number of shares outstanding to approximately 185.8 million.

Jackson explained that stock repurchases are made from time to time depending upon market conditions and authorization of Entergy's board of directors, and that there is no assurance of the actual amount of purchases that will be made.

FINANCIAL RESULTS EXPLAINED Higher energy sales were the result of extended periods of hot weather throughout the three-state area that Entergy serves. Peak load records were set by three of the four retail operating companies and the consolidated system as well. The new system peak of 12,189 megawatts occurred at 5 p.m. on Aug. 29.

Retail sales for third quarter 1990 rose 6.9 percent over last year with residential sales up 10.4 percent, commercial up 5.0 percent, and industrial up 5.3 percent. Wholesale sales, which are smaller in volume than retail sales, increased 41.1 percent because of larger purchases by other utilities. This boosted total energy sales by 9.6 percent for the quarter.

REGULATORY AND LEGAL MATTERS In other third quarter events, the remaining necessary regulatory authorizations were granted to Entergy Power Inc., a new subsidiary that has purchased AP&L's interests in the Independence 2 and Ritchie 2 generating units and is currently marketing the capacity and energy from these units outside the service territory.

On Aug. 29, the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed a lower court decision that stayed a federal court challenge by NOPSI to the city of New Orleans' February 1988 order disallowing $135 million of NOPSI's Grand Gulf 1 costs. The lower court had stayed the federal court proceedings pending resolution of state court proceedings. A rehearing request lodged by NOPSI with the 5th Circuit was denied on Oct. 17.

Finally, a settlement agreement was reached among Entergy Corp. and the other parties involved in a shareholder class action suit against the company and certain other defendants. The agreement, which is subject to court approval, provides for payments to be made from a $15.3 million settlement fund to individual plaintiffs based on the proportionate claim of each shareholder.

Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $517,000, compared to a loss of $36.0 million in 1989. Both 1989 periods include non-recurring charges of $23.5 million primarily related to operational restructuring.

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Morton International (NYSE: MII), the world leader in the fast-growing market for automotive air bags, celebrated the production of its 3 millionth air bag inflator today. The event took place at the company's new plant in Brigham City, Utah. Morton International manufactures inflators and assembles modules for air bag systems.

"Every man and woman who works in this plant is entitled to a quiet moment of reflection on the many lives already saved by Morton air bag inflators made here in Utah," said Morton International President S. Jay Stewart. "By the end of this new decade, the lives saved by air bag technology will number in the thousands."

The new plant in Brigham City includes 13 acres of floor space under one roof which will be used for inflator assembly work.

Morton International's newest plant has about five times the capacity of the company's other air bag production facility in Ogden, Utah, which will remain in full operation. Other new facilities for producing the chemical materials used in the inflators are being added at the company's Promontory, Utah, plant. Sales of air bag inflators by Morton International have climbed 400 percent over the last two years, and company officers projected the opportunity for sales to reach $1 billion by 1995.

Morton International is the exclusive supplier of air bag inflators to Chrysler Corporation. They are also a major supplier to other U.S. auto manufacturers. Air bag inflators made by Morton in the United States also are

If car manufacturers choose an air bag to meet this requirement, it is only required on the driver's side until 1994 when air bags on the passenger side will be mandatory as well.

Morton International already produces both driver and passenger side inflatable restraint systems at the two Utah plants where employment has grown to approximately 1,200 people.

Headquartered in Chicago, Morton International produces specialty chemicals and salt as well as air bag inflators.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Aura Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: AURA), a leader in magnetic suspension technology, "has in the past 90 days signed several million dollars of contracts with prominent industrial companies," Harry Kurtzman, president, said. "Earlier contracts with General Dynamics, Boeing and Litton are nearing completion and, along with those newly signed, have an annualized potential in full production quantities well in excess of $100 million," Kurtzman said. "Second quarter losses were $898,945, or ($.04) per share, an improvement of about 50 percent when compared with the immediately preceding two quarters. PITTSBURGH (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Consolidated Natural Gas Company (NYSE: CNG) reported today that net income for the first nine months of 1990 was $71.3 million, or 83 cents a share, compared with $92.5 million, or $1.12 a share, earned in the same period last year.

In the third quarter of 1990, Consolidated had a net loss of $22.3 million, or 26 cents a share, compared with a net loss of $19.5 million, or 24 cents a share in the third quarter of 1989. The company's gas utility operations normally experience a loss in the third quarter due to seasonally lower use of gas by customers in the summer months.

Commenting on the nine-month results, chairman and chief executive officer George A. Davidson, Jr., said the lower earnings are the result of abnormally warm weather early in the year. If the weather in Consolidated's retail service areas had been the same in 1990 as in last year's first nine months, earnings would have been some 30 cents a share higher. If weather had been normal in 1990, earnings would have been about 40 cents a share greater than the 83 cents a share reported this year.

Both the third quarter and the nine months were affected by higher interest costs, including the weather-related cost of carrying higher than normal inventories of stored gas. In addition, third quarter results were reduced by the one-time costs of merging the company's exploration and production subsidiaries.

On an operating income basis, the company's gas distribution utilities reported $54.4 million in the nine months compared with $66.2 million in 1989 and a loss of $10.5 million for the third quarter versus a loss of $13.0 million a year earlier. CNG's gas transmission operations had operating income of $44.3 million in the 1990 nine months compared with $49.3 million in 1989; and $11.4 million in the quarter compared with a year-earlier $14.3 million.

Higher prices for gas and oil helped operating income of the company's exploration and production operations. For the nine months, operating income increased to $40.0 million from $36.5 million. Third quarter operating income rose to $10.7 million from $6.2 million last year.

The company's average wellhead price for gas was $2.21 a thousand cubic feet in the first nine months, compared to $2.17 in 1989, while oil prices averaged $18.55 a barrel versus $16.90 in last year's first nine months. Average wellhead gas prices in the third quarter were one cent higher at $2.08 a thousand cubic feet, and oil brought an average $21.65 a barrel compared to $17.52 in 1989.

Consolidated is one of the country's largest producers, transporters and distributors of natural gas.

PHILADELPHIA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - During the third quarter of 1990, Tasty Baking Co. (AMEX: TBC) completed the early retirement program previously announced in the first quarter of 1990.

The estimated provision in the first quarter was $8,200,000. With the successful completion of the program, an additional special pre-tax provision of $1,250,000 or 13 cents per share is reflected in the company's third quarter results. Also during the quarter, Phillips & Jacobs Inc. acquired Onondaga Litho Supply Co Inc., a well-respected upstate New York graphic arts distributor.

In the third quarter of 1990, the company realized net income of $1,081,000 or 17 cents per share, after the additional special provision of 13 cents per share, which compares to net income in 1989 of $2,286,000 or 36 cents per share.

For the 39-week period ended Sept. 29, 1990, excluding the effect of the special pre-tax provision which amounted to an aggregate of $9,450,000 or 92 cents per share, the company realized net income of $5,670,000 or 92 cents per share, which compares to net income in 1989 of $7,360,000 or $1.16 per share.

Consolidated net sales for the third quarter of 1990 were $69,666,000, which represented a five percent increase over the third quarter of 1989 consolidated net sales of $66,176,000. Consolidated net sales for the 39-week period ended Sept. 29, 1990, were $205,755,000, which represented a one percent increase over 1989's comparable period of $203,562,000.

WALTHAM, MA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Cabot Corporation (NYSE: CBT) today reported income applicable to primary common shares of $67.2 million, or $2.73 per share, for its fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $14.2 million, or 55 cents per share, last year. Net sales and other operating revenues in fiscal year 1990 were $1.7 billion compared with $1.9 billion in 1989.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, Cabot reported net income applicable to primary common shares of $9.2 million, or 37 cents per share, compared with a net loss of $44.3 million, or $1.79 per share, last year. Revenues were $399.9 million compared with $445.4 million last year.

Income for Cabot's 1989 fiscal year included charges totaling $63.8 million reflecting a loss from restructuring of the company's energy business and a series of other charges. Partially offsetting those charges last year was a $24.6 million gain on the sale of Cabot's remaining interest in an Indiana-based superalloys manufacturer. If those fourth quarter charges and gains were excluded, the company would have reported income of $53.4 million, or $2.07 per share, for fiscal year 1989, and a net loss of $5.1 million, or 21 cents per share, for last year's fourth quarter.

Exclusive of the fourth quarter charges and gains recorded last year, total operating profit advanced 20 percent in the 1990 fiscal year to $190.2 million from $158.9 million in 1989. Again excluding those charges and gains, operating profit advanced 51 percent in the energy segment and 13 percent in the specialty chemical segment.

Earlier this week, the company announced plans to offer to its shareholders the opportunity to exchange shares of Cabot common stock for the shares of Cabot Oil & Gas common stock beneficially owned by Cabot. For fiscal year 1990, Cabot Oil & Gas contributed $14.2 million in pre-tax operating profit.

DENVER (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The opening of markets around the world opens new opportunities for insurance companies that should be taken advantage of by U.S. companies said Henry G. Parker III, a managing director of Chubb & Son Inc.

Parker made his remarks, "Globalization of the Insurance Industry - Its Consequences for Insurance Markets, Brokers and Risk Managers," at a keynote address before the Colorado Chapter of the Society of Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriters in Denver.

Parker said that as trade barriers are rolled back around the world, insurance companies stand to gain from investments abroad. "Unfortunately, of the more than 5,000 insurance companies and groups in the U.S., only about 50 of these do any work outside the U.S., and of these 50 only a handful are truly global underwriting and servicing facilities," Parker said.

Parker pointed out that overseas investments by U.S. insurance companies totals some $11 billion or about three percent of all U.S. foreign investments and has a reate of return of 16.4 percent and is growing.

"And with U.S. property/casualty insurance premiums growth last year at only 2.1 percent, compared to Asia growing at 23 percent annually and Europe somewhat lower than that, the real growth potential for U.S. insurance companies is overseas."

Parker attributes the reticence of companies to expand overseas to a number of factors, including lack of long range vision, failure to realize the U.S. premium market is shrinking as a percent of world market and immediate pressure to produce improved quarterly earnings.

"Two of the major markets for growth in the insurance industry are Europe and the Pacific Rim," Parker said. With the coming of the open European Community after 1992, a $4 trillion regional economy will open up to the U.S.

The European Community is America's chief trading partner, accounting for $145 billion annually in combined imports and exports. "This is more than either Canada or Japan, and if we include the output of U.S. owned companies in Europe and European-owned firms here, the size of the relationship is $1 trillion a year," Parker said. "In addition, the opportunities in Japan for expansion are mind boggling, with premium growth significantly higher than in the U.S."

Parker pointed out that to effectively penetrate the Japanese market, insurance companies must be able to produce a differentiated product that they can not already get from a larger and better known Japanese company.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - B'nai B'rith International today deplored the remarks made by President Bush to the effect that Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein has taken actions even worse than some of those of Adolf Hitler.

B'nai B'rith International President Kent E. Schiner said: "Both from historical and moral points of view, the president's remarks are mistaken and most unfortunate. Even in the limited context to which Mr. Bush referred, Nazi policies of seizing and executing innocent hostages -- both Jewish and non-Jewish -- in reprisal actions, as well as Gestapo harassment of foreign diplomats who tried to save Jews, are well documented.

"More disturbing, however, is the facile rhetorical tendency to lump all evil in the category of Adolf Hitler and his genocide machine. The Holocaust was -- and remains -- unique in world history, and glib comparisons do a disservice to the memory of the victims of World War II; nor are they helpful to the effort to place in proper perspective the current valiant and admirable efforts of the international community to stop the brutal and dangerous Iraqi strongman from unleashing his potentially horrible weapons of destruction."

RICHMOND, VA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Richfood Holdings, Inc. (NASDAQ: RCHFA) today announced net earnings of $2.06 million, or $.20 per share, for the twelve-week period ended October 13, 1990, compared to earnings from continuing operations of $352,000, or $.03 per share, in the comparable period ended October 14, 1989. After accounting for discontinued operations, net earnings were $166,000, or $.02 per share, in the comparable prior year period. Net sales for the second quarter were $235.4 million, compared to $230.6 million for the comparable prior year period.

For the 24-week period ended October 13, 1990, the Company reported net earnings of $3.93 million, or $.38 per share, compared to earnings from continuing operations of $480,000 ($.05 per share) for the comparable prior year period. Prior year losses from discontinued operations were $680,000, resulting in a prior year net loss of $200,000, or $.02 per share. Year-to-date net sales were $473.1 million, compared to net sales from continuing operations of $477.0 million last year. Year-to-date net sales for the prior year includes $12.0 million from the previously terminated supply relationship with A & P/Super Fresh.

Donald D. Bennett, President and Chief Executive Officer, said: "Our second quarter performance continues the positive trend in our business and operating results that began in the fourth quarter of our last fiscal year. Cost of goods sold as a percentage of sales increased slightly in the current quarter as we took advantage of buying opportunities prior to the important holiday selling season and passed these savings on to our retail customers. We continue to market aggressively to increase our sales base.

"Operating and administrative expenses declined to 5.96 percent of net sales in the current quarter from 6.55 percent in the prior year quarter as we continue to closely monitor our costs and increase productivity. Institutional borrowings were reduced from $73.9 million a year ago to $14.8 million at October 13, 1990, allowing us to reduce interest expense in the current quarter to .26 percent of net sales from .79 percent of sales in the prior year quarter."

Mr. Bennett added: "We are continuing to improve our purchasing capabilities, advertising capabilities, and the design and packaging of our popular private label products. In addition, we recently completed a conversion to a 'cost plus' system for pricing product to our customers. This system will rationalize our pricing policies and will be coupled with more competitively priced merchandise to put the independent retailer in a far stronger market position. Our objective is to enhance the Company's market position by enhancing the business of our independent retailers."

Richfood previously announced on October 9, 1990, that it had reached an agreement with Fleming Companies, Inc. to acquire certain assets of the Fleming Division operating in Waynesboro, Virginia. Mr. Bennett commented on the acquisition: "This is another positive development for Richfood. The transaction allows us to increase our sales volume from our existing marketing area with minimal incremental costs. We will begin a phase-in of service to Fleming's former customers in November. The full impact of increased sales and earnings is expected to be realized in the fourth quarter of the fiscal year."

Richfood is the largest wholesale food distributor serving its Mid-Atlantic operating region. It supplies over 600 supermarkets with a complete line of grocery products, frozen foods, dairy, fresh produce and meats.

WINSTON-SALEM, NC (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Health Equity Properties Incorporated (NYSE: EQP) announced today that for the nine month period ended Septmber 30, 1990, both operating losses and cash flow are at anticipated levels. The company completed the nine months ending September 30, 1990 with an anticipated net loss before extraordinary items of $2,325,119, compared with net loss before extrarodinary items of $1,360,787 for the same period of 1989. Net loss for the nine months ended September 30, 1990 was $2,665,972 (or ($0.72) per common share), compared with net loss of $868,786 (or ($0.24) per common share). Net cash flow from operations for the nine months ended September 30, 1990 was a positive $4,306,922 (or $1.17 per common share) compared with a positive $4,674,115 (or $1.29 per common share) for the same period of 1989.

Historically, one of the primary benefits to be gained from the ownership of real estate through a real estate invesment trust (REIT) is that a portion of the dividend yield is classified as return of capital and is not, therefore, taxable. Management estimates that the company's entire current dividend will be a return of capital during 1990. It does not appear that this very positive tax benefit was in any way affected by recent changes in tax laws passed by Congress.

As a real estate investment trust (REIT), Health Equity Properties' funds available for dividend payments and portfolio reinvestment are determined by cash flow levels, not net income. The Company's primary business is to acquire depreciable assets, which as a result, produce large non-cash charges against income. Accordingly, the Company's commitment to its shareholders is to provide tax sheltered cash flow.

Based in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, Health Equity Properties owns 76 nursing home facilities with a total of 5,043 beds. The company is managed by a ten member board of directors, six of whom are independent from the Company.

WARMINSTER, PA. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Fischer & Porter Co. (AMEX: FP) today reported sales of $62,570,000 and a net loss of $1,940,000 or $.38 per share for the third quarter of 1990.

In the comparable quarter of 1989, sales were $58,703,000 with net income of $1,425,000 or $.26 per share. Sales increased mainly as a result of differences in currency exchange rates used in the respective periods for sales of International units. At comparable exchange rates the company would have reported a sales decline of $1.6 million. The lack of any real sales growth was the principal factor contributing to the decline in earnings, along with increased interest expense due to higher debt levels.

For the first nine months of 1990 the company incurred a net loss of $1,571,000 or $.34 per share on sales of $175,029,000. Sales of $164,660,000 in 1989 produced net income of $1,490,000 or $.24 per share. Although reported sales increased over the prior year, at comparable currency exchange rates sales would have declined $1 million. The absence of sales growth was compounded by higher expenses producing a substantially lower pretax income than in 1989. The unusual effective tax rate was caused by losses in certain countries without any tax benefit.

Orders received for the first nine months of 1990 were $189 million compared to $170 million in 1989. Orders in the United States declined $3.7 million. For the third quarter, orders were $56.5 million in 1990 and $51 million in 1989. All of the increase was in International. The backlog of orders at the end of September 1990 was $75.5 million compared to $61.5 million at Dec. 31, 1989, and $81.5 million at June 30, 1990. The decline in the third quarter occurred in the United States. The level of orders received so far in 1990 and expected in the near term are less than previously anticipated, particularly in the United States. The company is aggressively pursuing various cost cutting and cash generating options which are available in order to minimize the impact of the economic slowdown which currently exists.

All per-share amounts in the prior year have been restated to reflect the 5 percent stock dividend paid in April 1990.

MIAMI (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Bob McCurry expects Toyota to sell 130,000 1991 Toyota Tercel subcompact sedans, up from about 100,000 for the 1990 model.

Tercel signifies "the death of the econobox and the birth of an entry-level sedan with high-tech, high mileage and Toyota quality," the executive vice president of Toyota Motor Sales, Inc., U.S.A., told reporters at the Tercel press introduction here.

The new base Tercel's 33/37 city/highway mileage beats last year's 31/36 EPA rating, McCurry said. Its base price remains unchanged at $6,488, making the Tercel 2-door sedan the lowest priced car with a trunk sold in the U.S.

At $7,898, the Tercel 4-door Deluxe Sedan is the lowest priced 4-door sedan in the U.S. from a volume Japanese manufacturer.

McCurry expects Tercel sales to increase because of its uplevel sedan styling, increased interior and cargo space, increased horsepower and quieter ride.

However, he said, competitors in the congested entry-level segment are "saddled with value packages and incentives right out of the starting gate."

Toyota will increase U.S. production next year, McCurry said. Currently about 30 percent of the Toyota vehicles sold here are North American-built.

Toyota has added 64 more Toyota dealers, one-third of them in the Midwest, he said.

The seven Toyota dealers in South Florida increased their car sales by 23 percent over last year, McCurry pointed out, they account for nearly 12 percent of the new car market, based on registrations through August.

Nationally, Toyota's total car share including Lexus Division is 9 percent through September, McCurry said, up from 6.8 percent for the first nine months of last year.

The Iraq/Kuwait conflict could further aggravate the current industry downturn he said.

"But our current performance in a market that has slowed down most of our competitors makes me believe that Toyota can continue to gain share, even if the market gets tougher," McCurry said.

HOUSTON (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - EDS and Continental Airlines Holdings, Inc. (CTA) today announced that they have mutually agreed to modify their business relationship.

A variety of factors, including the fuel crisis facing the airline industry and legal challenges to the proposed transaction by IBM Credit Corporation, have led the companies to end negotiations of the multifaceted business relationship previously announced.

The companies are continuing discussions related to establishing a significant relationship focused on facilities management and a possible joint marketing arrangement between EDS and System One, CTA's technology services subsidiary and intend to continue their existing interim management contract.

"We all want to take advantage of the strong working relationships that have been forged over the past year to bring value to the airline and travel industries," said Jose Ofman, president of EDS' Transportation Division. "EDS remains committed to delivering a full range of state-of-the-art computer and communications services in those markets."

MARLTON, NJ (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Industrial Training Systems Corp. (NASDAQ: ITSC), the Marlton-based producer and marketer of occupational health, safety and environmental training materials, today reported a first quarter loss of $33,500 or 3 cents per share, on revenues of $1,065,000, as compared to a loss of $21,400 or 2 cents per share, on revenues of $791,000 recorded for the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

In September 1990, ITS Corp. terminated its Canadian independent distributor, purchased certain of its assets, and commenced the direct sale of products in Canada. In connection with a detailed review of the books, records and accounts of the Canadian operation, the company has taken a one-time first quarter charge against Canadian receivables of $51,600. In addition, the company expensed travel and legal fees of approximately $11,000 in connection with this matter. These charges, which are included in selling, general and administrative expenses, reduced net income by approximately $37,700 or 3 cents per share in the quarter.

The company said strong Canadian regulatory climate and the market's demonstrated acceptance of video training products to comply with government regulation makes Canada a natural extension of ITS Corp. North American operations, and many of its products are accepted equally well in Canada as they are in the United States. Other training products, such as those for "WHMIS," hazard communications training and "Bill 208," the worker's right to act training are unique to the Canadian market.

LOWELL, MASS. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Courier Corporation (NASDAQ: CRRC) announced today that it has signed a letter of intent to sell a 9.5-acre industrial site located in downtown Lowell to Tenaska Mass, Inc., a Nebraska-based developer of energy cogeneration projects.

The site, located on French Street, is currently leased to North American Directory Corporation, Courier's former telephone directory manufacturing joint venture, which recently announced intentions to begin moving its manufacturing operations to Pennsylvania sometime in 1991.

According to Courier, its transaction with Tenaska Mass calls for a purchase price of approximately $4 million. Closing is contingent upon a number of legal environmental and regulatory issues and is not expected until 1992.

Courier Chairman James F. Conway, Jr., revealed that Tenaska Mass plans to develop an energy cogeneration plant on a portion of the French Street site, with the remaining land being donated by Tenaska for the possible future home of an 8,000-seat arena/auditorium complex which would house the University of Lowell's athletic and recreational programs and also serve as a civic center conventions and conferences, trade shows and entertainment programs for the city of Lowell. Studies are underway to determine the feasibility of developing the arena/auditorium project. No timetable has been announced.

According to Conway, "The sale of the French Street property will represent two important achievements for us. First, selling this property has been an ongoing goal of Courier's asset-management strategy, and we are pleased to have indentified a viable purchaser and begun that process on behalf of the company and its shareholders. We are also gratified that the site will continue to be an important contributor to the local economy through the construction of a needed energy source. In addition, we are also pleased to have had the opportunity to be part of a process that could lead to the French Street site becoming a home to a showcase facility that will produce significant benefits for the Lowell community and for the entire region."

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Standard Motor Products, Inc. (NYSE: SMP), automotive replacement parts manufacturer, reported today that sales for the third quarter, the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $133,043,000 compared with $110,245,000 a year ago. Net income was $2,547,000, or 20 cents per share, compared to last year's $3,950,000, or 30 cents per share.

Sales for the nine months totaled $394,460,000 compared with $323,246,000 in the 1989 period. Net income for the nine months was $6,777,000, or 52 cents per share, compared with $12,499,000, or 95 cents per share, for the same period last year.

Commenting on the results for the third quarter, Lawrence Sills, president, stated that net income for the period included a substantial insurance recovery relating to hurricane damage of the company's Puerto Rico plant last year. Also reflected in third quarter earnings was a decrease in estimated tax rate for the year from 26 percent to 19 percent.

Net income from operations was slightly below the 10 cents per share reported in the second quarter of this year. Sills stated that the decrease in net operating income from the comparable period last year was again largely attributable to continuing write-offs related to inventories and accounts receivable as well as charges pertaining to the Guaranteed Parts/Sorensen acquisition.

PITTSBURGH (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Mellon Bank Corp. (NYSE: MEL), Transamerica Premier Insurance Services Inc. and attorney Howard A. Specter of Specter Law Offices P.C. today announced a tentative agreement with class plaintiffs to resolve claims regarding collateral protection insurance obtained by Mellon Bank.

Collateral protection insurance is property coverage obtained by retail lenders when borrowers fail to maintain coverage in accordance with lending agreements. Paid by the borrower, it is designed to protect loan collateral -- such as automobiles -- from an uninsured loss.

Mellon estimates that approximately 5 percent of its automobile loan borrowers are covered by collateral protection insurance.

The tentative settlement, which would create a $6.275 million settlement fund, leaves intact the basic collateral protection insurance program in which Mellon and Transamerica Premier participate.

Under the settlement, two coverages challenged by the plaintiffs -- known as the premium deficiency coverage endorsement and the conversion and confiscation protection endorsement -- will be cancelled and the premiums refunded.

The settlement is contingent on resolution by the Pennsylvania Insurance Department of administrative actions by the department against Transamerica Premier and Mellon, and approval of the U.S. District Court. On May 31, 1990, the district court issued an injunction to stop the administrative action against Mellon.

Insurance coverages in question were offered with the approval of the Pennsylvania Insurance Department and the coverages were obtained by Mellon from Transamerica Premier on policies issued between 1987 and early 1989. Mellon discontinued obtaining the premium deficiency and conversion and confiscation coverages prior to the filing of the class action suit.

Upon resolution of the administrative issues, the tentative agreement will be filed in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania in Pittsburgh for approval.

ATLANTA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency announced today that an Interim Action Record of Decision (ROD) has been signed for containment of the contaminated groundwater plume at the Petroleum Products Corp. Superfund site in Hollywood, Fla.

EPA, in consultation with the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation, selected this interim action to prevent lead and volatile organic compounds from migrating into drinking water wells in the area. The interim action consists of plugging non-operating or damaged water and monitoring wells; redirecting drainage from the site; closing culvert drainage wells and increasing the capacity of the existing waste oil recovery system.

The action will reduce the amount of waste oil in the water table while EPA completes its investigation of soil and groundwater contamination and selects a final cleanup remedy for the site. Increasing the capacity of the waste oil recovery system will aid in the recapture of waste oil from the underlying groundwater. Recovery wells could be utilized later in the event a large scale groundwater pump-and-treat system is constructed on site. These wells could also be used as monitoring locations to assess groundwater contamination in the area.

The estimated cost of this interim action will be approximately $743,000. This amount includes operation and maintenance at the site.

The site is located approximately 1.5 miles north of the Broward/Dade county line in Hollywood, Fla. The site overlies the Biscayne Aquifer, one of the largest aquifers in the world. The aquifer provides for two major municipal well fields that supply water to residences and businesses which are also located near the site.

ATLANTA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Atlanta Gas Light Company (NYSE: ATG) today declared a quarterly dividend of 51 cents per share on its common stock, an increase of two cents over the previous quarter, and dividends on its preferred stock as prescribed in each issue.

Payment will be made on Dec. 1 to shareholders of record on Nov. 23. The dividend declared on common stock equates to $2.04 on an annualized basis. The company has paid a dividend every quarter since it again became a publicly held utility in 1947. The December dividend will be the 172nd consecutive dividend paid.

The board also released audited results for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, which reflected operating revenues of $1,000,897,000 compared with $938,647,000 for fiscal 1989. Net income for the period was $49,444,000 before a one-time charge of $3,804,000, net of income tax, resulting from a recent decision of the Georgia Public Service Commission (Georgia Commission). Net income after the one-time charge was $45,640,000 compared with $42,100,000 in fiscal 1989. Earnings per share were $2.20 before the one-time charge of 18 cents per share reduced earnings per share to $2.02 compared with $1.90 for the previous year. The decision of the Georgia Commission, in connection with its approval of an increase in annual revenues to the company of $19,773,000 effective Oct. 1, results in the company providing to its customers the benefit of a pension gain of $3,804,000 recognized by the company in fiscal 1989. The benefit of the pension gain will be approximately $300,000 per year, net of income tax, over a 12-year period. There is no cash impact in fiscal 1990 from the regulatory requirement and the company does not expect a significant impact on the results of operations during the 12-year period.

Results for the fourth quarter, the three months ended Sept. 30, showed a net loss of $9,832,000 or $.46 per share. This compares with a net loss of $215,000 or $.03 per share of common stock for the same quarter in 1989. The increased net loss and loss per share for the quarter were primarily attributable to the one-time charge of $3,804,000 pursuant to the decision of the Georgia Commission as previously discussed.

COEUR D'ALENE, IDAHO (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Coeur d'Alene Mines Corp. (NYSE: CDE) today reported third quarter 1990 net income of $448,000, equivalent to 5 cents per share. For the same period in 1989, net income was $1,837,000, equivalent to 18 cents per share. Total revenues for the third quarter of 1990 were $17,117,000 compared to $24,294,000 in the third quarter of 1989.

For the first nine months of 1990, Coeur d'Alene Mines recorded net income of $3,597,000, equivalent to 36 cents per share, compared to net income of $5,007,000, equivalent to 50 cents per share, for the first nine months of 1989. Total revenues for the first nine months of 1990 were $44,588,000 compared to $56,600,000 for the same period in 1989.

The decline in total revenues and net income for the third quarter and nine months of 1990 compared to 1989 is primarily due to sharply lower silver prices and a decline in the company's total gold production.

Gold production for the third quarter of 1990 was 20,207 ounces compared to 32,654 ounces for the same period in 1989. Gold production for the nine months of 1990 was 47,800 ounces compared to 67,479 ounces in 1989. The decline in gold production is primarily due to diminishing reserves at the company's Thunder Mountain mine in central Idaho which may not operate beyond the 1990 production season. Also, the company has previously announced that its production during 1990 was being impacted due to an accumulation of unprocessed inventory resulting from the commissioning of its new leach pad at the Rochester mine in Nevada. The new pad is now operational and the production levels reached near budget level performance at the end of the third quarter. Silver production for the third quarter of 1990 was 1,523,596 compared to 1,488,404 ounces during the same period in 1989. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company produced 4,009,366 ounces of silver compared to 4,072,760 ounces for the same period in 1989. However, silver prices were sharply lower at $5.03 an ounce for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $5.54 during 1989. The price of silver for the third quarter 1990 was $4.88 an ounce compared to $5.18 an ounce for the third quarter of 1989. The average price of gold was $384.69 for the nine months of 1990 compared to $378.52 for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1989. The price of gold for the three months in 1990 was $382.19 compared to $367.31 in 1989.

At the company's 50 percent owned Kensington gold property in Alaska, the final feasibility study has been completed. The final design and engineering proposals are being solicited.

DEARBORN, MI (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) has previously announced it is recalling about 55,000 1990 and 1991 model year cars to locate and recover 133 potentially defective air bag modules. Affected vehicles are 1990 Taurus, Sable, Continental, Tempo and Topaz and 1990-1991 Crown Victoria and Grand Marquis models. HIGHLAND PARK, MICH. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C) and Fiat Group announced today that they have terminated discussions regarding potential joint venture operations and other possible business arrangements. The discussions had been ongoing for several months.

"We discovered some strong potential opportunities for working together and some outstanding operational synergies that could have benefitted both companies," said Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca. "Unfortunately timing is everything and we've jointly come to the conclusion that the current timing would be lousy.

"Uncertainties in the global economy, rising oil prices brought on by the crisis in the Gulf, the slowdown in sales in both the U.S. and European automotive markets and the overall deterioration in worldwide business conditions created overwhelming obstacles against the kind of arrangements we've been discussing," Iacocca said. "It's been frustrating for both companies and for all of our people who've been involved in the negotiations but we believe the decision to conclude the negotiations is the right decision for everybody."

Iacocca and Agnelli said the discussions were cordial and that relations between the two companies continue to be excellent. They said that Chrysler's current distribution agreement for Alfa Romeo cars in the U.S., together with other current commercial arrangements, would continue uninterrupted.

Iacocca also said Chrysler's current distribution agreements with Renault and its independent distributor network for the distribution of Chrysler products in Europe would all continue unchanged.

CLEVELAND (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Mor-Flo Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: MORF) today reported financial results for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990.

Net sales for the third quarter of 1990 were $50,414,214 as compared with $46,741,713 for the third quarter of 1989. The Company reported net earnings of $207,037, or 8 cents per share, as compared with a net loss of $6,835,252, or $2.71 per share, for the third quarter of 1989.

Net sales for the nine months ended September 30, 1990 were $159,471,484 as compared with $156,381,625 for the first nine months of 1989. Net earnings for the first nine months of 1990 were $635,830, or 25 cents per share, as compared with a net loss of $9,059,345, or $3.59 per share, for the first nine months of 1989.

Included in the results for the third quarter and first nine months of 1989 were charges reflecting an increase in the provision for the patent infringement damage award against the Company, which award was paid in January 1990. The charges were $5,876,000 before taxes and a net after-tax charge of $3,889,000, or $1.54 per share, in the third quarter, and $6,036,000 before taxes and a net after- tax charge of $3,993,000, or $1.58 per share, for the first nine months of 1989.

Walter L. Abt, chairman of the board and president of Mor-Flo, said that profitable operations were achieved in the third quarter and first nine months of 1990 primarily as a result of increasing gross profit margin. In both periods, higher average selling prices more than offset increased costs due to complying with the minimum energy efficiency requirements of the National Appliance Energy Conservation Act of 1987 which went into effect on January 1, 1990 for the manufacture of residential water heaters. In addition, Abt noted that increased sales of step-up models, that have higher gross profit margins, contributed to the earnings improvement.

The Company is headquartered in Cleveland, Ohio and has major manufacturing facilities in Johnson City and Chattanooga, Tennessee and Santa Monica, California.

GREENWICH, CT (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - W. R. Berkley Corporation (NASDAQ: BKLY) an insurance holding company, today announced that net income for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990, excluding the effects of a previously-announced third quarter special charge discussed below, was $12,007,000 ($1.01 per share) and $38,904,000 ($3.28 per share), respectively, in comparison with $12,072,000 ($1.03 per share) and $41,322,000 ($3.50 per share) recorded in the corresponding periods of 1989.

Net income, after the special charge of $10,560,000 ($.89 per share on an after-tax basis) was $1,447,000 ($.12 per share) and $28,344,000 ($2.39 per share) for the 1990 quarter and year-to-date periods, respectively. The quarter to quarter and year-to- date comparisons were adversely impacted by a reduced level of "Fresh Start" tax benefits, which decreased by $510,000 ($.04 per share) and $1,530,000 ($.13 per share) for the respective three and nine month periods.

Total revenues of $139,436,000 and $412,990,000 for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990 represent increases of 3 percent and 1 percent, respectively, from the comparable 1989 levels. The increases result from significant growth in both investment and service fee income which offset a decline in earned premium. The growth in service fee income, which rose 61 percent to $30.6 million in the first nine months of 1990, was generated by a combination of acquisitions and internal expansion.

The special charge reflected in the third quarter represents a write-down of amounts previously recorded as reinsurance receivable. The charge was recorded following the August 1990 decision of an arbitration panel in a dispute between one of the company's subsidiaries and some of its former reinsurers. The panel denied the reinsurers' demand that the reinsurance contract be voided, but rendered an award which would have resulted in the company's subsidiary recovering significantly less than the amount it demanded. On Nov. 1, 1990 a U.S. District Court confirmed that the portion of the award which denied the reinsurers' demand for rescission, vacated the balance of the award and remanded the matter to the arbitration panel for reconsideration. In accordance with policy, the company believes it would be inappropriate to comment further on the matter until the arbitrators complete their reconsideration.

Net premiums written for the quarter and year-to-date 1990 periods were $112,031,000 and $318,549,000, respectively. The third quarter premium volume was essentially unchanged from the comparable 1989 amount while writings for the first nine months of 1990 represented a decline of approximately 3 percent in comparison with the premiums recorded during the corresponding 1989 period. The reduced level of premium volume results from the continuing efforts of the company's subsidiaries to maintain pricing discipline in an increasingly competitive insurance environment.

William R. Berkley, chairman of the board, noted that operating results to date were generally in line with the company's expectations. He stated, "The 1990 results were achieved despite an above average level of weather-related claims which impacted the regional sector of our business. Our operating performance continues to reflect substantial earnings growth in our insurance services segment, a higher level of investment income, and continued strong cash flow generated by operations. We remain pleased with the underwriting discipline of our subsidiaries and we do not anticipate a rise in premium volume until the current competitive pricing environment moderates."

W. R. Berkley Corporation is a holding company whose subsidiaries operate in three major segments of the insurance business: regional property casualty insurance; specialty lines of insurance (including excess and surplus lines, commercial transportation and reinsurance); and insurance services operations (including management of alternative insurance market mechanisms).

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Riverside Savings Bank, SLA, Riverside, N.J., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, Riverside Federal Savings Bank, will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the management of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The receivership did not result in any interruption of Riverside's day-to-day operations. The institution and its seven branches will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Riverside was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition in that it had insufficient capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

Riverside's condition is due primarily to poor underwriting, bad management, a poor investment strategy and the substantial deterioration of an asset portfolio heavily laden with high-risk real estate development projects.

As of Feb. 13, 1990, assets of $59.25 million, or 31 percent of total assets, were classified as substandard, doubtful or loss, forcing the institution to add $13.9 million to loss reserves.

As of June 30, 1990, assets of $30.2 million, or 16.6 percent of total assets, were delinquent or non-performing due in part to bad appraisals and loans made to unqualified borrowers. The establishment of an additional $10.1 million in loss reserves led to a $12.4 million net loss for the first six months of 1990.

Delinquencies are on the rise, while most of Riverside's mortgage- backed securities are pledged against loans the institution obtained to finance reverse repurchase agreements. Thus, the thrift is highly exposed to interest rate risk, and prospects for recovery are dim.

Riverside had been operating under regulatory restrictions that stopped all commercial lending and futures and options trading, and curtailed investments in subsidiary operations. The institution is insolvent in that it has negative tangible, core and risk-based capital.

Riverside Savings Bank, SLA, was a state-chartered stock association wholly owned by real estate developers Vahak and Shant Hovnanian. Shareholders will retain no interest in the new institution.

As of June 30, 1990, Riverside Savings Bank, SLA, had assets of $181.63 million, liabilities of $188.06 million and tangible capital of negative $16.98 million, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 9.3 percent.

AKRON, OHIO (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Roadway Express said today that it will not raise freight rates Jan. 1, contrary to an earlier published report that the company characterized as inaccurate.

It is correct that both the timing and amount of rate adjustment that will be required during 1991 have been under study. However, there remain too many uncertainties concerning cost factors to permit a sufficiently accurate projection for action in January, the company said.

Customers have indicated they would normally prefer necessary rate adjustments take effect in January, to facilitate budget planning. That is also the company's preference, but at this point, significant cost factors such as labor rates and fuel and other petroleum related cost elements cannot be predicted with any degree of reliability. Therefore, in order to minimize the likelihood of needing more than one adjustment during 1991, Roadway will defer any general increase until sometime after the first of the year as a clearer picture of cost developments emerge.

BEAVERTON, OR. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The following was released today by Tektronix Inc.:

Tektronix Inc. (NYSE: TEK) is in line for a major federal contract to develop fast superconducting integrated circuits, members of Oregon's congressional delegation reported today. The contract would be the federal government's first funding of superconductivity in the area of microelectronics for digital information processing.

The $5 million, multi-year project is part of the defense appropriation bill contained in the new federal budget approved by Congress last weekend. The 1991 budget contains a first-year appropriation of $2 million for the project, according to U.S. Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore. The balance of the contract will be appropriated in future budgets.

"The role played by Tektronix in developing this revolutionary new technology will be vital to both our national security and our international competitiveness," said Sen. Hatfield, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Said U.S. Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore.: "Tektronix will develop technology that will allow superconducting computer chips to operate at apparent room-temperature at a thousand times faster than conventional chips."

Sen. Hatfield and Rep. AuCoin worked to get the superconductivity funds for Tektronix included in the defense budget, according to Chuck Frost, Tek's vice president for public affairs. "Hatfield and AuCoin recognize the need to remain competitive in the development of this vital technology," Frost said. "The funds are designated for Tek and will help us build on the microelectronics research previously conducted by Tek."

Superconductivity promises a future of faster, better and smaller electronics products, said Bruce Murdock, Tek's program manager for superconductive microelectronics. "Years of laboratory research have demonstrated the unique properties of superconductors which enable microelectronic circuits to operate faster with less power consumption. In microelectronics, increased performance occurs when signals are transmitted in a superconductive environment created with the aid of cryogenics -- or refrigeration," Murdock said.

"Superconducting microelectronics offers startling potential for improved performance compared to semiconductors," Murdock said.

Murdock will head the research effort to supply the Pentagon with a prototype superconducting microprocessor. "This work will include the integration of superconductive digital microelectronics with novel small refrigerators that enable apparent room-temperature operations," said Murdock.

The five-year project primarily will be undertaken by Tektronix Laboratories at Tek's Oregon headquarters. Murdock also is the principal scientist named by the CSAC to identify potential new products for development. CSAC is the Council on Superconductivity for American Competitiveness, a trade association.

Tektronix is a leading manufacturer of electronics products and systems in the areas of test and measurement equipment, computer graphics and communications. Revenues in Fiscal 1990 totalled $1.4 billion from worldwide sales. The company employs about 12,500 workers.

The airline reported an operating profit of $16.5 million, compared with an operating profit of $18.7 million in the third quarter last year. Operating revenues for the airline were up 13.2 percent, from $953.5 million to $1.080 billion, while operating expenses were up 13.7 percent, from $934.7 million to $1.063 billion.

Fuel and oil expense for Pan American World Airways increased 30.3 percent, from $153.3 million to $199.8 million, principally related to a 28.0 percent increase in the price of fuel, from 60.3 cents a gallon in the third quarter last year to 77.2 cents this year.

The airline noted that this year's third quarter passenger revenues, traffic, load factor and yield all were the highest ever recorded for any third quarter in the company's history.

The corporation's two other airline subsidiaries, Pan Am Express and Pan Am Shuttle, together reported a $4.7 million operating profit, compared with a $20.2 million operating profit last year. SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CA. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Lewis Galoob Toys Inc. (NYSE: GAL) today reported third quarter revenues of $43,847,000, a decline of 42 percent from 1989 third quarter revenues of $76,037,000. The third quarter net loss after payment of the preferred dividend was $5,478,000 or $.59 per share, compared with a net profit of $7,293,000 or $.75 per share for the same period last year.

Revenues for the first nine months of 1990 were $105,414,000, a decrease of 38 percent compared with $169,648,000 for the first nine months of last year. The net loss for the first nine months of this year was $15,261,000 or $1.64 per share, compared with a net profit of $14,394,000 or $1.49 per share for the same period in 1989. Citing these results, the company announced that it has implemented a substantial cost reduction program, including a 23 percent reduction of domestic work force achieved through a combination of attrition and a layoff of principally administrative personnel.

David Galoob, chairman, president and chief executive officer, stated, "The company's balance sheet and capital structure continue to be extremely strong and highly liquid. At Sept. 30, 1990, the company's cash position was $21.8 million, more than double that of a year ago. Total bank debt at Sept. 30, 1990, was sharply reduced to $18.1 million, down from $60.7 million a year earlier, and the company had borrowed only $12.0 million of its $80.0 million revolving credit facility."

The company noted that results for the quarter and year-to-date were consistent with its expectations for significant full-year losses announced in July 1990. Continued reduced domestic shipments, resulting from slow retail sales of its major product lines and a lower level domestic retail consumer demand for toys in general, has caused a shift in the mix of sales between domestic and international customers. During the third quarter of 1990, international sales, which generate significantly lower gross profits margins than domestic shipments, comprised 47 percent of the company's total sales, compared with 30 percent for the same period in 1989.

David Galoob added, "By accelerating our product development cycle, we have been able to introduce retail buyers to the company's 1991 product line a full two months earlier in the year than last year's introduction of our 1990 product line. Trade reaction to the company's new 1991 offerings is highly encouraging. Our accelerated development cycle will allow us to build on this reaction by launching new introductions earlier in 1991 and shipping them throughout the year."

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - SmartCard International Inc. (NASDAQ: SMRT) today announced its financial results for the quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990. Operating revenues for the quarters ended Sept. 30, 1990 and 1989, were $31,383 and $45,172, respectively. The revenues for the 1990 quarter primarily reflect revenues from sales of smart cards and other read/write device products. The company's net loss of $334,099 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, was significantly greater than the 1989 quarter of $197,910 due to costs incurred in connection with the company's contract for the development of a transaction terminal that accepts both smart cards and magnetic stripe cards. The company now expects to begin shipments of the terminals (under its previously announced contract with Bull HN Information Systems, Inc.) during the first half of 1991.

Cash and cash equivalents at Sept. 30, 1990, were $652,612, as compared with $995,577 at Dec. 31, 1989. This decrease reflects the expenditure of funds to maintain the company's operations.

SmartCard International is a development stage company which designs, manufacturers and markets "smart card" systems. Smart cards are plastic cards having the approximate dimensions of a standard credit card, which are embedded with microchips, giving the card both logic and memory.

NEWTON, MA (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Greenery Rehabilitation Group, Inc. (NYSE: GRG) today announced that its board increased the authorization of its share and debt buy back program by $5 million.

On Aug. 21, 1990, Greenery Group announced that its board had authorized a share and debt buy back program of up to $10 million. Today's announcement increases the total amount which can be expended in this program to $15 million. A spokesman of GRG stated that a substantial amount of the original authorization has been expended.

The share and debt buy back program applies to GRG's three outstanding issues of public securities; Common Shares, 6.5 percent Convertible Debentures Due 2011 and 8.75 percent Convertible Debentures Due 2015. The company estimates that there are approximately 8.4 million Common Shares outstanding, of which approximately 3.87 million are in the so called "public float", and that there are about $30 million of the 6.5 percent convertible bonds and $28.75 million of the 8.75 percent Convertible Notes outstanding, substantially all of which are publicly held.

Upon announcing the expansion of the buy back program, George Ferencik, GRG president, issued the following statement:

"Earlier this week, GRG announced that it expected that earnings for the fiscal fourth quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, might be 50 percent or less of reported earnings in the year earlier comparable period. At that time, we pointed out that GRG expects that earnings for the full fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990 are expected to exceed the year earlier's earnings.

"Since our announcement GRG securities have been pummeled in the marketplace. Frankly, we believe this is a drastic over- reaction to what should be viewed as a disappointing but profitable quarter in our continuing history of progress. Our board believes it is in our continuing shareholders' long-term interest that company funds be invested in the buy back program.

"Greenery Group's cash and cash equivalent at Sept. 30, 1990, exceeded $57 million and we do not expect that the buy back expenditures will adversely affect our business plans."

In an unrelated development, Greenery Group announced that it has partially exercised its warrant to assume a larger voting position in Healthcare International, Inc. (AMEX: HII).

Every Class B Share of HII has 10 times the voting power of the HII Class A shares listed on the American Stock Exchange. GRG acquired the 250,000 Class B shares in October 1989 at the time it simultaneously invested approximately 9.72 million in equity and debt of HII. The portion of the warrant which was exercised today gives GRG a majority of the Class B shares outstanding plus approximately 35 percent of the total HII share voting power. GRG has retained a portion of the warrant which would enable it to further increase its ownership and voting power in HII in the future.

The warrant exercise price is based upon a formula tied to the market price of HII Class A shares. Because these shares have been trading at a low price it is expected that GRG's cost of today's warrant exercise will be less than $250,000. Nonetheless, because of the concentration of voting power in HII Class B shares it is expected that, under generally accepted accounting principles, a portion of GRG future financial reports may reflect the financial results of HII. A spokesman for GRG stated that GRG has no present intention to expand its role in the management of HII.

ENCINITAS, CA. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - SDN Bancorp (OTC "Pink Sheets"), holding company for San Dieguito National Bank, reported net earnings of $384,000 for the first nine months of 1990, compared to $841,000 for the first nine months of the previous year. Such 1989 net earnings were larger as a result of a net recovery of $380,000 from settlements of significant lawsuits as well as the extraordinary income tax benefit from carryforward of net operating losses. Income before income taxes and the non-recurring recovery was actually greater for the first nine months of 1990, compared to 1989. Fully diluted earnings per share were $.57 for the first nine months of 1990, compared to $1.17 for the comparable period in 1989.

Total assets were $78.9 million at Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $72.9 million at Dec. 31, 1989, and $68.1 million at Sept. 30, 1989.

Net loans increased to $58.4 million at Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $53.7 million at Dec. 31, 1989, and $51.7 million at Sept. 30, 1989. Total deposits were $73 million at Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $67.4 million at Dec. 31, 1989 and $62.9 million at Sept. 30, 1989.

LUBBOCK, TEXAS (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Furr's/Bishop's Cafeterias, L.P. (NYSE: CAF) today announced that revenues for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 29, 1990 were $216.3 million, a decrease of $1.83 million from revenues in the same period of 1989. Net income for the 39 weeks was $6.74 million or 38 cents per limited partnership unit, an increase of $2.09 million, as compared to $4.65 million or 28 cents per limited partnership unit for the same period of 1989. Net income increased in the 39 weeks ended Sept. 29, 1990 as compared to the same period of 1989 as a result of lower food cost and net gains in the third quarter of 1990 of $884 thousand from the reversal of closed store reserves and $479 thousand from the recognition of the recovery of taxes. Revenues and net income in the third quarter of 1989 included $1.10 million from the disposition of a lease and net income included credits of $1.13 million from expense adjustments related to the Pension Plan. A special charge of $1.75 million, related to a proposed conversion to corporate form, was recognize, in the first quarter of 1989.

Revenues in the first 39 weeks of 1989 included two more restaurants in operation as compared to the number in operation during the same period of 1990. Lower guest traffic in comparable restaurants during the first 39 weeks of 1990 as compared to the same period of 1989 was more than offset by a higher average guest ticket resulting primarily from higher prices and menu mix changes.

Revenues for the third fiscal quarter ended Sept. 29, 1990 were $71.8 million, a decrease of $2.49 million from revenues in the same quarter of 1989. Net income for the quarter was $2.53 million, or 14 cents per limited partnership unit as compared to $4.21 million or 25 cents per limited partnership unit for the third quarter of 1989. Revenues decreased in the third quarter of 1990 when compared to the same period of 1989 primarily due to lower average weekly guest traffic in comparable stores, two fewer restaurants open during most of the quarter and the unmatched $1.10 million gain in the third quarter of 1989 mentioned above. Revenue decreases were partially offset by an increase in the average guest ticket in comparable stores primarily resulting from price increases and menu mix changes.

As previously announced, Furr's/Bishop's has entered into an agreement providing for creation of a corporate holding company in which each outstanding Preference Unit will be converted into the right to receive 75 cents in cash, .6 of a share of Convertible Preferred Stock and .25 of a share of Class A Common Stock of the new corporation. A special meeting of Preference Unitholders will be held to consider and vote on the proposed transaction.

WASHINGTON, (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed DeSoto Federal Savings and Loan Association, Mansfield, La., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, DeSoto Federal Savings Association, will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the oversight of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The receivership did not result in any interruption of DeSoto Federal's day-to-day operations. The institution and its one branch, which is located in Many, La., will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because DeSoto Federal was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition in that it had insufficient capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

DeSoto Federal Savings and Loan Association was chartered a federal mutual association in 1933, received its insurance of accounts in 1934 and had experienced substantial management stability since its inception.

DeSoto's condition was primarily due to the collapse of the oil industry and the decline in manufacturing in the Shreveport, La., area. In correlation to the drastic slump in the local economy, the quality of the thrift's assets declined. Classified assets totaled $6 million, or 9.2 percent of total assets, as of June 30, 1990. In addition, DeSoto reported net losses of $329,000 and $230,000 for the calendar year 1989 and the first eight months of 1990 respectively.

As of Aug. 31, 1990, DeSoto Federal Savings and Loan Association reported assets of $64.3 million, liabilities of $64.1 million and tangible capital of $229,000 for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 0.36 percent.

TRENTON, NJ (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - New Jersey Banking Commissioner Jeff Connor today approved the appointment of the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) as conservator for Riverside Savings Bank, SLA, located in Riverside, N.J., effective immediately. The RTC assumed control of the institution today switched it to a federal 2charter, and renamed it Riverside Federal Savings Bank.

"A recent examination by the Office of Thrift Supervision determined that the institution had serious commercial real estate loan portfolio problems," Connor said. "Its bottom line ran thoroughly in the red, and its capital position is eroded beyond repair. Riverside Savings Bank is insolvent." The commissioner stressed that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation fully insures the accounts of each depositor up to $100,000.

Riverside had assets totalling $181.6 million on June 30, 1990, and posted a loss of $12.5 million for the first two quarters of this year. The institution's tangible capital position continued to deteriorate from $3.1 million at year-end 1989 to a negative $17.0 million as of June 30, 1990. All of the savings and loan's $15.5 million in non-accrued loans was in construction and land, and it held $15.4 million in repossessed assets.

The institution was incorporated in 1886. Its main office is located on Scott Street in Riverside, and it maintains five branch offices in central New Jersey. There is no interruption in regular hours.

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - George D. Kennedy, chairman and chief executive officer of IMCERA Group Inc. (NYSE: IMA), told a meeting of the New York Society of Security Analysts here today that he expects strong earnings gains to continue throughout the current fiscal year. Operating margins are expected to improve over fiscal 1990 and should average a minimum of 15 percent through the mid-1990s.

C. Ray Holman, president and chief executive officer of Mallinckrodt Medical, reported he expects new product introductions and geographic expansion to fuel compound annual growth in sales through 1994 of approximately 19 percent and operating margins should exceed 18 percent also by 1994.

"Sales of Optiray(R), a nonionic contrast agent introduced 17 months ago, has exceeded expectations," he said. "A doubling of capacity should be completed by June 1991. We believe that the rate of U.S. conversion to nonionics is currently just under 50 percent." He also added that Ultraject(R), the new pre-filled plastic syringe, is being introduced this month for Optiray.

Other new products, including Albunex(R), an ultrasound contrast agent; MAG3(R), a renal imaging agent; and additions in blood gas monitoring systems are only a few of the new products which are expected to contribute to Mallinckrodt Medical's growth over the next few years.

Dr. M. Blakeman Ingle, IMCERA president and chief operating officer, described several new Pitman-Moore products awaiting FDA and USDA approval such as cattle feed additives, new coccidiocides, and Grolene(TM), a porcine somatotropin, which should contribute to a compound annual sales growth of about 12 percent through 1994. Capacity additions, geographic expansion and development of advanced aromatic fluorine intermediates are expected to contribute to a compound annual sales growth through 1994 of 11 percent for Mallinckrodt Specialty Chemicals.

IMCERA Group Inc., with net sales of approximately $1.4 billion in fiscal 1990 ended June 30, has three operating companies -- Mallinckrodt Medical, Mallinckrodt Specialty Chemicals and Pitman-Moore. IMCERA also owns approximately 38 percent of the common stock of IMC Fertilizer Group, Inc.

HARRISBURG, PA. (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Dauphin Deposit Corp. (NASDAQ: DAPN), a $3.4 billion, multi-bank holding company headquartered in Harrisburg, and Hopper Soliday Corp. (NYSE: HS), a financial services holding company headquartered in Philadelphia, announced today that they have reached an agreement which will result in Dauphin purchasing certain of Hopper's business activities for approximately $2.9 million.

The activities include Hopper's municipal finance, investment banking, institutional sales and general securities businesses located in Lancaster, Pa., and New York City. Prior to closing, they will be consolidated into an existing subsidiary of Hopper Soliday Corp.

Dauphin will then purchase the stock of that subsidiary, subsequently operating it as a wholly owned, NASD member broker dealer named "Hopper Soliday & Co., Inc.," with corporate headquarters in Lancaster. Dauphin's new subsidiary will also have an office in Philadelphia. Hopper Soliday Corp. will retain its other securities subsidiaries, including W.H. Newbold's Son & Co. Inc., a New York Stock Exchange member firm.

James D. Lowry, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Hopper Soliday Corp., said, "I believe this transaction has exceptional benefits for all of the parties, including our associates who will be joining this new subsidiary of Dauphin Deposit Corporation. Dauphin is a very healthy, well capitalized banking company. Combining Dauphin's financial strength with the professionalism of the people who will join the acquired subsidiary will enhance client opportunities."

William J. King, Dauphin's chairman and chief executive officer, noted, "These are businesses that a bank holding company such as ours needs to develop for the longer term. Unlike de novo entry, we will be starting with well-established businesses and a name, 'Hopper Soliday & Co., Inc.,' which is widely recognized in our market area. In addition, Robert L. Fryer Jr., who will be the subsidiary's chairman, president and chief executive officer, and his associates are well known and very experienced in both the securities and commercial banking industries. They have an outstanding reputation and strong market share."

King went on to observe that Dauphin would be undertaking these new activities on a scale consistent with its conservative nature, that Dauphin's current geographic market closely matches the territory served by Fryer and his associates, and that the acquired personnel have approached the market with the same sensitivity to regional culture and quality of service that Dauphin has always emphasized. He also noted that the municipal finance business being acquired has been the top underwriter of Pennsylvania general obligation bonds so far in 1990.

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - United Merchants and Manufacturers, Inc. (NYSE: UMM) announced today that it and two of its subsidiaries, Jonathan Logan, Inc. and United Merchants Trucking, Inc., have filed petitions for reorganization relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Wilmington, Delaware. Victoria Creations, Inc., an 83-percent owned subsidiary of United Merchants, is not involved in the reorganization and will continue to conduct business as usual.

The filing became necessary because the company was not able to repay the principal amount of $11.6 million of an issue of 4 percent convertible subordinated debentures that matured yesterday.

Under court authorization, United Merchants will continue to operate its businesses while the reorganization is pending, and all actions by creditors are stayed. The company will be allowed to use its cash and other resources at the operating level in the ordinary course.

Uzi Ruskin, president and chief executive officer of United Merchants, said that "After a thorough review of all alternatives, the company was compelled to take this action to preserve its assets, provide for continuing operations and protect the interests of its shareholders, creditors, customers, employees and suppliers."

Ruskin continued, "The high level of long-term debt has burdened the company for many years and during the last five years we were able to reduce our indebtedness by $115 million, primarily through asset sales, even in the face of generally adverse business conditions. The company's operations are all operating profitably at the operating income level at this time and in some cases our factories are on a seven day basis.

"We are developing a reorganization plan that will reduce long-term debt to a level that can be supported by continuing operations. Based on preliminary discussions with certain major creditors we are optimistic that our creditors will support such a plan, and that we will be able to emerge expeditiously from Chapter 11 as a financially stable organization."

WASHINGTON (NOV.2) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Boonslick Savings and Loan Association, Boonville, Mo., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, Boonslick Federal Savings and Loan Association, will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the management of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The takeover did not result in any interruption of Boonslick's day-to-day operations. The institution and its two branches in Fayette and California, Mo., will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Boonslick was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition in that it had insufficient capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

The institution's condition is due primarily to a high cost of funds, a severely depressed local real estate market and a weak board of directors that had neglected to put investment controls in place.

Three major activities triggered Boonslick's present situation. These were speculative trading in U.S. Treasury futures funded by reverse repurchase agreements; investment in a limited partnership that is troubled and non-earning; and deferral of $2.36 million in losses on the sale of low-interest fixed-rate loans.

The institution is insolvent in that it has negative tangible, core and risk-based capital.

As of June 30, 1990, Boonslick Savings and Loan Association reported assets of $72.8 million, liabilities of $73.2 million and tangible capital of negative $321,000, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 0.4 percent.

MOSCOW (NOV. 2) TASS - PRESIDENT MIKHAIL GORBACHEV, ADDRESSING STUDENTS AT A MEETING IN THE KREMLIN ON THURSDAY, FAVOURED THE IDEA OF CREATING A SPECIAL BODY DEALING WITH THE PROBLEMS OF STUDENTS.

GORBACHEV SAID THAT SOVIET YOUTH ARE CALLED UPON TO PLAY AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF SOVIET SOCIETY. HE SAID THAT THIS SOCIETY HAS VAST OPPORTUNITIES. BECAUSE OF ITS EXPANSES AND MANPOWER IT CAN BE ONE OF THE MOST DYNAMIC SOCIETIES AND THE STATE CAN BE AMONG THE MOST FLOURISHING.

AT THE SAME TIME, "ALL THIS DOES NOT PREVENT ONE FROM REALISING THE ACUTENESS OF THE PRESENT SITUATION, THE SOCIO-ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL INSTABILITY, ALMOST CHAOS, AND PAINFUL PROCESSES OF THE TRANSFORMATION OF A MULTIETHNIC STATE," GORBACHEV SAID.

"THIS IS A DECISIVE MOMENT, PERHAPS THE MOST IMPORTANT MOMENT IN NATIONAL HISTORY," GORBACHEV SAID. "THE MONTHS AHEAD WILL SEE THE TRANSITION TO A MARKET, WHICH WILL LAST A YEAR AND A HALF. MUCH SHOULD HAPPEN BEFORE NEXT AUTUMN."

GORBACHEV NOTED THAT THERE EXISTS THE DANGER OF DESTABILISATION.

"THERE IS NO ROOM FOR RETREAT. IF RETREAT CONTINUES, THE ECONOMY, STATE, POLITICAL STRUCTURES WILL DISINTEGRATE," GORBACHEV SAID. IN THIS CONNECTION, THE PRESIDENT BELIEVES THAT "SOME MEASURES OF A STRICT POLITICAL OR ADMINISTRATIVE CHARACTER BASED, NATURALLY, ON LEGALITY" SHOULD BE TAKEN.

VERY SERIOUS MEASURES TO CURB THE GROWTH OF MONETARY INCOMES AND RESTORE THE BALANCE BETWEEN THE CIRCULATION OF MONEY AND THE MASS OF COMMODITIES ARE TO BE TAKEN. IF THE PLANNED ACTIONS PROVE INEFFECTIVE AND THE SITUATION IS NOT STABILISED, EVEN STRICTER MEASURES SHOULD BE TAKEN," THE PRESIDENT SAID. "BUT THE SITUATION SHOULD BE TAKEN UNDER CONTROL WITHIN SEVERAL MONTHS SO THAT POSITIVE TASKS COULD BE RESOLVED IN A NORMAL WAY AND NEW FORMS OF ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL LIFE BE DEVELOPED IN A BALANCED FRAMEWORK".

REGARDING THE FORTHCOMING ANNIVERSARY OF THE OCTOBER REVOLUTION, GORBACHEV SAID: "WE ARE FOR PRESERVING TRADITIONS. THE CELEBRATION OF THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE GREAT OCTOBER SOCIALIST REVOLUTION IS ONE OF THESE TRADITIONS". HE SAID THAT SOVIET SOCIETY "INTENDS TO IMPLEMENT ALL TRANSFORMATIONS WITHIN THE FRAMEWORK OF SOCIALIST CHOICE." "OUR AIM IS SOCIALISM UNDERSTOOD CREATIVELY, TAKING INTO CONSIDERATION THE COUNTRY'S EXPERIENCE, THE EXPERIENCE OF CIVILISATION AND TODAY'S OPPORTUNITIES," GORBACHEV SAID.

MOSCOW (NOV. 2) TASS - THE 24-HOUR HUNGER STRIKE BY A GROUP OF MOSCOW STUDENTS NEAR THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION HALL, NOT FAR FROM THE KREMLIN, HAS ENDED. THE STUDENTS DEMANDED THE RESIGNATION OF THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT, THE NATIONALISATION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE YOUNG COMMUNIST LEAGUE AND COMMUNIST PARTY, THE DEPOLITISATION OF ALL SPHERES OF LIFE AND THE INTRODUCTION OF AN ALTERNATIVE MILITARY SERVICE.

THE HUNGER STRIKE WAS CALLED BY TWO RECENTLY ESTABLISHED INFORMAL STUDENT ORGANISATIONS -- THE MOSCOW STUDENT CLUB AND THE "ECHO" COMMITTEE FOR FOUNDING A YOUTH SOLIDARITY PARTY -- AND INVOLVED ABOUT 60 STUDENTS.

"THERE ARE NO POLITICAL OR EXTREMEST FORCES BEHIND US. THE DECISION TO GO ON A HUNGER STRIKE WAS TAKEN BY US INDEPENDENTLY," ANDREI MILLER, ONE OF THE LEADERS OF THE MOSCOW STUDENT CLUB, EMPHASISED IN A TASS INTERVIEW. ACCORDING TO THE STRIKERS, THERE WERE NO "EXCESSES" BETWEEN THEM AND MILITIA.

"WE ATTAINED ONE OF THE GOALS OF THE HUNGER STRIKE -- DREW PUBLIC ATTENTION TO OUR PROTEST ACTION," ALEXEI KIRYUSHIN, CO-CHAIRMAN OF THE MOSCOW STUDENT CLUB, TOLD TASS.

ASKED ABOUT FURTHER PLANS OF STUDENTS, HE SAID THAT STUDENTS HAVE NOT PLANNED ANY ACTION FOR THE NEAR FUTURE. IN PARTICULAR, THEY DO NOT INTEND TO PARTICIPATE IN ANY ACTIONS ON NOVEMBER 7, IN ORDER TO AVOID "BECOMING A PAWN IN ANYONE'S GAME," KIRYUSHIN SAID.

THE HUNGER STRIKERS TAKE VARIOUS VIEWS OF THE MEETING ON THURSDAY BETWEEN PRESIDENT MIKHAIL GORBACHEV AND REPRESENTATIVES OF STUDENTS. MOST STRIKERS BELIEVE THAT THOSE WHO WERE PRESENT DURING THE MEETING "WERE NOT GENUINE SPOKESPEOPLE FOR THE INTERESTS OF STUDENTS" AND THAT "THE MEETING WAS UNLIKELY TO HELP RESOLVE THE PROBLEMS OF STUDENTS."

VLADIMIR AFANASYEV, INSTRUCTOR AT THE IDEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE SOVIET COMMUNIST PARTY CENTRAL COMMITTEE, YEVGENY SAVOSTYANOV, ASSISTANT TO THE CHAIRMAN OF THE MOSCOW CITY SOVIET, AND GENNADY YAGODIN, CHAIRMAN OF THE USSR STATE COMMITTEE FOR PUBLIC EDUCATION, CAME TO THE HUNGER STRIKERS ON THURSDAY AND TALKED WITH THEM.

KHARKOV (NOV. 2) TASS - SOVIET AND AMERICAN SCIENTISTS HAVE MADE JOINTLY AN IMPORTANT STEP TOWARDS CONTROLLED THERMONUCLEAR SYNTHESIS. THIS WAS SHOWN BY A SOVIET-AMERICAN SEMINAR ON THE THEORY OF PLASMA INSTALLATIONS --STELLARATORS, THAT ENDED HERE TODAY. IT WAS ORGANISED ON THE BASIS OF THE LOCAL PHYSICAL-TECHNICAL INSTITUTE WORKING UNDER THE UKRAINIAN ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.

"OUR SPECIALISTS HAVE CREATED AND STARTED TO TEST STAGE BY STAGE THE HIGH-TEMPERATURE URAGAN-2M TORSOTRON OF A NEW DESIGN," DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF THE INSTITUTE O. PAVLICHENKO SAID. "IN DEEP VACUUM AND IN A STRONG MAGNETIC FIELD PLASMA WILL BE KEPT IN THE INSTALLATION, WHOSE TEMPERATURE WILL REACH 20 MILLION DEGREES. ACCORDING TO CALCULATIONS, THE HETEROGENEOUS NATURE OF THE MAGNETIC FIELD WILL BE REDUCED TO THE MINIMUM, THE MAXIMUM HEATING OF PLASMA WILL BE ENSURED AND ENERGY CONSUMPTION WILL BE REDUCED."

SOVIET AND AMERICAN THEORETICIANS ESTABLISHED JOINTLY WITH THE HELP OF MATHEMATICS THE OPTIMAL WORKING REGIMES OF THE INSTALLATION AND MADE UNNECESSARY THE PAINSTAKING CHECKING OF THE WAYS OF EXPLOITATION OF THE EQUIPMENT THAT LACK PERSPECTIVE.

EXPERIMENTS IN PLASMA PHYSICS ARE VERY EXPENSIVE. THIS IS WHY IT IS IMPORTANT TO POOL THE EFFORTS OF SPECIALISTS FROM VARIOUS COUNTRIES, SAID BENJAMIN CARRERAS, A PROMINENT AMERICAN SCIENTIST, A SENIOR RESEARCH WORKER AT THE THERMONUCLEAR BRANCH OF THE OAK RIDGE NATIONAL LABORATORY, TENNESSEE. THE KHARKOV TORSOTRON MAKES IT POSSIBLE TO CONDUCT VARIOUS EXPERIMENTS, FOR WHICH OTHER INSTALLATIONS CANNOT BE USED. ALTHOUGH COMPUTERS MADE MOST COMPLICATED CALCULATIONS FOR THE TORSOTRON AND SIMILAR INSTALLATIONS, THEY CANNOT GRASP THE TRUE MEANING OF PHYSICAL PROCESSES. THIS IS WHY THE NECESSITY AROSE TO DISCUSS THE OBTAINED RESULTS AND SOME TOPICAL PROBLEMS. I BELIEVE THAT URAGAN-2M BECAME AN IMPORTANT ELEMENT OF THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE INTERNATIONAL STELLARATOR PROGRAMME, HE SAID. ASIDE FROM THE SOVIET UNION, THE UNITED STATES, JAPAN, GERMANY, SPAIN AND AUSTRALIA ARE TAKING PART IN ITS IMPLEMENTATION.

TOKYO (NOV. 1) UPI - Two time bombs apparently planted as a protest against next week's coronation of Japan's new emperor ripped through a police dormitory, killing an officer and wounding six others, police said Friday.

The attack occurred as police reinforced security prior to the Nov. 12 enthronement ceremony for Emperor Akihito, which will be attended by more than 100 world leaders, including U.S. Vice President Dan Quayle.

Police said leftist extremists who have vowed to disrupt the coronation ceremony were apparently responsible for the bombing.

A spokesman for the MPD said the first explosion occurred at a garbage storage of the Seiwa Dormitory for policemen in the busy Shinjuku District at 10:53 p.m. Thursday. It was followed by another explosion five minutes later, the official said.

The explosions, which caused damage to the five-story dormitory, sent nearby residents dashing to the streets.

Police officer Ko Aoki, 48, who was on a patrol mission around the dormitory was fatally wounded by debris from the first explosion, the spokesman said.

Six people, including four policemen and two employes at the dormitory, were injured in the second explosion, the official said.

The Metropolitan Police Department said about 37,000 uniformed officers and plain clothesmen have been deployed at key posts, including the moated Imperial Palace, to guard against violence by extremists before and during the coronation cermony.

Police said two other time bombs planted on a steel net fence around the dormitory went off but caused no injuries.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (NOV. 2) UPI - Atlantis may be ready for launch on a secret military mission as early as Nov. 15, no more than six days behind schedule, if work to fix problems with the ship's spy satellite payload goes well, sources say.

In addition, NASA managers are leaning toward waiving an internal agency rule requiring three weeks between shuttle flights, a move that would allow the recently repaired shuttle Columbia to take off on schedule around Nov. 30.

One usually reliable source said agency officials decided Thursday to waive the rule, but that could not be immediately confirmed.

Atlantis and its five-man all-military crew were cleared Tuesday for blastoff on the 37th shuttle mission the night of Nov. 9 to carry a Pentagon spy satellite into orbit. But the Air Force announced an indefinite delay Wednesday, citing problems with the classified payload.

Sources initially said the flight faced a delay of at least a week to 10 days and possibly more than two weeks. Officials who asked not to be named said Thursday, however, that the problem did not appear to be as serious as they first believed and that Atlantis might be ready for flight as early as Nov. 15.

But under a Pentagon-imposed security blanket, NASA officials refused to discuss possible launch dates Thursday, saying when Atlantis takes off is up to the Air Force.

Engineers at nearby launch pad 39B, meanwhile, are readying the shuttle Columbia for blastoff on a 10-day astronomy mission that has been delayed since May by a series of hyrogen fuel leaks.

Before Atlantis was grounded, NASA managers hoped to launch Columbia around Nov. 30 in line with an internal space agency rule requiring three weeks between shuttle missions so data from one flight can be analyzed before launching the next.

But if NASA officials waive the three-week rule - and Atlantis takes off Nov. 15 - engineers at the Kennedy Space Center would be faced with launching two space shuttles within 15 days. But because Atlantis's mission is a classified Department of Defense flight, details about scheduling are difficult to confirm.

Even so, shuttle program director Robert Crippen said in a statement Thursday that Atlantis - mission STS-38 - still has priority over Columbia.

''At this time, we are continuing to proceed with the schedule to fly STS-38 before (Columbia),'' he said. ''I am optimistic about flying (Columbia) sometime in December.''

Crippen did not address the three-week rule, saying only that Columbia would not be launched on mission STS-35 until data from Atlantis's flight can be studied.

''A specific target launch date for (Columbia) will not be determined until after the flight readiness review has been conducted and performance data from the STS-38 mission has been analyzed,'' he said.

NASA managers are now in the final stages of developing a 1991 launch schedule and while the flight sequence appears to be solid, the dates may yet change. Here is a preliminary schedule of major 1991 events:

-March 7: Shuttle Discovery; Payload: Four unclassified Air Force experiments.

-April 11: Shuttle Atlantis; Payload: Gamma Ray Observatory.

-May 7: The new shuttle Endeavour is delivered to the Kennedy Space Center.

-May 16: Shuttle Columbia; Payload: Spacelab science module.

-July 11: Shuttle Discovery; Payload: A NASA Tracking and Data Relay comunications satellite.

-Aug. 4: Columbia is ferried to a Rockwell International facility in Palmdale, Calif., for five months of major modifications.

-Aug. 15: Shuttle Atlantis; Payload: An Air Force Defense Support Program early warning satellite.

-Nov. 14: Shuttle Discovery; Payload: An atmospheric research satellite.

-Dec. 12: Shuttle Atlantis; Payload: A materials processing Spacelab mission.

A final manifest is expected to be announced after new launch dates are set for the upcoming flights of Atlantis and Columbia.

In a two-sentence statement released Wednesday, the Air Force said Atlantis's flight would be delayed ''to resolve anomalies discovered during cargo testing. Details are classified and it's too early to predict a new launch date.''

Because the payload and all other details about the 37th shuttle mission are classified, it was not immediately possible to determine the nature of the problem or whether it involved the satellite or on-board support equipment.

(NOV. 2) UPI - The waiting game in the Persian Gulf entered its fourth month Friday with Iraq offering to let families visit Western hostages during the holidays and President Bush denying he was preparing the American people for war.

The government of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein denied Thursday that it was mistreating the foreign hostages it has been holding to discourage any possible military attack since it invaded oil-rich Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Bush sharpened his rhetoric during campaign stops in Massachusetts and Florida dismissing Saddam's pledge to allow holiday visitors for the hostages and saying, ''I don't think he'll win the humanitarian award for this.''

The president warned that the time for diplomatic pressure was running short but also denied he was ''trying to prepare our country for war'' and declared he ''desperately'' wanted a peaceful resolution to the gulf crisis.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters that Bush is speaking out because ''if we have to take dramatic action, we want the American people to know why.''

''We want to prepare the American people for every eventuality,'' Fitzwater said, but he quickly added that the administration still hopes the gulf crisis will be resolved peacefully.

The State Department, meanwhile, said the U.N.-backed economic sanctions are beginning to seriously affect Iraq's economy but have not had any real effect on Saddam's resolve to end his 4-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

Reacting to Saddam's offer to let relatives see the hostages at Christmas, Fitzwater asked, ''Why doesn't he let the hostages come home? That would be the best way, or better yet, Thanksgiving.'' Fitzwater said he had no guidance on whether Americans should accept Iraq's offer.

Britain's Foreign Office called the offer ''cynical propaganda.'' However, an official at the Iraqi Embassy in London said two families had contacted the mission about obtaining visas to Iraq.

''It's a disgraceful example of Iraq exploiting the feelings of relatives of hostages at a time of particular importance of family life, that is, Christmas '' a British official said. ''All hostages should be freed immediately.''

A source at Iraq's Foreign Minister told the official Iraqi News Agency, ''The British Foreign Office reaction to this humanitarian position reflects the impudent colonialist mentality in dealing with affairs.''

Iraq announced it would release four sick U.S. hostages after intervention from the American-Arab Fellowship for reconciliation.

''President Saddam Hussein has ordered the release of four sick American guests hosted by Iraq in response to an appeal by the visiting delegation of the American-Arab fellowship for reconciliation,'' the INA report said.

A top Palestine Liberation Organization official in Amman, Jordan, said Iraq would free all the hostages if it is guaranteed there will be no military action to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis. The PLO official said Iraq also wants assurances that discussions for a political solution will begin.

Iraq's Foreign Ministry told its embassies around the world to issue visas to families of foreign nationals held at economic and military installations. Iraqi forces seized the foreigners after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent U.S.-led international military buildup in Saudi Arabia.

''The Foreign Ministry issued instructions to ... grant entry visas to Iraq to families of the foreigners hosted in Iraqi vital installations if they wanted to visit them on the occasion of Christmas and New Year's,'' the Iraqi News Agency said.

The offer came a day after Bush said he had ''had it'' with Iraq's treatment of the captive Americans.

INA quoted an official spokesman as denying charges the foreigners, estimated to number slightly fewer than 4,000, were being mistreated, and he accused the United States of using the situation as a pretext for a possible military strike. There are about 700 American men in Kuwait and Iraq.

''The U.S. administration tends to escalate the situation in the region through fabricating pretexts and lies to prepare for a military aggression against Iraq,'' INA quoted an official spokesman as saying.

An Iraqi newspaper confirmed reports Thursday that Iraq was in the ''highest state of preparedness for a battle.''

In other developments:

-NATO said eight ships from alliance nations are preparing to sail for the eastern Mediterranean to support the multinational forces in the gulf.

-The bodies of 10 U.S. sailors killed in a boiler room explosion aboard the USS Iwo Jima were brought back to Dover Air Force Base, Del.

-Denmark's former Social Democratic Prime Minister Anker Jorgensen said he will travel to Baghdad in an attempt to negotiate the release of 22 Danish hostages.

-Episcopalian Cardinal Albert Decourtray, the archbishop of Lyon, said that if the choice in the gulf is between war and injustice he would choose war.

-Britain's Queen Elizabeth added her voice to the international condemnation of Saddam, declaring his invasion of Kuwait would not be allowed to succeed.

-Switzerland allowed an Iraqi Airways cargo aircraft to land at Geneva to pick up 15 tons of drugs and other medical supplies.

CINCINNATI (NOV. 2) UPI - President Bush, his GOP coattails apparently shredded, insists he isn't concerned by the big drop in his polls.

''When things were soaring like eagles, I said 'Don't believe in polls.' And now, I think I'm entitled to say the same thing,'' said Bush, on a six-day cross-country tour for fellow Republicans in next Tuesday's election.

''We'll be all right,'' Bush said Thursday during a stop in Orlando, Fla. Maybe. But polls show Bush has fallen from public favor, in large part, because of the sluggish economy and the big budget fiasco in Washington that ended in a White House-approved, tax-raising spending package - opposed by most Republicans in the Democrat-dominated Congress.

A Newsweek poll released Sunday showed Bush with the lowest approval rating of his administration, 48 percent, down by more than 20 points from just a month ago.

Bush, politically battered and bruised but displaying plenty of spirit, was to appear at a GOP fundraiser in Cincinnati Friday, and then go on to Republican events in Rochester, Minn., Sioux City, Iowa, and Thousand Oaks, Calif. The president also plans to make a campaign stop in New Mexico and then spend a few days on the political stump in his adopted homestate of Texas.

He is to return to Washington next Tuesday, Election Day.

Ohio Democrats are crowing that they have made significant gains in the state's gubernatorial race due to the president's big fall.

But Republican nominee George Voinovich, former mayor of Cleveland, still holds the lead over Democrat Anthony Celebrezze, and insists Bush remains a campaign plus in Ohio.

''We're saying in a loud and clear voice that the welcome mat is out for the president,'' said Brian Berry, head of the Ohio Republican Party. ''We're running towards George Bush, not away from him.''

Bush, on campaign stops Thursday in Massachusetts and Florida, again blamed Democrats for the tax increases and said he could have gotten a better budget deal if there were more Republicans in Congress.

''We need more Republicans at every level of government,'' he declared.

Last year, with Bush's polls near a record 80 percent, Republicans saw the 1990 election as a good chance to win some more seats in Congress.

But now, with Bush polls down, those hopes have been virtually dashed, and Republicans are hoping to hold even or at least keep losses below double-digits.

Democrats now hold a 248-175 margin in the House, with two vacancies, and a 55-45 lead in the Senate. They also have the most governors, 29 to 21.

(NOV. 2) UPI - Chicago's Steve Larmer was armed with a new contract Thursday night to help lead the Blackhawks to victory. Boston's Cam Neely led the Bruins to a triumpharmed with a new look.

At Chicago, Larmer scored his 11th and 12th goals of the season to stave off a Quebec comeback and give the Blackhawks a 6-2 victory over the Nordiques.

Meanwhile at Boston Garden, Neely overcame the restrictions of a protective shield to cover his broken nose and swollen face to score his second goal 3:14 into overtime, liftting the Bruins to a controversial 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Blues.

''It feels great,'' said Neely, still with one very black eye and a discolored face under both eyes after his operation to correct the broken nose last Saturday. ''But I don't like to have to go through all this just to get a couple of goals.''

Like Boston's last home victory, last night's triumph was tainted with a non-goal controversy.

With 8:02 to play in the third period, St. Louis winger Rich Sutter took a slap shot from the right circle that hit the crossbar and dropped straight down at the red line.

The St. Louis players on the ice argued the puck crossed the goal line. Referee Kerry Fraser, after speaking with goal judge Vic Rasmussen, ruled the puck hit the crossbar and did not cross the line. Replays were inconclusive.

''There shouldn't have been overtime - plain and simple,'' St. Louis Coach Brian Sutter said. ''You could shoot 100 pucks at the crossbar and it'll never come out like that again.''

Last Saturday, Chicago appeared to tie the game in the closing seconds, but referee Andy vanHellemond ruled the puck did not cross the line and time expired. Boston won 5-4, leading Blackhawks Coach Mike Keenan to label the Bruins' off-ice officials ''cheaters.''

There was no doubt in Chicago's victory over Quebec after Larmer scored two third-period goals after the Nordiques had closed within 3-2.

Larmer, who Tuesday signed a four-year contract worth a reported $3.1 million, gave Chicago some breathing room by beating goaltender Ron Tugnutt from the right circle with 12:40 left. Jeremy Roenick, who earlier scored a goal, set up Larmer with a nice pass through the slot.

Larmer connected for his second goal with 1:48 remaining on a bullet from the left circle, again with Roenick assisting.

''Things are just happening right now,'' Larmer said. ''I don't know that I'm doing anything differently that I've done in any other year. It seems I'm shooting the puck as well as I've ever shot it. Just right now things seem to be going well, so it's just a matter of running with it.''

The Nordiques, the worst team in the NHL a year ago, suffered their fifth straight loss and dropped to 3-8-3. Chicago has won four of its last five games.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Detroit nipped Toronto 5-4, Philadelphia doubled up Minnesota 6-3, Calgary overtook Winnipeg 2-1 and Vancouver edged New Jersey 2-1.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Red Wings 5, Maple Leafs 4

At Detroit, rookie Johan Garpenlov scored twice and Steve Yzerman collected his 300th career goal. Detroit recorded its seventh victory in eight home games this season. Toronto suffered its ninth straight road loss over two seasons.

Flyers 6, North Stars 3

At Philadelphia, rookies Mike Ricci and Dale Kushner each scored for the first time in their NHL careers to help the Flyers snap a four-game losing streak. The North Stars remained winless on the road this season, with a record of 0-7-1.

Flames 2, Jets 1

At Calgary, Alberta, Joel Otto scored on the rebound of a missed shot at 14:57 of the third period to give the Flames the victory. Otto poked Al MacInnis' rebound by goaltender Stephane Beauregard to snap a 1-1 tie.

Canucks 2, Devils 1

At Vancouver, British Columbia, Brian Bradley broke a tie with his goal at 6:27 of the third period, leading the Canucks to victory. The goal was created when New Jersey's Alexi Kasatonov failed to clear the puck from the Devils' zone, allowing Bradley to intercept and beat goaltender Chris Terreri.

Iraq says it is sending home four more American men who are ailing. But all Iraq wants to do for the approximately four-thousand other hostages in Iraq and Kuwait is let their families visit them for Christmas. President Bush advises families against making the trip. A Palestine Liberation Organization official says Iraq will free all the hostages if it gets a guarantee that it WON'T be attacked.

President Bush still blames the Democrats for the tax increases in the new budget. Bush says he could have negotiated a better deal if there were more Republicans in Congress. The White House says President Bush will attend the 34-nation Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe. It will be in Paris November 19th to the 21st. The highlight of the conference probably will be the signing of a conventional arms agreement by Presidents Bush and Gorbachev.Bush also plans to go to Egypt before returning to Washington around November 24th.

NEW YORK (NOV. 2) UPI - The exhumation of the remains of Pierre Toussaint who lived a life of service, even caring for his former slave masters, was begun in Manhattan and may lead to his becoming America's first black saint.

Cardinal John O'Connor, the head of the archdiocese of New York, said the exhumation of Toussaint's 137-year-old remains, which began Thursday in a Manhattan graveyard, was a step toward his being canonized.

Toussaint, a native of what is now Haiti, would be the first black American declared by the Catholic Church as a holy man capable of interceding with God on behalf of sinners. He died in 1853 after a life dedicated to caring for the poor and those with deadly sicknesses, including his former slave owners.

His adopted daughter and wife are believed to be buried there with him.

Church officials credit Toussaint with lifting some of the religious and racial prejudice that existed in New York at the time.

Consideration of his canonization emerges at a time when American cities are racked by racial battles that haven generated into violence.

It also is likely to be supported by thousands of blacks segmented in small Catholic churches nationwide who seek recognition and leadership in a church, in which the some leaders themselves were slaveholders.

Toussaint's exhumation began in a graveyard adjacent to Old St. Patrick's Church in lower Manhattan's Little Italy after a prayer ceremony attended by neighborhood parishioners, reporters and church officials.

''This could be a great day for the city of New York, not just for the church '' said O'Connor. ''It would be magnificent if he was eventually declared a saint.''

O'Connor said the exhumation begins the process of investigating Toussaint's life to determine whether the archidiocese will recommend that he be canonized but the digging up of the remains does not guarantee that he will become a saint.

Toussaint's name can be translated as ''all saints'' in French, and even though the exhumation began on All Saints Day, O'Connor said it was a coincidence not planned.

Church officials did not know how long the canonization process would take.

''The church is never in a hurry to do this, because the Church does not try to create saints,'' O'Connor said.

Doctors who have volunteered to supervise the exhumation process said they did not know what to expect once the grave was completely excavated. They said they would attempt to identify Toussaint's remains and those of his adopted daughter and wife, believed to be buried with him.

''We could find nothing, bones or an entire body,'' said Dr. Victor Tchertkoff of the New York Medical College.

After the exhumation, Toussaint's remains will be kept temporarily at a crypt at Old St. Patrick's Church, before being moved to St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue for re-internment.

Toussaint was born a slave in Haiti in 1766 to a wealthy plantation owner who later moved the family to New York. When his owner lost his fortune in the French Revolution, Toussaint, who attended mass daily, supported the family by working as a hairdresser for wealthy New Yorkers. He won his freedom in 1804.

Toussaint became known for caring for the sick, especially in sections of the city ravaged by the yellow fever and cholera plagues, and for his explanations of the Catholic faith.

BEIJING (NOV. 2) UPI - China has quietly begun raising the state-set consumer prices of many daily necessities in a risky economic reform move that is already prompting hoarding and price speculation among residents of Beijing.

The government has made no detailed public announcement about the potentially disruptive hikes, beyond statements saying only that price reform is an economic necessity. But interviews around the capital confirmed the increases are being implemented.

Officials fear a return of the widespread panic-buying that struck Beijing in the summer of 1988, when the government tried to free prices of staples. The government imposed a nationwide austerity program that fall to rein in prices.

The State Price Commission, contacted by telephone, declined to discuss the increases, as did Beijing city government officials.

But Beijing residents, store clerks and traders said home heating coal, liquid propane and cotton goods had already gone up, and price hikes in other basic goods were in the works.

The latest hike came Wednesday, when the price of cotton clothing rose 20 percent. Widespread rumors early this week sent droves of worried shoppers to state-run stores where they snapped up cotton goods by the bale.

''Everything is up 20 percent today,'' a Beijing Department Store clerk said as she retagged undergarments that Chinese wear in layers to ward off the brutal northern China winter.

''People seem to be taking it in stride,'' the clerk added. ''But you should have been here before the increase yesterday. It was mayhem. You should have seen the throngs.''

Price reform is the most sensitive of the market-oriented changes envisioned by the government. China has kept prices in its restive cities artificially low for decades through steadily increasing government subsidies, forcing huge spending deficits.

Since the government crushed the pro-democracy demonstrations of spring 1989, officials have paid more attention to ensuring stability than restructuring the economy, and have shelved most measures that could spark unrest.

But ballooning deficits and lack of vigor in China's balky economy are forcing the government's hand. Transport, freight and postage have already gone up, and officials have indicated staple foods - whose low prices have long been sacred to avert social unrest - will also rise.

''This is certainly a step in the right direction, although full deregulation would be a better step because that way prices could find their own level,'' said a Western diplomat who monitors China's economy.

''It's been a tremendous drain on the government budget to keep these prices so artifically low for so long,'' he said.

The diplomat said the increases would add about 1 percent to November's inflation rate, but said this is ''easily manageable'' and well within China's 1990 target of single-digit inflation.

Prices are being raised one-by-one in different sectors of the economy in an apparent attempt to ease consumers into acceptance of the painful higher-priced reality.

Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin expressed the government's conundrum succinctly this week during a tour of Liaoning province in China's industrial northeast.

''Without political stability it is impossible to boost the economy, and, in turn, without economic growth it would be difficult to maintain political stability,'' Jiang said.

The price of the charcoal bricks that Chinese use to cook and to heat their homes was raised about 50 percent, within a family's state-set ration. Prices tripled for purchases beyond the quota.

Fees also are being raised for electricity, natural gas and water. Price increases for sugar and other staples are said to be planned.

For many capital residents, uncertainty about prices is as unbearable as the actual increases. Free-market foodsellers said they have been bracing for a doubling of the rent the city charges for their tiny stalls.

A private egg vendor said her rent was scheduled to jump to $76 a month from $38 in November, but she said she had not been billed as of Nov. 1. She also said she knew of no plans to raise the price of eggs to help her offset her rent increase.

''All we can do is wait,'' she said, shrugging nervously inside a huge, green cotton jacket.

Some residents have taken matters into their own hands.

On a corner in the bustling Dongsi shopping district, a young woman did a brisk business as she noisily hawked pure cotton socks at 37 cents a pair, beating the new state-set price by 10 cents.

''I bought four cases of these socks yesterday before the price went up - 800 pairs in all,'' she said, pointing to the cardboard boxes she was using as a makeshift display stand.

On Beijing's main shopping drag, Wangfujing, a deeply tanned southern Chinese man and his father struggled under two sacks containing 100 cotton blouses they had just bought from a private vendor.

Even though they made the purchase after the price increase, they were confident of making a profit.

''We got a lower price because we bought from a private seller,'' the younger man said. ''Where we are from these Beijing garments are considered the best in China. We will take these back, see what the state price is there, then set our price accordingly.''

(NOV. 2) UPI - A winter storm chilled the western mountains Friday with snow and high winds while Indian summer warmed the Midwest and East sending temperatures soaring and residents outdoors.

Snow blanketed the Rocky Mountains in Colorado, Wyoming and Idaho as temperatures plummeted in one of the first severe storms of the season. Some mountains were expected to get several feet of snow by the time the storm ended over the weekend.

A winter storm watch was posted for southeast Wyoming and a heavy snow warning remained in force for the east slopes and wind river range. Early Friday 6 inches of snow had fallen on Lander and 3 inches on Casper.

Winds topping 30 mph accompanied the storm, which also brought up to a foot of snow to the southwest mountains of Colorado. Storm warnings were in effect for the Sangre de Christo Mountains and the northeast plains.

Temperatures throughout the region, which had been mild earlier in the week, dropped well below freezing, falling into the 20s during the night in around Pocatello, Idaho, and creating slick roads following light snow and rain Thursday evening.

Indian summer brought record warm weather to Huron, S.D., where temperatures rose to 78 degrees Thursday, breaking by 1 degree a 103- year-old record.

The warm temperatures stretched to the East Coast with thermometers rising into the 70s and even hitting 80 in Kentucky and other states.

Clear skies covered New York City with lows in the 50s, while temperatures dipped into the 30s in the suburbs surrounding Boston. Patchy fog and light winds covered southern New Jersey.

ATHENS, Ga. (NOV. 2) UPI - The federal government's chief auditor says budget writers must scrutinize the need for every domestic and defense spending program instead of just aiming for mandatory deficit-reduction targets.

U.S. Comptroller General Charles A. Bowsher said Thursday that unless the budget writers begin close scrutiny of the country's spending habits, the government still will be treading in a pool of red ink when the five-year budget deal struck this week by Congress runs out. And the depth of the federal deficit will be greater than ever, he added.

''What we need are tough program decisions, not arbitrary targets'' as legislated by the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction requirements, Bowsher said.

Calling the new budget package ''a starting point,'' Bowsher said balancing the budget is still ''very do-able.''

But he told an audience of 400 University of Georgia students and faculty that unless the federal government gets its spending habits in check ''in the next few years,'' nothing short of a national sales tax could deliver the revenue needed to cover the federal tab.

''I strongly say we need to ask some tough questions,'' said Bowsher, who is head of the General Accounting Office and in the 10th year of a 15-year appointment.

''We're going to have to ask, 'What can we do without?''' he said, pointing to defense spending in particular. Fighter planes such as the F-15 cost $15 million in the 1970s, but now bombers such as the B-2 are budgeted for $1 billion each, he said.

''We have to look at these weapons systems,'' he said. ''Do we really need them? If so, can we (afford them)?.''

Bowsher said the agency's most recent estimate concluded the government would have to cut the deficit by $1 trillion in the next seven years to rise out of the red. The budget plan adopted by Congress reduces the deficit by $490 billion over five years.

In September, the GAO reported to Congress that the budget deficit for this fiscal year stands at $400 billion, which includes current costs for the savings and loan bailout and Operation Desert Shield and excludes money set aside in the Social Security trust fund, he said.

Two costly events this year, which threaten to negate the deficit- reduction agreement, now make the GAO's $1-trillion estimate seem optimistic, Bowsher said.

With or without hostilities, Operation Desert Shield will add significantly to the defense budget. And the U.S. military movements in the Middle East are occurring even as the country teeters on the brink of a recession, if it hasn't arrived already, he said.

''We're trying to fix the budget deficit at the least desirable time, '' he said.

NAIROBI, Kenya (NOV. 2) UPI - Rwandan President Juvenal Habyarimana, in his most conciliatory statement since the civil war began a month ago, said he would welcome home thousands of Rwandan refugees and declared the country ready for multi-party democracy, official Radio Randa reported Friday.

Armed Rwandan rebels, exiled in Uganda since they fled tribal killings and food shortages at home 30 years ago, invaded the tiny east African nation, vowing to overthrow Habyarimana's largely Hutu government.

Mostly from the minority Tutsi tribe, the rebels had accused the government of being corrupt and regionalist.

There are more than 500,000 Rwandan refugees around the landlocked country, with some 80,000 in neighboring Uganda alone.

Habyarimana, pointing out Rwanda was the most densely populated country in Africa, had previously closed his borders to these refugees, asking the host nations to grant them citizenship.

Under considerable regional and international pressure to resolve the war and the attendant refugee issue, Habyarimana, claiming his forces had wiped out the rebels, made a political U-turn.

''Rwanda will do all it can so those Rwandan refugees wanting to return to their homeland can do so. The refugees must be genuine. People who love their motherland. Not traitors,'' Habyarimana told the radio, monitored in Nairobi.

He said a meeting was planned to discuss the refugee problem, but did not specify who would be party to the talks or when they would take place.

''I support the suggestion that multi-parties should be introduced in Rwanda. Rwanda is ripe for multi-parties. Multi-parties will show we have gone a step further in the country's democracy and pave the way for citizens to present their views without fear,'' he said.

There was no immediate reaction from the rebel Rwandese Patriotic Front.

After a month of heavy fighting along the northern Rwanda-Uganda border, which diplomats have said killed scores of civilians and troops, this week government forces claimed they had pushed the rebels back into Uganda.

Unconfirmed reports from Uganda, however, have said the RPF rebels only had tactically withdrawn to the Akagera National Park from where they were planning a new offensive.

Belgium, Rwanda's former colonial ruler, launched a diplomatic shuttle between Rwanda, Uganda, Burundi, Zaire and Kenya in an effort to broker a peace agreement as soon as war broke out.

The last of 550 Belgian troops sent to Rwanda to protect Belgian nationals were to pull out Friday. Political analysts say rebels may take advantage of this withdrawal to attack the capital, Kigali, 45 miles southwest of Akagere Park.

Zairean President Mobuto Sese Seko last week took up the position of mediator in the conflict. With the heads of state of Uganda, Burundi and Rwanda, he decided to send a four-nation peace monitoring force to Rwanda. The force has not yet arrived.

President Bush begins the second day of his cross-country campaign for Republican candidates in Cincinnati... where he'll appear at a G-O-P fundraiser.

Then it's on to Rochester, Minnesota, in the afternoon and Sioux City, Iowa, in the evening. Other stops Bush will be making during his six-day swing include Thousand Oaks, California, and New Mexico... before spending a few days on the political stump in his adopted homestate of Texas.

He'll return to Washington Tuesday, Election Day, after he casts his ballot in Houston.

Ohio Democrats are claiming that they have made significant gains in the state's governor's race due to the president's big drop in recent popularity polls.

But Republican gubernatorial nominee George Voinovich, former mayor of Cleveland, still holds the lead over Democrat Anthony Celebrezze... and insists Bush remains a campaign plus in Ohio.

The president WON'T be letting grass grow under his feet. The White House says Bush will attend the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe... to be held in Paris November 19th through the 21st.

The 34-nation gathering is a follow-up to the Helsinki Conference in 1974. It's expected to be highlighted by the signing of a conventional arms agreement by Bush and Soviet President Gorbachev.

Besides France... the president also will travel to Germany, as well as to Saudi Arabia, where he'll spend Thanksgiving Day with U-S troops. Bush is also expected to fly to Egypt before returning to Washington around November 24th.

(NOV. 2) UPI - The bitter strike against the Daily News has entered its second week with NO end in sight.

In a show of support for the strikers, 13-thousand people massed outside the Daily News headquarters in midtown Manhattan last night to demonstrate against News management. Leaders of the city's largest unions vowed to choke the paper if it does not reach an accord with the strikers.

Local Teamsters leader Barry Feinstein said ''NOT one Teamsters truck will deliver newsprint to the Daily News,'' and ''NOT one Teamsters truck will deliver ink to the Daily News.''

More rallies are scheduled for today, with groups ranging from unionized firefighters to minority journalists planning to join the pickets outside News headquarters.

Union leaders also said that beginning this weekend, they would begin boycotting businesses that advertise in the paper.

Yesterday, Daily News management rejected a possible sale offer for the embattled tabloid.

Theodore Kheel, an unpaid adviser to the nine striking unions, said he has put together a group of people who would like to purchase the News from its current owners, the Tribune Company of Chicago, and publish it in a joint arrangement with the New York Post.

Kheel said the deal he proposed to Tribune Company President Charles Brumback involves giving News employees 20 percent equity in the paper.

One of the few Hispanic federal judges in the nation received a six- month prison sentence yesterday.

Federal District Judge Robert Aguilar was sentenced in San Francisco for lying to the F-B-I and disclosing wire-tap information to a mobster.

Aguilar had a reputation as a liberal jurist during his 10 years on the bench. Aguilar's defense was an attack on the government... accusing federal agents of persecuting him in retaliation for his sometimes anti- government rulings.

U-S District Judge Louis Bechtle was transferred from Philadelphia to preside over the trial. After sentencing Aguilar to six months, he ordered Aguilar to pay a 21-hundred-dollar fine and give one-thousand hours of community service when he is released from prison.

Bechtle noted that Aguilar is beginning the process of impeachment and disbarment as a lawyer.

Aguilar will remain free without bail while he appeals his conviction.

(NOV. 2) UPI - The standoff in the Persian Gulf is three months old today.

Iraq is offering to let the families of its so-called foreign ''guests'' visit their loved ones during the holidays. In reaction to Saddam Hussein's offer, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater asked- ''Why doesn't he let the hostages come home?''

Britain's Foreign Office called the offer ''cynical propaganda.''

During campaign stops in Massachusetts and Florida yesterday, Bush dismissed Saddam's offer... saying- ''I DON'T think he'll win the humanitarian award for this.''

The president warned that the time for diplomatic pressure is running short. But he denied he was ''trying to prepare'' the country for war and said he ''desperately'' wanted a peaceful resolution to the crisis.

Baghdad also announced yesterday it will release four sick U-S hostages after intervention from an American-Arab fellowship group. A top P-L-O official in Amman, Jordan, says Iraq would free all the hostages if it is guaranteed that there will be NO military action to end the standoff.

In other developments, the State Department said the U-N-backed economic sanctions are beginning to seriously affect Iraq's economy. But department officials say the measures have NOT had any real effect on Saddam's resolve to end his three-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

Police in Japan say leftist extremists opposed to the coronation of a new emperor apparently have begun trying to keep their promise to stop the ceremony.

Two bombs exploded at a police dormitory in Tokyo last night. One officer was killed and six other people were wounded. Police say two other time bombs planted on a steel net fence around the dormitory went off, but did NOT hurt anyone.

The enthronement of Emperor Akihito is scheduled November 12th. More than 100 world leaders plan to attend. Vice President Quayle will represent the United States.

(NOV. 2) UPI - Scientists report that early animals crawled out of the water and began living on the land at least 15 Million years earlier than had been widely thought.

The researchers discovered fossilized remains of two centipedes and one spider-like creature in England's famed Ludlow Bone Bed that indicate animals roamed the land at least 414 Million years ago.

Before the discovery, the oldest widely accepted fossils of land- dwelling animals, found in Scotland, dated back about 398 Million years ago.

Paul Seldern of England's University of Manchester co-authored the study published in the journal Science. Selden's team did NOT find whole animals... just legs from the centipedes and the hard outer shell of the spider-like creature. But he said that was evidence enough.

Selden said ''You could tell by looking at the centipede's type of leg that mechanically it would only work on land, NOT water.''

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY (NOV. 2) UPI - The government, attacked for a lack of decisive action on the economy, will propose radical reforms next month to liberalize import laws and slash subsidies for basic goods, officials said in remarks published Friday.

The measures would include the dismantling of state-run monopolies, including the Hungarian petroluem company, and the lifting of controls on many imports, Janos Martonyi, undersecretary of the Ministry for International Economic Affairs told the newspaper Nepszabadsag.

Another leading economic official, in a separate interview, said prices for energy, food and transport will increase as government subsidies are radically slashed or eliminated.

Gyorgy Matolcsy, a top adviser to Prime Minister Jozsef Antall, warned the reforms would be extremely painful in the short term.

He said the annual inflation rate would likely surpass 35 percent, unemployment would quadruple and one in three businesses would go bankrupt.

''It hasn't yet dawned on the Hungarian people just how much the world has changed around them,'' the Nepszabadsag quoted Matolcsy as saying.

The radical measures, to be introduced in parliament next month for required approval by the lawmakers, represent a dramatic shift for the government, which has been criticized for its cautious approach to economic reform.

The official news agency MTI described the government's new policy as a ''big bang'' approach to Hungary's economic problems.

Matolcsy said the nationwide protests last month over a government- imposed rise in gasoline prices led government ministers to conclude the transition to a market economy must be accelerated.

He referred to protests by taxi and truck drivers who blocked border crossings and major transportation routes for three days to protest increases of as much as 70 percent for gasoline. The protests ended when the government agreed to scale back the price hike and to introduce legislation liberalizing gasoline prices.

Martonyi said the proportion of Hungary's imports which are to be liberalized would be raised next year from 70 to 92 percent and restrictions of imports of oil and gasoline will be lifted.

At the same time, the government would abolish the monopoly of the state-owned National Oil and Gas Trust, as well as that of state-run firms which control import of minerals and other raw materials.

To encourage new ventures, the government also will propose a nearly 40 percent cut in social security taxes paid by companies and a 10 percent reduction in personal income taxes, MTI said. In addition, tax laws will be amended to give incentive for investment, it said.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) UPI - The nation's unemployment rate remained unchanged at 5.7 percent in October, but the Labor Department said Friday the overall job market showed further weakness during the month.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said large job losses in the construction and services industries were offset partially by only a slight downturn in non-farm payroll employment.

Total civilian employment slipped to 117.7 million in October from 117.8 million the month before. The government said employment has dropped 700,000 since mid-year after gaining 500,000 jobs during the first half of the year.

The civilian labor force, which stands at 124.8 million, has shown no growth since the spring, despite increases in the working age population. As a result fewer teenagers are entering the job market. The number of adult women entering the work force also edged down after a long upward trend, the government said.

Non-farm payroll declined by 68,000 jobs as substantial job losses in construction, manufacturing and retail trade offset gains in some services and state and local government positions.

The greatest job loss during the month came in the construction industry, which lost 80,000 jobs during the month. A building slowdown, largely a result of declines in the overall economy, has caused a loss of 185,000 construction jobs in the past five months, the government said.

Manufacturing employment slipped by 60,000 jobs in October, continuing a downward trend that has seen the nation's factories cut 175,000 workers in the past three months. Employment in this sector has been reduced by 580,000 jobs since January 1989.

Trouble continued to follow the retail industry as well with 50,000 jobs lost in October after two smaller monthly declines. Wholesale trade companies lost 10,000 jobs during the month while makers of durable goods reduced their work forces by 25,000.

But the overall service industry gained 95,000 jobs in October, with much of the gain coming from health service jobs. Other areas of improvement included social services and private employment.

The average workweek for production and nonsupervisory workers fell by half an hour during the month to 34.2 hours. Average hourly earnings for these workers remained unchanged in October at $10.17. Average weekly hours, however, fell $4.07 - or 1.4 percent - to $349.85.

But for the year, hourly and weekly wages have gained: 3.7 percent and 2.5 percent, respectively.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 2) UPI - The Index of Leading Economic Indicators, a barometer of future economic activity, declined 0.8 percent in September in yet another warning sign of tough times ahead, the government said Friday.

The drop, in line with forecasts by private analysts, follows a revised decline of 1.2 percent in August. In July, the index was unchanged.

Three or more consecutive negative quarters in the index indicate the danger of an impending recession, although the United States has seen the index fall into that pattern in recent years and not wind up in a downturn.

Nine of the 11 indicators that make up the index contributed to the decline, while one indicator - contracts and orders for plant and equipment - made a positive contribution, the Commerce Department said.

The average workweek, meanwhile, was unchanged during September.

The negatives, listed from the largest contributor to the smallest, were stock prices, manufacturers' new orders for consumer goods and materials, average weekly initial jobless claims, building permits, consumer expectations, change in manufactuers' unfilled orders, money supply, vendor performance and sensitive materials prices.

For the last six months the index has increased 0.2 percent, but for the last 12 months the government barometer has dropped 1.1 percent, according to the data compiled by the department's Economics and Statistics Administration.

The composite index of coincident indicators, a monthly approximation of aggregate economic activity, fell 0.4 percent in September after declining 0.1 percent in August and dropping 0.2 percent in July.

The composite index of lagging indicators, which confirms movements in the conicident index, was down 0.2 percent in September after dropping 0.5 percent in August and increasing 0.5 percent in July.

The data are subject to revision.

(NOV. 2) UPI - Stops in three states are on the campaign agenda for President Bush today. Bush appears at a G-O-P fundraiser in Cincinnati this morning, and will then move on to other events in Rochester, Minnesota... and Sioux City, Iowa. Before election day on Tuesday, Bush also will campaign for candiates in California, New Mexico and Texas.

During campaign stops in Massachusetts and Florida yesterday, Bush continued to aim tough comments at Iraq's Saddam Hussein. The president warned that the time for diplomatic pressure is running short. But he denied that he was ''trying to prepare our country for war.'' White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters that Bush is speaking out because- his words- ''if we have to take dramatic action, we want the American people to know why.''

A defense attorney in the trial of two youths accused in the brutal rape of a Central Park jogger last year tried yesterday to show that the woman did NOT suffer life-threatening injuries. However, his questions to a doctor who treated the jogger caused jurors to shake their heads and laugh. The trial continues today with testimony from a gynecologist who examined the jogger.

India's leadership remains in doubt today, as violence persists in parts of the nation. Yesterday, at least 33 people died in the trouble which began Tuesday when Hindu fundamentalists tried UNsuccessfully to begin construction of a temple on the site occupied by a 460-year-old mosque. Speculation surrounds the future of Prime Minister V-P Singh's party.

A former slave could become America's first black saint. The Roman Catholic Church yesterday began the exhumation of the remains of Pierre Toussaint, a native of Haiti. Cardinal John O'Connor said the exhumation of Toussaint's 137-year-old remains from a Manhattan graveyard is a step toward his being canonized. Toussaint was a native of what is now Haiti. He died in 1853 after a life dedicated to caring for the poor and those with deadly sicknesses.

TOKYO (NOV. 2) UPI - Domestic car sales showed signs of slowing in October mainly because of rising gasoline prices and interest rates on auto loans, the Japan Automobile Dealers Association said Friday.

The association said car sales in October gained a modest 0.9 percent over a year ago to 504,641 units.

The slow sales growth followed a 0.3 percent rise in September.

''Rising gasoline prices, coupled with higher interest rates on auto loans, have apparently begun to bear impact on car sales, particularly small models '' an association spokesman said.

Gas stations have raised prices of gasoline to keep pace with higher crude oil prices boosted by tension in the Middle East.

Auto dealers also raised interest rates on auto loans in line with rising interest rates on other commercial loans resulting from an official discount rate hike by the central bank.

The Bank of Japan raised the key rate by 0.75 points to 6.0 percent in August in a move to forestall growing inflationary pressures, marking an end to its easy credit policy.

The association said sales of passenger cars fell for the second straight month, down 1.2 percent to 357,005 units.

Sales of large models, mainly with an engine capacity of over 2001 cc, gained 69.7 percent to 52,347 units but those of smaller cars slipped 7.8 percent to 304,658 units, the association said.

Truck sales rose 6.5 percent to 145,784 units, while those of buses surged 4.5 percent to 1,852 units.

Toyota Motor Corp. boosted its sales 4.2 percent while Nissan Motor Co. and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. increased their sales 3.7 percent and 8.7 percent, respectively, the association said.

Honda Motor Co.'s sales suffered a 20.9 percent drop while sales by Mazda Motor Corp. decreased 7.5 percent.

COLUMBUS, GA (NOV. 2) UPI - The mother of a hostage shot by Iraqi soldiers and now used as a human shield at a chemical plant has rejected Saddam Hussein's invitation to come to the Middle East for a holiday visit.

Ann Hoffman of Columbus called the invitation to visit Baghdad ''ridiculous,'' and said she wants her injured son sent home immediately.

Her son, Miles Hoffman, reportedly was shot and suffered a compound fracture of the left arm during the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, where he worked as a financial analyst and investor for the Kuwaiti government.

''I just want him home,'' the hostage's mother said Thursday. ''He is injured. His arm's not healing. He needs an operation.''

French hostages released this week report the former Atlanta investment banker being held at a chemical plant 45 miles south of Baghdad, needs immediate medical atention. He reportedly is so weak that he cannot walk with his fellow hostages, who are allowed 45 minutes each day to exercise.

''Our latest information on Miles is bad,'' said his sister, Evelyn H. Barfield of Columbus. ''His condition has deteriorated. He's in a lot of pain and in need of surgery now. I have no idea what his condition will be by Christmastime.''

Miles Hoffman's brother, Chancellor Hoffman, said the family is angry and wants the hostage sent home immediately.

The mother has written letters to both the Iraqi president and Iraq's ambassador to the United States, pleading for the 33-year-old man's release.

Chancellor Hoffman also called the presidental palace of Jordan's King Hussein seeking his assistance but getting no results.

''We don't give a durn about Christmas or Thanksgiving,'' Chancellor Hoffman said. ''We want him out now.''

The hostage and his fiancee Nikki Murgatroyd of Forton, England, were to have been married Aug. 17, two weeks after the Aug. 2 invason of Kuwait. They met in Kuwait, but she was in England planning the wedding during the invasion.

SAGINAW, MI (NOV. 2) UPI - The search intensified Friday for a drugstore clerk who killed two of his co-workers with a claw hammer.

A statewide alert was issued for Steven E. King, 28, who is thought to have fled the area and possibly the state.

King is accused of killing George Bowles, 17, and Bertha Aldridge, 24, Wednesday night at a Perry Drug Store in Saginaw.

Aldridge died Wednesday night and Bowles died Thursday at St. Mary's Medical Center. A 59-year-old pharmacist who heard screams from the storeroom also was attacked but managed to escape with minor injuries.

Det. Sgt. Mike McCullen said investigators don't know what prompted the attack. King had worked at the store since August and was on friendly terms with all of his fellow employees, he said.

''There was no indication of previous problems. It looks like he just went on the nut,'' McCullen said. ''We really want to get this guy. We believe he is extremely dangerous.''

McCullen said little is known about King other than that he came to Saginaw about a year ago and may be a native of New York.

The Halloween night killings took place in a storeroom. There were customers in the store but none witnessed the slayings. King fled on foot. The pharmacist, whose name was not released, was treated and released.
